Australians Plan Anti-Pope Parade

The crowd was one of the largest ever assembled in a closed area in Australia, but it was only two-fifths of the 500,000 officials of the papal tour had predicted.

A tiny group calling itself the Australasian Alliance of Bible - Believing Christian Churches planned to parade with placards in front of the Sydney town hall Wednesday night while the 73-year-old pontiff held an ecumenical prayer service inside with Anglican, Methodist, Baptist and Lutheran church leaders.

Between 25 and 100 persons were expected to demonstrate. An organizer of the protest, John McKenzie, said the group would be "silent and peaceful."

McKenzie said his organization has no quarrel with the Pope's coming to visit Australian Catholics, but it opposes Protestants associating with him.

"If it wasn't for me, you wouldn't have a family allowance increase!"

Temporary Bride Wanted

TORONTO (CP) — A notice in Monday's Varsity, University of Toronto student newspaper, asks for a volunteer bride.

"A woman is required to marry a young American immigrant to Canada," it says. "It's for a temporary length of time and money will be provided for future divorce proceedings."

Varsity editor David Frank said the immigrant has a criminal record because of activities as a youth and deportation proceedings against him have begun, but if he were married to a Canadian citizen he would have a better chance of remaining in Canada.

At least three volunteers have come forward but the selection has not been made, he said.

Satellite Burns Up

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The most expensive, complex scientific satellite ever built in the United States lies in ashes somewhere in Africa or the Indian Ocean today while a review board seeks to learn why it failed to reach orbit.

It failed to reach orbit Monday.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Early today a storm over South Dakota had brought cloudy conditions to most of Ontario. Snow and freezing precipitation had begun north of Lake Superior while a few showers were reported in the extreme western part of southern Ontario. The storm will track northeast passing just south of James Bay Wednesday morning. In the south a few showers and some periods of drizzle are forecast as very mild air invades the district. In all regions strong southeast winds will develop ahead of the storm.

Baby Bonus Tied To Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government announced proposals Monday intended to re-shape domestic welfare programs and provide more assistance to the needy without incurring substantial additional costs.

The recommendations were made in a white paper on income security tabled in the Commons by Health Minister John Munro.

The measures received modest approval from the New Democrats and Creditistes but were strongly criticized by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield. He said the white paper was an inadequate response to the needs of Canadians living in poverty.

Major adjustments are recommended in the current family-allowance and old age security programs. Adoption of a guaranteed annual income is rejected as too costly, uncertain and ineffective.

Under proposals regarding family allowances, those with incomes up to $4,500 will qualify for the top rate of $20 per child under 16 years. The allowance would be decreased as income increased up to $10,001 where benefits would be entirely cut off.

Under the present system, all families with children under 16 are eligible for allowances of $6 or $8 depending on childrens' ages.

Families would be required to apply annually for family allowances stating their salary level and information from the previous year. The white paper estimates about 830,000 families will stop getting cheques. The plan would take effect next September.

Mr. Munro told a news conference his believes those who lose the family allowance will not object strongly when they know money is going to about 2.2 million families whose need is greater.

White Paper Highlights

Guaranteed monthly income to needy old age pensioners rises to $255 for couples and $135 for single people next April.

Basic old age pension set at $80 monthly beginning next Jan. 1.

Two-per-cent annual cost-of living increase eliminated from old age pension, effective next year; retained for supplementary payments based on need.

Revamped family allowances systems more than doubles payments for families earning less than $4,500 annually but wipes them out for those with more than $10,000 annually, effective September, 1971.

Tax exemptions will be removed from family allowance benefits — being renamed the family income security plan.

Federal government will give provinces required three years notice of intention to seek revisions in Canada Pension Plan, aimed at increasing all forms of benefits.

Talks will be held with provinces on altering provincial welfare programs to which federal government contributes half of cost.

Guaranteed income for all Canadians rejected in favor of revision of varied income security policies aimed at seeking combination "that will best meet income security objectives."

Constitution Drafted For Church Union

TORONTO (CP) — The draft of a proposed constitution for the church that some day may become the national Protestant church of Canada was approved Monday by the general commission on church union. It was hammered out point by point, almost word by word.

There was no disagreement among the 48 theologians and laymen, from many parts of Canada, on the structural organization of the church that proponents of union hope will replace the Anglican Church of Canada and the United Church of Canada.

This was agreed to in general terms in the Principles of Union adopted in 1965 by the two churches. About six million persons profess adherence to these churches.

They differed on questions of doctrine and ritual which have troubled both denominations since negotiations on union began in 1943.

Mr. Robarts, 53, will make a three-day visit to Quebec City this weekend. It has been widely reported that he will announce his retirement early next week.

The premier has refused to confirm the reports, but a cabinet source said last week they were correct.

New Boosts Match Needs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

First reactions to the federal white paper on social welfare, tabled in the House of Commons Monday, showed moderate criticism of the government proposals but little objection to the principle of increased aid to low-income families and poor pensioners at the expense of the more affluent.

Manitoba's NDP Premier Ed Schreyer came closest to objecting to the principle of selective assistance.

City officials in Montreal declined comment until they had studied the white paper proposals.

Toronto social activist John Mooney said "nothing has changed and nothing will change until governments attack the sources of poverty."

Parliamentary Opposition spokesmen were predictably critical.

"Inadequate," said Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield. "We see here no effective broadening of the basis of security."

NDP spokesman Stanley Knowles said "a number of things" in the paper are good but condemned the move to eliminate the cost-of-living increase of two per cent a year in the basic old age pension, which is to be frozen at $80 a month.

He said this move is breaking faith with people who have paid into the Canada Pension Plan.

Speaking for the Creditistes, Charles Eugene Dionne of Kenoumaska welcomed improved aid for low-income families and needy pensioners but said the, main problem was lack of money, which could be overcome only through monetary reform.

For Convention? What Else?

PCs Ask to Use Maple Leaf Gardens

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram says the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party will choose a successor to Premier John Robarts at a leadership convention at Maple Leaf Gardens the week starting Monday, Feb. 8.

The newspaper quotes Harold Ballard, member of the board of directors of the Gardens, as saying the party had asked him if the building was available between Feb. 8 and 12.

Mr. Ballard was quoted as saying he told the party he will hold the dates until party next week and the party undertook to confirm the reservation at that time.

Mr. Ballard said the party did not tell him why it wants the Gardens.

The Telegram says the only major decision on timing still to be made is whether balloting for a new leader should take place on the Wednesday or the Friday of the week of Feb. 8.

Madoc Council Is Acclaimed

MADOC (Staff) — Madoc township council has been re-elected by acclamation for another term of office.

The hospital for the past month recognizing from an operation, Reeve Cecil Woods received acclamation for another term as did councillors Dudley Mallory, Deputy-Reeve Harold Harris and John Jermyn.

Township Clerk Beryl Carman said he would visit Reeve Woods in hospital today to have him sign qualification papers.

Council Endorses Three Candidates

The Quinte District Labor Council has formally endorsed the bids of its candidates in upcoming local elections.

They are George Greer, seeking re-election to Trenton town council; William Menzies, Trenton - area representative on the Hastings, Prince Edward Separate School Board and James Wiseman, seeking election to the separate school board for the Belleville area.

All three are active members of the labor council. Councillor Greer and Mr. Menzies earlier were endorsed as candidates for organized labor against Coun. Harold Harris and John Jermyn.

The labor council's choice followed a meeting in Trenton Nov. 30 where candidates formally made requests for labor's endorsement.

Huntingdon Council All Set

IVANHOE (Staff) — Reeve Russell Sills, the deputy-reeve and all three councillors for Huntingdon township have been elected by acclamation.

The only change from last year's council will be John Waite, field officer for the Moira River Conservation Authority, who takes the place of George Wood who stepped up to become deputy - reeve following the resignation of Kenneth Holland.

The two other councillors are Harold Thompson and Francis Thompson.

Stirling Has A New Reeve

STIRLING (Staff) — Stirling village has a new Reeve-elect today as the result of the nomination meeting last night which saw councillor Robert Anderson receive acclamation following the resignation of Reeve Donald Rodgers.

Reeve Rodgers, council head for the past six years and last year's county warden, resigned to council run for public utilities commission.

There could also be an acclamation for the two seats on the public utilities as Harold Wright, member for the past 20 years, has indicated he may not qualify to run. The other PUC nominee is Robert Hatton.

But it looks as though there will be an election for council with seven being nominated to run for the four seats. Nominated were Arthur MacConnell, Douglas Bensley, Maurice Faulkner, Edward Klompmaker, Fred Brandt, Claude Trumble and Maurice Montgomery.

Dungannon Vote Looms

L'AMABLE (Staff) — There will be a full slate competing for office on Dungannon township council this year with no less than eleven men vying for the reeveship and four seats on council.

The battle for the reeve ship will be between incumbent Calvin White and former reeve W. T. Adams, who is treading the comeback trail. Reeve White is a former county warden.

Nine men will compete for the four council seats. They are, Fred Rallison, John McLean, Elmer Hennessy, Oscar Storring Sr., Edward Wood, Eugene Shaw, Gordon Card, Laird Eaton and James Brown.

paid to everyone at 65 would be frozen at $90 a month in January, 1971, and the cost-of-living escalation clause that put it at $78.38 this year.

However, the guaranteed income supplement would rise next April to $85 a month for those single and $99 per couple—when both receive assistance—from the present $81.83 if their income is less than $240 a year.

The supplement would be cut back by the two per cent a year to keep pace with cost-of-living increases.

The white paper also outlines plans for discussions with the provinces aimed at increasing Canada Pension Plan contributions and benefits. Those discussions will be held in January.

The white paper goes into some detail in presenting reasons for not recommending a guaranteed annual income at this time. Basically, the document says, further study is needed on how it would affect a person's desire to work.

It would also be extremely costly—$5 billion in the first year—and still would not cover all the social needs which could be met by any welfare program.

Mr. Munro, who has said he favors a guaranteed income, told the news conference the steps outlined in the white paper are the best that can be achieved at the moment.

Mr. LaPalm is resting at the O'Brien Funeral Residence from where the funeral will be held Thursday with service at the chapel at 11 a.m. Interment St. James Cemetery.

The plan would mean an additional expenditure of about $1 billion over current levels by 1973-74, partly because of population growth.

But the additional expenditure would be covered largely with higher contributions to contributory plans and by gradually limiting the fabrication-tax program. Revenues would also be generated by taxing benefits paid in the family-allowance plan.

Mr. Munro said the proposals represent a move away from universal programs and towards a guaranteed income approach.

Nomination At Brighton Last Night

BRIGHTON (Staff) — In the nomination meeting here last night, two men were named to contest the reeve's seat on village council, the reeve himself Norman Roberts, a civilian employee at CFB Trenton, and deputy reeve Lyle Powell, a retired engineer.

Mrs. Dorothy Brainell was acclaimed to the position of deputy reeve.

In the race for three council seats, incumbent James Simpson was named to face three newcomers — William Dank, John Taylor and Gerald Ross.

Nominated for the Public Utilities Commission were present commissioners, Morris Harrington and Perry Mackintosh as well as Harold McCall.

The question of whether fluoride is to be added to the village water supply will be on the ballot when Brighton residents go to the polls December 7.

Deloro Election Assured

DELORO (Staff) — An election for all positions on council is assured for this village is assured for December 7.

Incumbent Reeve Charles Gordanier will be opposed by Cletus Green.

And there are seven aspirants for the four seats on council. They are incumbents Ray Brown, Abbonne Clemens and Clayton Cole, and newcomers Douglas Lynch, Leonard Bicknell, Eric McInroy and Costan Paramnik.

Wollaston Will Vote

COE HILL (Staff) — Incumbent Reeve Albert Vader and councillor Howard Gunter will compete for the reeveship in Wollaston township.

There will also be an election for council with incumbents Clarence Batchelor, Frank Graham and Aubrey Aggett battling it out for the four seats with newcomers Russell Moore and Bud French.

Bearing Christmas Gifts and Joy

Belleville Fire Chief Leo Culhane is surrounded by 29 students from St. Joseph's School who together gathered what toys they could to bring down to Fire Station No. 1 to present to him. The fire department is collecting toys for children that find Christmas toys scarce over the holiday season.

Automation Is Added

The payroll and personnel system of the Hastings county board of education will be computerized, trustees decided Monday night.

Cost of putting payroll and personnel information into the computer will be $4,200 annually.

The additional cost is offset be reducing the payroll staff by one. An employee recently transferred to another department will not be replaced.

The board already buys computer service, tied in with a terminal in the office at 208 Bridge Street East, to handle the processing of purchasing orders, vendors' invoices, journal entries and the production of the general ledger.

Eventually, the plan is to tie all board operations into the Ottawa-based computer, where all records and transactions will be stored in a memory bank for instant retrieval in a variety of forms.

McKeough Is Firm On Board Makeup

TRENTON (Staff) — Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough will establish the new Quinte Area Planning Board with its constitution as originally proposed unless "convincing arguments" are received by December 15, 1970.

Belleville had objected to the initial draft that gave it six of 24 seats on the board — City council wanted eight. Half the cost of the planning board will be paid by Belleville.

A letter from the minister of municipal affairs read in council here last night stated that he had received "the distinct impression . . . that many of the councils (comprising the QAPB) believe that the formula" of giving Belleville eight seats is unacceptable.

The Minister fielded Belleville's request that it be permitted two more seats but "in view of the strong reaction" against it from other municipalities including Trenton and "having regard for the general support for the (original) formula approved by the planning committee" he is now of the opinion that the Quinte Planning Board "revert to the constitution as originally proposed."

In fact its over - the - counter business totals as much as 75 per cent of that at the main post office at the corner of Station and Pinnacle Streets.

And the volume of mail at the downtown office is making truck pickup difficult — especially when there is no loading zone at the front of the store.

This is revealed in a letter to the city traffic and light committee from Postmaster Roy Wainwright asked for provision of loading zone space to make the late afternoon mail pickup.

Last week the city parking authority recommended the loading zone at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce be made available for postal pickups and yesterday the traffic and light committee went along with the motion.

Accordingly, the committee has recommended that the loading zone be left free of parked cars from five to six in the afternoon as well as during the customary morning hours from nine to eleven.

Appropriate signs will be posted at the loading zone advising motorists to keep the zone free between fire and six for postal trucks.

Ameliasburg Students Miss Out on Late Bus

The Hastings county board of education Monday night refused to pay the cost of late buses, three days a week, 40 weeks a year.

Other schools will soon get extra late buses that will allow students to stay after school to take part in extra-curricular events.

Prince Edward county board of education buys education for Ameliasburg township students from the Hastings county board, Prince Edward also provides transportation for the Ameliasburg students to and from BCI.

The Prince Edward board was asked to approve the scheme at a cost of $7,400 annually for the late buses to give Ameliasburg students equal opportunity with others in county secondary schools.

The Prince Edward board approved the idea, but not the cost. It took the attitude that late buses are a part of normal education, like excursions, and are the responsibility of the Hastings county board. Hastings county trustees disagreed, and voted that no action be taken on late buses for Ameliasburg students.

Trenton Chamber Backs Senior Citizens' Centre

Mr. Miron suggested that a recreation hall for the elderly be built next to Branch 110 Canadian Legion, on town owned parkland.

Draft plans call for a 60 by 100 foot structure that may be moved to other sites like a portable classroom. Such a building is needed in the core area, he said, as "a drop-in centre" for shopping senior citizens.

Basis for the request is an increased membership in the senior citizens' club and the possibility that the Orange Lodge, now permitting the elderly to meet in its hall, will no longer let them meet on the premises.

Mr. Miron raised the possibility that the lodge might take over the peoples' meeting area for use as a bingo parlor. He said the senior citizens are "subject to being vacated with a month's notice".

Council agreed in principle to the proposal that a new drop-in centre be established. The Chamber of Commerce has begun a fund-raising campaign for the project.

Consideration was given by council that the town sell parkland for the chamber. However, councillor Ted Parker said he did not think council had the power to do this.

"We cannot sell it without going back to the people," he said, explaining that the people have direct control over such property transactions.

"It would be for better to come to some arrangement" for use of the land without selling it, councillor Parker contended. Meetings will be set up between the senior citizens and both the parks board and recreation committee so that an arrangement may be reached.

REAL ESTATE

THINK AGAIN BEFORE YOU COUNTERSIGN

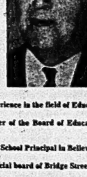
BEE MACKENZIE
C. E. Mackenzie
Real Estate Ltd.

There was a recent case of a young couple who listed their house for sale and promptly received a very fair offer — an ideal situation, since the husband had been transferred and they wished to move without delay.

They were pleased, of course, but because the offer had come almost immediately and was slightly below their asking price, they decided to "sign back" the offer at the full asking price.

A few days later, the Realtor informed them that the buyer had refused to accept the signed back offer which, therefore, was now null and void.

"Well, alright, we'll accept the first offer then" the husband replied. But the buyer had signed off and was now no longer interested. The couple never again received as good an offer and finally needless fuss had to sell for considerably less.



There is a lesson here for many home owners who do not realize that a signed offer is a legal obligation to buy. If they as buyers change their mind, or even a punctuation mark, it may make the offer worthless.

Think well before you sign back an offer. If it is a fair offer, it may also be your best offer — ever.

Education Costs

Letters on this page today are symtomatic of increasing public concern over education costs — concern which could turn to outright clamor to halt the spiral. It has finally reached the point where a leading educationist has himself recognized that the taxpayer is not a limitless source of funds for salaries and buildings and equipment.

We refer to Lloyd Dennis, co-author of the controversial Hall-Dennis report and director of education for Leeds-Grenville with headquarters in Brockville.

Mr. Dennis is quoted as saying that salaries as well as programs should be considered when education boards study ways of holding expenditures within the strict limits announced by the department of education recently. In saying this he includes his own salary of $30,000 per year as one which would have to be considered in any Leeds-Grenville cutback.

Mr. Dennis was commenting on a report from the Ontario School Trustees Council that school boards cannot afford to increase teachers' salaries next year. The director said he would not like to see the board cut back on special education programs in order to increase teachers' salaries, and suggested there might be some other areas "less important" which could be cut back first.

Would salaries be considered less important? Not in themselves, we would suggest, but as Mr. Dennis observes salaries must be taken into consideration. Indeed if there is to be any pruning, it would be administrators such as himself who would be hurt least by a reduction. We are certain Mr. Dennis and any other administrator making in the region of $30,000 could manage just as well on a good deal less.

Mr. Dennis at least has the good sense to recognize this and he is to be commended in this regard. Hitherto we have not heard anyone else in authority in education today suggesting that perhaps the staffs, and even the hierarchy, are absorbing too much of the educational budgets.

Retirement Rumors

There is no smoke without fire, as the saying goes, and the rumors that Ontario Premier Robarts plans to retire are gathering strength. A cabinet source has gone so far as to say he will step down shortly after returning from a trip to Quebec next weekend.

Mr. Robarts himself has been non-committal on the subject, but this in itself perhaps is indication enough of something in the wind, maybe the handing over of leadership to a younger man (Education Minister William Davis has been mentioned) in preparation for the next election.

Not that Mr. Robarts is so very advanced in years. He is 53 and yet he has been premier for nine years. The rigors of office are such that a man cannot be blamed for considering even in comparative youth that his own personal life, as well as the affairs of the province, might be better served by a change in the leadership at this time.

Politicians are not supposed to be without an answer, they are not supposed to show weakness or vacillation. In short they must always be ready with a smile and a quick interest in anything and everything. They are expected to work until they drop, and the fact that most of them do put in very arduous work schedules, and somehow do not drop, is a source of amazement to the rest of us who find a proper balance between work and recreation essential to survival.

But then Mr. Robarts and his colleagues in provincial and federal politics evidently know how to pace themselves and there are ample case histories of world leaders living and working well into their 70s. President de Gaulle is the most recent example and in Canada we have heard of John Diefenbaker's early morning walks and George Hees' daily swims while in Ottawa.

Mr. Robarts however has had bouts of ill-health and recently the superhuman image of the men of politics faltered momentarily in his case when he explained his absence from the legislature by the fact he was not feeling well.

Manifold are the duties of the politician and arduous the course of his life. Just two come to mind of late in Mr. Robarts' schedule — attendance at the Sir Oliver Mowat celebrations in Kingston and a presentation to the premier of a Great Lakes Commission citation "for outstanding service in water resources management, from 1961 to date," in other words during the nine years of his premiership to-date.

The future then will take its course. The period immediately ahead may indicate new trends in Ontario politics.

Jobs Scarce—and No Wonder

So the U.S. Draft Dodgers Are Feeling the Pinch

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Wring out the crying towels, bleeding hearts having wept over the injustices they see society inflicting on the put-upon supporters of the FLQ are going to be in tears all over again.

Those American draft - dodgers and military deserters who fled in fear to Canada's kind-hearted Canada are having simply a terrible time of it.

The welfare payments on which so many of them are living while looking are just impossible.

And you know, if some of them feel like making a little extra money for their other particular kind of luxuries, they are starting to find it a bit difficult to get a job.

Their long hair, foul smell and shabby reputation, I hear it from an official here of the Canada Manpower Centre — the federal government's official job-placement agency—seem to be getting in the way of work.

But perhaps that could be the way the young American "visitors" intended it to be all along.

Cynical views, these?

Perhaps, but factual, too.

Just the other day to Parliament Hill and the Press Gallery came Charles Hillinger, a staff member of the Los Angeles Times — Washington Post News Service to report on the political battle in the House of Commons over the Government's fight with War Measures Act and the new "Public Order" legislation against the terrorist FLQ.

The Los Angles Times and the Washington Post and Times Herald generally are agreed to be small "l" liberal newspapers, taking the side of toleration and understanding in the most sharply - drawn issues of dissent, protest and even violence.

So staff correspondent Charles Hillinger is no flaming right-winger taking a critical view.

And from there he has wired to the Los Angeles and Washington newspapers and the scores of daily papers subscribing to their news service that hundreds of American draft-dodgers and deserters live in fear of arrest and questioning under provisions of the "Public Order" regulations with subsequent deportation.

They should worry not. Deserted by some they regard as bad deported never. For unless they have been in the active service of the FLQ or are convicted of some crime, they are safe.

Correspondent Hillinger goes on to break your heart with this intelligence: those deserters and draft-dodgers who have moved to feeling like a spot of work now are not finding it easy to get jobs.

Surprising, what, when there are something more than 700,000 home-grown Canadians looking for work with a winter fast approaching when unemployment darkly threatens to be the blackest in years.

But careful correspondent that Charles Hillinger obviously must be, he is not reporting all this just off the top of his head.

No indeed, he is quoting qualified authorities on the subject.

He quotes Danny Schwartzman, a New York City draft-dodger now residing in Montreal as saying that the fugitive American flower-power people who don't want to work, that prefer the good life on welfare are finding things hard.

"Welfare up here in Montreal is just terrible — only $75 a month. You just can not live on $75 a month."

Any Canadian old age pensioner could have told him that.

How many of these deprived young Americans are there up here?

The people who are supposed to keep in touch with in the Citizenship and Immigration Department say they can only make a guess — but it is not be a pretty well-based one — at something more, now, than 150,000.

How many of them are the hippie-hoppies?

Authorities at Defence Headquarters who turned over the nation's armories to the bands of wandering youth last summer estimate the number of Americans, and a heavy percentage of them hippies, "in the thousands."

William H. Kelly, retired deputy RCMP Commissioner in charge of Security and Intelligence asks a good question about these hippies: "If we agreed they should live without working, that they should be given food and shelter at the taxpayers' expense and develop their lazy, immoral, undisciplined and drug-oriented subculture?"

Was it your MP through his permissive silence?

Ask him — send a letter, so at any rate you'll know where he stood when Parliament discusses draft-dodgers, deserters and hippies.

Trucking Essential To Economy of the Country

Letter to
Hamilton Spectator

In reply to the letter of November 17 under the heading "Have your way noise no laughing matter", I would like to clear the writer's mind as she does not be speaking without gathering facts to back up her statements.

First of all, contrary to her 1-liel, 99.9 per cent of our trucks are muffled and in addition over 50 per cent of them have dual exhaust and muffler systems.

Secondly, steps are being taken to lessen the noise of the vehicle motive power systems to reduce polluting emissions and noise.

Even though she lives in the west end of the city, she apparently has closed her ears to the "Wheeeeeeee! Thank! Crash" of the railway shunting area near there, which many people have written about to Postscripts, or perhaps she has a personal vendetta against trucks.

If she desires to get away from these noisy trucks and have the birds and wildlife she mentioned, I would therefore move to a cave way up north, but without her modern conveniences as there is no way she can have anything without a truck bringing it.

Over 14,000 Canadian communities rely on trucks as their sole means of obtaining all their needs and uses, as they are not on or near a railway line.

In Ontario alone three out of five communities are wholly dependent on trucks for the transportation of their goods.

I am a truck driver and most of us in the trucking industry are proud and happy to be of service to the people of this great nation, and are just as concerned about noise and pollution as the next person.

Could Mars Support Life?

Montreal Gazette

Mars, inasfar as has been determined by the exploratory rocket ships Mariner 6 and 7 in 1969, supports no life at the present time. The planet has no magnetic field and no atmosphere. It is completely unprotected from radioactive particles which fall on it from outer space.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is interested in experiments looking to placing a form of life on Mars. This would be a test-tube problem, but the possible benefits of successful exploration into symbolizing a living and reproducing cell.

NASA would seed Mars with this single-celled form of life. Already other scientists are challenging the concept. They say there is no knowledge how this kind of life would develop. Given the peculiar Martian conditions of no atmosphere and exposure to radiation who can predict what types of mutations would occur and how fast? Putting life where none has existed for billions of years is challenging the ecological balance on an astronomical scale.

The scientists in opposition will have substantial support from those who are becoming increasingly uneasy about some of man's probes into the universe and his interference with what he finds — especially in the outer reaches of space. Just because man has found out how to do things considered impossible a few years ago, must he go ahead and do them without regard for possible consequences? There should be some responsible rationale that determines when "should" ought to prevail over "can."

$400,000 for Proposed Administration Centre
Education Costlier Than Ever But Can the Kids Even Spell Any Better Than in the Past?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Two years ago, with a great deal of pomp (and expense) we were forced by our leaders into the "new concept" of education. We elected a School Board in keeping with the trend, duly hired the most expensive help they could find, sold the school to Tweed against the wishes of the people, (only to have to buy it back again), and now, it appears, if re-elected, they hope to spend $400,000 for a new Administration building.

Their budget increased by $5,000,000 in two years so nobody can accuse them of being penny pinchers. However, can the kids read or write any better than under the old system? Of course they cannot. Have you noticed your kid being any smarter since being exposed to the "new concept"? It seems to me that we have been brain washed, bewildered and befuddled by an educational propaganda machine, operated by a muddled morass of nit-witted psychologist and psychiatrist punjabs who are never happy unless your child is a case history.

Our schools are crammed with expensive pieces of electronic equipment such as film projectors, slide projectors, and just about every mechanical aid you can think of, but we produce the most over advertised generation of poor spellers, who, in so many cases, are unable to express themselves intelligently in their own language because they are too busy learning a second language.

The teachers are busy absorbing "new teaching" concepts in order to upgrade themselves, and "new mathematics" continue to baffle teacher, parent and child. And while School Boards sponsor these expensive educational experiments, every retired old Joe Taxpayer digs deeper into his pockets to find the wherewithal to pay for it.

I doubt very much if it would do any good to mention to anyone that we just can't afford this spendthrift holiday much longer. If you did, the executives Establishment would go into a tantrum and regale us with the horrors of being left behind the rest of the world. What a joke. When our PhDs are unable to find a job because they don't have any qualifications a nyone seems to want, something must be wrong with the system we are paying so much to perpetuate. Of course we can find comfort perhaps, in the fact that soon we will be the most healthy and most educated nation in the world. There won't be any money for anything else because medicare and education will have swallowed it all.

BATTERED AND BEWILDERED.

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The observations made by the lady in reference to the upcoming School Board elections and a power clique remind me of the years that I lived in Belleville. Nothing seems to have changed very much.

As always it seems to be governed by doctors, lawyer, businessmen, and now it seems, the same old weary routine is going to be offered for School Board trusteeship. I was also interested to see that in addition to one incumbent former educator running, another retired school administration member has thrown his hat into the ring. Pretty soon the ordinary man or woman will have no say in anything that affects them.

A thing that puzzles me is why has the outgoing Board been so silent on their plans to spend $400,000 on a new Administration Services Building. This has been kept very quiet. It is unlikely that they would go much more than the bare shell for this amount, so the final total could well be near a cool million dollars. I imagine that this money could be better spent on the children in these times of austerity. But when you are empire you usually have to have a few castles to keep your overseers in, do you?

I wonder if the incumbents that are running can be coaxed into owning up as to who voted for the totally unnecessary Annex to pay for the upper echelon of the Administration.

Is it possible that anyone will have the old fashioned common sense and guts to get up on candidate night and tell everyone we just cannot go on spending money on education at the rate we are for very much longer. I doubt it.

OTTAWA (CP) — Basic monthly payments to old age pensioners with no other income will rise in April, 1971, to $255 a month for a couple and to $135 a month for a single person. The minimum basic old age pension will be $80 a month, effective next Jan. 1.

If there were no pension plan changes next year, the comparable maximum figures for people with no other income would have been $227.22 for a couple and $113.61 for a single person.

The increases were proposed in a white paper on income security tabled Monday in the Commons by Welfare Minister John Munro.

The government plans to act quickly to implement the paper proposals. It already has paper notice on the Commons order paper of legislation for the pension increases.

In practice the only increases will be for lonely pensioners. For single pensioners with an income of $1,200 or more and couples with $2,400 or more the pension would be the present figure with no increase. In fact, there will be a reduction when their would-be basic is paid in 1971 if there were no change.

There are about 1.7 million Canadians 65 or over receiving the old age pension of $79.28 a month. Of these more than 800,000 in most now receiving a supplement to a maximum in the basic $80, in which case it will apply to the combined total of the basic pension and the supplement.

The increases in the supplement will begin April 1, 1971, and will ensure that no couple depending entirely or almost entirely on the old age pension for income will get less than $255 a month. For the single pensioner in the same economic circumstances, the figure will be $135 a month.

In maximum figures, the increase is $27.78 a month for a couple and $22.39 for a single pensioner.

The cost-of-living increase will no longer apply unless a pensioner receives a supplement to

New Act In Effect

TORONTO (CP) — The Women's Equal Employment Opportunity Act, aimed at protecting one million working women in Ontario from discrimination in job recruitment, hiring, training, promotion and dismissal, went into effect today.

"The whole thing is to educate industry and women themselves to open all jobs to qualified workers of both sexes," says Dr. Lila-Rose Betcherman, She is director of the Ontario Women's Bureau, responsible for administration of the act.

It was described Monday by Doris Anderson, editor of Chatelaine magazine, as the toughest such legislation in Canada.

Dr. Betcherman said she has received "many, many requests" for information and "quite a number of requests" from companies for exemption status.

Companies with fewer than six employees are automatically exempt. A labor department bulletin distributed to 140,000 businesses, unions and associations says that physical reasons will be the factor in setting exemptions based on sex and that lack of mobility will be considered in exemptions because of marital status.

Dr. Betcherman has said that exemption requests on grounds that a man had always done the job will be viewed "with a cold eye."

She explained how the legislation will work:

"A woman who believes she has been discriminated against should get in touch with the bureau (at Queen's Park) with a view to laying a complaint. We will tell her if it comes under the legislation. If it does, officers will be sent to the company to arrange a settlement.

"The next step is investigation, conciliation, settlement. Where a settlement is not reached, the labor minister may appoint a board and his decision could go to the Ontario court of appeal.

"The fines will be used as a last resort."

The Act provides for maximum fines of $100 for an individual and $3,000 for a corporation, employment agency or trade union.

Employers of 25 persons or more are forbidden to fire a woman who becomes pregnant. They are bound to give her up to six weeks maternity leave before the birth if asked and six weeks after with a guarantee she can return to the same position or a comparable one.

Dr. Betcherman, a former history professor at Carleton University in Ottawa, said maternity leave is offered in the teaching profession but there is very little in many other sectors.

Physicians' Wives Hold Yule Luncheon

A warm welcome was extended by Mrs. Russell Bateman to the Belleville and District Physicians' Wives Association last Thursday when she opened her home for a pre-Christmas luncheon meeting. In surroundings appropriate to the coming season Mrs. Birchard, Mrs. Kelly and Mrs. Mulligan organized add served a wide variety of dishes which had been provided and prepared by the members themselves.

At the annual meeting which followed the luncheon the slate of officers presented by Mrs. J. Nelles, chairman of the nominating committee was unanimously elected. Mrs. G. Pearse succeeds Mrs. B. Morgan as corresponding secretary and Mrs. P. Mulligan will continue as press secretary. All other officers will proceed to the second year of a two year tenure of office. This includes past president Mrs. P. Loder; president, Mrs. J. Hardy; vice-president Mrs. R. Vaughan; treasurer Mrs. F. Ross and recording secretary Mrs. N. Reid.

After receiving the annual reports from the various officers the president reviewed the past year's activities, commenting in particular on the highly enjoyable private meeting held in April at the home of Mrs. P. Kelly, which realized a substantial sum towards the Association's funds. In conclusion Mrs. Hartt thanked her executive and the members at large for their work and support during the past year, and on behalf of everyone present she expressed special appreciation to the hostess.

This was followed by the film, "A Dream To Grow On", pertaining to the Special Olympics for the Mentally Retarded held in Chicago in 1968, which stressed a well-rounded recreational program to benefit the retarded.

Association for Retarded Meets

The Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded held a general meeting in the Happy Hours School on Monday, November 23. The meeting was opened by the new Adult Services committee chairman, Willard Martin.

Various reports were given and president, Mrs. Joan Shannon said the Association has decided to purchase insurance coverage which encompasses the school children plus any volunteers. The Association is in the process of becoming incorporated which will entail a few changes, one being the governing body will not be known as the executive but a nine member Board of Directors; also the Association is continuing with the evaluation testing for the school on behalf of the Board of education.

Retiring chairman, Larry Richardson, gave a brief resume of the activities being carried on by the Adult Services Committee, as follows: financial aspect being a main task of investigating the possibilities of starting a Workshop, plus need for same; much public support has been gained through talks to various groups; three members of the committee are in meet with Dr. Zarfus of the Mental Retardation Branch of the Dept. of Health in the near future.

President Mrs. Shannon welcomed Happy Hours principal, Mrs. Brown, who gave an outline of a typical week at the school, and showed an example of same on television tape.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander (Sandy) Houghton of Lindsay, announce the engagement of their daughter, Louise Deanna Christine to William Herbert McMillan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carman (Mac) McMillan of RR 2, Frankford. Wedding will take place on Saturday, December 19th, 1970 at 4.30 p.m. in Queen Street United Church, Lindsay.

Club Activities

ALPHA DELTA KAPPA

At the November meeting of the Alpha Delta Kappa (Lambda Chapter) it was decided to send a donation to the Pakistanian Disaster Fund in lieu of the Christmas exchange of gifts at the next meeting to be held Dec. 16, at the home of Mrs. Pearl McCurdy.

At the recent meeting Mrs. Helen Calnan was in charge and the treasurer's report was read by Miss Phyllis Beatty. It was also noted that Initiation would be held at the next meeting.

Guest speaker at this time was Mrs. Betty Exelby, teacher of the "Early Childhood Education Course" at Loyalist College where the meeting was held.

Mrs. Exelby outlined the program offered at the college and members viewed the facilities available for this particular course.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Child: "I want some coffee."

Mother: "I don't suppose coffee is very good for her, but she makes such a fuss if I don't give her a sip or two."

Don't start a habit you don't want to continue. Small children soon understand some things are for adults only if parents are consistent in their attitudes.

Mother: "Mothers and Daddies drink coffee. Little girls don't. You may have some fruit juice. I'll put it in this little pink glass."

Gifts Required for Patients

The Christmas season is fast approaching and the Quinte Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association (as it is now known) is accepting gifts for the many patients in Mental Institutions.

To brighten their Christmas the Mental Health Association branches endeavor to supply each patient with a gift to open on Christmas morning. In 1969 the Quinte Branch distributed 567 gifts. The Belleville area now serves 19 homes for special care. Volunteers visit patients regularly throughout the year to bring a little cheer.

Gifts for both men and women will be required, preferably new articles with no sharp points or glass bottles. These are not to be wrapped as this will be done at a wrapping "Bee" by the volunteers who visit these patients.

In the past years the response from many organizations as well as individuals has been most gratifying and it is hoped this may continue.

Any gifts may be left at the home of Mrs. Mary Fletcher, 31 Pine Street with the name of the group and secretary's name and address (so that gifts may be acknowledged) before December 12. Boxes will also be located at Leslie's Shoe Store, Front Street and The Shoppette at the East Hill Plaza.

Donations are also accepted and anyone wishing to do so may make out a cheque or money order to Chairman Christmas Gift Program, Mrs. J. S. Fletcher, who also will give out any further information.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

11TH BELLEVILLE BROWNIE PACK

An enrolment was held recently at St. Michael's Academy for seven new Brownies: Lori McIsaac, Sherry O'Neill, Kelly Brant, Teresa Haley, Deidre Boyle, Colleen Scrimshaw, and Susie Kinny.

Presenting the new Brownies to Brown Owl Mrs. G. Decker, Tawny Owl Mrs. J. O'Neill and Ranger Miss Diane Clement were Diane Garvin, Leisa Krazewski, Linda Decker, Gina Manera, Andrea Boyle, Michelle Temple, and Lenore Johnston.

Pack 12 will donate toys to the Firemen as their Christmas Project this year.

Student Requests Info on Stewardess Career

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am 18 and will be graduating from high school next June. Because I am interested in people I have been told I should look for a job where I would be serving the public.

I just love the idea of flying and seeing more of Canada, and I am wondering if I could get a job as a stewardess for an airline.

What are the qualifications, and where could I apply? — Flying High.

Dear Flying High: You are really up in the air about it, aren't you? To be an airline stewardess, you need high school graduation and height between five - foot - two and five - foot - seven. Age 21 to 25 years.

If you want to travel in Canada's interior, and see something of the North, I'd suggest you consider flying with Transair - Midwest, whose office is located at Winnipeg Airport.

This growing independent company gives a concentrated training period of four weeks — two of theory and two of practice. The training includes first aid, use of emergency equipment, even bonesetting and baby delivering. You learn about what makes the weather, the laws of planes, how fast they can go and a lot of other fascinating details.

Stewardesses are expected to be informal and friendly and ready to talk with people who are lonely or apprehensive or nervous. So you see you do need a genuine liking for people; and if you have it you can go a long way as a stewardess.

Dear Doris: This message is for Mrs. "What To Do."

If your daughter does not keep her child she'll love you more if you let her make that decision. Just tell her the pros and the cons, without taking a definite stand. You say she was hard to raise. Perhaps just to rebel she'll decide the opposite to what you want her to do, unless you leave it open.

I think it would be better if she didn't live at home, if she kept the child, as I cannot. My parents and I are closer now than ever before and I'm not as wild as I once was. Before I got pregnant I broke curfews and disobeyed my parents, as I resented being told what to do.

Now living on my own, with a responsibility, I come in earlier than my curfew was at home. People say I have matured a great deal since the birth of my son. I no longer smoke tobacco or weed and have only an occasional drink. Maybe your daughter will change as I have.

I now have close to the same views on life as the older generation. Perhaps it's because I'm a parent and worry about the future of my son. — Hope I've Helped.

Dear Hope: Perhaps you have helped more girls in this predicament than you realize — and their mothers as well.

Dear Doris: Do you have the instructions for making Christmas fireplace logs from old newspapers? — W.P.P.

Dear W.P.P.: Here it is: Mix four pounds of plaster stone and three pounds of rock salt in one gallon of water. Stir well. Place the mixture in a wooden barrel or other wooden container, since it will rust metal. Roll old newspapers very tightly into bundles, and tie tightly. If you have wooden logs, they work even better.

Soak newspapers or logs in solution for at least two weeks. Dry them thoroughly. This is best done in the sun, and for this reason many people prefer to make their Christmas logs during the summer.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Prize Winning Alaska Baked Beans

By MARY MOORE

When a pot of beans wins a first prize at a Fall Fair that is news.

Mildred D. sent me a prize-winning recipe for Alaska Baked Beans. I was so intrigued with it that I served it to guests on Sunday evening.

It is different and economical and should have a place in your baked bean file for I predict your crowd of young folk will lap it up. Ours did.

ALASKA BAKED BEANS

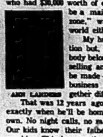
1¼ cups dry white beans
3 cups cold water
2½ tsps. soy sauce (first amount)
4 slices chopped side bacon
¼ cup chopped onion (or bottled flakes)
¼ tsp. garlic salt
1 undiluted can cream of tomato soup
One 14-oz can pineapple chunks including syrup
2 tbsps. light brown sugar
2 tbsps. molasses
1 tbsp. soy sauce (second amount)



In a large pot in which they can be cooked later soak the beans overnight in the cold water and 2½ tsps. soy sauce (first amount). •

If to be served at 6 p.m. at 3 p.m. put beans on to cook in the liquid on them. (I had 1 cup surplus liquid which was sufficient.) Cook about 45 min. Now add all remaining ingredients and mix well. Turn into bean pot or casserole w i t h tight-fitting lid and bake at 325 d-g. Fahr. for 3 hrs., stirring twice during the baking period. Do not overbake these beans. They should be slightly sloppy.

We served ours with Tropical Cole Slaw (see Thursday) which was a refreshing change from Canadian restaurant cole slaw that prevails everywhere.

Ann Landers
Wife of Mailman Loves His Occupation

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I didn't care much for that letter from the stuck-up parents who were unhappy about their son who had $30,000 worth of education and decided he wanted to be a mailman. Your answer, "to each his zone," wasn't the greatest response in the world either.

ANN LANDERS

My husband didn't have a college education but, as you've said so often, not everybody belongs in college. He tried factory work, selling and clerking — five years of it, then he made up his mind he didn't belong in business and wanted to try something altogether different. He decided to be a postman.

That was 15 years ago and he loves it. So do I. I know exactly when he'll be home. Once he is home his time is his own. No night calls, no manuals to study, no briefcase work. Our kids know their father as a human being, not a money machine. This is more than most high-salaried executives can say.

The best thing about my husband's job is that it keeps him in wonderful physical condition. The walking and being out-of-doors has kept his weight down and his head strong. So please, Ann Landers, don't let people look down their noses at the postman. He's a very important man in his community and usually a happy one. — WIFE OF ONE.

DEAR WIFE: The postman is the second most important man in my life. I couldn't get along without him. Here's a letter from another postman's wife. She presents a different point of view.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: "To each his zone," huh? I'll bet you get some lovely letters from wives of mail carriers who tell you how happy they are that their husbands have set hours — home early, time with the kids — etc. And they always mention "fresh air and exercise."

I've been married to a mail carrier for 14 years. While it's a good life, in some ways it's not without its drawbacks. My husband has seen plenty of rain and snow and sleet. It's nice that he can be home at 3:30 in the afternoon but how many women would like to get up at 1:30 in the morning and fix a big breakfast?

Did you know that mail pouches sometimes weigh over 40 pounds. And let's not forget the dogs. My husband was bitten twice last year — once by a dog and once by a three-year-old kid who got mad because my husband didn't bring him a present.

No job is all peaches and cream, so if you print one of those gung-ho letters, please print mine and give the story balance. — PREPARER OF THE FOOT BATH.

DEAR PREPARER: Thanks for the balance.

ST. JAMES CWL

STIRLING — On Thursday, Nov. 12 members of the Catholic Women's League met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Furentell for the annual potluck supper. A wide variety of salads, casseroles and desserts, as well as a decorated birthday cake, were served. Birthday wishes were extended to Father McGarvey and Alice O'Donnell.

The president, Mrs. Roy La Chappelle, chaired the business meeting, which included reports on an executive meeting in Kingston and a regional meeting in Belaven.

The Diocesan Hope Fund was discussed but no action will be taken until further information is available.

Mrs. Gerry Pinnigan invited the members to her home for the Christmas meeting to be held on Dec. 17. This will include the customary exchange of gifts.

At the close of the meeting Mass was celebrated by Father McGarvey.

"Look at the great shape the new Corollas are in."

We've changed our famous line of Toyota Corollas. They're bigger inside, a little longer and wider outside and a lot prettier all over. In fact we've changed everything except the high level of quality that's a part of every Toyota we build.

The Corollas are available in three models. A sleek low slung Coupe, a two door sedan for the economy minded and a roomy wagon for sport minded families. The engine is a big ged, well tried 73 horsepower overhead valve four coupled to a four speed all synchromesh transmission or an optional automatic (coupe and 2 door only). We've also added front disc brakes for even safer, more controlled stops and of course, all the safety and luxury equipment at no extra cost. Fully reclining bucket seats, rear window defogger, collapsible steering column, heavy duty heater, upper level "Fresh-flow" ventilation with fan boost, just to mention a few. Add Toyota's world-wide reputation for craftsmanship, a service organization second to none and owning a Corolla makes a lot of beautiful sense. The Toyota Corolla Coupe, two door sedan and wagon. See them at your Toyota dealer (there are over 1000 in North America). Put yourself in great shape for just $1990. (2 door sedan).

Stratford Festival Founder Pleads with Manager to Resign

Mr. Patterson, who resigned from his position at the festival last year, made his appeal for the resignations in the final statement of his speech at the festival's annual meeting.

"May I appeal to the general manager and to the president of the festival . . . for your sakes, for Stratford's sake . . . for God's sake, resign," Mr. Patterson said.

His speech aroused the loudest applause from the 300 attending the annual meeting, which usually draws fewer than 25.

Mr. Patterson outlined what he termed the "unhappy state" of the Stratford theatre organization.

He said much of the blame lies with "the commercial attitude which seems to have taken over."

"The idea that we can dispose of the philosophy which created this miracle and replace it with the standard mediocre semi-commercial regional theatre approach is wrong."

Dr. Lindsay, who was not available later for comment on the request for his resignation, said at the meeting he had to agree with much of Mr. Patterson's speech.

"Those of us who are involved in the administration of the festival may have been so preoccupied with the mechanics of organization and growth that we have neglected to maintain communication with the local people."

Dr. Lindsay said, however, that "we cannot keep it (the theatre) as a museum piece . . . we must go on."

During the meeting, Dr. Lindsay was also questioned on the resignation of Victor C. Polley from the administration staff Oct. 28.

Mr. Polley had been administrative director of the festival almost from its beginning in 1953.

"Mr. Polley was the first to recognize that the festival had grown into a monster," Dr. Lindsay said Monday.

Mr. Wylie also was unavailable for comment at the close of the meeting.

Israel Said Playing Into Russian Hands

LONDON, Ont.n (CP) — Israel is playing into the hands of the Russians by taking a no-yielding position in the Middle-East crisis, the editor of The Free Press told the London Wizo Hadassa Council, a Zionist women's organization.

William C. Heine, who toured the Middle East last year, said the Russians don't want peace nor do they want war.

"They want a continuing state of controlled turmoil," he said, adding that Israel should "find accommodation with the Arabs" to make Russia's presence less meaningful.

Israel may find itself surrounded by "revolutionary leftist governments" as the Russians continue to have designs on the Persian Gulf for its oil riches, Mr. Heine said.

Farmers Promised Relief But---

No Great Change Is Planned in Tax Structure

TORONTO (CP) — William Stewart, Ontario minister of agriculture, said Monday night that Ontario is committed to reduce the tax burden on farmers, but he indicated there will be no substantial change in the tax structure for some time.

Speaking at the annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, Mr. Stewart said "the Ontario government is committed to the removal of the education tax from farm property. That is a fact."

Earlier, delegates decided to continue to press for lower school taxes for farmers.

But Mr. Stewart told the more than 500 delegates that no rapid change should be expected.

He said Ontario has been working on improving services of the research department, colleges of agriculture, food council, crop insurance program, and a variety of other services.

He said $20 million, "while is only an interim proposal" to alleviate the tax burden of the Ontario farmer.

Mr. Stewart said the education tax—which is half the portion of the Ontario farmer's property tax—makes up nearly half the total property tax.

There is no hard-and-fast rule by which to improve the tax burden of Ontario farmers, he added.

"In an interview after speech, Mr. Stewart said there is no reason for Ontario farmers to launch another educational tax-withholding campaign because: "Why should they? They get tax relief already."

Mr. Stewart said the Ontario department of agriculture had promised to assume 60 per cent of the municipalities' education tax by 1971 for elementary and secondary education.

In addition, it will pay out an estimated $25 million for property tax rebates this year.

Delegates rejected a motion that would have called for an end to all education taxes on farm property.

Delegates to the meeting, which was to end today, congratulated the OFA executive for "spearheading the first round of the education tax battle," referring to the last summer's campaign to have farmers withhold their school taxes.

The campaign ended when the provincial government announced rebates of 25 per cent on all farm property taxes.

The Real Aims of Educational System Can Be Lost in Worry Over Externals

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

In the current flap over education, everyone seems to have lost sight of the crux of the matter — what are we trying to do?

The cost, the relevance and the product all claim their share of attention.

The cost is too high; the schools, both buildings and courses of study are irrelevant to the real world; and as for the product — those irresponsible, free - loading, long haired weirdos who can't spell or add a column of figures correctly — the mind boggles.

Only in learned, philosophical essays on education that nobody reads does the subject of the aims of education ever come up.

What are the underlying purposes of schools — and are those purposes in conflict with those of the public?

There is no conflict in the mind of the student. He goes to school because he knows no alternative. Thanks to 150 years of unremitted effort — free, compulsory, universal education is the norm in Ontario.

There was no conflict either in the mind of Egerton Ryerson, father of Ontario education.

He looked at the lawlessness, degeneration and meanness of life in pioneer settlements and knew in the depth of his evangelical Methodist heart that only the inspiration of the Divine Word of God would change the lives of his people.

But how to "open the Book" for an illiterate population?

Schools were the answer, so he built them, one by one, across the face of the province. They served the needs of a rural society.

The hindsight of history shows that education thus always acted as the long arm of the state, reaching into the minds of young citizens to shape them according to the needs of their society.

In the feudal society of Western Europe, there were no schools — an aristocratic child could learn all the knightly arts from his father and castle retainers and the peasant child needed no training whatever to practice the primitive agricultural techniques of his age. Both grew up illiterate.

Meanwhile, up on the hill, the monastery kept reading and writing alive and supplied the priests and clerks needed by the church.

When Europe moved out of the dark ages, its way illuminated by the discovery of the civilizations of Greece and Rome, tutors and private schools trained the sons of aristocrats in the new learning and the technigues of political technigues. The peasant child remained illiterate.

Not until the industrial revolution was well under way did the state take an interest in education — at about the time it discovered it needed a supply of people with a smattering of reading, writing and arithmetic to run the machines of industry.

Things haven't changed much since — except that the machines have become more complicated, more demanding of human intellectual capacities and the state has taken an increasing interest in the education of all its citizens.

The state's demands on its educators are—that they produce patriotic nationalists who will rush to the state's defence at the drop of an international agreement, and who between wars, will toil diligently at work that will stretch the national economy and boost the gross national product.

Examples abound, even quite recently in Ontario.

When the Russians sent Sputnik soaring into space, the province looked at its math and science program, found it inadequate to compete with the Communists, and ordered an increased emphasis on the math and science departments of schools.

When next the government looked at its economy, it found it unbalanced. There were plenty of top professionals, at one end, and laborers at the other, but between was a shortage of skilled workers, the technicians and technologists hitherto supplied by immigration of European-trained workers.

So four years ago there sprang up 20 instant community colleges, supposedly to give an opportunity for post secondary education to "those who did not wish to go to university", but in reality to assure a supply of technicians for the Ontario economy.

But the teachers, shut up all those centuries with their students, began to evolve a school,

Lancaster Unanimous As All-Canadian

The Canadian Football League all-star squad was chosen by ballot among the Football Reporters of Canada and released by 1970 president Jack Koffman of Ottawa.

Narrowly edged in that category were Moose Denson of the Grey Cup-champion Montreal Alouettes and George Reed of Saskatchewan.

The offensive centre position went to Ted Urness of Saskatchewan who was well ahead of Gene Ceppetelli of Montreal and Basil Bark of Calgary.

Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan led the offensive guards with a tie for second place between Bill Banychuk of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Charlie Bray of Toronto.

Bill Frank of Winipeg Blue Bombers and Ellison Kelly of Hamilton took the tackle spots and Herm Harrison of Calgary was well ahead of Toronto's Mel Profit for tight end.

Hamilton and Toronto dominated the all-Canada selections with five players each.

Saskatchewan and Calgary each placed three with Edmonton Eskimos, British Columbia, Ottawa and Montreal each getting two aboard. Winnipeg came up with, one.

Angelo Mosca of Hamilton led the voting for tackle with the second spot going by the margin of one vote to Charlie Collins of Montreal at middle linebacker.

Defensive backs were Marv Luster of Toronto and Garney Henley of Hamilton tied for first spot, followed by John Wydareny of Edmonton, Al Marcelin of Ottawa and Al Phaneuf of Montreal finishing in the voting in top CFL Canadian ranks edged Ted Dushinski of Saskatchewan by one vote.

Only one of the CFL's outstanding player award winers —Jim Young of B.C.—failed to make the all-star squad. The top Canadian cname well dow in the voting for running backs.

First Fence Fiasco

Boston Bounces Back

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia 76ers and Boston Celtics began the night nose-to-nose—and after some close calls they were still closer than six-nose twins.

Boston opened the National Basketball Association doubleheader at Philadelphia's Spectrum—Monday night's only two NBA affairs—by squandering a 22-point third-quarter lead against Buffalo before beating the Braves 109-106.

Then Philadelphia allowed Baltimore to all but wipe out a 13-point fourth-period gap before beating the Bullets 104-98 in the nightcap.

The Celtics and 76ers began the night sharing second place in the Atlantic Division. Their victories kept them deadlocked but reduced the idle New York Knicks' lead to five games.

Boston, which held a 78-56 lead midway in the third period, found itself trailing 102-101 before Steve Kuberski put the Celts ahead again. John Havlicek, who finished with 31 points, scored Boston's final six to lock up the game.

Rentzel Faces Morals Charge

DALLAS (AP) — Lance Rentzel of Dallas Cowboys, charged with indecent exposure involving a 10-year-old girl, was on the inactive list at his own request today while he settled his personal affairs.

The 27-year-old star wide receiver of the National Football League team will be unavailable to the Cowboys for a minimum of two games.

"He will work out with the team as time permits," said Cowboy president Tex Schramm.

District Attorney Henry Wade told the Associated Press it will be at least 10 days before the grand jury gets the case. The felony charge carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison.

Telephone calls lit up the switchboard of the Cowboy offices after word was released Monday that Rentzel, the husband of television star Joey Heatherton, had been charged with exposing himself before the young girl.

The offence report was filed Nov. 19 in suburban University Park. Rentzel posted a $1,500 appearance bond Nov. 22.

Rentzel, who holds the Dallas Cowboy single game record of 13 catches for 233 yards, made no immediate comment on the charge.

Dressed casually and apparently at ease, Rentzel arrived at the Dallas County Sheriff's office shortly after 9 a.m., and was fingerprinted and photographed while his lawyers posted a $1,500 bond set by justice of the peace Robert Cole. It all took about 30 minutes.

Lawyers representing the Cowboy star are Phil Burleson and Jay Mills. Burleson was a member of the Jack Ruby defence team when the former strip-tease operator was tried for murder in the slaying of Lee Harvey Oswald.

A native of Flushing, N.Y., Rentzel grew up in Oklahoma City and became a high school all-American at Classen High school. He later starred with Oklahoma University.

He was with the Minnesota Vikings NFL team when he was traded to the Cowboys in 1967 for a No. 3 draft choice.

Before that, on Oct. 4, 1965, Rentzel pleaded guilty in St. Paul, Minn., to a charge similar to the University Park morals count.

Miami Rips Falcons

ATLANTA (AP) — Mercury Morris and Larry Csonka ripped Atlanta's touted defensive unit to shreds and Bob Griese added the big play touch Monday night as Miami Dolphins kept alive their hopes of reaching the National Football League playoffs with a 20-7 victory over Atlanta Falcons.

"We just got whipped in every phase of the game," said coach Norm Van Brocklin of the Falcons after the weekly national television attraction.

"Our defence got whipped this time, just like our offence did," Van Brocklin said.

The triumph boosted Miami' s American Football Conference East Division mark to 7-4, leaving it 1½ games behind Baltimore. Each has three games remaining, with all of Miami's at home against the New York Jets, Boston Patriots and Buffalo Bills.

"We'll let somebody else worry about the playoffs," said Dolphin coach Don Shula. "We still have a chance to catch them Baltimore Colts."

Angels Acquire Centre Fielder

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California Angels and Washington Senators, baseball's most active wheelers-dealers since the end of the 1970 season, have set the early pace at the winter meetings.

Th Angels made another three-for-three trade and the Senators acquired another controversial player.

The Angels, who had obtained slugger Tony Conigliaro from Boston Red Sox in a six-player trade during the World Series, dealt for defence Monday and handed veteran outfielder Ken Berry from Chicago White Sox in a three-for-three swap.

To Williams' Senators, who have taken on Denny McLain and Curt Flood in the last two months, rescued third baseman Joe Foy from minor league exile during the draft session that kicked off the annual conclave.

Relief pitcher Hoyt Wilhelm, 47-year-old elder statesman of the major leagues, returned to Atlanta Braves after a brief fling with Chicago Cubs and Moe Drabowsky, another veteran reliever, departed the world champion Baltimore Orioles for the second time within two years in other early trade developments.

With Conigliaro and American League batting leader Alex Johnson set in the California outfield, Angels' general manager Dick Walsh was shopping for a standout centerfielder. After failing to lure Paul Blair from Baltimore or Mickey Stanley from Detroit Tigers, he came up with Berry, an exceptional glove man whose .276 batting average last season was a six-year career high.

The White Sox also sent infielder Syd O'Brien and pitcher Billy Wynne to the Angels, receiving centrefielder Jay Johnstone, pitcher Tom Bradley and catcher Tom Egan in exchange.

Washington picked up Foy from Tidewater of the International League for the $25,000 draft price in one of the least active selection sessions ever.

But Foy batted just .226, had troubles in the field and fell out of favor with manager Gil Hodges.

"A year ago he was worth two players," said Senators' vice-president Joseph Burke. "We don't believe he could have depreciated that much in one year."

Only eight players were drafted by major league clubs, compared with 19 selected last December at Miami.

The San Diego Padres, with the No. 1 pick, took left-handed pitcher Bill Laxton from Philadelphia's Eugene, Ore., affiliate in the Pacific Coast League.

Wilhelm, who has worked more games than any pitcher in major league history, was reacquired by the Braves in a deal that sent first baseman Hal Breeden, plus cash, to the Cubs.

Atlanta sent Wilhelm to Chicago last September during the National League stretch drive. He put a 1-0 mark with the Cubs, after pitching in 39 games with the Braves, for a lifetime total of 1,069 appearances.

Breeden batted .293 for the Braves' Richmond, Va., farm in the International League, leading 37 homers and knocking in 118 runs.

The Orioles dealt Drabowsky, 33, to St. Louis Cardinals for utility infielder Jerry Denovan in the day's first trade. Drabowsky went from Baltimore to Kansas City Royals in the 1969 expansion draft and was traded back to the Orioles last summer.

The Cubs actually were the most active traders with three deals, but two were of the lower-level variety.

They sent Willie Smith, a part-time outfielder-first baseman, to Cincinnati Reds for minor league catcher Danny Breeden, outfielder Ron Shimore and pitchers Dave Lemonds and Pat Jacopes for outfielder Chuck Hinton in a three-for-two trade with the White Sox.

Hagerman Hits

Central Taxi centre Grant Hagerman converts a breakaway chance against Belvedere goalie Claude Carr in Quinte Hockey League action last night. The Taximen narrowly missed gaining a tie, but were set down to a 4-3 defeat by the league leaders who recorded their sixth win in as ma ny starts.

Central Taxi came close to tapping the Belvedere Hotelmen last night, but the Quinte league leaders managed to hold on to a 4-3 win.

Central tied the game with only three seconds remaining but the goal was disallowed because of a player in the crease.

The losers drew four of the games seven penalties.

In the second game of the doubleheader Gibson Construction kept DCA Transfer winless by posting a 7-4 victory.

Ron Polster had two goals for the losers with the others going to Nolan and MacKay. Each team drew a pair of penalties.

Central Split

Cassius Turns Back Clock In Return to Gardens Ring

NEW YORK (AP) — It was Muhammad Ali's first New York ring appearance in more than 3½ years—and it was just like the last time. He taunted, he clowned and he predicted a victory in rhyme.

Monday he was back in the new Madison Square Garden, dazzling several hundred followers in a 70-minute workout for his 12-round bout Dec. 7 against Argentina's Oscar Bonavena.

It is only Ali's second fight since being deposed as champion for refusing military induction—but a victory would set up a bout with his successor, champion Joe Frazier.

And Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, has no doubt he'll be the first man to knock out Bonavena.

"It's been a long time since I put my predictions in rhythm and rhyme.

CASSIUS CLAY

"Bid it was Bonavena who started it all by getting out of line . . ." the 24-line poem began. And as the crowd shouted "Right on!" he climaxed it with:

"Before round nine is out, The referee will jump and shout,

"'I'm-ish-ih-that's all, folks, 'This barkey is out.'"

"I couldn't keep quiet," he told the crowd later from the centre of the ring, referring to Bonavena's prediction that he would stop Ali in 11 rounds.

"That's my bag. I'm the one who predicts and calls it right. If there's anything I don't like," Ali groused, "it's a fighter who talks too much."

He then gave a round-by-round prediction on the battle:

"I will use the first three rounds feeling him out. Then in the fourth and fifth I'll stick and move. In the sixth and seventh I'll talk to him and bounce him around a bit. In the eighth I'll tell him he has one more round, I'm gonna taunt him, talk to him —and whup him!"

Ali carried on a conversation with his delighted followers during his sparring session, then stunned them by slumping to the canvas as he traded punches with Los Angeles heavyweight Bunky Aitken.

The gasps turned to cheers, though, as they realized Ali was putting them on.

"There are people who want to see me knocked down," he explained. "I did it just so they'd know how it looked. It'll never happen in real life."

Boomhower Scores Four In 9-4 Merchant Win

The Merchants got a four goal performance from Carl Boomhower as they stopped Mutroneys 9-4 in their Gas House League contest last night.

BCI Girls' Teams Reach Finals

In the other senior semi-finals Quinte downed Nicholson 38-32 to win the round by 23 points.

Moira Juniors stopped Quinte 40-33 to win the round by 11 points. Jean Kunudski and Ginny Irwin were the top Moira performers.

Tonight Quinte seniors travel to BCI for the first game of the final round, while the BCI juniors play at Moira. The second games will be played Thursday night with the sites reversed.

MONTREAL (CP) — Most National Hockey League coaches are happy if their penalty-killers keep the opposition's power-play scoring to a minimum.

But last week some coaches received a bonus—their penalty-killers scored nine times in the 94 games played.

This reason there have been 19 short-handed goals in 154 games, compared with 30 last season in the same number of games.

Little Dave Keon of Toronto Maple Leafs scored three goals with his team short-handed to bring his total to four for the season and the league lead.

Boston Bruins are team leaders with eight short-handed goals, six short of the record 14 scored by Chicago Black Hawks in 1964-65.

The league penalty-killers also have been taking some of the punch out of power-play formations.

During the 1,145 times there have been advantages, there were 187 goals scored, which works out to 16.3 per cent. Last season in the first 154 games, there were 222 power-play goals during the 1,386 advantages, a percentage of 17.2.

Esposito picked up one goal and four assists in the Bruins' last four games to boost his totals to 15 goals and 24 assists for 39 points in 22 games.

The Boston centre leads team-mate Bobby Orr by seven points. One week ago defenceman Orr trailed Esposito by 10 points. Orr's 32 points were on nine goals and 23 assists.

Tied for third place this week are right winger Ken Hodge of Boston and Bobby Hull of Chicago, each with 28 points, one more than Alex Delvecchio, the veteran Detroit Red Wings centre.

Ernie Wakely and Glenn Hall of St. Louis Blues continue to lead the goaltenders with a combined goals-against average of 2.66, while Tony Esposito of Chicago is shutout leader with three.

Defenceman Keith Magnuson of Chicago, the penalty-leader last season with 213 minutes, leads the league again with 91 minutes.

Castin Expects to Test Welterweight Champion

TMONTREAL (CP)—Royral Castin, a 19-year-old boxer from Quebec City, is expected to test his stinging left hook tonight when he meets Canadian junior welterweight champion Vallin Fraser in a 12-round title bout here.

Castin, who qualified for the title fight Nov. 3 when he won a 10-round split decision over No. 1 challenger Gerald Rattie of Montreal, predicted during the training that he would knock the Toronto veteran out before the 10th round.

However, the 22-year-old Toronto champion who has a professional record of 30 wins and nine losses says he also plans to hit hard.

"It should make a good fight because he walks in and I walk in," Fraser said Monday.

Al Bachenan, Fraser's manager, said the fight plan calls for the Toronto boxer to "outrough him early."

Although Castin has proved in earlier bouts that he can survive in rough going, especially when he connects with his left hook, Fraser observers feel he lacks the experience to beat Fraser.

Donato Padiaca, Canadian welterweight title-holder, who trains with the young fighter and has defended Fraser twice, said in a recent interview that Castin needs at least six months more experience before fighting for the championship.

Castin will become the youngest Canadian junior welterweight champion ever if he wins tonight's bout.

It will be Fraser's first title fight since conquering the crown in a win over Lenny Slater of Windsor, N.S. last fall in Toronto.

He lost this championship last July when he failed to meet the 140-pound junior limit before a title match with Rattie. He went on to knock the Montrealer out in a rematch.

Weigh-in for tonight's fight was scheduled for noon.

Canadians Win First Amateur Baseball Game

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia (CP) — Canada defeated Holland 4-3 Monday, picking up its first victory in the world amateur baseball tournament.

The United States clinched at least a tie for first place in the tournament by defeating Dominican Republic 6-4 Monday night.

After eight losses, Canada won on the pitching of Les Lisowski of Winnipeg and some timely early hitting.

Dave McKay of Vancouver singled, Yves Blanchard of Montreal singled and McKay scored on a wild pitch in the first inning.

In the third, Tom MacKenzie of Kitchener led off with a double and Barry Harvey of Victoria singled, scoring MacKenzie. McKay went to second on a sinfle and fielder's choice and Blanchard singled, scoring McKay. After Russ Parnes of Victoria singled, Blanchard scored on a passed ball.

"We finally got a fast start," Lisowski said after the game. "That makes a difference in the way you pitch because it gives you more confidence.

"Everyone played well. It was a great team effort."

Canada was to play its last two games of the tournament today against Italy and Puerto Rico.

Rocky's Cup Of Tea

NEW YORK (AP) — Rocky Graziano gave what he called a "literary tea" Monday for his chum Jake La Motta, who has just published his autobiography, Raging Bull.

There wasn't a drop of tea in sight, but more potent stuff flowed as the two former middleweight boxing champions mugged for reporters and cameramen.

"Rocky was my diction teacher," said La Motta, and then, bewildered by a few of Rocky's cracks, remarked:

"The magnitude of your copious assertion is far too sagacious for my diminutive comprehension."

"I memorize pretty good," he said when asked how long it took him to learn that statement.

It's Time for Word Test

All right, I give in. When the letter-basket labeled "Language" reaches a certain height, I know it's time to do another column on words. Today we will have a little test on language structures; if you get more than half, you're entitled to wear an air of linguistic smugness.

1. What is the adjective that refers to the act of yawning?

2. What is the adjective applied to the habit of using a pet name, like "dearest," or a diminutive, like "Dolly"?

3. What is the adjective meaning a last will that is given orally to someone, and not written?

4. As "diurnal" is the adjective for day, and "nocturnal" is the adjective for night, what is the adjective for twilight?

5. Everyone knows that the adjectives "canine" refers to dogs, and "feline" to cats — but what are the adjectives referring to bears, moose, deer, badgers, foxes, squirrels, and skunks?

6. Likewise, we know that "global" means shaped like a globe, and "ovate" means shaped like an egg, but what are the adjectives for shaped like a bell, a heart, a cross, a strap or cone, a rod, and a spiral?

7. Name the saints from which of the following adjectives are derived — "hardy," "candida," and "chaplain."

8. A "polemical" argument is one that engages in dispute and controversy (also known as "eristic"), but its antonym has practically dropped out of the language — what is the adjective meaning a speech that promotes peace and conciliation among factions?

9. Each of these dog's names was compounded from what adjectives in the language in which the dog was named "dachshund," "poodle," "spaniel," "mastiff," "schnauzer," "basset hound," and "greyhound"?

10. What are the adjectives designating the citizens of Oxford?

ANSWERS:

1. Oscitant.
2. Hypocoristic.
3. Nuncupative.
4. Crepuscular.
5. Ursine, sicine, cervine, meline, vulpine, sciurine and mephitine.
6. Campanulate, cordate, cruciate, lorate, strobile, virgate, scerone.
7. St. Audrey, St. Mary Magdalene, and St. Martin of Tours.
8. Irenical.
9. Badger-dog, Spaniel-dog, growler - dog, very-low-dog, and dog-dog.
10. Liverpuddlian, Contabrigian, and Oxonian.

Public Order Bill Near Final Okay

OTTAWA (CP) — Barring unforeseen developments, the Commons is expected to give final approval today to the government's Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970 replacing the regulations under the War Measures Act.

Debate on the bill ended Monday night. Under an agreement made by House leaders of all parties the vote is to be taken in the early part of today's session.

All Conservatives, with the exception of David MacDonald (PC—Egmont) are expected to vote with the government despite some misgivings.

The New Democrats and Creditistes have said they will vote against the bill.

Mr. MacDonald, one of the last speakers Monday, predicted that while the debate was over in the Commons, it was just starting in the country.

The government met head not shown that it was necessary to enact the War Measures Act to meet the FLQ threat in Quebec. With the knowledge the government now had, he found it hard to see why even the temporary public order bill was needed.

Mr. MacDonald said that he hoped the Senate would live up to its reputation as being the house "of sober second thought." It was needed now more than ever before.

Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere), continuing his party's assault on the measure, said what is needed more is massive economic reform in Quebec.

Ran Harding (NDP—Kootenay West) said it is "crystal clear" that the federal and provincial governments were in a panic when the War Measures Act was invoked.

Earlier, the House continued debate on second reading of a government bill to provide capital financing for Crown-owned Canadian National Railways and Air Canada.

The NDP has said it wants a firm government commitment that the publicly-owned railway will boost pensions to its retired employees before the bill is approved.

'Spoilers' Warning Is Ordered

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's second-worst air disaster will leave a grim reminder on the flight decks of most of the DC-8 passenger airliners flying in North America.

The United States Federal Aviation Agency has ordered DC-8s operated by U.S. airlines to post a metal plaque between the pilot and co-pilot warning them not to deploy ground spoilers in flight, a federal government inquiry was told Monday.

Unless the notice is posted the jets will be grounded. FAA flight manuals will also be amended to include a warning against in-flight deployment of the spoilers braking system.

Although FAA regulations do not legally apply in Canada, they are accepted by the federal department of transport. Air Canada officials said after Monday's hearing the little square of metal will be installed in their DC-8-63 aircraft this weekend.

The notice "Deployment in flight prohibited," will be fastened on to a pedestal that supports a lever used to deploy the spoilers.

The inquiry was told earlier that premature deployment of the spoilers that caused the crash July 5 of a California-bound Air Canada DC-8 north of Toronto International Airport that killed all 109 persons aboard. The plane had been due to halt here briefly.

Fewer Churchgoers Die of Heart Attacks

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Johns Hopkins University medical researcher says the incidence of fatal heart disease among infrequent churchgoers is twice as high as for men who attend church at least once a week.

The findings by Dr. George W. Comstock, professor of epidemiology at the school of hygiene and public health, were reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Comstock said he based his findings on a study of the records of more than 500 men between 45 to 64 in Washington County, Md., from 1963 to 1966. Hardening of the arteries and other cardiac disease was listed in 189 deaths.

He was initially looking for a possible link between the drinking of hard water and the incidence of heart disease. He found none.

But in studying personal, social and economic data on the individuals under examination, he found the church-going correlation. He became so intrigued by the finding that he has applied for a two-year, $15,000 federal grant to investigate the subject further.

Canada Needs More Scots Says Chief, Diefenbaker

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Canada needs more of the God-fearing, law-abiding, patriotic qualities of the Scots settler, former prime minister John Diefenbaker told a St. Andrew's Day dinner Monday night.

"God is not dead nor ever has been in the Scottish people," he said. Neither was the British monarchy.

"Parliamentary monarchy works," he added.

"Why should it be changed for something else?

"It is time that those who believe in the monarch make their views clear and definitely known."

The Scots were law-abiding.

"Today we live in an age in which groups of individuals contend that when they do not agree with the law they may defy it.

"I am concerned about my country—where are we going? Canadians are filled with fear and foreboding.

"Canadians must arise and speak out before it is too late."

Mr. Diefenbaker said that "what is happening today may be the direct consequence of Communist propaganda," but he read the "communist rules for revolution" of 1919 and let them speak for themselves.

Rule A says: "Corrupt the young girl then send her away from religion. Get them interested in sex. Make them superficial, destroy their ruggedness."

Ontario Gets Full Subsidy

TORONTO (CP) — When the 20-year federal-provincial agreement on construction of a Trans-Canada Highway ends Dec. 31, Ontario will have collected its full federal subsidy of $143.7 million.

By Nov. 13, the province had collected $139.7 million in federal funds to build 1,453 miles of Trans-Canada route at a total cost of $316.3 million.

There are 27 contracts for 298 miles of road at a cost of $17.8 million still to be completed. Ontario expects to collect the $4 million subsidy for which it still is eligible.

Robarts Orders Inquiry Of Textbook Publishing

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario royal commission inquiry into the state of the publishing industry was announced on the eve of today's sale of Ryerson Press by the United Church of Canada to an American textbook publishing firm.

In making the announcement Monday, Premier John Robarts said his government could not stop the sale but recognized that "there are difficulties facing the entire industry."

Several Canadian publishers welcomed the move.

Rev. Frank Bridbin, secretary of the communications division of the United Church and overseer of Ryerson Press, said the Canadian publishing industry has its back to the wall.

"If this Ryerson sale, and the future is generated, has alerted the governments to the fact that there has been a growing sickness in the industry over the past many years, then it was worth it."

"I think the commission is a very good move—perhaps a little overdue, but better late than never," Mr. Bridbin said.

Mel Hurtig, 38-year-old Edmonton publisher and bookseller, said the commission is somewhat "like closing the barn door after the horse has escaped" but he is "delighted that Premier Robarts would take the initiative which the federal government has lacked."

Mr. Hurtig said McGraw-Hill Co. of Canada Ltd., purchasers of Ryerson Press, "are paying far too much for Ryerson, but are willing to take a short-term loss to try to corner the market."

Both Ryerso and MacGraw-Hill are major textbook publishers.

William Clarke, vice-president of Clarke Irwin and Co. Ltd. of Toronto, said he welcomes the commision, but "I have never heard of a royal commission that moved in less than six months and the problem of survival for Canadian-owned (publishing) houses is more immediate than that."

Premier Robarts said the commission will pay special attention to the publication of textbooks and other printed material ured in schools.

The first task of the commission would be to gather information "about what's wrong with the industry—what are its ills."

"It appears that a close examination should be made of all the elements which have led to the present difficulties of the industry and its 'over-all position in the educational and cultural life of our country," the premier said in a statement.

Although the commission will examine the publishing industry across Canada, it will focus on English-language publishers, he said.

In a companion announcement, Education Minister William Davis said his department is considering six or seven interim measures to assist Canadian publishers.

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 2

Your birthday today: Your personal enterprise is the key factor in the coming year. Everything you really press forward with now brings both the intended results and some benefits you had not planned. There is temptation to relax after lesser triumphs — keep your momentum going for the major achievements. Romantic and sentimental interests thrive with many incidents of quiet joy. Today's natives tend to be very energetic, somewhat fatalistic, a bit rash.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your work passes quickly if you view it as a serious form of play. Take no chances with anything mechanical. The evening has news of luck for you or somebody you care for.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Keep an eye on anything you carry with you today. Steady work clears off an obligation, leaves your mind free to entertain unique ideas. Add to your savings.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Assume the best of intentions in everybody. In the later hours make selections, buy long-planned items of value. You receive compliments from surprising sources.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Some laziness is good for you; let your inclinations do some of the deciding. Official matters can be settled now. Help a member of your group over a personal crisis.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Do something vigorous for a worthwhile cause. There is a chance to make extra money. If you work or need it. Handle mechanical and electrical equipment with special care.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Insight guides you into a potentially constructive course, involving many changes before it is all worked out. Take a risk in psychological matters, not on mechanical things.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): If you have anything to sell, particularly items which are surplus, do so now. Spend time in search of beauty, an elegant place. Celebrate the luck of a friend tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Look up important people, cultivate business contacts. Make sure you get in a full day's work despite distractions. The evening is for social activity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Extrovert activities are rewarding. Strive for a chance to show your skills and achievements. A quick journey may be needed, with good results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Today is for investment in equipment, strengthening of new personal relationships. Do anything social in style. Around you is emotional warmth, real affection — can you reciprocate?

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Confidential matters progress today. Many will help if they can stay out of public view. People are in the mood to talk about vacations, relocations to other places, changes of career.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Do what you can to get attention, from influential people for your projects. Emotional ties build spontaneously — seek healthy, happy people for company.

Rural Area May Grow Deserted

THUNDER BAY (CP) — If current rates of pollution continue, rural Canadians may have to move into cities because the countryside will be uninhabitable.

That prospect was put to the convension of the Northern Ontario Tourist Outfitters Association Monday by John Sibbald of Jackson's Point, Ont., chairman of the joint board of the Ontario Travel Association.

Northern Ontario is not alone in pollution problems, he said.

"Where you have mercury poisoning of fish and pulp-and-paper waste coating the bottoms of your streams and lakes, we in the south have fertilizer, pesticides, animal waste, industrial waste, road salt and garbage of all kinds growing algae, covering the spawning grounds and killing the wild life and destroying the balance of nature.

"At the present rate we will have to move into the cities and the cities will have to provide a completely artificial environment because the countryside will be uninhabitable."

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . rectal reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief was occurred in cases of long standing, and t use in postcast of all, results were so thorough that the improvement has continued over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered as ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H relieves and calms abnormal tissue painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Ointment or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Basque Group Seizes Consul

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (AP) — Basque terrorists kidnapped the honorary West German consul in San Sebastian and are holding him for hostage for 15 Basque nationalists who go on trial Thursday, a French Basque organization reported today.

The Basque Axel-Arteta, or Between Brothers Association, in Bayonne, France, said it had received a message from the Spanish-Basque ETA organization that 59-year-old Eugene Beihl Schaefer is "in its hands."

The message was reported to have said Schaefer's fate depends on what happens to the 15 Basques at their trial.

Witnesses told police Schaefer, who represents several German industrial firms in San Sebastian, drove into his garage Tuesday night, then drove out again with several other men in the car. Police said a red car with French licence plates followed Schaefer's sedan.

The Spanish Basques have been fighting for independence for centuries. Numbering about 1.8 million, they make up five per cent of Spain's population, and officials of the Spanish government claim they are responsible for 85 per cent of the nation's political terrorism.

The Spanish government launched a campaign last August to wipe out the ETA after the murder of a police chief who was an old enemy of the organization. Hundreds

'New Manifestation of Church' Outlined in Covenant of Union

TORONTO (CP) — The outline of what churchmen term "the new manifestation of the Church"—not a "new church"—emerged today following a conference of Protestant theologians seeking to reconcile differences—questions of faith, order and liturgy.

It would be a church considerably changed from its parents. It would be born, as expressed in a proposed Covenant of Union, in the hope that "something new and better than anything we have known separately will begin to emerge in our confines worship."

The covenant would be the basic founding document of a union of the Anglican Church of Canada, the United Church of Canada, the dominant non-Roman Catholic denominations in Canada, and a small, third group of sharply differing views, the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

The covenant is the core of a preliminary draft of a proposed Plan of Union adopted Friday night by the general commission on union. It will go before the courts of the involved churches in January for study —not for revision—and to the memberships at large for reaction. Under present plans of step-by-step consideration, a final decision cannot come before 1974.

Taking cognizance of feelings of unease and fear of change, widespread among members of both the major churches above talks on union began in 1943, the draft of the covenant says:

"Congregations may employ in their worship the familiar words of the Book of Common Prayer of the Anglican Church of Canada, Christian Worship of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) or the service book of the United Church of Canada.

"They may draw upon the heritage of all branches of the church."

The general commission was formed after the Principles of Union were adopted in 1965 by the Anglicans and the United Church—acceptance of the idea of organic union. Three years in the drafting, the preliminary draft of the proposed plan consists at present of more than 40,000 words of reports by special commissions on such points as a declaration of faith and of doctrine.

Nineteen names offered by members were put on a preferential ballot—one was "Soul Probe"—with the commission directed to choose as a suggestion one of the first five. It was decided Tuesday night at the meeting closed, a day ahead of schedule, to submit, without a recommendation, five names to the courts of the churches.

In order of members' preference, with the number of points each obtained in the vote shown in parenthesis, they are:

—Church of Christ in Canada (71).

—The Church of Christ in Canada (65).

—United Christian Church in Canada (63).

—The United Episcopal Church in Canada (30).

—United Episcopal Church of Christ in Canada (37).

The Covenant

TORONTO (CP) — Highlights of the Covenant of Union proposed for the Anglican Church of Canada, the United Church of Canada and the Christian Church Disciples of Christ:

Uniting congregations may combine their customary styles of worship.

Prayer books now in use may continue to be used.

Freedom of choice permitted — "no one will be compelled to pretend or submit to actions that run contrary to his convictions."

Wine or grape juice may continue to be used for communion.

Identities as separate churches surrendered willingly.

Apostolic ministry — bishop, presbyter, deacon — affirmed. Flexibility in methods of institutions emphasized.

All forms of ministry, including ordination, open to women.

'Soft' Economy Reduces Need

OTTAWA (CP) — The prices and incomes commission will continue investigating price and wage increases for the next few months, but without firm criteria on how narrowly either must be held to beat inflation.

Dr. John Young, head of the commission, said Tuesday the policing body failed to get agreement from business leaders to continue the 1976 restraint criteria into the first half of 1971.

The 1976 formula, agreed to at a conference with business leaders last February and subsequently endorsed by federal and provincial governments, was to hold price increases this year to something less than cost increases. This put a severe squeeze on profits in private business.

Wage increases were to be held below six per cent.

For the next few months, the commission will continue investigating price and wage increases. But will have no criteria against which to judge them.

Dr. Young indicated that the current market softness will have a restraining effect on price and wage increases. The economic outlook now is far less healthy than it was last winter.

The commission's announcement was made after a meeting here Tuesday, following a series of conferences with business leaders across the country. The businessmen attending the Ottawa conference participated in drafting the commission's declaration.

It stated that business conditions are uncertain, there is slack in the economy, the government is moving towards stimulating higher levels of activity and employment, and substantial price increases cannot now be made by most firms.

Under these changed conditions, "and without wholehearted support and parallel action on the part of labor and government," the statement said, the continuation of formal price restraints in 1971 "would no longer be warranted."

However, the statement

GM Offer Well Below U.S. Rates

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors of Canada Ltd. today proposed wage increases for 23,208 striking Canadian auto workers which are significantly less than those obtained by the United Auto Workers in the United States.

GM issued a statement outlining its proposal for a total increase in base wage rates ranging from 62 to 81 cents an hour, including 14 cents an hour transferred from the current cost-of-living allowance.

Negotiators for the Canadian branch of the UAW have consistently said they will not accept any contract proposal which does not give Canadian workers wage parity with the 400,000 hourly-rated employees of GM in the U.S.

Under the U.S. contract agreed upon last month, U.S. workers received first-year wage increases ranging from 49 to 81 cents an hour depending on the employee's wage classification.

Leonard Woodcock, international president of the UAW who arrived here Tuesday to join the Canadian talks, said Tuesday parity must be based on the U.S. consumer price index if there is ever to be peace in the Canadian automotive industry.

"Parity is the key to the logjam," he said in commenting on the main issue which must be solved to end the 11-week-old strike against GM of Canada.

"We want the same rates for the same kind of work in both the United States and Canada."

Early Santa In Squeeze

CHICO, Calif. (AP) — Fireman freed Michael Bailey from a fireplace chimney at the Chico Mobile Country Club's recreation hall where he was trapped early Monday morning. A rope was finally lowered from the roof but before his extrication he was forced to shed practically all his clothing which kept snagging on the chimney's brick interior. Moments after being freed he was led off by police and booked on a burglary charge.

News Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifty-nine different sites for a proposed new Toronto international airport were discussed in recent talks between the federal and Ontario governments, Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Tuesday in the Commons.

No PC Leadership Convention Before March 1

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Allan Lawrence, minister of mines and northern affairs, said Tuesday the provincial Progressive Conservative party will not hold a leadership convention before March 1.

Mr. Lawrence's remark, in an interview, conflicted with published reports in Toronto that the party will hold a convention Feb. 8-12 at Maple Leaf Gardens to pick a successor for Premier John Robarts. Speculation is that the premier will resign after nine years in office when he returns from a trip to Quebec City next weekend.

Mr. Lawrence and Rene Brunelle, lands and forests minister, are attending the annual meetings of the Northern Ontario Tourist Outfitters Association here

Mr. Lawrence said he expects the legislature will sit March 1 and that "there will be no election . . . and no leadership convention prior to that date."

The legislature normally resumes in January or February.

Asked to confirm the March 1 date, Mr. Lawrence replied: "That's the target date I have in mind."

He also said he had no knowledge of the report of a convention at the Gardens.

Party headquarters in Toronto refused to comment on the reports that the party has asked to rent Maple Leaf Gardens during the week of Feb. 8.

New Plant In Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) A new industry will start production here Jan. 2 of next year, according to former mayor Em Couch.

The company known as Centennial Carpet Manufacturing Limited will operate in the plant now occupied by the weaving division of Trenton Dying and Finishing at 52 Pine St.

At the site, the firm will manufacture and warehouse a specialized carpet line — contract tufted carpet — the type used in commercial installations such as hotels and apartment buildings.

Crews employed by Centennial Carpet are now clearing out the old Dying and Finishing plant in preparation for the installation of carpet manufacturing equipment.

It's Really December!

Belleville may possibly be known as the palm tree capital of the world this winter if present weather trends continue.

Already the calendar has rolled into December and temperatures still remain in the high 40s and even in the low 50s.

This morning, the duty forecaster at CFB Trenton explained that present temperatures were well above the normal mercury norms for this time of year.

He said that tomorrow's weather would be clear and in the 40s until Friday when the rains will come. But temperatures will still be warm.

It won't be until Saturday when the boom is lowered and the mercury drops and even then the temperature will only drop to the 30s accompanied by some snow flurries. Sunday will see temperatures drop slightly again but the sun will shine.

Nightime temperatures will range this week from the 30s tomorrow and Friday to the 20s Saturday to the teens Sunday.

The high this time of year is usually 37 degrees and the average low is 21 degrees.

But Belleville area residents have a lot of sustenance to glitch'k look forward as the average rainfall in December is almost two inches. Snowfall expected is 14.3 inches, more than enough for a white Christmas.

Two-day Seminar Here To Encourage Exports

Fairway places with strange sounding names have vital domestic significance for Canadians.

It's a significance that has been stressed to representatives of Belleville industry in the last two days.

The company officials have been the centre of attention at a two-day seminar that means business — export business.

Co-ordinated by the departments of education and trade and development, the study session — at the Sun Valley Motor Inn — which ends today, has been stressing the importance of exports to Canadians.

That importance is readily explained, says course leader Ross Dean, of the department of education: More exports mean more business — which in turn creates more jobs at home.

But international marketing is a more involved process for domestic industrialists and the seminar was designed to both stress the advantages of exports and clarify problems connected with the process.

The program is aimed at stimulating export - awareness among industrialists by getting businessmen discussing potentials among themselves and with experts, says Mr. Dean.

The experts are drawn from banking, business, government and education circles, to offer what the seminar's prospectus describes as a "unified indigestion program on world market opportunities."

The program is particularly aimed at the smaller business enterprises which may not be "as conscious" of the opportunities and facilities available to them in foreign marketing.

The program was launched seven years ago, sponsored by federal and provincial governments.

Now, the plan is to introduce the program on a continuing local basis by way of community colleges.

It's success in terms of dollars and jobs is difficult to assess, Mr. Dean admits.

"It's very difficult to say how many new export dollars have been generated by these programs," he says. "But I think we've had a very marked effect in getting smaller business to look at exports as a development."

IN MEMORIAM

HENDRICKS — In loving memory of a dear husband and uncle Joel, who passed away December 2nd, 1969.
When silent moments fill my heart
And memories bring a tear
Across the years I see your face
And feel you are still near.
And though you may have left me,
On our hearts lost we forget,
Your memory lingers and God knows we do.
—Wife, Daughter, Son-in-law and Grandchildren.

HENDRICKS — In loving memory of a dear husband and uncle Joel, who passed away December 2nd, 1969.
Life couldn't seem so blank today,
Or sorrow cut so deep,
If the years ahead be empty,
Of memories we keep.
We'll think of you always in our own way,
Much love, God rest you sweet,
And prove that death forever still Can't break.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to thank Dr. Green, Matron and Staff of Belleville General Hospital who cared for me while I was a patient there. Also thanks to relatives, friends and neighbours for cards, flowers and visits during my stay in hospital.
—Mrs. Stella Adams.

Pakistan Relief Flights Completed

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

DACCA, East Pakistan — As bloated vultures sweep down on the thousands of dead bodies in the Ganges delta to the south, mountains of relief pour into the airport here from around the globe in a concerted effort to save survivors of what may yet prove the worst disaster in mankind's history.

Devastation is virtually total across a 7,500 sq. mi. area. Even at Dacca, well outside the flood zone, the storms of Nov. 12 were heavy. One man reports being at a family gathering in the suburbs when the cyclone and tidal wave struck downriver. No one returned home that night — all gathered together in prayer.

Providing food, shelter and medicine to those still alive in the emergency area is a gargantuan operation involving 39 nations. The airport here is centre for distribution of supplies.

Since November 17 planes bringing with relief have been touching down on Dacca's runway, illuminated largely by kerosene flare pots. The airport capable of handling three Boeing 707s at a time cannot cope properly with the added strain.

Makeshift arrangements keep the goods moving here. Dozens of Pakistani men and women are employed to unload aircraft manually—hand ing cartons down from planes, to mobile scaffolds, to trucks.

Pakistan International Airlines has modern equipment for cargo handling at Dacca but there just is not enough of it under present circumstances.

However, the primitive unloading process is fast. The native crews do a "surprisingly good job" says Cpl. Henri Madeau, a loadmaster on one of the Canadian Armed Forces Yukon aircraft flying into Dacca.

No accurate count of the number of relief flights in East Pakistan is available. Over 70 came in from the west, according to the traffic control officials in Karachi. More have come from the U.S. Pacific coast, New Zealand and China.

Not all relief flights are coming in Dacca. Increasingly, the Americans and British are funneling their aid through Chittagong, near the delta islands. There cargo is shifted to helicopters for transport to the survivors.

An estimated 34 choppers are shuttling goods into the devastated areas from both Chittagong and Dacca. Eight of these are British, 18 American. The Pakistani air force is concentrated in West Pakistan and could not handle the job alone. Pakistani Hercules transports have been brought over from the west to serve in the eastern emergency.

Assistance to the cyclone-battered nation was first received on November 17 when three relief flights arrived here, one from the International Red Cross, the others from Iran and Germany.

American aid began to arrive on the 19th by a variety of charter flights. The British contribution began pouring in the 21st. French, New Zealand, Saudi Arab and Canadian the 22nd.

The Canadian airlift to East Pakistan is now over. The last of 17 Yukon flights to this country arrived back at CFB Trenton last night.

More than 340,000 miles were flown by the four aircraft from 437 Squadron at Trenton as they carried out Canada's aid program. Over 338 tons of blankets, tents, medical supplies and food were brought here from Trenton in the nine day operation.

Cartons of the antadotic tetracycline, blood plasma and 300 pounds of bandages made up the Canadian medical assistance.

Considerable world attention has been focused on the question of whether relief is actually reaching the victims or is instead being diverted to the black market.

Pakistanis admit corruption. One official at Dacca said "I am corrupt, I have been corrupt from childhood — it is part of our society". He explained that in West Pakistan life is a constant struggle and one must look after his own interests first.

The official, himself involved in the relief program, said that in the initial stages of the supply operation to the delta "much" had been stolen. However, he stressed that this has been largely overcome since Nov. 22 when it was decided to guard all emergency aid with armed soldiers. If it were not closely tabulated and watched, the amount received by disaster victims would be cut substantially, he added.

Lt.-Col. G. W. Webb, who supervised the 437 Squadron operation at Dacca and here Sunday night that he had examined the Dacca warehouses where the goods are stored and had watched the loading of boats and aircraft carrying shipments of assistance to the delta.

"I am confident our supplies are getting through," he said, adding that Canadian aid may even be getting to the disaster zone faster than the British and U.S. materials going out of Chittagong.

Once goods arriving from Canada were loaded onto trucks, they were taken for storage at a hangar on the airport compound or to an ordinance depot nearby. Soldiers ride shotgun on the trucks, and the packages are guarded to their destination.

Pakistanis seem proud of the fact that they can now assure the safe transit of the relief goods to disaster areas.

"Foreigners should not criticize the people for trying to get some of these things," one official said, adding that there are many poor people between Dacca and the delta who could put the material to good use.

However, Pakistan's president Yahya Khan has announced heavy punishment for those who thwart the relief effort to the delta.

Even responsible parties are still trying to get a share of the supplies for personal use but with little success. By one report, an official of a church group locally had come to the airport to try to secure for his personal use goods shipped from the parent church in the United States.

The situation is clear, according to Col. Webb. "There's no evidence that much of the supplies are disappearing on the way. The Pakistani army is supervising the movement closely." The stepped up security measures went into effect about the time Canadian goods began arriving.

Canada's disaster relief has been substantial. A total of 12 million worth of emergency goods, including 22,000 blankets and 2,000 tents, have been donated to the cause. The 437 Squadron airlift will be followed by further shipments by sea. ...

However, others are giving heavily too. Iran has sent over 200 tons of packed foodstuff (rice, edible oil, dried fruit), 13,000 blankets, clothing and canned meat. (Some canned meats are not being eaten by refugees, by one report, because they belief it to be beef).

There have been problems with the tents sent by various countries including Canada. Delta disaster survivors do not know how to pitch them.

This situation is being overcome now. British troops (645 of them in the delta) are going through the area both setting up the tents and giving demonstrations on how to use them.

Teams of American army medics and public health service people are working in the delta to keep the threat of epidemics under control. No large scale outbreaks have been reported.

U.S. aid totals $10 million. $8 million worth of this contribution had arrived by Sunday on ten commercial charter flights. The bulk of these shipments contained civil defence survival biscuits.

The government of Red China has been sending large shipments of medicine, but Chinese planes are not flying it in here. Instead, they are sending two PIA cargo jets full of required drugs every week. By the 27th, officials here say 385 tonnes of medicine had been received.

China is also sending food and clothing by ship. No Chinese troops have been sent to aid in the relief work here.

Overflights of Indian territory have been allowed throughout the relief operation, even for Pakistani military aircraft. The only Indian - Pakistani incident occurring in the Indian airways during the relief operations was the forcing down of an Iranian plane carrying supplies to Dacca, an airport official in Karachi disclosed. The plane was soon on its way again.

The Canadian effort marks a closing chapter in the saga of the Yukon transports, destined for retirement in April. The first nine Yukon flights completed the airlift as planned and on schedule.

However, the last four flights departing Trenton last Friday and Saturday ran into problems. The Canadian Forces Base at Lahr was fogbound during the period three of the aircraft were scheduled to land there for crew changes and refuelling.

Flight 5208, commanded by Capt. R. N. Lloyd of Belleville, for example, was diverted to Dusseldorf. Others were similarly diverted.

Coping with this situation, mechanical problems en route adverse weather patterns, arranging for ground servicing and other matters, revealed some of the complexity of an airlift of this magnitude.

Long distance flights are the forte of 437 Squadron and the last phase of the East Pakistan relief mission showed this — to fly from Trenton to the Far East is not an effortless process. With some painstaking, nonetheless, the mission is over and Canadians quarters are now sustaining human life along the Ganges.

Plans Changed

Hand-to-Hand

A Pakistani soldier stands guard Sunday night beside a Yukon aircraft from CFB Trenton as it is unloaded at Dacca airport, terminal for Canada's emergency relief flights to the cyclone-torn country. Crews of local men and women lifted all the cargo from the plane by hand in a procedure as fast as the most sophisticated cargo handling methods.

Napanee Looks Back

The Napanee Beaver's centennial edition — three sections of it and the largest in the newspaper's history — makes fascinating reading and we are reminded by its contents of the truism about the more things change the more they remain the same.

The hockey players of 1923 were little different in appearance and garb from their modern counterparts; and had the midi of 1970 gained any favor it would no doubt be upon its wearers much the same look as the well-groomed young women of Newburgh high school in 1921. It seems the girls outnumbered the boys almost four to one (out of a group of about 27 only seven are boys) but the latter are a sharp-looking minority in collars and ties, sweaters and jackets, and not a long hair or sloppy piece of attire among them.

Other pictures are in tune with the period depicted — an undated but probably turn-of-the-century shot of a concert group on stage at the Methodist Church in Deseronto, and the Lennox and Addington county council of 1893, all but one boasting beard or mustache if not both, the front row squatting in the rather incongruous pose of the time. The Camden East baseball team of 1887 is shown in similar sprawling pose, but the only mustache lends, but there is only one mustache among the lot.

There is much else of course, as befits the largest issue ever produced in the town. Publisher and managing editor is Jim Hepburn, a native of Brockville, notes that The Beaver began publication on Jan. 1, 1870. It started in the back room of a store in Newburgh and was first called 'The Addington Beaver, moving shortly afterwards to Napanee to become The Napanee Beaver. It was one of many published in Lennox and Addington over the next century and the only one remaining today.

An earlier publication in the community was The Napanee Bee and reprinted from it, in The Beaver's centennial supplement, is a poem about Napanee by Ira Beeman, grandfather of Orphan Annie Beeman, one of the Beaver's first publishers.

Here are some tongue-in-cheek extracts which are strangely pertinent to our own world: "Two lawyers, they tell us have come here to stay, and mark ye, delinquents, they're saucy and bold." And this: "Their druggists will serve you with powders and pills; prescribe or administer just as you please." Or how about this, for the ladies: "Two or more milliners with scissors are slashing, in the latest mode, dresses with caps in the fashion, with silks and with satins, with laces and frills. . ."

Women in Politics

Women are making their presence felt in politics, as we have noted once again in connection with area politics.

There are interesting examples from abroad as well. In Germany, for example, there is Anke Brunn, an attractive young woman of 27 who is an elected deputy of the North-Rhine-Westphalia parliament and a member of Chancellor Willy Brandt's Social Democratic Party.

But earlier — and here this — Mrs. Brunn was active in the anti-establishment Young Socialists. Her experience of radicalism evidently brought a change of attitude, for eventually she decided to embrace traditional politics as the best means of effecting orderly change.

Another distaff side personality in Germany is Hildegard Hamm-Brucher, undersecretary in the Bonn government's Ministry for Science and Education, who recently campaigned by bicycle for elections in Bavaria.

It would appear there is still some resistance to change in modern Germany, for according to Reuters Features, Mrs. Hamm-Brucher has been pressing for modernization of the country's educational system and meeting strong opposition in the process.

Mild Winter

Thirty years ago at this time, according to our Looking Backward column, the Bay of Quinte was frozen over. This year it is a different story; mild, even occasionally sunny weather, prevails. There has been a lot of rain of course, but it is a far cry from winter proper (aside from London's recent big storm, and western Canada). Snowmobilers in particular and skiers may be chafing at the bit, but there are undoubtedly others who are quite happy with the way it is.

Degrees Galore...But Jobs Scarce

Canada Has A Surplus of Over-Educated Students

Vancouver Sun

A study sponsored by the BC Union of Students, a responsible group representing the student bodies of the province's universities, has reached a sound if disturbing conclusion: that post-secondary education has been oversold in this province.

As The Sun noted editorially a few days ago, the director of the education division of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics predicted that unless checked, the cost of post-secondary education for all Canada might soar to 19.3 billion by 1980. Similarly, as we said, the Economic Council of Canada, projecting accelerating education and health costs to the year 2000, warned that by then the whole of Canada's gross national product would be absorbed by these causes alone.

The Union of Students report states bluntly that funds used to subsidize students would be better spent on health care, welfare and old age pensioners. It points out that government allocations for post-secondary education average $1,700 per student, far more than an old age pensioner gets.

What is in question is the worth of an education and this brings in its train other questions: what sort of education are we talking about, and who about? he asked.

The ideal is free education for all who can absorb it, right up to the top. But society has a right and duty to consider education's usefulness to social progress. Since the 1939-45 war, greater stress has been placed on scientific and technological education. This is a most expensive development. Massive amounts of capital have gone into providing educational plant and no doubt the greater proportion of the "average" cost of keeping a student in college lies in this side of education.

We have turned out multitudes of BSs, BAs, MAs and PhDs. And multitudes are unable to find jobs. Not only unable to find jobs in their chosen fields, but any jobs.

The Graduate Students' Union at University of Toronto complains that an increasing number of highly-trained PhDs are unable to find jobs anywhere — and it costs about $144,000 to produce one of them.

The Union also calls on the Ontario government to prohibit further expansion of graduate schools in that province. However, Toronto is already doing its own cutting back in graduate studies, and so is University of BC.

So when it speaks of "a surplus of over-educated students," the BC Union of Students is in good company.

The danger is, as the students suggest, that the new anti-expansion fever will hurt most the students from lower-class milieus. They say that the majority of students, even now, still come from the middle-and upper-income brackets.

What is very obvious is that some serious thought must be given to the future of education. But for that to be fruitful, something must be said about the sort of society we want. There are immense tides in the life of modern society that seem almost inexorable to control. Men are beginning to learn, belated ly, and one would hope shamefacedly that they have been wasteful not only of material resources but of intellectual resources as well.

What must be required is a return to emphasis on the humanities, with more attention to fine arts. More and more students are leaning in that direction anyway. In a word, if the quality of life is to be improved, the quality of education must be improved likewise.

Students are to be commended for giving thought to less privileged groups in the community, such as the old age pensioners and the sick. It is not very often in this day and age that we find groups ready to subordinate their own fancied interests to those of the less fortunate. To this extent the troubles and expenses of producing minds are not wasted. Those who believe that higher education is to produce leadership should feel justified.

Laird Counters Misgivings Over POW Rescue Attempt

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Defence Secretary Melvin Laird has been reluctantly successful in disarming critics of the Son Tay raids by embracing for the Nixon administration the unassailable virtues of national honor and morality, and daring anyone to speak out against them.

With the country looking on through television, Laird checkmated Senate critics time and again Wednesday by keeping the hearings focussed on the emotional war prisoner issue despite efforts to broaden the topic.

Senator William Fulbright, abrasive Arkansas Democrat and chairman of the foreign relations committee, suggested the raid, along with weekend bombing attacks in Laos and Cambodia, may represent a change in Nixon war policy.

He was upset by the "great similarity" between the policies of presidents Nixon and Lyndon Johnson. They used identical language: "I'm not going to be the first president to lose a war" and "We are not going to be defeated."

If in fact the administration still supported a negotiated peace, he suggested, the bombings were not the best way to encourage negotiations in Paris.

Laird, a veteran of many years of congressional hearings before he joined the other side in becoming a cabinet member, would not be drawn into that area of thought.

The whole exercise was justified by isolated, because the Communists refused to recognize basic agreements on the care of prisoners of war and on supplying information about them.

Even though the mission in the camp near Hanoi failed—the 61 no American prisoners were found—it was a success in that it demonstrated Nixon administration concern for the prisoners.

The mission, in Laird's words, also "showed that the people in this country do care about the prisoners of war . . ."

No one suggested a lack of concern. But to challenge the administration's action in this matter, Laird seemed to be warning, implied a lack of concern on the part of the challenger.

The senators were not to be caught out that way. But away from the TV cameras, many congressmen found the theories to be less than sound.

The committee, Fulbright ventured, was not questioning the heroism of the attempted rescue but "the wisdom of the operation and its effects upon the prospect for ending the war" by a negotiated settlement.

Even more difficult to accept at face value was Laird's contention that "if we had been prisoners in the compound at Son Tay they would be free men today."

Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts had suggested in an earlier Senate debate that the prisoners would almost certainly have been dead men—killed by their keepers the minute it was realized the camp was under siege.

Although most congressmen are rewarious about the tone of their criticism, the Washington Post reflects a broadly-held opinion in commenting:

"You have to ask yourself what sort of concern we are showing for our prisoners when we sweep them up in so chancy a mission, what sort of care for dying or a prison camp you are offering when you propose to involve enfeebled PoWs in a shoot-out at close quarters and to pack them into helicopters and fly them out across enemy-occupied territory in the dark of night."

Now that the failed mission has accomplished nothing more than demonstrate "a concern for the prisoners—which many feel was never in question anyway—the main problem is what repercussions there may be for prisoners still held.

Laird talked of new "strong" and 'unusual" measures to free the men, but "avoided details. That is the problem."

"The chances of reprisals aside, they will surely be moved around more frequently, subjected to stricter security, perhaps to start serving more harshly than they have been."

More on Fluoridation Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

We owe it to our children, the greatest and most important resource we have, to see that they receive the proven benefit of water fluoridation. In the face of the volumes of medical evidence of the effectiveness of controlled fluoridation, I feel that we should not deprive our children of this benefit."

We not only give children the benefit of better dental health, we save ourselves, as parents, higher dental bills.

We save money for all taxpayers by giving better teeth to those children who must depend on public funds for needed dental care.

The Twenty-second World Health Assembly on 23 July, 1969, adopted a resolution emphasizing that "in the extensive scientific literature on the subject no valid evidence has been forthcoming of any ill effects on human health from the use of water supplies with an optimal concentration of fluoride".

T. A. McFALLY, DDS

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Please print the following reply to the article The Case for Fluoridation by Dr. W. R. Patrick in Saturday's issue.

The fact that 76 million Americans and 7 million Canadians drink fluoridated water does not prove that fluoridation is beneficial; it is merely evidence that the promotion of fluoridation in these two countries was well organized and highly efficient.

To prove the benefit of fluoridation Dr. Patrick and Dr. Bove of the Canadian Dental Association should provide facts, talk is cheap. They should present statistics showing that the teeth of children who received fluoridated water have substantially fewer cavities and remain highly cavity-resistant in later life in comparison with the teeth of youngsters who received no fluoride in the water.

Dr. Patrick gives the impression that fluoridation is universally endorsed; this is not so. Both Sweden and Denmark have outlawed artificial fluoridation and more than 4,000 communities in the USA have discontinued the practice after learning of its dangers.

To make a public referendum on fluoridation meaningful it is necessary that the voters have access to the information contained in authentic medical and dental reports on the effects of sodium fluoride on the human body, both favorable and unfavorable. In the light of the available facts, arguments about fluoridation would end and the practice would be repealed.

Many thought thalidomide was safe. It wasn't.

Before you let your MD be used to support fluoridation of drinking water as safe (or everybody should you not be able to answer the following questions affirmatively:

Have I read one scientific article about medical aspects of fluoridation? Do proponents of this mass medication have all the known facts? Have it been done any real research on possible harmful effects?

According to many prominent scientists, biochemists, zymologists, medical doctors, and dentists, the answer is no. They have evidence that fluoridation of public water supplies is wrong. In 1966 about 200 such persons in London signed a letter, one paragraph of which stated: It is our opinion that all published research has shown clearly that the toxic effects of fluorides, even in trace quantities, are such that fluoridated drinking water may be harmful, or even dangerous, to many people, particularly in its long term effects, which have not been sufficiently investigated, and that it is therefore quite wrong to force everyone to consume artificially fluoridated water.

They suggested that children can be given measured individual doses, on medical prescription only. Other groups report similarly.

Exceeds Estimate

Windsor Star

In a variation on an old and tired theme, the Ontario government ad says: "Is there any other place you'd rather see?" The place in question is Ontario Place, the entertainment area the government is building on islands at the Canadian National Exhibition waterfront site in Toronto.

One of the things taxpayers would rather see is a government that spends within its budget on projects such as these. Instead, however, the cost of Ontario Place has just been bumped up by almost 50 per cent, or $6 million, from its budgeted $13 million.

Even though the mission in the camp near Hanoi failed—the 61 no American prisoners were found—it was a success in that it demonstrated Nixon administration concern for the prisoners.

Lionel Ives, Clifford Frost, Harry Post and Bert Wells will uphold the affirmative, and the negative side will be upheld by Arthur Herity, Bob Miles, Stanley Lennox, and Theodore Marsakas.

How Are Hall-Dennis Report Recommendations Working Out?

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The more things change, the more they remain the same say the French.

Nothing brings this into sharper focus than the Hall-Dennis report on Ontario education.

Teachers and administrators agree the Hall - Dennis report said nothing new.

"It outlined what I've been doing all my life, but it brought it out into the light and legalized it," explained one experienced teacher.

The liberalizing of education it advocated, the flexibility, the concept of fitting learning to the child instead of molding the child to fit the system, suddenly got government endorsement.

Three years later, how is it working out?

In practice, the principles of the Hall - Dennis report, in the places where they are being applied tend to strengthen the better teachers and weaken the effectiveness of the poorer.

Hastings county schools have implemented as many of the report's recommendations as limitations of staff, buildings and public acceptance permit.

Subject promotion and individual timetabling is now in force in all county high schools. The emphasis is being shifted from examinations to term work in both elementary and secondary schools as fast as principals can be persuaded to make the change official.

The thematic approach to learning, especially in the elementary grades, is now in extensive use. And increased emphasis is being placed on individual discovery and research.

Few counties have moved ahead as fast as Hastings since amalgamated boards came into effect. But if there are any flaws in the Hall-Dennis recommendations, they lie in the manner in which they are interpreted.

"People interpret it from their own point of view," says director of education Eric Runacres. "We are in the process of change, but sometimes we don't know why we are changing. We have, in some places, conflicting sets of objectives and are in a state of turmoil."

What happens, for instance, when a school with the emphasis on term work suddenly swings back to emphasis on exams? The teachers continue to teach in the former way, demanding plenty of research, projects, and holding frequent term tests. On top of all this is added an extra full set of exams. The students are examined to death, overburdened with homework and projects and essays and periodic boning up for exams.

Nor have secondary students recourse to processes for getting collective grievances acted upon.

The Hall - Dennis report stressed autonomy, for the teacher in his classroom, the head in his department, the principal in his school and up to the senior administrator in his county.

But administrators say people are reluctant to pass their autonomy on to the level below. Real decision - making is not being done by secondary school department heads or teachers, and teachers don't want parents and students involved in the decision making either.

The children are the victims of change, but their plight isn't as serious as it might seem.

Those who have been going to school long enough readily admit that the changes, when totalled, add up to improvement.

"We have the resources now for the discovery approach and research projects," says the experienced teacher. "Before we teachers had to do it ourselves and present it to the pupils for memorization."

No longer do teachers and pupils have to devote long hours of after-school activity to fund-raising projects for excursions. Now, with official endorsement of out-of - school learning activities, "allowances are given to principals for student tours and excursions.

But some teachers are using liberal principles of education as an escape route to ease up on teaching fundamental skills.

"The mechanics of reading, writing and arithmetic don't come without patient drill," says older teachers.

Even the highly-praised thematic approach has its drawback, if the theme is not covered briskly.

"Children get bored with too much of anything, no matter what it is," the best teachers say.

The Hall - Dennis report, experienced educators agree, carries with it the same menace as any previous system of education. If it is applied inflexibly, it looks it effective.

"We must preserve the teacher - pupil relationship, the most precious thing in education," the older teachers declare.

"Each child is different, each child must be taught differently. Each child has the right to be taught individually, with the methods best suited to his capacities and needs."

Which, comes right back to the jumping-off point in the report on Ontario education.

To the able veteran, there is nothing new under the educational sun.

Teacher Exchange Given Approval

Moira Secondary School's technical department head will teach next year in Great Britain.

E. P. Votsary was granted permission to apply for exchange for the school year 1971-72 at Monday night's board of education meeting in Trenton.

A British teacher will join the staff of the county board in exchange with Mr. Votsary, and the assistant head of Moira's technical department will act as department head during the coming year.

Because of the loss on exchanges when a British teacher's salary is converted into Canadian dollars, both the Canadian teacher and his board are each asked to contribute $500 to the British teacher. Mr. Votsary will draw his regular salary from the county board during his year's absence.

Director of education Eric Runacres told trustees that teachers' exchanges are "worthwhile contributions to professional development" for both concerned.

Licences on Sale

New 1971 auto licence plates are now on sale at the lower Front Street licence bureau and within the next 12 months more than 15,000 sets of plates will go over the counter.

Sales of motorcycle and truck licences will increase this total.

Licence issuer George Olsen said that plate numbers for the Belleville office commence at 23001-A. The color is white lettering on a blue background — the reverse of this year.

There is no change in the cost of plates. Plates for an eight-cylinder car cost $35; a six $27.50 and $20 for a four-cylinder car manufactured after 1933.

People with vintage cars 20 years or more old can get an antique car licence for $10 but this only allows operation in parades or rallies.

If the old car sees every day use, the normal licence fee applies.

The deadline for 1970 car licences is February 28 next year.

Talkative Customer Monopolizes Operator

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I say one word about the woman who breezes into the beauty shop 30 minutes early, plants herself at the elbow of her operator (who is running 30 minutes late) and proceeds to hand him snapshots of her 1 rip and bends his ear with the hot gossip picked up at yesterday's canasta party.

While the operator tries to be polite he is inadvertently cutting some poor lady's hair a little shorter on one side or dripping dye in her eye.

I happen to be a paying customer who has been victimized for the third week in a row by an inconsiderate blabbermouth who obviously has a standing appointment that follows mine. Executive chat that she is, she does not see that I am frothing at the mouth. (Maybe she thinks it's soap). At any rate I'm sure this problem is not unique and I'd be ever so grateful if you would prod it along with some advice. Is there a solution? — LADY IN LAFAYETTE, IND.

DEAR LADY: There is a solution. You are paying for the undivided attention of your operator and he should provide it. It is up to him to tell the intruder that he's running late and needs to concentrate on his work — but he'll be glad to look at her snapshots and listen to her when she's in his chair.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been married 26 years to a man who could never make a success of anything. He went to night school, took correspondence courses, tried vocational training. Nothing clicked.

I've always made more money than my husband. There were times when I was working 18 hours a day and he was unemployed. We are going through one of those periods now and I'm fed up. Our two kids are on their own now and I'm tired of carrying the load. I'm 46 and look younger. I feel that now might be the time to make a new life for myself. Do you? — R.L.

DEAR R.L.: A woman who would dump a husband after 26 years because he didn't succeed in business rates zero minus ten in my book. I don't know what you envision as a new life for yourself, but Kirk Douglas isn't waiting for you. Honey.

Salmon Quiche Recipe in Time for Parties

By MARY MOORE

The salmon is a noble creature who goes the second mile . . . and the third and the fourth . . . and then on to oblivion — or is it eternity?

In October the Adams River and Shuswap Lake in BC run red with sockeye salmon returning from the Pacific to spawn and die and I was there to see them by the millions. The experience is beyond human comprehension for it is a natural phenomenon that is both depressing and uplifting. The data can be scurrilously pin-pointed and this was an exceptionally large spawning year for the "Adams River run" and of great importance to the Canadian fishing industry.

It is of importance to the housewife too for she can buy some brands of salmon at under a dollar per pound of this luxurious protein.

Our hosts arranged to have us taste some of the most exotic salmon dishes in existence and the one I have chosen to make and relay to you is Salmon Quiche.

It is just in time for your December parties.

SALMON QUICHE

Pastry:
1¼ cups sifted but unsifted cake and pastry flour
½ tsp. salt
1-3 cup plus 1 tbsp. shortening
3 tbsps. butter
3 tbsp. cold water

FILLING:
½-lb can (actually 7¾ oz.) salmon including liquid
One 10-oz. can of creamed mushrooms
2 tbsps. chopped chives or freeze dried
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. tarragon
2 tbsps. Vermouth (optional)
4 med. eggs
½ cup milk
½ cup grated old Cheddar cheese

To make pastry cut shortening and butter into flour and salt until size of peas, drizzle in water, tossing with fork, press into ball and roll out to fit deep 10" pie plate. Flute high edge and prick pastry with fork and prebake at 400 deg. Fahr. 5 min.

To make filling, into large bowl tip salmon and break up skin and bones and flesh with fork. Add chives and creamed mushrooms rinsing out can with Vermouth. Add all remaining filling ingredients except cheese. Shaking at stove pour as much filling as you can into prebaked shell and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 25 min. or until edges are firming up then carefully remove from oven and add remaining filling. Sprinkle with cheese. Return to oven and bake until set and golden. Serve hot as an entree for dinner for six or cold as a late evening snack cut into 12 smaller wedges. My Home Economist guest, labelled this a gourmet dish.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Oven Fried Chicken Legs; Kernel Corn; Quick Cooked Cabbage; Tomato and Bibb Lettuce Salad with French Dressing; Pumpkin Pie; Coffee.

Fresh from the water Mary Moore firmly grasps a male salmon in Shuswap Lake in B.C. Look closely and you will see his snout, newly developed to attack would be competitors during the spawning season. Mary gives you a mouth-watering Salmon Quiche today.

Feminist Urges Older Women Not to Give Up

MONTREAL (CP) — A feminist and former member of the Women's Liberation Movement contended that older women have just as much right as 20-year-olds to regard themselves as physically attractive and to seek sexual fulfilment.

Evelyn Hollander Hertz, 31, told a recent meeting of a University Women's Club that people tend to regard young girls and future generations of women as the only beneficiaries of liberation movements and possible achievements.

As a result, older women were made to suffer, even though they too deserved to feel independent and equal.

"Keep trying new things," she urged. "Join, new activities, new hobbies."

Mrs. Hertz said no one is shocked when a 65-year-old man marries a woman of 20—"in fact, we say 'He has such a cute wife!'

But when the situation was reversed, there was gossip and criticism of the woman for not acting her age.

She said women are made to think that they age more quickly than men.

"But it's not true. The aging process takes place more in our heads than in reality.

"As women you shouldn't give up because you're 25 or 35 or 45 or 55 and just because you can't touch your toes any more you don't even try.

"Don't give up, no matter how old you are."

Mrs. Hertz, a native of Yugoslavia, works in a feather importing firm, which she expects to manage once her father retires.

Her husband, a writer, stays home.

She firmly believes that the late psychiatrist Sigmund Freud has done more damage to women than most of the chauvinists they denounce.

Freudian-oriented psychiatrists interpreted women's roles in terms of the male-dominated society. They rarely encouraged women to fulfil themselves outside the home.

"Beware," said Mrs. Hertz, "of these explanations men make of how you should behave."

Mrs. Hertz said she resigned from the Montreal Women's Liberation because it was Marxist—taking the stand that men, as well as women, are oppressed by capitalism and that women must fight side by side with them, both for revolution and against male dominance.

"I think Marxism is a male ideology," she said, adding that Christian history has shown women are always neglected in the creation of new orders.

"As a good feminist, I don't want to have anything to do with a male ideology because I think we women can think up our own—we don't have to follow the men, even in revolution."

Area Women's Institutes Meet

QUEENSBORO W.I.

QUEENSBORO — The recent meeting of Queensboro Women's Institute based on citizenship was conducted by the president Mrs. C. A. McMurray. There were 13 members and one visitor present for the meeting held in her home. Following the opening routine a number of business items were discussed and it was decided to give gifts to the local nursing home again this year at Christmas time.

Citizenship convener Mrs. Roy Rollins was in charge of the program and the portion dealing with Remembrance Day was conducted by Mrs. Arthur Holmes assisted by Mrs. Rollins. Current events were read and a report was given on the recent Trent Valley Area convention held at Chub Cove.

Mrs. Rex Rollins as guest speaker gave an interesting talk on resolutions and also gave an appropriate reading.

She was presented with a gift by the president after which lunch was served and a social time was enjoyed.

BONARLAW WI

Hector Arnold was guest speaker at the WI meeting held at the home of Mrs. George Williams on Wednesday, November 25. He gave a talk on new developments in agriculture.

Those who had canvassed for the Canadian Institute for the Blind handed in their collections. Mrs. Carl Rice demonstrated some ideas for Christmas decorating. Mrs. Myrtle Cassidy gave her report on the WI convention held in Belleville.

A comic skit was put on by several women. Birthday wishes were extended to two women who were celebrating their birthdays. The Christmas meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Myrtle Cassidy.

LONSDALE W.I.

The highlight of the November meeting of the Lonsdale W.I. was a humorous reading by Mrs. Bernard Freeman. Mrs. Eric Chappell gave a reading on how Corky's Distilleries were controlling pollution and also an article from a paper in England.

The meeting was attended by 17 members. All were in favor of two women attending the 4H meeting in Foxboro later this month. Mrs. Ted McGuinness is the leader of the group which consists of eight members. A cash donation was given to her to purchase the necessary articles for the next project.

Mrs. Allen stressed the rules all must follow and had various members read articles from the Mist book. A discussion period followed. Plans for the Christmas party were discussed and also the draw for a quilt which will take place at the card party on December 8. Lunch was served by Mrs. Dave Gartland and Mrs. Dave Lyman.

Club Welcomes Charter Members

Four charter members of the Belleville Senior Citizens Club were welcomed at the recent meeting. These included Mrs. Margaret Waldmeir (formerly Drummond), Mrs. Mabel Cooke, Mrs. Ida Robinson and Mrs. James Brennan. Two members Miss Lizzie Reid and Mr. John Pitcher were unable to be present.

Mrs. Robin Jeffrey also extended congratulations on behalf of the city.

The history of the club was outlined dating back to the original meeting 17 years ago held at the Kiwanis Centre. At this first meeting there were 36 interested persons and Mr. Lloyd Doran acted as chairman. The membership fee at that time was 50 cents a year and meetings were held once a month. First officers were: president, Leslie Field, vice-president Walter Grey; secretary - treasurer, Mrs. Lillian Moult; and executive Robert Andrews, Mrs. Drummond and Mr. Fred Cooke.

During the past 17 years membership has grown to over 200 members with meetings now twice a month. The club has also increased to one dollar.

A short business period followed at which time various reports were given and appreciation to all who had assisted at the recent bazaar. A donation is to be made to the Christmas Hamper Program.

Euchre was enjoyed by all and winners were Mrs. Hazel Knox, Mrs. Martha Webb, Mrs. Jessie Eaton and Mrs. W. Tindall. Mrs. Enid Armstrong and Mr. Rocky Campbell, 8 door prizes, was won by William Thompson.

Refreshments were served including an anniversary cake and was convened by Mrs. Susie Pigden and helpers. A social time was spent.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

AT HOME

Friends and relatives are invited to an "At Home" in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Orrod MacMullen, 21 Murney Street, Belleville on Sunday, December 6, from 2 to 5 p.m. on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. D2-3-4

Previous to her recent marriage Mrs. Gordon Bruce Smith (nee Dian Helen Hennemader) was entertained at a miscellaneous shower held at the Sundial Motor Hotel with hostess Shirley Smith of Otawa and co-hostesses Linda Smith of Belleville and Dianne Neal of Crookston. A Jack and Jill shower was given in Toronto and the bridegroom's parents entertained the wedding party at the Sundial Motor Hotel, Orillia following the rehearsal.

WEDDING

SMITH — HENEMADER

Regent Park United Church, Orillia was the scene of the recent wedding when Dian Helen Henemader, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Henemader of Orillia was united in marriage to Gordon Bruce Smith of Don Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Smith of Belleville. Rev. Walter King officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ankle length gown of sunshine yellow Indian silk trimmed with lime green Indian silk around the neckline and cathedral sleeves. She wore single white daisies in her hair and carried a solitaire white orchid.

Mrs. Ellen Clarke of Ancaster as matron of honor wore a pantsuit of navy and lime green Mistreel designed fabric from Finland and carried a bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses. The bridesmaids Mrs. Lee Motyka of Fort Lauderdale, Florida and Mrs. Marilyn Saunders of Agincourt were similarly attired in yellow and orange designed pantsuits with matching bouquets.

Stephen Foster of Streetsville was groomsman, while the ushers were Barry Smith of Belleville, Robert Smith of Ottawa, both brothers of the bridegroom and Fredrick Henemader, brother of the bride.

The couple will reside at 325 Wallmer Rd., Toronto.

Writer Observes Fashions

AP writer Louise Cook recently travelled through England and France. Here are some of her observations on the fashion scene in two European capitals.

By LOUISE COOK

NEW YORK (AP) — The girl watchers of London and Paris have fallen on hard times. It takes a quick eye to catch a glimpse of leg in those mid-minded days.

Along London's Bond Street and Paris' Champs Elysees, the longer skirt length appears to have captured the fancy of fashionable women of all ages.

"Absolutely not, ducks," said a young man in London when asked over coffee if liked the mid. Would he let his wife wear one? "Never," he replied with firm British authority.

A man, skipping an aperitif at a cafe, let loose with a torrent of French when asked about the passing mini-clad girls. One word came out the same, no matter what the language: "Terrible."

In London, the mini is everywhere, at private parties, along the streets of Bohemian-style Soho, in fashionable restaurants, on the dance floor at the Top Ten Club.

The women who haven't quite got the courage to try the mini are covering their legs in other ways—pants long coats over knee-length skirts, thigh-high boots.

In contrast with New York, where the customer is asked what skirt length she wants to see, salesgirls at London shops don't even mention hemlines. Skirts start at the knee and go down.

Successful Living

The Other Spouse Is Usually The Last to Know of Infidelity

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Most of your letters are about silly girls and their beaus. Why not help and solve the old question of why the outdated husband is always the last to hear of his wife's infidelity?

Nobody likes him if they know, either under the impression that she must know or the less they know, better if he does not know. When he does find out he is so hurt that he cannot fight or will not believe his loved one would do such a thing. — Old Timer.

Dear Old Timer: Who wants to hear bad news? Or to tell on one who is loved and then not be believed? And the tale bearer is the one who risks dislike from both sides.

Yet there are times when they're sure a wife — could do something constructive about the situation if he or she knew the truth.

Dear Doris: I always read your column because I always find something that interests me. This time it was "Plied With Hate."

The woman is very depressed. But take my word for it, sometimes it has a lot to do with your health. Three years ago I was ready to give up too.

Then a psychiatrist made it clear to me that marriage was worth, fighting for, and now I believe every word he told me. I can see myself in this woman's letter. My thanks go to the people who helped me. After 39 years of marriage it is hard to just walk out on it.

I hope she will talk to a counsellor before she decides. They sure know what they are talking about. Good luck to her! — A Fan.

Dear Fan: Thank you. I hope F.W.H. will read your message and talk things over. It is so much harder after a complete break has been made.

Dear Doris: My parents' 25th anniversary was just great.

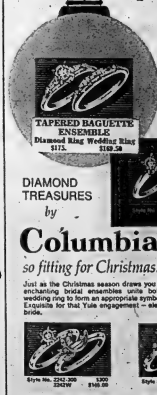
It all started with a mass at 7:30 a.m. The church was decorated with bouquets of flowers. Under the main altar there was a bouquet of 10 pink roses each attached with a name tag of one of their children.

The celebrants renewed their vows, with each child having a part in the service. They served the mass, gave the lesson and said a prayer for their parents' happiness.

At the get - together later there was a delicious variety of tastes. It was not too loud, and the couples were capable of conversating. There was a buffet supper and a speech by the oldest son.

The children received many compliments from guests for an enjoyable evening. I thank you, Doris, for all the ideas you gave us and for all the advice. — A Fan.

Dear J. D.: I'm proud of you. It is one thing to dish out advice, quite another to know how to take it.



(Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 25 cents and a large, six - cent - stamped, self-addressed envelope. If you have not received a leaflet requested, it may be that you have neglected to include the necessary six - cent stamp.)

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I always drive Jeannie to school. She's so little to be going alone. Actually, I rather enjoy getting out with her in the morning. She might be frightened if she had to walk by herself."

Mother: "Terry and Joanie will stop at our house and walk to school with you every morning and they will wait for you after school so you can all come home together. You'll enjoy going with them."

It's sometimes hard for mothers to cut the apron strings, but it should be done gradually and in little ways so a child will achieve independence step by step.

Students Entertain White Cane Club Members

Three Nicholson College students Ann Finkle, Paul Muldoon and Rod McNeil entertained members of the White Cane Club with folk songs sung to guitar accompaniment at the November meeting held at the recreation centre. They were thanked by Harvey Bailey.

In the absence of Pat Bavarstock, president, vice-president Bob Gill presided. Wilma Morris announced the names of those who had birthdays in November. The birthday song was sung and prizes were distributed. A number of games were played and lunch was served by the Kiwanis women.

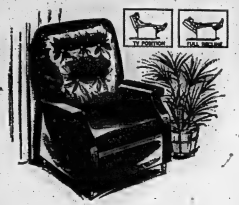
Mrs. Maud Rollins played the piano for the opening songs and President Pat Bavarstock chaired the business meeting. Clarence Morris was nominated to be delegate to the annual CCB convention, Ontario Division to be held in Niagara Falls in May 1971.

The correspondence and CCB Council commentary were read by Mrs. Rollins. An item of interest in the commentary was the announcement of the award of merit for 1970.

The highlight of the 38th national CCB convention banquet held at the Admiral Beatty hotel, Saint John, New Brunswick was the presentation of a gold medal and citation, the Council's highest award which was given to Arthur J. Gosselin of Montreal, a dedicated sighted worker for his transcription of English and French material into braille for the blind of Canada.

The presentation was made by the CCB national president Mrs. J. T. Patterson and the citation was read in French and English by Robert Le Blanc of Moncton, New Brunswick.

Members were reminded of the recreation meeting to be held in December when gifts will be exchanged.



Bob Gill thanked the Kinsties for the lunch they provided and the Lions Club for transportation.

Expert Care

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. John Carlsson's new car was back in the garage for repairs only a few days after they bought it. Mrs. Carlsson, thinking an old scout in the engine might go away if she topped off the radiator, put 23 pints of water down the oil pipe.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Well, now you know how far your paycheck goes today—about to aisle G in the supermarket!"

Students Trade Parents

TORONTO (CP) — High school students have been exchanging their parents for guardians in order to attend the schools they want.

By signing themselves over to a legal guardian for a $2 fee in the Surrogate Court of York County, they obtain the right to attend school in the guardian's district.

Men Like to Play by Rules

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A reader in Oregon, who signs her letter "Football Widow," wants to know why her husband, and so many men like him, have become what she calls "football nuts" spending an entire weekend watching games.

One of the answers, I think — beyond the glib and obvious fact that we all need a little escapism" in our lives — is that watching games provides a psychological nourishment that is lacking in the reality of our times.

This is especially true in a hard contact game like football. The rules are clear, the lines are marked, the goals are highly visible. The virtues needed to win are strength, courage, cunning, persistence. If you've got it, you make it: the penalties are sure, the rewards are immediate. Football is a kind of modern morality play.

Increasingly, however, real life gets less like that every day. The rules are in a constant process of change; the lines are blurred; the goals keep receding or diminishing. And success often seems to have little relationship to the old-fashioned virtues. Good guys finish last, or not at all.

Our increasing absorption in competitive sports is not what the first Olympics were for the early Greeks — a celebration of the human body, an offering of respect and gratitude to the gods.

Rather, it is a means of trying to restore — if only for a few hours — a kind of moral and psychological equilibrium that has been so seriously disoriented in recent times. It is a kind of therapy, for it seeks to deny reality instead of comprehending and coping with it.

We would all prefer life to be more like a football game; as perhaps it was centuries ago, when the alternatives were relatively clean-cut and simple, when men still possessed a sense of community and coherence and social stability.

But the plain fact is that Today's "future shock" is full upon us. Even the name of our game has scarcely been invented yet, and we don't know which rules to follow, which guideposts to head for, which fouls are permissible or punishable — or even what a "foul" may be now.

Man has been defined as "homo ludens," the species that plays games. And the one thing that all games have in common is a framework of inflexible rules and objectives within which all the "writing" and "losing" must be more crowded, more complex, more clamorous, more close, by conflicting in interests, we find increasing solace in watching players who know exactly what is to be done, how to do it — and indisputably carry off the laurel leaf for their own personal achievements.

Senators Are Expected to Try to Revise Public Order Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The government gained quick Commons approval Tuesday for its contentious public order bill but indications now point to strenuous Senate attempts to revise the measure.

The Liberal-dominated Commons approved the bill—the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970—by a vote of 174 go 31. The legislation would replace regulations now in effect under the War Measures Act.

Opposed to passage of the bill, on which debate later began in the Senate, were 17 New Democrats, 10 Creditistes and four Conservatives.

The Commons later turned to bills on anti-dumping, farm, fishing and business loans. Today it debated a pension bill.

Conservatives who broke ranks to vote against the public order bill, first presented in the Commons Nov. 2, were: Gordon Aiken (Parry Sound-Muskoka); R. G. L. Fairweather (Fundy-Royal); David MacDonald (Egmont) and Roch Lasalle (Joliette).

The NDP and Creditistes have pressed for changes in the bill throughout the debate and voted solidly against it. Pierre De Bane (L—Matane), his party's toughest critic of the measure, was not in the House for the vote.

Senator Jacques Flynn (PC—Quebec), his party's leader in the upper chamber, said Tuesday night he will introduce at least one amendment to the bill.

During second reading debate, he told the Senate the bill must allow some method enabling persons accused of once being members of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec to prove they no are longer associated with the organization.

Senator Martin said the protracted Commons debate on the bill showed the government's wisdom in not seeking parliamentary approval before proclaiming the War Measures Act Oct. 16.

Lawrence Wants Price Differentials in North Ended

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Government and industry should do more to eliminate discrimination in the form of price differentials in the price of commodities sold in the north, Allan Lawrence, Ontario Minister of mines and northern affairs, said Tuesday.

He told the annual convention of the Northern Ontario Tourist Outfitters Association that the provincial and federal governments should cohsert on a plan of program which would also reduce taxes in the north and cut freight rates.

"The main problem, according to manufacturers and distributors, is allegedly transportation costs. If that is true, I would like to see a joint study of the whole situation undertaken by both the federal and provincial governments.

"I am not sure whether such a study has ever been made ... but the irreversible fact is that these price differentials exist, are discriminatory, and do hinder our development of the north."

Another threat to northern development, he said, are applications by Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways to discontinue passenger service.

He said that if the railroads do not provide the services, "then they should lose the trackage right-of-way privileges that have been granted to them by the people, and if there is another railroad that's willing to step in and take them over, it should go to them."

He said he hoped he could tell the Canadian Transport Commission soon that the provincially-run Ontario Northland Railroad will be able to provide passenger and freight service to the north if the national railways will cot.

Now Upstart Canucks Breathing Down Hab Necks!

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Back in late October Bud Poile was pleased with the progress of his expansionist Vancouver Canucks in the early National Hockey League season.

After all, here was a club labeled for the left end of the NHL's East Division entrenched in fourth place ahead of three clubs, including two members of the establishment—Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs, with three wins, five losses and two ties.

Poile, whose years in hockey's front office should have dictated a more conservative forecast for his club, said at the time he could see no reason why the Canucks shouldn't remain in fourth, even though 11 of their next 15 games were on the road.

"I don't say we are better than Detroit or Toronto, but we are certainly as good as Buffalo (Sabres)," he noted, including the other 1970 expansionist club in his division assessment.

That 15-game spin ended by Tuesday night and there was Vancouver still in fourth place after a 5-4 come-from-behind victory over Philadelphia Flyers.

The win, on the strength of third-period goals by Hayes Mahl, with his second of the game and 11th of the year, and Ray Cullen, padded Vancouver's lead over fifth-place Detroit to four points and moved them to within two of third-place Montreal Canadiens.

In the 15-game stretch, the Canucks won six, lost eight and tied one to continue their surprise bid for a playoff spot in Vancouver's rookie Big League hockey and another shot at the Stanley Cup, the trophy they won last with Vancouver Millionaires in 1915.

The Canucks opened up a 1-0 first period lead but trailed when Jim Johnson scored twice early in the middle period and the Flyers dominated play for most of the game.

Except for outstanding acrobatics of Vancouver goaltender George Gardner, the outcome might have been otherwise as the 20-year-old native of Lacombe, Que., kicked out 46 shots to stop the Philadelphians.

Win Over Fraser Makes Cantin Youngest Champ

MONTREAL (CP)—Reynald Cantin, a determined young fighter from Montreal, won the Canadian junior welterweight boxing title Tuesday night with a unanimous 15-round decision over veteran Colin Fraser of Toronto.

Cantin, 19, withstood an early seven-round onslaught of body blows to stagger the former champion in the ninth round and go on to his 12th win in a 15-fight professional career.

He is the youngest champion in Canadian professional boxing history.

Fraser, who actually lost the title before the fight began when he failed to meet the 140-pound weight limit, said after the bout it was his last match as a junior welterweight.

However, he denied reports in an interview that he will retire: "I've still got a few fights left in me."

Fraser now has a record of 30 wins and 10 losses in his 16-year pro career.

He was nursing a badly bruised right elbow that he said cut his effectiveness from the third round onwards.

The new champion, who predicted a knock-out win before the match, was ecstatic over his victory. "I hurt Fraser never hurt him and that he was strong enough to take anything his opponent could deliver."

Fraser, 142¼, carried the fight to the 140-pound Montrealer throughout the first seven rounds, attacking constantly with wicked body blows. Cantin, forced at every turn to defend himself, absorbed dozens of blows to the face, chest, stomach and upper arms, rarely countering his opponent's punches.

Cantin's lip was cut in the eighth but he began to back off from Fraser's clubbers and connect with jabs and hooks.

In the ninth, the Montreal fighter went to the attack,

Hawley Adds Two

TORONTO (CP) — Sandy Hawley of Whitby, Ont., rode two more winners at Greenwood race track Tuesday, bringing his 1970 total to 440 victories, as he closes in on the North American record.

Hawley's wins, aboard Portobello Road in the sixth and Night Call in the featured seventh, enabled him to pass Jorge Velasquez's mark of 438, set in 1967. The record for a season is held by Willie Shoemaker with 485, set in 1953.

Sport Briefs

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Henri Crochetiere, an executive of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, said Tuesday that as things stand now, Quebec will not be represented in play this year for the Allan Cup, awarded to the top senior hockey team in Canada. Mr. Crochetiere said in an interview the decision was taken at the QAHA's annual meeting in Montreal Nov. 21, and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association was notified. Though there is no senior A hockey in Quebec, an intermediate-class league in the Quebec ries region of the province applied for permission to play in the Allan Cup playoffs, Mr. Crochetiere said. This was turned down by the Quebec group.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Blanton Collier, Cleveland Brown coach, said Tuesday he will retire voluntarily at the end of the this season to "go out under my own power." Collier, 65, who has been head coach of the Browns since the ouster of Paul Brown after the 1962 season, said his decision had nothing to do with the team's 5-6 record this season. He said he told the club owner, Art Modell, of his decision before the start of the season and told team members after Sunday's loss to Pittsburgh. The loss dropped the Browns into a three-way tie for last place in the Central Division of the American Football Conference.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sonny Liston, former world heavyweight boxing champion, was reported in satisfactory condition in a hospital here Tuesday, six days after being injured in a traffic accident. Liston suffered minor injuries in the intersection accident. He was cited by the highway patrol for failure to yield the right of way.

Metro Council to Launch All-Purpose Field Study

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto council named a five-member committee Tuesday to study all aspects of building and operating an all-purpose stadium.

Estimated cost of the stadium, initially outdoor with provision for covering at a later date, was $30 million based on recent sport stadium surveys.

If the stadium were combined with a convention centre in a hotel and office building project, estimated cost of the venture was set at $100 million.

The council's deliberation on the stadium followed last week-end's Grey Cup national football final at CNE Stadium where the turf was described by one player as "a two-cent field."

Metro chairman Albert Campbell told council that within five years the CNE field "will be pretty well useless" but any plans for building a new stadium must include financial aid from federal and provincial governments sources.

Don't Thank Canadians For Kings' Crowds: Regan

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey is slowly catching on in the Los Angeles area but not through any effort of expatriate Canadians, Larry Regan, coach and general manager of Los Angeles Kings, said Tuesday as his club worked out at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The Kings, sixth in the National Hockey League's West Division, meet the Maple Leafs, sixth in the East, in a game tonight.

"It's catching on, it's coming, there's no doubt about it," said Regan when asked if hockey was gaining in popularity when competing with other pro sports in the sunny California climate. "Our attendance is up about 1,200 a game. . . . But you can't sell it to Canadians."

He said about 100,000 Canadians live in the Los Angeles area "but they are our worst critics."

"They say they saw Montreal Canadiens and the Maple Leafs when they had real good teams and they won't settle for anything less."

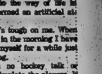
Regan expressed concern for the hockey players attempting to adjust to the way of life in what he termed an artificial atmosphere.

"Hell, it's tough on me. When I wake up in the morning I have to talk to myself for a while just to get going.

"There's no hockey talk or news to stimulate the players. If you don't watch out, you can lose confidence. We've practised twice a day last week just as a precaution."

NHL Top Ten

By THE CANADIAN PRESS



Orland Kurtenbach and Wayne Maki picked up three scoring points each Tuesday night as Vancouver Canucks edged Philadelphia Flyers 5-4 in the only scheduled National Hockey League game.

Kurtenbach, with a goal and two assists moved into a sixth-place tie with Boston Bruins' John McKenzie, each with 25 points, while Maki, who had two goals, was a point back tied with linemate Andre Boudrias and Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers.

Regina Rink Upsets 'Hec'

EDMONTON (CP) — Sam Richardson of Regina upset former world champion Hec Gervais of St. Albert, Alta., 9-7 in the second qualifying round of the seventh Canadian open curling tournament Tuesday.

It was Richardson's second straight win.

Two-time champion Merv Mann of Saskatoon beat Gill Svenson of Leduc, Alta., 7-4 in the second round.

Other undefeated rinks after two rounds were Tom Steen of Dahaes, Glen Pierce of Burnaby, B.C., Bobby Robinson of Winnipeg, Doug Wankel of Elbow, Sask., Clare DeBlonde of Winnipeg, Bob Pickering of Milestone, Sask., Harold Worth of Delisle, Sask., and George Fink of Calgary.

Fifty-nine rinks were entered for the two days of preliminary competition which will produce four rinks in the A event, four in the B and eight in the C for a 16-rink playoff starting Thursday.

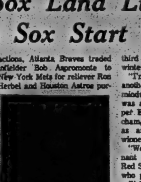
Red Sox Land Luis Aparicio As White Sox Start Cleaning House



LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two rebuilding clubs have landed Luis Aparicio look-alikes in baseball's winter trade market, but the prodigal Aparicio belongs to Boston Red Sox today and they're building a pennant dream.

Chicago White Sox, cleaning house after a last-place finish in the American League's Western Division, dealt Aparicio to Boston Tuesday for second baseman Mike Andrews and 21-year-old shortstop Luis Alvarado.

Meanwhile, Baltimore Orioles reluctantly parted with Aparicio's protege, 21-year-old shortstop Enos Hernandez, in a six-player swap that also sent pitcher Tom Phoebus to San Diego Padres of the National League in exchange for pitchers Pat Dobson and Tom Dukes.

In other major league transactions, Atlanta Braves traded infielder Bob Aspromonte to New York Mets for reliever Ron Herbel and Houston Astros purchased catcher Jack Hiatt from Chicago Cubs.

Reports from our scouts compare Alvarado to a young Luis Aparicio," Tanner said after the White Sox swung their third deal of the two-day-old winter meetings.

"I'm not saying Hernandez is another Aparicio but he reminds me a lot of Luis when he was a kid," said Orioles' skipper Earl Weaver, whose world champs looked toward Dobson as another potential 20-game winner.

"We feel we can win the pennant with Aparicio," said the Red Sox, skipper, Eddie Kasko, who plans to shift Rico Petrocelli from short to third base to make room for the 155-pound veteran of 18 American League seasons.

Aparicio, a superb shortstop who has led the league in stolen bases nine times, batted a career-high .313 in 146 games-last season.

Andrews, 27 and at one time with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, batted .225 for the Red Sox, with 17 homers and 65 runs batted in.

Alvarado, the International League's Most Valuable Player in 1969, began his rookie American League season as Boston's regular third baseman but wound up dividing the year between the Red Sox and Louisville.

The Orioles, who traded veteran relief pitcher Moe Drabowsky to St. Louis Cardinals Monday, gave up Phoebus, Hernandez sod pitchers Fred Beene and Al Severinsen to get Dobson and Dukes, San Diego's biggest winner and second-busiest reliever, respectively, last season.

Phoebus, pitching sporadically behind Baltimore aces Dave McNally, Mike Cuellar and Jim Palmer last season, compiled a 5-5 record and a 3.97 earned run average.

Wilt, West Save Lakers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Lakers used 6-foot Tuesday night to beat Baltimore Bullets 97-93 in a National Basketball Association game.

With the Lakers leading 95-92, first Wilt Chamberlain and then Jerry West came up with consecutive clutch defensive gems to save the game. Chamberlain blocked a shot by Earl Monroe and then West followed by blocking a shot by Kevin Loughery in the final seconds. Gail Goodrich then added two free throws to seal the victory.

On the offensive side, Chicago Bulls scored 17 straight points and went on to a 107-91 victory over Philadelphia 76ers, and New York Knicks shot 58.2 per cent from the field in the first half and breezed to a 114-109 triumph over Seattle.

In other games, Boston Celtics squeezed past Buffalo Braves 117-116 in overtime for its fifth victory in a row, San Diego Rockets turned back Portland Trail Blazers 120-114 and San Francisco Warriors overcame Atlanta Hawks 113-106.

The Bullets had trouble scoring earlier against the Lakers, going the first six minutes of the third period without scoring and falling 12 points back after holding a 51-50 halftime lead.

Monroe, who scored 33 points, helped bring them back, but West, who hit 37, and Chamberlain out shot the rally.

Wild Pitch Costs Canadians Second Win

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia (CP) — A wild pitch by Murray Gage-Cole of Victoria, B.C., in the eighth inning gave Puerto Rico a 2-1 victory over Canada on the last day of round-robin play in the world amateur baseball tournament Tuesday.

The Canadians wound up in a three-way tie with The Netherlands and Italy for last place in the series, beating the Dutch team 4-0 Monday for their only win against nine losses.

Canada was scheduled to play Italy as well as Puerto Rico Tuesday, but the Italian game was called off.

Canada collected eight hits, drew four walks and had the advantage of three Puerto Rican errors, but couldn't push across more than their single, first-inning run.

That came when Barry Harvey of Victoria, on base on a fielder's choice, advanced on a single by Yves Blanchard of Montreal and scored when fellow Victorian Russ Holmes reached first on an error.

Tom McKenzie of Kitchener and Dave McKay of Vancouver each had one hits for the Canadians. Blanchard's single gave him the team's highest batting average—.467.

NEW YORK (AP) — Participation by New Haven Blades of the Eastern Hockey League in a Moscow tournament and an eight-game tour of the United States by a Soviet team have been cancelled, it was disclosed Tuesday. Tom Lockhart, president of both the Eastern Hockey League and the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States, said the action was taken following the refusal of the Soviet hockey officials to guarantee payment of round-trip air fare to Moscow for the New Haven club. The Moscow tournament is being held Dec. 6-13. The Soviet team's American tour had been scheduled to begin Dec. 20.

Dealing For Wheels

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada has applied to the World Cycling Congress at Geneva to play host to the 1974 world cycling championships.

Guy Morin of Montreal, president of the Canadian Cycling Association, headed a four-man delegation to last weekend's Union Cycliste Internationale meeting in Switzerland. Canada presented a preliminary application to the congress, attended by delegates from 73 of the world governing body's 100 member nations.

If the CCA application is successful the 1974 championships will be held in Montreal on the 75th anniversary of their last appearance in this city. They were last held here in 1939.

This year's city Honors and Awards Committee banquet will definitely be appreciated by the guests of honor, because good appetites go hand-in-hand with weightlifting.

Ironically, weightlifting, one of the most overlooked members of the local sporting community, has stolen the spotlight from its more affluent, popular cousins.

If it weren't for seven members of the Apollo Barbell Club and Shannonville wrestler Harold Brant, there wouldn't be an Honors and Awards Committee banquet this year.

Only these eight qualified as Ontario champions or better to meet the requirements for the medical plaques and meal city council budgets for those who bring athletic honor to Belleville.

In the past few years, minor hockey or some other team sport has given the annual banquet a more populated atmosphere. But Wednesday, Dec. 9 only the Apollo Barbell Club contingent and Harold Brant will be attacking a prime rib plate at the Quinte Hotel.

Nobody's appetite will be better than that of Ken Carr-Brulot. In addition to being the Honors and Awards Committee chairman, Carr-Brulot is also the man who coached Art, Gary and Bob Walt, Ron and Roger Hayes, and Price Morris to the roast beef feast.

Carr-Brulot put Belleville on the country's sports map by having the Canadian Weightlifting Championships and British Commonwealth Games Trials here last May. It marked the first time a national sporting meet had been held in the city.

Today, the Bayrell St. building contractor had a Christmas bonus for city sport supporters.

"We've just received word that the three Walt brothers all have qualified as Canadian champions as a result of their performance at Woodstock," Carr-Brulot babbled. "This is tremendous! It's fantastic for one club to have more than one Canadian championship let alone have them held by three brothers."

Gary, 22, Bob, 20 and Art, 18, won their respective weight classes at the Nov. 7 Ontario Intermediate Championships at Woodstock. Intermediate competition is open to lifters who haven't held either a Canadian senior title or record.

(That stipulation, incidentally, cost 15-year-old Apollo Club up-and-comer Ron Hayes a Canadian title. A 198-pound total at Woodstock made Hayes the top flyweight (114-pound) intermediate in the country, but his 167½-pound clean-and-jerk a year earlier established a Canadian Senior record).

A telegram from the Canadian Weightlifting Association confirmed that the three Walts stand at the head of their weightlifting classes. Gary's 825-pound total tops the 242-pound Bold; Bob's 803 total was 25 pounds ahead of his nearest Canadian middleweight rival; and Art's 820, including a Commonwealth record 275-pound snatch, makes the 19-year-old the class of Canada's intermediate light-heavyweights.

Art will be eligible for Saturday's annual Eastern Ontario Teenage Christmas contest, which has been staged by the Apollo Club for the last 16 years.

The program gets under way at 1 p.m. at Sir Mackenzie Bowell School on Leland Drive and will run through to Saturday evening featuring a $1.50 turkey-plate supper open to the public.

Both younger Walts — Bob and Art — will see their next competition Dec. 25-26 in Etobicoke at the senior trials for February's Canada Games in Saskatoon.

"I have great hopes for Art to win a first — as well as Ron Hayes," Carr-Brulot predicted. "We must have a dozen Canadian championships in the club's 21 years, but new they're starting to come closer together."

Elder Walt Gary is three months too old to be eligible for this month's trials, but he will re-join the Apollo pack that bends to Woodstock next May for the Canadian Senior championships which will serve as trials for the Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia.

Joining the Walts, Ron and Roger Hayes, and Commonwealth bronze-medallist Price Morris at next Wednesday's city-sponsored banquet will be Harold Brant, not a bad enter himself.

Brant was not fortunate enough to have someone like Ken Carr-Brulot to go guy coaching him.

After school was out — and its gymnasium closed — Brant had to fend for himself.

He and Robert Sitti, a Hamilton native who was enrolled at Centennial last year, both complained of lack of local facilities and coaching interest in their endeavors.

Sitti, who won the Canadian lightweight freestyle title in Calgary, would also have been eligible for a roast beef meal as the city.

But he was so upset about having to travel to hometown Hamilton for coaching and gym space that he opted to compete under the steel city banner.

That saves Belleville about $28, but costs more than meets the eye.

Hot Hands

BCI junior basketball standout Glen Gray goes up for a practice shot while teammate Blake Jones prepares to grab the rebound. Gray hooped 13 points, while Jones led all scorers with 14 as the junior Collegians downed Centre Hastings 81-37 in high school basketball action last night.

BCI Inside Rim

BCI's junior and midget boys basketball teams used some hot shooting to reach the ½'s in last night's Bay of Quinte matches with Centre Hastings.

The junior Collegians notched an 81-37 win, while the midgets were downing Madoc 47-31. No senior game was played.

BCI led by a slim 33-25 margin at half time in the junior game, but managed to pile up 48 points in the second half. The winners used a tough man - to - man press to hold Centre Hastings to 12 points in the final two quarters.

"We've got a good club," admitted Bill Miller who coached last year's COSSA midget champions. "We're not sure how the rest of the team stack up because we haven't played them, but I expect Carl Centennial and Moira will be tough."

Blake Jones was the top BCI scorer with 14 points, while Glen Gray followed closely with 13. Peter LeBarre played a standout all-round game in the back court, while hooping ten points. Wayne Giles and Gary Donovan also managed to hit the double figures.

Fred Cass pumped in 28 points to pace the midgets to their 47-31 victory, followed by Mark Gallops who hit the 13-point mark.

The BCI seniors rang up a 45-23 win over Quinte in the opening game of the total point final series, while the juniors downed Moira 47-34.

Janice Bird hooped 23 points to lead the senior Collegians with Marion Jones adding eight more to the total. Final game in the series will be played at Quinte Thursday.

At Moira, the Collegians got a "twin" attack from twin sisters Debbie and Dianne Kerr to pace their 47-25 win. Debbie hooped 18 points, while Dianne followed with 14. The series returns to BCI for the final game.

Marlies Return Jury

It's hard to be classed as an "old man" at the age of 24, but that appears to be the category that Belleville goalie Ron Jury falls into concerning Junior A hockey.

Jury was out by the fifth place Marlboros after playing in but during Friday's 7-4 loss to Kitchener and a 10-3 drubbing by second place St. Catharines Sunday.

Despite the high goal totals Jury gave a respectable showing, facing close to 100 shots in two games for the Marlies, who have the third worst defensive record in the ten-team league.

While the Toronto officials are reported to be convinced that he could do the job for them, they preferred to go with a younger netminder, since the Belleville backstop's junior eligibility runs out at the end of this season.

While it was a personal disappointment to the goalie in his second year of junior hockey, the demotion was a blessing for the Eastern Ontario Junior B Fairways.

Despite the fact that the Fairways are currently in fifth spot in the six-team league, their defensive record is surpassed only by the top Peterborough and Oshawa teams, largely because Jury held the opposition to 34 goals in the six games he played before his Marlboro trial.

While Jury has not yet received his release from the Junior A club, he was on hand for a Tuesday night Fairway practice and the club reports that they expect no difficulty in obtaining his release for Friday's game with Peterborough, should coach Floyd Crawford decide to use him.

Crawford is now faced with the task of choosing between Jury, last year's MVP and Ernie Istead who showed well in Sunday's 6-3 win over Cobourg.

Friday night will be Pony Night at the Belleville arena as the Fairways take on the league's leading Peterborough Lions.

with one gentle touch
People should look like people—even on color TV. And stay that way. Scene to scene. Channel to channel. That's why Electrohome developed Total Touch Tuning. To help you get a perfect color picture every time, on every station, with just a touch of your finger!
Although Total Touch Tuning sounds like magic, it's actually very practical. In fact, it's more reliable than other color TV because Electrohome engineers have eliminated the mechanical gimmos that can cause trouble.
If you think Electrohome Total Touch Tuning sounds like something you should try for yourself, we agree. Come in. We'll provide the TV set. And we won't ask you to do more than lift a finger.

CPR Said Discouraging Use of Havelock Train

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The Canadian Pacific Railway was told Tuesday by a Canadian Transport Commission official that it had not done everything in its power to make the Toronto-Havelock, Ont., passenger service profitable.

D. H. Jones, chairman of the railway transportation committee of the Canadian Transport Commission, made the comment at the close of a six-hour hearing on an application by CP Rail to abandon the daily rail service.

No decision was announced at the hearing.

CP Rail has said it is operating the service at a annual loss of about $385,324.

"I am not at all satisfied that everything that could have been done has been done to make the service profitable," said Mr. Jones.

"There's been no studies on market availability and no discussion with other transit services; it's almost a black."

Walter Pitman, New Democratic Party Member of the Ontario legislature for Peterborough, said during the hearing the CPR service "has been downgraded and at no time has any advertising been placed with local radio and TV stations to promote passenger service."

Mr. Pitman said there had been "no attempt by CP to create a market."

"CPR has no interest in passengers and has used all its efforts to discourage passengers."

Peterborough mayor Jo Cusmirk made similar charges saying there was "no evidence that CPR had endeavored to meet the needs of the citizens of Peterborough or the general public."

CANADIAN TIRE

The 'Factory Door' Way to Save on Snow-Tires!

Two tires for what you'd expect to pay for one? Sounds incredible? Not when you start looking around and comparing. Not when you discover the economy of factory door pricing. It's like buying direct from the manufacturer—with most of the marketing and promotion costs eliminated. In fact, factory door prices are often less than the dealer wholesale cost for nationally advertised tires of similar quality! Take a look at our Winter Express and Snow-Travel prices—and compare!

To these prices add 15¢ in Toronto for freight from factory — more at distant points. Maximum — $1.13 to Gander, Newfoundland.

Installation — $1.00
Wheel Balance plus
New Valve — $1.00

Increase in Telephone Rates Is Authorized

OTTAWA (CP) — Telephone charges go up Jan. 1 in Ontario, Quebec, Labrador and the Northwest Territories as monthly amounts that range from 15 cents in a small-town residence to 70 cents for business phones in these suburbs of Toronto and Montreal.

In addition, monthly rates for extras such as extension phones or push-button dials will advance five to 15 cents. The one-time rental charge for a colored phone will go up by 25 cents to $3.25.

Bell Canada has been authorized to raised the rates by the regulatory Canadian Transport Commission, which ruled Tuesday that Bell was entitled to slightly less additional revenue than the company had asked for in September hearings.

The increase will yield Bell an additional $23.5 million a year on the basis of business this year instead of the $29 million the Montreal-based company had sought.

A commission ruling 13 months ago authorized additional long-distance and service charges to produce about $27.5 million in 1958 terms.

Tuesday's decision by the federal regulatory agency affects users of more than six million Bell telephones in Central Canada, Labrador and the North.

Provincial governments regulate rates charged by Bell subsidaries in the Atlantic provinces and parts of Northern Ontario and by provincially-owned companies in the four Western provinces.

The basic monthly charges affected and the increases approved vary among different rental rates will rise by 25 cents to $7.50 for private residential phones and by 70 cents to $13.15 for business use.

At the other end of the scale — in spots such as Armstrong, Ont., White River, Ont., Yamaska, Que., and Iglevik, N.W.T., residential rates go up by 15 cents to $3.60 a month and business charges by 20 cents to $5.30.

DC-8 Safety Measures Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Metal warning plaques forbidding deployment of ground spoilers while DC-8 passenger jets are still in the air would not be sufficient to prevent accidents similar to the one which claimed 189 lives here July 5, a federal inquiry has been told.

Inquiry commissioner Mr. Justice Hugh Gibson of the Exchequer Court of Canada was given 15 recommendations Tuesday by federal transport department air accident specialists.

The warning of the inadequacy of the metal plaques, to be installed on all DC-8s in North America as a result of the inquiry, came from Dr. F. H. Hemming, a specialist in aviation medicine.

He called the spoilers a potential hazard because one control lever in the cockpit has three distinct functions.

A major recommendation to the inquiry was that DC-8 pilots be warned immediately of loss of an engine through an alarm system of bells and red lights in the cockpit.

The specialists said vital flight safety information on the operation of the world's most extensively used passenger jet had not been available to pilots.

There now are 169 DC-8s in service for 44 airlines with a total of 4,138,000 hours in the air. If the recommendations are incorporated into the inquiry's report, it would be difficult for McDonnell Douglas, the DC-8 builders—or the airlines—to ignore them.

Anne Pleases Tough Toronto Critics

TORONTO (CP) — Nova Scotia singer Anne Murray has received rave notices from tough Toronto critics on her nightclub debut at the Imperial Room of the Royal York Hotel.

"Don't look now but Canada may have its first superstar!!" exclaimed critic Bernadette Andrews, writing in The Telegram. "And God knows we've wanted it badly enough."

Patrick Scott, critic for The Star, wrote that Miss Murray, a native of Springhill, N.S., took a "bold, barefoot run at the last remaining roadblock on her stardust road." Monday night—her first nightclub date—"and cleared it like a soaring snowbird."

This was a reference to Snowbird, her big record which has sold one million copies.

Hal Kirby, writing in The Globe and Mail, said her show suffered from inadequate hearing but praised her warmth. her "well-behaved but loquish manner" and her skill in winning over both young and old.

"We can identify with her, we want to get behind her and see her succeed because she's so attractive."

Most of the audience in the packed Imperial Room were Maritimers, including Dalton Camp, former national president of the Progressive Conservative party.

But Kirby said even though the Maritimers had come to cheer her, she would "have round 's warm response" anyway.

The critics, known for their frequently-harsh treatment of visiting performers, referred to Miss Murray's unprecedented decision to appear in the posh nightclub barefoot and in a midnight-blue pant suit, rejecting the usual sangaly gowns worn by female singers.

"And like everything else she did all night, it worked like a charm," said Scott.

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed Reed

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 3

Your birthday today: An intellectually active year begins in which you learn much, including details of situations you can do little about for the moment. This is a strong trend leading you to improvise changes in your routines. Serious study for self - improvement requires exceptional research. Romantic and sentimental links grow rapidly. Today's natives are interested in how people are late one to another, frequently become astute students of human nature.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Sketch broad outlines, then begin after the main features. Some adjustment, sacrifice is essential to any real sharing of leisure experiences.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Seek definite understandings about property. A new opening offers a notch further up in your career — maybe in fact, not easy. Be available for an unexpected pleasure or journey.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Official matters are proceeding better than you realize. Your energy rises and you can arouse support. You may come to unusual terms in any financial deal.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Make it a day of improving your public image. Attend gatherings of people who share your views. Check up on your investments. A relative or old friend has surprising news.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Communicate — make that call, reach for experience beyond the ordinary. New methods applied with enthusiasm promise well. Take home something nice for your loved ones.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Younger people or a social cause lead you into investing time, money. Business relations are tested, hopefully found valid and lasting. Be prompt, in any case.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your luck is going for you now — let people know you are willing to adapt. Plans for travel are more viable set. Take your mate in a favorite place.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): A bright idea comes out of nowhere at just the right time for all projects to come together. Family and group enterprises thrive. Visitors make use of anything added to your home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Travel has delays, incomplete results. Your friends try hard to change your mind about something. Don't fret over their reasons; accept what people offer, as they present it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Good aspects for business and money matters prevail. Carefully considered orders placed now show good returns later. An important item comes to fruition in your home life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Follow intuition rather than logic. Frivilous gadgets bought today bring fun and lasting interest among associates. A trip taken on impulse promises a helpful surprise.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Make sure your schedules are on time. Whatever original thought comes to public view will build your position. Consider diet and health: a major change might be beneficial.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

The search for pollution - free transportation leads to a combination of the flywheel propelled vehicle. This is not just a child's toy. For years the Oerlikon bus, made in Switzerland, has operated successfully in some European and African Cities. Its flywheel, spun to high speeds by electric motors at each stop, could store enough power to propel the bus more than a half mile, silently and smoothly. Its chief disadvantage is the need for regular tie-ins and charging at each stop. Flywheel research has made great strides. Fenix introduces a gas turbine - flywheel combination, with the turbine used primarily to power the flywheel. would be a practical combination. The chief obstacle at the moment is to find a flywheel material that can withstand the 24,000 rpm's a passenger car flywheel would require. The internal combustion engine won't disappear anytime soon but it will certainly get competition from many other power sources now being neglected.

Detroit seems to be trying hard to take the pleasures of driving away from the driver. Every year there are more automated functions, and more frequent mention of the computer - driven car of the future. Many car buyers don't like it.

The "shift-it-yourself" popularity is one indication — and the return of tachometers and other instruments that require human interpretation instead of idiot lights. The motorist can find all the automation he wants by riding public transportation. And in many cases he seems to want very little. The "driverless" car could be one of Detroit's greatest mistakes.

GM's Vega comes equipped with a 112-page service manual in addition to the usual owner's manual. It shows how to perform 49 service tasks with simple tools, one of the features buyers seem to want. This is partly a reaction to the scarcity of mechanics — and perhaps also an indication that owners want more personal control over and involvement with their cars. The increasing popularity of do-it-yourself activities of all kinds is one evidence of the reaction to computer control of human activities. The battle against 1984 continues.

If you have ever had to replace a dashlight you may have wondered where the engineers in Detroit hide when the automobile dash is designed. At last someone has begun to think about the silly business of standing on your head to get at the lights under the dash. Optical fibre lighting of the entire instrument console, with just two easy-to-replace lamps is now in existence. This system depends on the property of certain methacrylate plastics with a low refractive index to "bend" light around corners and thus carry beams inside a plastic fibre considerable distances from the light sources. Many variations are possible, making practical fluid level indicators to show the need for adding brake fluid, battery water or windshield washer fluid. It is even possible to make fabrics that emit light in patterns. Think of the applications for seat lighting. Elimination of the contortions of dash light replacement will probably be enough to satisfy the average driver for years to come.

With the snow and slush season almost here it's time to guard against hydroplaning — complete loss of control of your car with no steering and no brakes. Your tires wheels actually float above the road surface. Hydroplaning is most likely to happen when tire groove depth is not as great as the depth of water on the road.

The best defence is to get rid of worn tires before bad weather sets in. And that's good advice any time.

New cars run hotter today. Manufacturers want it that way. Closer running engines improve combustion and thus reduce pollution. The popularity of air conditioning and the rapid increase of power - consuming accessories all add to engine power demand and tend to increase engine heat. If you use water as a coolant during the summer months instead of permanent anti-freeze, you are likely to experience a boil-out now and then. Even if you drive in non-freeze territory you'll do well to use permanent antifreeze. All major brands now offer the anti-leak features, very popular with motorists.

CHRISTMAS IS FOR EVERYONE — CHRISTMAS CUSTOMS AROUND THE WORLD

By Herbert H. Wernecke

A wealth of information is contained in this book about around the world. For instance, did you know that in Boston, Mass., the birthday of Jesus was not a legal holiday until 1856; that New Zealanders are starting their summer vacation at Christmas. There is a chapter on Christmas recipes from around the world and one on legends and customs, and how they originated.

VILLAGE CHRISTMAS by D. J. Read

A delightful short story about the people of Fairacre Village, who in a rapidly changing world still retain that old world va'ues. This charming tale shows how differences of age, and way of life can seem to be irrelevant in the miracle of a Christmas birth.

SANTA GO HOME by Ogden Nash

The GARDENER'S CHRISTMAS BOOK by Helen Snow Wilson Goddard

Christmas is a time when we can give free reign to our creative ability and have fun doing so. Mrs. Goddard gives dozens of ideas, with full instructions for decorating the home and garden. In most cases she uses materials found out of doors, inexpensive containers, dried fruits, pine cones, etc.

THE JOY OF CHRISTMAS by Llewellyn Miller

A delightful collection of short stories, reprints, poems, many from magazines and books no longer in print. This is a Christmas book for all the different moods of Christmas, from the traditional to the ultra modern.

A CHILD'S CHRISTMAS IN WALES by Dylan Thomas

Dylan Thomas, a native of Wales, writes this humorous and magical account of Christmas Day in a small Welsh village. This new publication has been further enhanced by five wood engravings by Fritz Eichenberg, one of the world's greatest book illustrators.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAMS FOR CHURCH GROUPS by Marilyn A. Smith

This book is intended to furnish material for planning effective church programs. The material is of a wide variety, and suitable for various age groups. The program may be kept simple or complex.

THE CHRISTMAS CAROL MIRACLE by Lolos Pulcamp, Jr.

Derrick, Texas, was not the kind of town one would associate with Christmas. Instead of snow and evergreens, the season usually brought dust and biting winds. A miracle happened there, nonetheless. This is the heart warming tale of how this small Texas town discovered the true meaning of Christmas.

THE FARM JOURNAL CHRISTMAS BOOK — edited by Kathryn Larson

All about getting ready for Christmas with dozens of recipes, decorating ideas and instructions, patterns for needlework and crafts of all kinds. For every homemaker, bazaar chairman and hostess, this book will be an inspiring but practical aid as the holidays draw near.

Here is a new book about an old holiday with step-by-step instructions on how to make decorations, gifts, greeting cards, and how to wrap parcels with a flair. If you enjoy getting in the Christmas spirit by doing these things yourself, this book is invaluable.

CANDLE-MAKING by Susanne Strose

Candles are being used for decorative purposes more than ever before, especially as at Christmas time. This small book is full of basic instructions on how to make your own, how to prepare wick, select waxes, and how to make very type from dipped to molded candles.

Jets Could Cause Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chemical reactions to exhausts from a fleet of supersonic transports could cause 10,000 new cases of skin cancer yearly in the United States, a research scientist has told two members of Congress.

The two legislators charge the Nixon administration—poised for a crucial Senate vote on a $290 million SST appropriation —suppressed the finding.

The finding was reported to have been made to the transportation department Monday by Dr. James E. McDonald, a professor of atmospheric physics at the University of Arizona. He worked on an SST climate and weather modification board of the National Academy of Sciences.

In a joint statement given to The Associated Press, Senator William Proxmire (Dem., Wis.) and Representative Morris Udall (Dem. Ariz.) said:

"These findings by a reputable scientist assigned this study by the National Academy of Sciences are much too important to be ignored.

"We believe they are more than sufficient reason to withhold further funding of the SST until they are either disproved or found in error in some significant respect."

In a statement, he cautioned against use of data gathered at a time when scientists knew less about the relations between skin cancer and sunlight.

Proxmire and Udall, however, said McDonald's findings should be taken seriously.

SUDDENLY, IT'S SPRING — and heavy winter coats are cast-off clothing. All Quinte residents may not react as emphatically as this young Bellevillian when temperatures hit a record 53 degrees yesterday — but they're all sharing in the unexpected pre-Christmas weather bonus.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Nearly all sections of Ontario were clear early this morning but these conditions will not last long since a new storm should cross the district early Friday. The wet weather will be in the form of rain in the southern regions beginning at Windsor this afternoon and in eastern Lake Ontario near midnight tonight. Snow is forecast late today and tonight north of Georgian Bay with mixed rain and snow expected to extend from northern Lake Huron to northern Haliburton regions. The rain and snow will taper off early Friday but brisk winds will continue throughout the day. Temperatures which should rise to near 50 in the south today will begin dropping as the storm moves well past late Friday.

Mercury Climbs To Record High

By HARRY HULBALL
Staff Reporter

The weather's gone balmy and the sun shines on and on in the Quinte district.

While winter gear is suddenly cast-off clothing, the sunshine isn't ripening local business prospects.

The weather bonus being enjoyed by district dwellers is also putting heat on local merchandising now geared for winter business.

"It's spring at the wrong time of year," ruefully commented a furrier after temperatures peaked to 53 degrees yesterday — the warmest for that particular day ever recorded at CFB Trenton's weather office. (Closest high on Dec. 3 was 49 degrees — back in 1892.)

Today highs up to 50 degrees were expected declining slightly to 45 degrees Friday. Come Saturday, there may be snow flurries, says the CFB weatherman.

Choquette Flies To Negotiate

MONTREAL (CP) — A modest three-storey house where police say James Cross is being held by kidnappers was surrounded today by swarms of police and soldiers with fixed bayonets.

No move was made to enter the building in suburban Montreal North, about six miles due north of downtown Montreal, but surrounding buildings were evacuated.

Justice Minister Jerome Choquette was flying to Montreal from Quebec City, and a police escort stood by at the airport here to take him to the suspected kidnap hideout.

Also at Montreal International Airport, a Yukon aircraft was standing by, apparently in case the kidnappers decide to accept a government offer and release the abducted British trade commissioner in return for safe passage to Cuba.

Meanwhile, Cuban Consul Alfredo Rosines arrived by limousine at the island site of Expo 67, where the government offer proposed that the kidnappers make contact with Cuban authorities.

He told reporters he had "no idea" how long he would have to remain on the sealed-off island.

In Montreal North, two lawyers were allowed through the police-army cordon around the suspected kidnap hideout—Bernard Mergler, who has represented a number of members of the terrorist Front de Libération du Quebec, and Robert Demers, whose appointment as government in fruitless earlier negotiations with an FLQ representative.

In Quebec, a Quebec Provincial Police spokesman said the force knows full well Mr. Cross is being held in a residence on Des Recollets Street in Montreal North.

This was later confirmed by Premier Robert Bourassa, who told a reporter the QPP knows where Mr. Cross is being held.

In Ottawa, a smiling Prime Minister Trudeau indicated to reporters that the possibility of the safe return of Mr. Cross seemed near at hand.

The break in the case came just 48 days after the British trade commissioner was kidnapped at gunpoint Oct. 5 from his home on fashionable Redpath Crescent.

The source of the break was not known, but there were broadcast reports that the kidnappers had become tired of hiding and had informed police themselves of their willingness to negotiate.

A four-block area in Montreal North was sealed off by police and soldiers, and similar tight security was clamped on the Expo islands.

Warrants are out for four men in connection with the kidnapping of Mr. Cross and the subsequent kidnapping of Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister slain Oct. 17 after a week in captivity.

Charged with both kidnappings are Paul Rose, 27, a former teacher, and taxi driver Marc Carbonneau, 27.

Charged with conspiracy in the Laporte abduction are Jacques Rose, 23, brother of Paul, Francis Simard, 22, and Bernard Lortie, 19. Lortie was picked up in a police raid Nov. 6.

In Montreal North, police surrounded the suspected hideout refused passage to a well-dressed man in his late 30s who said he wanted to get through "just in case" his son was in the house.

The man was Gerard Lanctot, whose son Jacques, 23, is being sought in connection with an alleged plot to kidnap the Israeli trade commissioner in Montreal last March.

Mr. Lanctot, worried and nervous, offered his help to authorities to prevent his son from doing anything rash—if his son happened to be in the house.

He had not seen Jacques since his son was 17.

After the lawyers entered the house, Montreal's police chief, Marcel St. Aubin arrived on the scene. The QPP chief remained at police headquarters in brief Justice Minister Choquette.

The Star says negotiations of some kind have been under way through an unidentified channel since Wednesday night.

The terrorist Front de Libération du Quebec was apparently asking that the government's latest conduct offer for the Cross kidnappers, should also be extended to those involved in the kidnapping and murder of Pierre Laporte, abducted Oct. 5 and slain Oct. 17.

Nixon Pledges Not to Cut Troops

BRUSSELS (AP) — President Nixon pledged today that the United States will not reduce its forces in Europe unless the Russians reduce theirs.

Nixon made his pledge in a statement read by State Secretary William Rogers to the winter meeting of the foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"We have agreed," Nixon said, "that NATO's conventional forces must not only be maintained but in certain key areas, strengthened.

"Given a similar approach by our allies, the United States will maintain and improve its forces in Europe and will not reduce them unless there is reciprocal action from our adversaries."

U.S. officials said the pledge went beyond the middle of 1971, the previous time limit on such assurances, and was "open ended." It is likely to set off a protest among members of the U.S. Congress who want to cut U.S. defence spending by bringing home a considerable number of the U.S. troops in Europe.

Last year, U.S. officials gave American strength in NATO as 310,000 men. The current figure is 285,000. But American officials say they will not be tied down to specific manpower figures, only to a promise not to reduce fighting readiness.

Reviewing negotiations on a Berlin, Rogers said the Russians appeared to have given up their insistence on keeping West German government representation out of the city but that no substantive agreement has been made.

Rogers said the United States is not prepared to give up the joint responsibility of the Big Four—including the Russians—for the entire city, or to put the Russians in a position to control developments in West Berlin.

Defence Costs To Rise in U.S.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Americans face an increased defence bill next year despite President Nixon's policy of reducing U.S. military involvement abroad and hopes for negotiating an agreement with Moscow to curb the nuclear arms race.

A two-year trend toward lower defence spending, resulting mainly from the need to economize in a time of inflation, is likely to be sharply reversed.

Defence department officials are estimating that Congress might be asked for as much as an additional $1,400 million for the defence budget in the 1972 fiscal year beginning in July.

A seeming paradox is that the bill for overseas military and economic aid goes up as the president applies his Asian doctrine of "putting Asians out of" South Vietnam, Korea and other Southeast Asian countries.

The reasoning of the Nixon administration is that more defence spending now will be insurance against Russian nuclear gains and will permit U.S. allies and friends abroad to do more for their own self-defence without involving hundreds of thousands of American troops.

Taxes May Be Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — The country finds out hi dollars and cents tonight just how much Ottawa plans to take out of Canadian paycheques and profits in coming months.

Reting in advance of the federal budget—to be presented by Finance Minister E. J. Benson at about 8 p.m. EST—has favored announcement of measures to stimulate business activity and generate more jobs.

That could entail increased spending by the government, tax reductions, a combination of both or simply a shuffling of tax burdens and spending priorities.

Also imminent are changes in federal revenue demands, tax rates and tax exemptions to back up wholesale reorganization of social welfare programs scheduled for the new year.

In addition, some "temporary" tax measures are due to expire or run down. The government could decide to announce a revival or an end to the 1968 surcharge on basic income taxes, due to end Dec. 31, and a 1969 measure to discourage construction of commercial buildings in labor surpluspockets, which peters out in 1971.

Changes in tax rates and exemptions are tied to government plans to reorganize the whole income tax system in the wake of a year-long white paper debate.

Mr. Benson was picking five weeks ago that tax reorganization would be introduced "in my 1971 spring budget."

That was before he announced he would present if budget tonight. It also preceded publication of missing elements from the tax-reform package—the taxing and exemption plans in the social welfare programs made public Monday.

The budget could pave the way for such planned changes as increased guaranteed income supplements from the old-age security fund.

The government also plans taxing family allowance income and possible revisions of the deduction from taxable income allowed for children. The tax white paper had said such adjustments would accompany publication of the new social welfare programs.

Not Cheaper by the Dozen

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Federal proposals to alter the family allowance plan could cost a Windsor policeman $1,032 annually, Constable Jerome Giroux, 44, has 14 children and earns $10,034 a year. The proposals, outlined in a white paper Monday, would eliminate the family allowance for persons earning more than $10,000 annually.

Constable Giroux says the loss would be a major one for him and his family. "If that was taken away we would lose our house for sure," he said.

Last Night's Candidates' Meeting A Lively Affair

By LEONY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The "Allora situation" surfaced again last night as the traditional meet - the - candidates night was held at Belleville Public Library.

Sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, Home and School, and radio station CJBQ, the meeting indicated that the issue in the Dec. 7 election is the suspension of Hastings - Prince Edward separate school superintendent F. B. Allore, and his dispute with the board.

About 100 candidates and spectators crowded the library auditorium to hear four minute speeches by those seeking election. Written questions were accepted from the listeners and answered by the candidates at the close of the speeches.

In contrast to the separate school situation, where 11 are running for five seats, the public school trustees are conducting a low-key campaign. Five of the seven candidates running are incumbent trustees, and the emphasis is on the two - year record of the first Hastings county board of education. Five public school trustees are to be elected.

The meeting threatened to get out of hand when separate school trustee Robert Lucy objected to "not being permitted to speak," when he went over the time limit and was cut off.

The audience protested again when the chairman, J. C. Houston, refused to accept verbal questioning of the candidates from the floor.

Finally, retired secondary school teacher Kenneth Hill was called to the microphone and continued his questioning of former school superintendent L. A. Kells, an educator for 41 years but a newcomer to board elections.

James Clarke, incumbent public school board chairman outlined the accomplishments of the first county board and emphasized that it had handled problems in a positive manner. Money and the school tax is the board's central problem and it has followed a policy of putting the money available into students, teachers, programs and equipment rather than the administrative staff. In the coming two years the extension of special education will be a major concern as the board seeks funds to provide for slow learners and the handicapped.

Gerard Brennan, incumbent trustee and former elementary school principal, told the audience that they sought advice from a mechanic when their car needed attention and so they wanted that type of advice from an educator when it came to picking a trustee. "A principal should know something about good quality education," he said.

Mrs. Miriam Graham, another incumbent trustee, outlined the board's fixed costs (85 per cent) and told the audience this left only 15 per cent for special programs and extension of services. She said she favored the wider use of schools by the public and had seen the use of the schools extended during her term of office. She was recalled to the microphone for a further question-ing on the fixed expenses and later gave lists of the items over which the board has no control.

One of the qualifications offered by L. A. Kells, who retired four months ago as superintendent with the Hastings county board, was his direct involvement with education, as a superintendent and occasional director of education. He said that he has been a consultant in all the matters mentioned by the candidates and any trustee, citing his experience, could call on "And Kells was also there."

Ron Lee, an appointed member of the public vocational committee of the Hastings board said "We can't do without education, but we can't go too much."

He added that there is no margin in the board budget for waste or ostentation and told the listeners that a $400,000 administration building was slated for construction during the life of the new board. He advocated serious cuts by the department of education on the amount it gives to community colleges and universities. Later, he outlined his efforts to secure safety for the technical departments of high schools after his appointment to the AVC.

Cost control is a vital consideration in a school board's operation," Nelson McGibbon said. He's an incumbent trustee, appointed to fill the unexpired term of a trustee who resigned. He said he has the business experience and the cost expenditures and criticized the amount of money directed to community colleges and universities.

Gerard Brennan led off for the separate school candidates and alluded to the "Allore situation." He said he was "dismayed" that 38 teachers resigned from the separate schools last year because they had "lost confidence and trust in the board through lack of communication."

"It is sad when people cannot or will not communicate with the staff," he remarked and promised a policy of opportunity for quality education.

E. J. Buckley, incumbent chairman of the separate school board remarked that this board of trustees knows what punishment means and said they were tough-minded citizens with a love of their fellow man and a desire to serve him. He added that every employee must be answerable to the board because "you can't run an effective system any, other way".

Joseph Chapelle could not attend the meeting, and his speech was read by Michael Collins. His message was a deep concern for children and said that if elected he would do his best to make responsible decisions.

Paul Fleming said he would use his experience as a chartered accountant and auditor in areas where business administration is involved "and that means everywhere".

He said he was not sponsored by any group primarily devoted to the Allore cause. He added that 11 of 14 trustees didn't vote lightly or without sufficient cause to suspend the superintendent.

Mrs. John Granville read her husband's speech in his absence. As a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate, he had to attend a parent-teacher conference in Picton and could not be present at the meeting. He mentioned his 15 years of experience as an administrator with the federal government and said that as an administrator he was interested in promoting harmony within the board and in its relations with personnel and the community. In the interests of furthering public education, he said, all connected with the separate schools must maintain the respect of the community at large, not only in this city, but throughout the province.

Zdenek Kvarda told his listeners that he would not persuade them to vote for him because of anyone else's inabilities or faults. But the present board was trying to solve today's problems yesterday, and he would bring planning for the future to the board. Uncontrolled spending money is not necessarily in the student's interests, he said.

Robert Lucy began his remarks by noting that "since our board is famous all over the province," he felt that in an ordinary individual seeking public office".

He said he wanted to preserve justice and fair play on the board and as one who stood alone in the "Allore situation" he felt it incumbent upon him to return for election.

He said his record will show that he came to the board nine years ago at the request of his parish priest and he had resided over and served on more committees than other trustees.

Mr. Lucy began to remark on salary increases granted "at this time before election" amounting to 20 per cent for one member of the staff, nine per cent for another and nine per cent to general office staff and personnel. However, his time had run out and he was not allowed to elaborate on his statements.

Magr. James Sullivan said he was part of "the small minority that did not endorse the action of this board". He said that his only promise was that he would accept the decision of the pending public inquiry into the suspension of the superintendent "and go on from there".

Paul Wall, an incumbent trustee, paid tribute to the three members of the "second line staff"; business administrator Edgar Pequet, supervisor of curriculum C. G. Merriman and supervisor of plant J. J. Sheridan. He said the communication internally and externally is better than ever before.

"We work together well and work together with administration when we deal with the facts," he said. "We are operating well educationally and financially."

Mrs. Jean Wilson, an incumbent trustee, said she was a

Pensioners' Position Clarified by Potter

Pensioners receiving cheques for $50 to $100 from the province of Ontario through the department of municipal affairs should be clear that these cheques do not consist of a lien against their property, Quinte MPP Dr. Richard Potter pointed out this morning.

Dr. Potter clarified the position after receiving a number of telephone calls from Quinte residents wondering if they should cash the cheques.

"This is new legislation of supplementary tax relief for pensioners which replaces the old program of property tax relief," he said.

Under the old program a pensioner could request a tax payment deferral and when granted, this amount became a lien on the pensioner's estate. Under the replacing legislation there is no lien.

The supplementary grants for tax relief are in the amounts of either $50 or $100. They are automatically paid to any pensioner who has qualified for the Federal government's guaranteed income supplement for needy pensioners. The list of such pensioners is forwarded to the province by Ottawa and payment by the province is automatic.

Dr. Potter said the grant is $100 for a couple if the federal government has designated that both are eligible for the federal supplement. If only one is eligible under new legislation this individual may apply for an additional $50.

Single persons get $50 and this would apply to eligible pensioners who are living in a room, apartment or own dwelling. Single pensioners who own property and who are eligible for the federal assistance may also apply for an additional sum if their property tax exceeds $50.

Board May Have Had Problems But No Really Major Upheavals

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Unlike many of its counterparts across the province, Hastings county board of education has escaped relatively unscathed from its first two years of operation.

The board had its problems, notably over closure of Tweed High School, but avoided the major upheavals, like strikes and administrative clashes, that have beset other boards.

Its major difficulty, which promises to get worse instead of better, is a low budget and a high demand for extension of programs and services.

Frustration is the prevailing mood these days behind board office walls. The realities of the tight money situation will hit trustees when they have time to recover from the election. It may be academic for the trusts to sink in, but the teaching staff will find itself frustrated when it seeks new salary contracts and new program implementation after the new year.

The board's financial position is critical — not because of high expenditures, but because of low revenues. Rural boards have been accused of blaming for years that the government is limiting its grants to them, but permitting fairly high grants to the metropolitan boards that need them less.

Business administrators agree that educational expenditures must be leveled off, but Ontario is doing its level-ing at the wrong end. The leveling process, they say, should start with the metro boards, who are already out in front in provision of programs.

"Let's face it," says one administrator, "Equality of educational opportunity will never become a reality until all counties have equal sized populations, and consequently, equal tax bases."

For example, the government gives grants on replacement of existing equipment, but none for buying of equipment new to the system. This hampers the initiative of the more boards. In Toronto, government assistance is available to replace equipment in established audio-visual, vocational, sight saving, hard of hearing, speech correction and psychological services departments. But in Hastings, where these departments must be set up, or improved before equality can be achieved, no government money is available for buying essential, new equipment.

The county board finds itself in the position of having top personnel for creation of an audio-visual and a psychological services departments, but no tools for them to work with.

And frustrations like this will continue to be the lot of most of Ontario's non-metro boards unless the government works out a more equitable method of distributing its grant money.

Indications are that the government will hold boards to a 10 per cent increase in spending in 1971. Hastings county board, with $17.8 million budget in 1970, can look forward to having about $19,700,000 next year.

Cost of routine supplies has been rising at the rate of about 5 per cent a year. The teaching staff contract commits the board to paying the 8 per cent increase already given for four months this year, for the whole of 1970. This does not include the salary increases due teachers through their annual experience increment, or for up grading their qualifications.

Administrators see cuts in programs coming — in programs trustees fought hard to institute in the past. These may include French, kinder-gartens, driver education, outdoor recreation and others began at the direct request of ratepayers.

Consultants, the super-teachers who advise and assist new teachers and who take the lead in implementing new concepts and methods in the schools, may have to be pulled back into the classrooms as regular teachers next year.

Administration sees a cut-back in maintenance next year. It may go on an "emergency only" basis.

The state of school buildings is acute. It is no secret that some boards scrimped in the past on necessary preventive maintenance, especially as in the last years before amalgamation when they knew the inevitable day of reckoning would come under the tenure of a different board.

Examples are legion, but Belleville schools will do as an illustration. The old public school board had a record of returning a surplus to the city on its annual operations. But the window frames of many schools are rotting and must be replaced because a preventive painting program was neglected in the past.

The qualifications for trusteeship have changed. No longer is it the trustee the handyman who ran down to the school on demand to tinker with the coal burner or install new lockers. The custodial and maintenance staff does that.

It is no longer adequate to keep a running account of finances on the backs of discarded milk cheques. Auditors and trust to kick the auditor can sort it all out at the end of the year. A $17.8 million budget doesn't lend itself to that kind of handling, even if the department of education would permit it.

A school board is big business, and its affairs have to be conducted in a business-like manner.

Even the place of the academic on a board has been questioned — particularly by groups such as the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

At trustees' workshops conducted before amalgamation to give trustees some idea of what their increased responsibilities would be, the impression was left that the teacher or educational administrator was too close to the words to see the trees.

The person who has been part of the executive arm of government — preparing recommendations and carrying them out — is ill-equipped to become a policy - maker, critics imply.

On the other hand, a case can be made for the place of the educator on a board of trustees. Those who support the educator as a trustee argue that he knows more about the subject, including "the inside story" than anyone else.

As a letter-to-the-editor writer observed yesterday: "Pretty soon the ordinary man or woman will have no say in anything that affects him."

Or perhaps that's what citizens are all about.

Three Cheers for Elmer

Randy Bell and Colin MacKay, two students of Bayview Public School, assist Belleville City Police safety officer, Cpl. Robert Hall, in raising the banner of Elmer the Safety Elephant. The students in the background turned out to see the two students receive on their behalf a safe year bar award, the 11th in a row for Bayview, from school board officials. They then joined in three cheers for Elmer.

Christmas Hazards Outlined

Christmas is more than decking the halls with boughs of holly and officials of the Belleville Fire Department are more aware of that than anyone.

Christmas is a significant time for fire department members, from their own personal Christmas expression to the collecting of Christmas toys for deserving children, to the application of safety in celebration over the Yuletide season.

"Fire safety precautions should head the list of every sensible family's preparations for Christmas," said Fire Chief Leo Culhane.

Chief Culhane gave his annual Christmas safety warning to Belleville citizens in the hope that their celebration might remain celebratory rather than become a situation of fire horror.

He urged the public to exercise special care in the setting up and decoration of Christmas trees and outlined the details of Christmas tree selection.

"If place call for a natural tree, it should be bought fresh and green, and be kept outdoors or in an unheated garage before being brought into the home for decorating," Chief Culhane said.

"Then, one or two inches should be cut diagonally from the butt, and the tree soaked or set up with the butt in water, which should be maintained above the lever of the cut."

He suggested that strings of electric lights be checked for worn insulation, broken plugs or loose bulb sockets, the event of fire. Switch off tree lights at bedtime or when leaving the house."

Chief Culhane explained that tests have proved that the safest tree is a tree with its butt set in water. He added that if a tree has dried out before being set up, it can not regain its safe moisture level.

"A dry tree can be ignited by a single match," he said.

Even artificial trees can be serious fire hazards. Metallic trees are conductors of electricity and should not be decorated with strings of lights, but illuminated with flood-lights.

Some plastic trees, made from styrene materials, are flammable, unlike those made from polyvinylchloride.

"All trees should be removed from the home as soon as possible after Christmas celebrations."

Election Apathy

The Dec. 7 election day for municipalities and school boards is drawing closer and as so often is the case there is no overt interest, let alone enthusiasm, for the processes of democracy where these local elections are concerned.

We have come a long way from street corner politics, underneath the lamplight as it were, with candidates and public all deeply involved with the issues of the time. But under present circumstances there is little rapport, let alone contact between public and candidates. A candidates'-night here and there, to be sure (but what percentage of voters attend?), get-together in private homes, but by and large communications leave a lot to be desired. For the most part, about the 'only' knowledge of the candidates the individual voter may have is through leaflets distributed from door-to-door.

Television could change all this, but television is not established on a sufficiently wide localized basis as yet, and so we are left with this sort of never-never atmosphere where candidates and public muddle through as best they can.

That such a half-baked use of the democratic process is tolerated is part of the political and sociological phenomena of our day. It is far from satisfactory and yet it is still democracy — of a sort.

As for the issues, it would be interesting to hear the individual voter's opinions on this score. Just what are the issues? Education costs, municipal services, the growing trend toward regional government — these are some, although we do not hear much about them from the candidates.

Given these circumstances, it is left to individual voters to acquaint themselves as closely as possible with candidates' records and attitudes. Those who do, who attend candidates night or otherwise make themselves aware of what is going on, demonstrate due responsibility and respect for our democratic institutions and freedoms.

One thing should be in favor of a good turnout on voting day next Monday — the forecast is for continuing mild weather.

More on Youth

On opposite sides of both the Atlantic and that old Rhine river — the generation gap are the recently dismissed U.S. secretary of the Interior, Walter Hickel, and the heir to the British Throne, Prince Charles.

But a look at the contemporary philosophy of these two gentlemen indicate they are agreed that adults must listen to the voice of the young. This subject is becoming a little over-exposed and society at large, including the middle-aged and senior citizens need listening to as well, but hear the message of Mr. Hickel and Prince Charles anyway.

The Richard Nixon administration official wrote a letter to the president following the U.S. incurion into Cambodia last spring, urging Mr. Nixon to pay more attention to the views of youth. Washington observers believe the letter, and its rapid leak to the press, was a contributory factor in Hickel's downfall. Nixon's reasoning at the time was that by attacking communist sanctuaries in that country the U.S. could hasten the end of the conflict in Vietnam, as well as withdrawal of U.S. troops; American youth at home were in the van of protests against the Indochina war, and the attitude of Hickel and others was that the president was riding roughshod over such protests. But that is now history; from a military standpoint the Cambodian operation was a success and the critics to some extent were silenced. Hickel's position from then on became increasingly untenable, resulting ultimately in his dismissal.

As for Prince Charles, here we have him saying the reason for today's clamor is that the "ever-violent fringe" (young youth) "is simply more numerous than ever before," with more than 50 per cent of populations of the small independent countries being under 21." He went on to say (he was speaking in London) that basically parents "should be responsible for regulating the life of children, the complexities of life in a large modern society," and he suggested they do it by "reasoning, logic or persuasion, but do not just let children find out about life by themselves."

So there it is, with Prince Charles joining the host of others who keep saying parents must . . . well, be parents. And that is the crux of the matter. Given today's multi-faceted society with its "anything goes" philosophy, being a parent is more difficult than ever. However, a right attitude, along with mutual respect and a sense of humor can go a long way toward establishing a good relationship between the generations.

Defence Minister Aghast

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — As it is were not having enough trouble with revolutionaries in Quebec, high unemployment and inflation, the government is being asked to consider union rights for its armed forces.

The Public Service Alliance, union for 130,000 federal civil servants, has given notice it wants to be bargaining agent for the 80,000 members of the military forces.

To demonstrate it is not fooling the alliance has sent a letter to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau seeking collective bargaining rights for the troops.

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald who has been busy shuffling infantry in and out of Quebec to cope with the subversive Front de Libération du Québec, advises that he would not welcome any attempts to unionize his regiments.

Macdonald said with heavy sarcasm that it would have been "just dandy" if at the height of the FLQ crisis in Quebec, the soldiers had been insisting on an eight-hour day for their protective and security duties.

Perhaps contemplating the nightmarish vision of a military sit-down strike, Macdonald said: "I would see grave difficulties in achieving bargaining rights for the armed forces because of the unusual nature of their work."

When the government granted collective bargaining rights to civil servants in 1968, the armed forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were excluded. The defence minister could see no good reason for changing that decision.

The Public Service Alliance has pointed out that there are unions which speak for the armed forces in Norway, Germany and Sweden. It suggests the armed forces in Canada would union benefits and to take part in the "participatory democracy" which Prime Minister Trudeau proposes for all Canadians.

The civil service union says the United States army is advancing down the path of enlightenment through introducing democratic participation in recruit training.

The union notes for example that U.S. recruits now have some choices of hair style as opposed to the "skinhead" treatment still favored by Canadian tradition.

The argument is advanced by civil service officials that a military career would be made much more attractive with union benefits and recruiting would pick up. Some of the proposals advanced for armed forces regulations would include:

— Full collective bargaining for pay.

— Extra allowances for manoeuvres.

— Premium pay for night duty.

— Protection against propaganda.

— Joint consultation re air grievances.

As for members at the armed forces, nothing official has been heard about their views on union benefits. Perhaps the troops have no way of expressing themselves at present, risking the displeasure of their commanding officers.

Certainly Defence Minister Macdonald wants no part of union influence over his men and attempts to sign up soldiers for the civil service union would incur his wrath.

"I was just trying to show that Santa is a myth — how was I to know it was a real beard?"

Computers Have Not Killed Jobs

Odds and Ends from Parliament Hill

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs who have been expecting a recommendation for an increase in their salaries—now $18,000 a year — are in for keen disappointment.

A special commission will submit its report soon to Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, government House leader. It is believed to recommend an increase, but of not nearly the size many MPs have been seeking. They get $18,000 now and some would like to get $25,000 or so.

Prime Minister Trudeau has said he will not oppose a modest pay increase for MPs who, he says, are very important people.

Ed Broadbent, NDP MP for Oshawa-Whitby and a candidate for his party's leadership, has been asking almost as many questions about the status of women as the royal commission on the status of women.

Recent information he has gleaned from the government:

There are 3,621 women in the Public Service Commission and 4,527 men. Of the women, only two are classed as senior officers. Of the men, 479 are senior officers.

The government is not considering the inclusion of the "value of the housewife and household domestic services" in computation of gross national product. There is not even an estimate by the government, that is—of this value.

Roland Godin, Creditiste MP for Portneuf, disclosed in the Commons that he was fined $250 and his driver's licence suspended for three months for speeding in Ottawa.

He complained that Gilles Marceau, Liberal MP for Lapointe, had also been caught for speeding but had been fined only $50.

Mr. Marceau said the circumstances were entirely different.

Russ McKinley, Conservative MP for Huron, in Ontario, has been trying to block the sale of the armed forces radar school at Clinton in his riding to Kingston.

He says required new buildings at Kingston will cost $1.3 million. Defence Minister Donald Macdonald says the net savings will be $2.9 million.

As the result of the use of computers, says Energy Minister J. J. Greene, 165 more persons have been hired in his department and none fired.

He explains this seeming paradox by saying the computers are being used to carry out research studies which otherwise could not have been done.

Hired Hand Gets $1,000 A Month

Owen Sound Sun-Times

The farm "hired man" situation has changed drastically since two or three decades ago. There was a time when the hired hand worked from dawn to dusk for his keep and a small monthly wage. Recently a SC fruit growers' convention was told by a government horticulturist of a Washington state dairy farmer who is happy to pay his "hired hand" about $1,000 a month. The Washington farmer had a herd of 350 prize cattle. He required two men. None stayed long. Some were lazy, others did wrong things. Others couldn't take the long hours. So he cut his herd to a size he and one man could handle . . . and took on the $1,000 a month man. Now the operation is making more than it ever did.

The fact that the farm is now earning money with the highly paid "hand" proves the wisdom of the farmer's action. Cheap help, at least in these days, is cheap help.

Hospitals in Windsor and throughout Ontario can take a lesson from Thunder Bay, where an outstanding example of co-operation between hospitals has reduced costs and increased efficiency.

The Thunder Bay example, described recently at the annual convention of the Ontario Hospital Association, saw one hospital eliminate its maternity services and another agree to take over the service. As a result, occupancy of the maternity section of the one hospital increased from 27 per cent to nearly 90 per cent, while the other hospital, free of maternity cases, was able to establish an alcoholic and addiction ward, which the city had lacked.

The Thunder Bay community has thus benefited from increased occupancy of costly hospital facilities, and from a completely new service. Such common sense co-operation is doubly valuable in times like the present when both the cost of hospital care and the demand for hospital services are increasing sharply.

The Thunder Bay hospitals have also agreed to close their competing nursing schools, in favor of a regional nursing school under a central roof. By next year, three Thunder Bay institutions will be enrolled of the single school.

The lesson is clear. If the Ontario Hospital Services Commission insists on any of the regulations which used to encourage duplication of services in the interest of providing a complete service, these must be dropped. And hospitals in any community or area must put forth every effort at co-operation to ensure that duplication through individualistic pride or deliberate empire - building, does not impair service to the public.

Township Students Denied Chance to Participate In Extra-Curricular Activity

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Ameliasburg students and taxpayers are being exploited! These students are not important enough for the Hastings board of education to consider paying for late buses so they can participate in extra-curricular activities. (The cost is estimated at $2,400 annually.)

However when it came to justification of the need of the new Bayside school, the inclusion of Ameliasburg students in the projected enrolment figures for Hastings schools was crucial, and helped balance the scales in favor of consent from the Department of Education. Similar to the case of Tyendinaga, Ameliasburg were denied by department officials: we were assured that our students had "equal educational opportunities in the Hastings system"; and, we were further assured of this "quality" education as long as Prince Edward and Hastings boards were satisfied with the contract for purchasing such education from Hastings. We have to remind members of Hastings board to speak for us.

Hastings continues to receive raised salaries of many administrators in the Hastings system. Part of the cost of this increase is billed to Prince Edward County ratepayers in the increased cost per student for purchasing education. Cost of equipping the gyms and salaries of physical instructors is also billed to us in this way. Why then should our students be so discouraged to use such facilities as provided other students attending local high schools in Belleville? The cost of extra buses to allow the students to participate is less than one-tenth of the annual income of the director of education. It is obvious that the largest portion of the educational tax dollar goes directly to administration and not to the students.

The department of education turned down our request for permanent facilities in education for students in our own county. Our taxes are up again, and our public schools are overflowing with students; portables (the only alternative of the PE board when permanent facilities were denied) have gobbled up playground areas at our schools. That our high school students are not encouraged to participate in extra-curricular activities at Hastings high schools is the last straw in educational discrimination! The cost of educating a high school student is reported to be more in the Hastings system than at Prince Edward Collegiate. Lack of space denies us the privilege of taking advantage of this lower cost of education at Picton.

Perhaps the Committee for Quality Education and Fair Taxation will again raise its voice to the Department of Education protesting this time the inequality of our present school setup. Ameliasburg students will be the only only ones in Belleville High Schools who will not be able to participate in extra curricular activities.

Is "educational opportunity" for Ameliasburg students is as much political brainwashing as the inequality of taxation? If this inequal education is real the rest is a mirage for the gullible.

Used Stamps Help Needy

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Would you like to help a starving child? You don't need a lot of time or money for this. All you need do is collect used postage stamps — any kind from any country. Even only a few would help because I'll just add up quickly if everyone collects them. In seven months I have received about 45 pounds of these seemingly worthless articles.

What gold is a pile of cancelled postage stamps? In sufficient quantities, they can be turned to profit by the Scarboro Fathers, an inter-denominational foreign mission society who are busily engaged in feeding and clothes for the needy in various parts of the world.

Bring or send your cancelled postage stamps any time of the year (please leave about one inch of paper around them) to Mrs. R. M. Chmay, 230 Jarvis Street, Fort Erie, Ontario.

Just a little time and effort could mean a lot to people less fortunate than ourselves. Please help.

MRS. R. M. CHMAY

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 3, 1950

The extraordinarily bright light believed to have been a large meteor, which swept across the sky at Cobourg last evening was seen plainly in the Belleville area according to local residents who happened to observe the flash.

Major Will Summers, officer commanding the Kingston Corps of the Salvation Army will be a visitor to Belleville and will have charge of three services in the Citadel here, on Sunday.

30 YEARS AGO

December 3, 1940

John R. Dudgeon, Thomasburg cheesemaker, has received word to himself and to Hastings County with one of the best showings recorded by entrants in the British Empire Show and Cheese Exhibition sponsored by the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association at their Dh annual convention in session in the city hall here. Pitted against the best cheesemakers in the dominion, Mr. Dudgeon not only finished in the coveted British Empire Special Awards but won many other specials.

40 YEARS AGO

50 YEARS AGO

December 3, 1920

The WCTU rummage sale receipts were $305.66; the expenses amount to $21.80, leaving a balance of $284.00.

Lisle Weese of Ameliasburg township was the greatest number of points at the Ameliasburg School Fair last October and has received a certificate from the Department at Toronto.

The annual turkey fair held at Napanee on December 1st and 2nd was the largest ever held in that town. About 600 tons of turkeys and geese were purchased by buyers.

Chief Issues Yule Warnings

Belleville City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie has issued suggestions and warnings in a statement to The Intelligencer concerning Christmas driving, shopping and criminal activity.

Once more this year, Christmas lights are beginning to disappear from various homes throughout the city.

Chief Crosbie said that young people should be aware that stealing lights is theft and the consequences can be serious.

Chief Crosbie also reiterated last week's warning to Christmas shoppers which suggests that parcels be locked in trunks so as to not serve as a temptation to passing potential thieves.

He said that there will be increased police patrols on the weekends until and during Christmas and New Years to maintain traffic safety.

He said the police department was operating at full strength and would be through the next period.

He advised party-goers to arrange for another driver following party festivities to help ensure driver safety.

Part of his prompting in this respect was due to an increase be cited in impaired drivers over the past year.

"Impaired charges have climbed quite steadily over the past year."

Mercury Climbs

Stocks of heavy clothing, boots and overshoes were moving slower than in previous years.

Any further delay in the traditional cold — weather timetable could cause a more serious problem, one merchant feared.

By custom, January sees the start of store sales. Any extended decline in marketing at this time, could see merchants entering a low-markup period without extensive December sales to offset lower profits.

However, there are contrasts in the opposite place.

The current mild spell was preceded by much rain — a total 3.77 inches fell in Belleville. However, says the CFB forecaster, this was not a spectacular increase.

Search Halted

Search terminated yesterday for an American private plane missing since Nov. 29 over Lake Erie with a family of seven aboard.

The plane was en route from Dunkirk, N.Y. to Pontiac, Mich. when radio contact was lost.

The Search and Rescue Coordination Centre here reported this morning that Canadian aircraft had combed the search area without finding signs of survivors. The U.S. airforce is expected to complete its search of American waters today.

WEIGHTY BIRTH

The heaviest baby of modern times was born to a woman in southern Turkey and weighed 34 pounds at birth.

Pilot Safe

Gary Reid, of Scarborough was sighted shortly before noon by a Debska aircraft from CH Squadron here. About 1:30 if two man para-rescue team was dropped to the crash site and a provincial police ground party was moving to the area.

Mr. Reid was taken to Bracebridge Hospital by the OPP where he is undergoing treatment for minor injuries.

The plane he was flying departed Bigwin Inn, Lake of Bays, Tuesday evening for a 100-mile flight to Buttonville airport near Markham.

This Is the Week For Safe Driving

The Canada Safety Council and the Ontario Dept. of Transport urge all motorists to observe the rules of the road and observe defensive driving procedures.

Safe Driving Week began Dec. 1 and will continue until Dec. 7.

This week is specially set aside for observance of safe driving but traffic agencies and enforcers urge that every day be safe driving day.

For $5, defensive driving courses are being offered in conjunction with the OPP and the Ontario Safety League.

JOHN V. BRISCOE, R.N.

Nursing Director Named for TMH

The Board of Directors of Trenton Memorial Hospital has confirmed the appointment of John V. Briscoe, R.N. as Director of Nursing Services at the hospital.

Announcing the appointment, John A. Lupton, Administrator, stated that Mr. Briscoe graduated from the Sefton General Hospital, Liverpool, England, where he was awarded the Gold Medal for Nursing, in addition to first prizes in surgical, medical and operating room nursing. From 1959-61 Mr. Briscoe was Senior Nursing Officer-In-Charge (Base Hospitals) in Iran with the Seven Year Plan for the Middle East in association with the United Nations Organization. From 1961-66 he was Head Nurse, then Supervisor, then Administrative Supervisor at Hamilton Civic Hospitals: Hamilton, Ontario, during which time he completed the Nursing Unit Administration course offered by the Canadian Hospital Association. During the same period Mr. Briscoe was active in the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario holding the positions of vice-president and president of his local chapter, as well as serving on numerous committees at chapterial, district and provincial levels.

In 1966 Mr. Briscoe accepted an appointment with Abbott Laboratories Limited, Montreal. From 1966 to the present time he has been with the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, first as Manager of Central Supply, then as Administrative Assistant, and then as Manager of Operating Services, his present post.

In releasing the news of this important appointment at Trenton Memorial Hospital, John A. Lupton, Administrator, said that Mr. Briscoe will take up his duties in Trenton on February 1, 1971.

From the same date the board has agreed that Mrs. M. Y. Lowy, RN will become acting Associate Director of Nursing Services.

Educator Honored

Some 350 people were in attendance at Centennial Secondary School Nov. 27 to pay tribute to Lawrence A. Kells, a prominent figure in Belleville education for 40 years.

The tribute, opened with a banquet at the school cafeteria, reached its highlight with a program presenting key points in Mr. Kells' career.

It traced Mr. Kells' career from his birthplace in Listowel, Ont., through his graduations from teachers' college at North Bay and University of Western Ontario.

In 1929 Mr. Kells came to Belleville as principal of King George public school. Later he progressed to supervising principal with the city school board, business administrator, inspector and superintendent. He also instructed in department of education summer schools for teachers.

With the formation of the Hastings County board of education 1949, Mr. Kells became superintendent of administrative services.

In 1958 he received the Sir Mackenzie Bowell award for service to local education. In community affairs he was associated with the library board, the city's Centennial Year committee and was president and lieutenant governor of the Kiwanis Club.

Sales Tax on Increase

More provinces are levying sales taxes now than 10 years ago, and the rate of tax also is increasing, CCH Canadian Ltd., authority on tax and business law, notes that in 1960 the tax was used in six provinces. By 1965, the number had risen to eight and now only one province — Alberta — remains sales tax-free. In 1960, the top rate of tax was five per cent in British Columbia and four provinces were at three percent or less. By 1965, only two provinces were at three percent and Quebec had jumped to six. Now, no province levies a rate under five per cent, three have seven per cent and New Brunswick and Quebec collect eight per cent. (CP Newsmap)

FRIENDSHIP CIRCLE

A devotional period was led by the president assisted by Mrs. Orr, Mrs. Don Thrcotle.

During business a treasurer's report was read and accepted.

Mrs. Wilfred expressed thanks to the hostess and the meeting closed.

Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Roy Covert, Dec. 16.

READ CWL

Mrs. J. Jordan president of the Read CWL commented on a few of the resolutions sent in by the CWL especially on marihuana and abortion at the November meeting held at St. Mary's school hall with 30 members and five guests in attendance. She suggested that the members discuss these issues more fully at a later date. All members signed a paper protesting the legalization of marihuana.

Mrs. Pat Roache, president of the altar society read an address and presented a Bible to Mrs. Ted Buckley who was moving to Belleville shortly. Correspondence read during the meeting included a number of notes from graduates thanking the CWL for gifts of New Testament copies, and a thank you letter from Father J. Farrell who expressed appreciation to the league for sending gifts for the missions.

The business part of the meeting was adjourned by Mrs. J. Shannon who advised members who were not receiving their league magazines to write to Mrs. B. O'Connor first vice president of the Diocesan CWL.

The guest speaker Mrs. B. O'Connor spoke on how social action touches on many of the committees. She explained the hope fund and many points on organization for development and peace. She answered many questions from various members of the audience. She was introduced by Mrs. Clare Jordan and thanked by Mrs. Leo Lally.

Mrs. J. Hanley reported that she and her co-convener were preparing a program for the December meeting which will be in the form of a party. The sick and the shut-ins will be remembered with gifts.

Members were reminded of the turkey bingo which will be held in Read Hall on December 11. Lunch was served by the fourth and fifth concessions.

Snowmobilers' Fashion Suits

TORONTO (CP) — The original snowmobile suit that made women look like astronauts was so unfashionable that some husbands complained their wives wouldn't get involved in the sport if they had to wear the rig.

The fashion industry took note and this year is offering fashion suits as well as regular utilitarian wear.

They are not really designed for cross-country safaris in below - zero weather but they appeal to women who either want a second fashion suit or who don't do enough snowmobiling to worry about getting cold.

One company is offering a suit this year with a drop seat. It should appeal to any girl who has struggled in the bush in deep snow to get out of her suit or waited in the lineup outside toilets while others struggled to get out of their suits.

Successful Living

Maturity Definite Asset in Second Career

By DORIS CLARK

Maturity can be a definite asset in a second career.

When Margaret, age 36, completed her high school education and entered training as a registered nurse, she anticipated many obstacles. Actually these were few.

She found herself a sort of honorary den mother, listening to the woes of younger classmates who felt they couldn't confide in their mothers or their contemporaries, and giving pep talks when the going became rough.

Patients, family and medical personnel had greater respect and confidence in her because of her added years of experience.

When a certain patient was doing poorly for no real reason, Margaret learned by talking to him that he felt his condition was hopeless and that he had only a short time to live.

Knowing this was not true, Margaret spoke to the doctor about it. He in turn asked her to speak to the patient's wife. By instigating a three-cornered conspiracy against the patient's gloomy outlook, Margaret was instrumental in bringing about the man's full recovery. . .

Dear Doris: Have you ever heard of anyone being able to use artificial eyebrows? When I was a young girl I pulled out all my eyebrows over and over again for years so that now they do not grow in. I have managed to get along up until now by pencilling in my eyebrows, but I am afraid I am going to have to start wearing glasses all the time. I will not be able to use a pencil on my eyebrows.

If it were possible to obtain some sort of artificial eyebrows, even that I could paste on during the day, I would be grateful. — Living In Hope.

Dear Hope: Can't find a single eyebrow for you, anywhere? Wig glasses on, try raising eyebrows — or the place where they ought to be — above the glasses, to do the artwork.

Would you consider contact lenses? They get into place in the morning before you apply make-up — and they make you look younger.

Use a regular eyebrow pencil to make the upper outline. Begin directly above the inner corner of the eye, sloping the arch so that it is at its highest point just above the centre of the eyeball. I'll believe this line with a stiff-charcoal pencil purchased from an art supply store.

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

Unusual hall decorations characterized the Tabernacle United Church Christmas bazaar and tea which was held on Wednesday afternoon at the church hall. A profusion of white paper cutouts interspersed with silver stars and Christmas angels hung from the ceiling making the air seem thick with snowflakes. A gigantic cotton wool snowman complete with pipe and top hat faced the large crowd from the stage which was also adorned with a small silver Christmas tree. More snowflakes were pinned to the chocolate brown stage curtains.

On the toyland table convened by Mrs. M. Graham a number of stuffed toy turtles and frogs eyecatching. A large variety of baked goods disappeared quickly from the home baking table convened by Mrs. G. Ashley. The centrepiece on this table consisted of gold - painted pine cones, green holly leaves and a decorator candle in a green teardrop holder resting on an oval base. The fancy work table was convened by Mrs. R. Lockyer, the aprons by Mrs. G. Brickman and the candy by Mrs. R. Nelson. The items in the children's wear table convened by Mrs. A. Hunter included crocheted dresses, mitts and blankets.

Among the wares on the Christmas gifts table convened by Miss E. Horton were a number of small cotton wool snowmen, decorator candles, centre pieces, get-well cards and a few jars of home-made hand lotion attractively packed. The Hi C table convened by Tom Stenson held among other things an assortment of used jewellery, very moderately priced. On the men's table convened by Mr. C. Walker there were a number of unusual gift articles including hand - made lamps, salad bowl sets and a covered wagon realistically carved out of wood.

There were also tables representing the efforts of the Explorers' group convened by Mrs. C. Cunningham and of the Club Mothers' Auxiliary convened by Mrs. E. Lott.

The tea room convener was Mrs. B. Stenson. At the main tea table the centrepiece was composed of holly leaves painted gold and small gold Christmas trees with two red candles in the centre on a gold base. Tea was poured by Mrs. A. D. Archibald, Mrs. E. A. Cornish, Mrs. H. Bailey, Mrs. P. Kerr, Mrs. E. Ashly, Miss Ethel Horton, Mrs. J. Leslie Dean, Mrs. G. Templer and Mrs. G. Elliott. Th hostesses were Mrs. G. Stanton, Mrs. Jean Cornell and Mrs. B. D. Salisbury.

A large number of women helped to serve the multitude of guests and worked hard behind the scenes in the kitchen.

The overall convener of the event was Mrs. N. Wessels, who was assisted by Mrs. C. Matier. In the receiving line were Mrs. N. Wessels, Mrs. L. Dean, Mrs. C. Matier, Mrs. E. Pickell, Mrs. B. Stenson and Mrs. E. Cornish.

A large gold basket of poinsttia and a cardboard Santa Claus decorated the entrance where the door hostesses Mrs. J. Wannamaker, Mrs. O. Robb, Mrs. G. Shaw, Mrs. W. Beal, Mrs. E. Easton and Mrs. M. Treverton greeted guests. A nursery and a coat check room were also provided for the convenience of guests. Mrs. C. Brown was in charge of the decorations. Mrs. E. Ketcheson, Mrs. H. Bailey and Mrs. G. Stanton were in charge of admissions.

Many Children Enjoy Holy Rosary Bazaar

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

A children's room with entertainment a la Disneyland which was crowded to capacity nearly all the time and a Santa Claus were the chief attractions at the Holy Rosary parish festival and bazaar which was held on Wednesday night at the George Vanier School auditorium. The bazaar was noteworthy for the large number of children who attended it and obviously enjoyed the games such as fish pond, nine pins and bingo which were played in the children's room. the walls of which were decorated with children's drawings. A number of dolls, toys and games were also on sale in this room. The convener of this room was Mrs. A. Gallant.

Santa Claus provided another thrill to many boys and girls when he arrived a little later in the evening, took many of them on his knee and distributed candy.

The most noteworthy features of the hall decor were the lifesize figures of Mary and Joseph with the infant Jesus in his crib and the three kings from the Orient offering their gifts. Gold streamers hung over the entrance and a spray of gold leaves adorned the doors. A silver Christmas tree surrounded by gift - wrapped packages stood in the centre of the hall. The walls were decorated with reindeer and Santa Claus motifs.

In the Christmas boutique convened by Mrs. F. Chapman and Mrs. E. McGrath, the large number of novel decorator candles of different shapes, textures and colours were eye-catching. There were also a number of door wreaths, gold stars, Christmas stockings and candle holders. Many of these novelties were made by the pupils of George Vanier School during their art classes.

One of the booths called attic treasures convened by Mrs. Jim Hogan and Mrs. Joe Hogan held a wide range of articles from dress patterns to used toasters, at bargain prices. At the handicraft table convened by Mrs. D. Guest knitwear items and mitts were offered for sale. The items on the touch and take table convened by Mrs. J. V. Hogan and Mrs. C. Pope included a number of pieces of left-over dress material. In charge of home baked goodies which proved to be as popular as ever was Mrs. W Smith while Mrs. F. Bedard and Mrs. T. Doran were the conveners of the apron booth. Mrs. R. Bashall was in charge of the candy booth.

In charge of the lunch bar was Mrs. D. London. Lunch was served at one end of the hall which was decorated with several small Christmas trees standing on TV trays covered with red and green paper. Each tree was adorned with coloured balls and topped with an angel made of cotton wool and gauze. Each table held a twisted red candle with a miniature holly wreath round its base. Mrs. K. Alexander and Mrs. G. Conrey were responsible for the decorations.

The general conveners were Mrs. L. Bradshaw and Mrs. R. Bacon while the ticket conveners were Mrs. R. Ryan and Mrs. C. Pope. Mrs. J. Walters was in charge of admissions.

Teen-age Son Wants His Nose Pierced

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our teen-age son is determined to have his nose pierced. The newest thing in mod circles is the nasal loop. Because he had an ear pierced and now he wears a

ANN LANDERS

Billy-The-Kid earring. His hair is quite long, however, so his father hasn't noticed.

I have already talked to our clergyman. He said, "There is nothing morally wrong with piercing one's nose. If the boy wants to have it done, let him." I then telephoned the school principal. He said, "Don't try to stop him. He might retaliate by doing something which is not only bizarre but destructive."

Our family doctor said, "Don't fight it." He'll get tired of the loop after a while and when he removes it, the hole won't show."

Our son says you are "right on." We await your response. — WHO NOSE BERTY

DEAR WHO: If your son wants a hole in his nose to match the one in his head — let him have it. Any kid who would go this far out is obviously frantic for attention. Since his father hasn't noticed that his son is wearing an earring, he probably hasn't noticed that the boy needs professional help, either. I hope somebody notices before the kid goes so far out he's unrecognizable.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter will be 16 by the time you receive this letter. I found cigarettes in her purse over a year ago and tried to persuade her to stop smoking. It was useless. We even paid her not to smoke, but she took the money and smoked behind our backs. After months of getting nowhere, my husband and I decided perhaps we were lucky our daughter was smoking ordinary cigarettes and not pot — so we told her to quit sneaking around and to smoke in the open.

Now a problem has arisen. My parents will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary next month. We are going to Kansas for what will undoubtedly be a family reunion. My father was a Methodist minister and he does not approve of smoking. We've told our daughter she cannot smoke in her grandfather's home.

She insists this is hypocritical. According to her, since we have given her permission to smoke, it is none of her grandfather's business. It seems reasonable, yet we are uneasy. What is your opinion? — NEBRASKA CREEK

DEAR NEB: I feel sorry for you, but sorrier for your daughter. She has "collapsible parents." I hope you won't fold this time. Tell her she is not to smoke in her grandparents' home because you will not permit her to insult them. End of discussion. Parents who send statements with a period instead of a question mark are often surprised to discover that their kids like being told what to do.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

Following fall activities with their project "Working With Wool", members of Hastings County 4-H homemaking clubs will be holding achievement days in the next two weeks.

The East Hastings girls will hold their achievement day today at the Moira Secondary School in Belleville, while on the following Saturday, West Hastings girls will have their turn — again at Moira Secondary School.

On Dec. 12, Centre and North Hastings girls will hold their Hastings Secondary School at Madoc.

During the afternoon at each achievement day the girls will put on a series of exhibits, demonstrations and skits on topics related to their project, while their work will be on display.

Early in January a new project "The Cereal Shelf" will be started and interested girls are asked to call county home ec'nomist Miss Elaine Hartman in Stirling.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Columnist Gives Two Favorite Recipes

By MARY MOORE

You would be surprised at the number of requests I receive for the recipe for Cole Slaw. On Sunday while guests sat in the kitchen watching me (and tasting samples) I devised a new one which I think will be a very welcome change.

In addition, for a reader, I made a simplified chocolate sauce using cocoa instead of the expensive baking chocolate, for serving over ice cream.

TROPICAL COLE SLAW

4 cups finely shredded cabbage
1 banana, diced
8 to 10 stuffed olives, sliced
¼ cup sultana raisins
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup chopped pecans or almonds (optional)

Prepare and combine all ingredients just before meal-time. You may want one more than mayonnaise but we liked the above amount. Do not be tempted to add salt for the olives make this slaw salty enough.

QUICK MOCHA (CHOCOLATE) SAUCE

½ cup cocoa
1 cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup strong liquid coffee
1 tsp. vanilla

In a small pot mix together the cocoa, sugar and salt. Add the coffee and cook, stirring until it thickens a little and just reaches boiling stage. Remove from heat and add vanilla. Pour into metal or pottolais pitcher and cool and chill. It will thicken more when refrigerator cold. To make Parfaits layer a spoonful of French Vanilla or French Coffee ice cream into bottom of parfait glasses. Pour over about 2 tbsps. Chocolate Sauce. Repeat. Top with puff of whipped cream or green cherry or sprinkling of chopped almonds.

Ameliasburg Candidates Are Heard at Meeting

AMELIASBURG (Special)—Aspirants for offices in the forthcoming municipal election aired a wide variety of opinions at the meeting billed as "meet the candidate night", the auditorium at Ketts public school Monday night.

The township's house and school accreditation received the award which was moderated by Belleville solicitor John C. Miller.

Although opposed in the race for deputy reeve's seat, incumbent Norman Post and outgoing councillor Lyle Vanclief with two years' council experience, agreed the proposed Keeks complex should be delayed until there is industry located in the township to help carry the extra tax burden.

Their appeals for a new bay bridge as an incentive for industry to establish in Ameliasburg were similar. "First the residents must decide if they want industry and the revenue that goes with it," candidate Vanclief suggested.

Outgoing members of the county school board seeking re-election George Plower, Jerald Anderson and Hannon Montgomery screened in the affirmative when asked if they favored going ahead with the multi-million dollar Keeks complex as planned and approved at the county level.

School board candidate Seymour Hamilton, in the contest for one of the three vacancies, expressed the opinion that township students were receiving education equal to counterparts in neighboring counties contrary to what advocates of the complex argued.

Council incumbent Arnold Wetherall said if he was returned he intended to go all out for locating a new fire-hall in the west end of Ameliasburg whether it can be afforded or not. He felt council owed the residents the opportunity to save up to 45 per cent on fire insurance premiums.

Council incumbent Roger Redner suggested voters uphold the liquor plebiscite as a way to develop a tourist boom if the assumption industrial growth depended upon a new bay bridge was true.

Reeve Russell Thompson, re-elected by acclamation to serve a second term, was present among the listeners.

Voters go to the polls on Monday, Dec. 7.

North Front Lighting Increase Is Planned

Belleville's North Front Street will become something like the "great white way" if plans of the local public utilities get the official okay from city council.

E. L. Bennett, secretary of the PUC told the city council traffic and light committee this week that increased lighting for the Highway 14 route out of the city would be included on the committee's budget for next year.

Currently North Front street is lighted only from one side and with increased traffic and planned widening to some 4 roads, additional lighting would be required. Plans would be to double the existing lighting.

The increased lighting would be from Highway 401 to the overhead bridge over the CN double tracks.

War Veterans Will Receive Higher Pensions and Allowances

OTTAWA (CP) — The government moved Wednesday to bring a little Christmas cheer to about 200,000 war veterans and their dependents though the present will not arrive until April 1.

Veterans Affairs Minister Jean-Pierre Dube told the Commons veterans pensions will rise by 10 per cent and veterans allowances by 15 per cent effective April 1.

The total package will cost the federal treasury about $22 million next year.

Mr. Dube made the announcement at the same time as he introduced a bill amending the Pension Act. The legislation received routine first reading.

The amendments would:

—Set up a pension review board to act as an independent court of appeal for pensions applicants.

—Make prisoners of war in Hong Kong in the Second World War eligible for an automatic 50 per cent pension if they have a disability.

—Allow some 100 per cent disability pensioners to receive an exceptional incapacity allowance as well as their pension.

The legislation follows a report by the Commons veterans affairs committee on the government white paper on veterans pensions. The white paper was drawn up following a study by a committee headed by Mr. Justice Mervyn Wood of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal.

Mr. Dube told reporters a means test will be maintained for war veterans allowances. There is no means test for disability pensions.

The veterans affairs minister said that under the new schedules a married man with 100 per cent disability would receive $4,464 annually, an increase of $466.

The veterans affairs minister said that under the new schedules a married man with 100 per cent disability would receive $4,464 annually, an increase of $466.

A single person with the same disability gets an increase of $324 to $3,384 a year and the widows pension would go up $360 to $2,640 annually.

Mrs. Leslie Frost Dies at 77

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Gertrude Frost, wife of former Ontario premier Leslie M. Frost, died Wednesday. She was 77.

Mrs. Frost was the daughter of John Carew a former representative in the Ontario legislature for South Victoria. Mr. Carew owned a prosperous lumber mill here.

During the manpower shortages of the First World War she acted as her father's political secretary, gaining experience she would use in later life to help her husband in his public life.

But at the time, Mrs. Frost was not interested in becoming a politician. She had in fact vowed before her marriage in 1926, when her husband was a struggling lawyer, never to marry a politician.

In an interview Wednesday Mr. Frost said, "She was a tremendous and enormous help to me because of her great liking for people big and little. Her knowledge of Victoria and Haliburton was simply enormous."

Commenting in 1962 on speculation that her husband might figure in former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's cabinet reorganization plans, she said:

"I won't let him. I haven't heard anything about this cabinet post and I'm sure he hasn't either. But he's retired. He's had his time in politics."

Mr. Frost was Ontario premier for 12 years.

Mr. Frost asked that memorial donations be made to the Gertrude Frost Canadian History Fund set up at Trent University last year, where Mrs. Frost and he were honored at a special day when seven counties joined to pay tribute.

Mrs. Frost is survived by her husband; sisters Hazel, Mrs. Earl Soetherden of Chapleau, Ont., and Roby Mrs. Cecil Frost of Lindsay, and a brother, Arthur Carew, also of Lindsay. She had no children.

The body will be at the Frost home in Lindsay from late today until Saturday when services will be held at Cambridge United Church. Burial will be at Riverside Cemetery.

Canada to Copy British Post Office With Six-digit Code in Sorting Mail

LONDON (CP) — Canada intends to fashion its national postal code along the lines adopted by Britain and may eventually establish an independent post office corporation somewhat along the existing British pattern.

This was disclosed by Canadian officials Wednesday as Jean-Pierre Cote, minister responsible for the Canadian post office, continued a tour of the British system.

John Mackay, Cote's deputy, said the Canadian postal code will be ready for experimental operations in 1971 with Ottawa as the site for the first coding.

He anticipated that six digits — possibly a combination of letters and figures—will be used. Once the Ottawa experimental operation begins working smoothly, the code will be applied nationally, possibly by 1972.

Mackay, temporarily confined to his hotel with influenza while the Cote party continued its tour, said the Canadian system will be more refined than the British system though it will incorporate many of the British features.

The Canadian system will computerize sorting in the post where the letter can be directed to a specific part of a postman's walk. British postal officials maintain their system already does that work. The British code combines letters and figures.

British coding started last year and likely will be completed nationally by the end of 1973.

Political Parties Differ in Views on Railway Services

TORONTO (CP) — A thin but clear line separates Ontario's major political parties on the controversial issue of how to revive a fast-dwindling passenger railway service.

While Premier John Robarts' Progressive Conservative government struggles to formulate a policy for an integrated transportation network of road, rail, air and water, the Opposition Liberals and the New Democratic Party talk about more controls and a stricter enforcement of current regulations.

For the moment, however, party leaders are steering clear of a policy of public ownership of the railway systems in the province, although they share a commonly-held belief that the railways are losing passengers because not enough effort is made to attract them.

The issue was revived this week as a result of hearings in southern Ontario by the Canadian Transport Commission, and a speech by Allan Lawrence, minister of mines and northern affairs.

The hearings this month are to consider applications by CP Rail and Canadian National Railways to discontinue passenger services connecting such key centres as Toronto, Windsor and Peterborough. All three political parties will appear at the hearings to oppose the bid.

Mr Lawrence's contribution came in a speech Tuesday at Thunder Bay when he suggested railway right-of-way privileges should be taken back where it can be shown the railways do not want to provide required services for the people.

Although Mr. Lawrence was referring only to Northern Ontario, the statement appeared to place a stronger-than-intended emphasis on current Conservative policy.

Conservatives are trying to determine in which direction federal planning for future transportation modes is headed before coming up with a general policy of their own.

Ontario Transport Minister Irwin Haskett has said many times in the legislature that unprofitable rail services should be permitted to close only after the province has determined they are not needed as part of an all-Ontario integrated transportation network.

Kidnappers Surrounded

the identity of the kidnappers as well as their location "and the FLQ knows that we know all of this," the Star was told.

Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Nov. 3 the government offer of safe conduct to Cuba does not apply to the kidnappers and murderers of Mr. Laporte.

Mr. Choquette, meanwhile, left Quebec City today and was expected to meet with police officials in Montreal early this afternoon.

Reporters observed two lawyers being admitted through the police cordon which surrounds a four-block suburban Montreal North area, where Des Bacchelard and Mouseiel Boulevard intersect, about six miles due north from downtown Montreal.

The lawyers were Robert Demers, who has negotiated in the past on behalf of the government with a representative of the FLQ, and Bernard Margolese, who has acted in court on behalf of accused FLQ members.

The Star quotes Lawrentians in Montreal and Quebec City as saying the FLQ cell members holding Cross had been warned that "if anything happens to the diplomat their own chances of survival would be slight indeed. The police would simply go in shooting.

Residences surrounding the duplex believed to be holding Cross have been evacuated, a QPP spokesman reported. Four ambulances and several helicopters were seen in the yard of Pie IX school, which had been evacuated earlier.

By now, this pattern had emerged in three crucial areas concerning the kidnap developments:

—The stage was set for negotiations: police and troops were massed in Montreal North.

—The scene appeared set for a rendezvous at St. Helen's Island, seven miles away, if terrorists and government officials came to terms.

—Air armed forces Yukon transport was standing by at Montreal International Airport, parked at the extreme end of one of the runways, held in readiness for a possible flight to Cuba.

The last word from Mr. Cross came in a handwritten letter found in a northern telephone booth Sunday, Nov. 22, saying he was alive and well but wondering when his "bad dream" would end. It was dated Nov 18.

The eyes of all citizens were turned to the north-east area, a quiet district in normal times.

Big buses were used to block side streets at a time when the QPP would confirm only that a "police operation concerning the Laporte Cross investigation" was in progress.

One source said later the Des Rocchers house had been under surveillance for nine days.

Jerome Choquette, Quebec justice minister, and Maurice St. Pierre, commander of Quebec's 12,000 police in the emergency, were reported to be ready to try to negotiate the release of Mr. Cross.

Two schools were closed and evacuated so that helicopters could land in the school yards, reports said.

Radio Station CJAD speculated that Mr. Choquette and Director St. Pierre would go to the suspected house in the negotiation attempt.

While all this activity took place in the city's northeastern district, police also massed, off St. Helen's Island in the St. Lawrence River—the island earlier designated by the government as the site for kidnappers wanting to take advantage of a safe-conduct offer.

The island was named Oct. 17 in a government offer of safe passage to Cuba for kidnappers in exchange for the release of Mr. Cross, British trade commissioner in Montreal.

The government has stressed that the offer still held in the case of Mr. Cross, though the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec had "executed" Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister kidnapped Oct. 10 and slain Oct. 17.

CJAD said there were unconfirmed reports that the kidnappers called the police themselves, saying they were sick of the whole thing and ready to negotiate.

FLQ notes received sporadically during the tense weeks have claimed that the Cross and Laporte kidnappings were carried out by separate cells of the terrorist organization, and the Laporte strangling by yet another cell.

A Canadian Armed Forces plane from Ottawa landed at Montreal International Airport about 10:40 a.m. and four unidentified persons emerged and went to the RCMP office at the airport.

No comment was forthcoming there.

Six truck convoys and three helicopters, which had been searching the Laurentian area north of the city were observed heading for the city, at 10:30 a.m.

But observers at the scene were being held back and could not recognize the new arrivals.

Reports said St. Helen's Island was sealed off because arrests made Wednesday indicated to police the whereabouts of James Cross.

At 9:30 a.m. general police broadcasts were made: "All vehicles and personnel involved in Operation Cordon take positions."

Three minutes later, they were reported in position and ready for any eventuality.

Police stopped traffic on Jacques Cartier Bridge, which spans the St. Lawrence and rests on St. Helen's Island, known to millions as part of the site of Expo 67 and the so-called Son of Expo tag, permanent fair Man and His World.

A reporter, at Habitat, the futuristic apartment building feature at Expo 67 said at 11 a.m. that a roadblock had been established at the west end of Concordia Bridge, which links St. Helen's with Montreal Island. One car had been allowed to pass with what appeared to be high-ranking officers.

Students at Pie IX high school at Pie IX and Henri Bourassa streets were evacuated by police about 9:30 a.m., shortly after Operation Cordon went into effect.

Police would only say they were on their way to a certain location in the area where negotiations apparently were contemplated for the Cross release.

Many buses which carried soldiers and police into the area were then used as barriers to keep students and others away.

Meanwhile, two army helicopters were reported hovering in the vicinity of Queen Mary Road and Cote des Neiges, farther in the west, where Bernard Lortie, 19-year-old student, was arrested Nov. 8 in connection with the Laporte kidnapping.

Few Want Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — James Razmay, Ontario's director of special projects, said Wednesday he is mystified at what he feels is the lack of interest by university students who are being canvassed for jobs next summer at Ontario Place.

CP Rail Answers Assailed

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Officials of CP Rail were rapped Wednesday by Canadian transport commission members for not providing clear answers on company policy towards passenger rail service in Ontario.

D. H. Jones, chairman, said "it's been getting more and more difficult to find out what the approach of CPR is to passenger rail services."

"We've been trying for the past two days."

J. A. D. McGee, a commission member, complained to the hearing that the "closest we got to a succinct answer was 'we (CP Rail) want out'."

Mr. McGee suggested that if CP Rail really wants to quit passenger rail service, "how can we be certain on these applications . . . that everything that can conceivably be done is being done to make this line profitable?"

Mr. Jones told CP Rail officials that "we're not satisfied the potential market is being sufficiently explored or met."

"That's the principal issue in this hearing," he said.

He Blames Ottawa

Premier Harry Strom of Alberta says the federal government should encourage people to move from depressed areas to areas of high opportunity. He said in an interview with The Canadian Press that Ottawa is choking development to the detriment of all Canada by trying to dampen the booming economies of Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia.

Loyalist Complies With Guideline

Loyalist College has no problem meeting a department of education rule on job-training emphasis in its arts and science programs, college president Herbert Young said yesterday.

The college more than meets department guidlines on the quota of occupational courses in such programs, said Mr. Young.

A Toronto report said the department has ordered Ontario's 32 community colleges to put more job-training emphasis into arts and science sectors.

The purpose, said H. W. Jackson, director of the department's applied arts and technology branch, is to discourage students who want "Mickey Mouse courses."

He said the colleges have the responsibility to ensure that students take courses preparing them for the labor market.

Norman Sisco, chairman of the Council of Regents which governs the colleges, said a rule calling for 30 per cent of subjects chosen by a student to be geared to job - training, has always been in effect for the colleges.

"But some colleges were drifting away from it and were as close to a university three-year pass course that it was getting into a duplication of investment of public funds."

At Loyalist, said Mr. Young, the rule is that at least two - fifths of student's general arts program be geared to job - training.

"We feel we're not only abiding by the rule, but exceeding it," he said.

Red Cross Progress Reported

The executive of the Belleville chapter reported at their November meeting that the Canadian Red Cross is contributing more than $9,000 in aid to flood victims in East Pakistan.

New clothing is being rushed from Red Cross warehouses in Singapore. Since June 1, more than 40,000 articles of clothing have been sent to Syria, Tunisia, Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Sierra Leone.

Expenditures for October, amounting to $2,801 were reported.

A blood donor clinic will be held on Dec. 17 at Northern Electric.

The annual meeting will be held Jan. 19, 1971.

Water safety is being taught in two locations. Red Cross and YMCA work are combined at the Y, with leader courses being completed.

The facilities at Tops Motel pool are being used by the Kiwanis Club.

These combined facilities enable 600 adults and youth to receive instruction from 12 leaders each week.

Apartments Taking Over Local Housing Starts

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville residents are fast becoming apartment dwellers!

At least this is the indication gained from the building permits issued at city hall.

City hall records show that so far this year permits for construction of multiple family dwelling units have outnumbered single family residences by more than seven to one.

And, according to city building Inspector Ernest Hicks, the trend seems to be gaining momentum all the time.

Statistics for the first 11 months of this year show there were 286 multiple family dwelling units constructed as compared to only 42 single family residences.

Although the swing to apartment living was first noticed seven or eight years ago, it is during the past three years that the trend has become really pronounced.

Over the eight year period, construction of single family residences and multiple family units has been almost evenly divided.

But from 1968, multiple family construction has gone ahead by leaps and bounds.

In 1968, for instance, the count was 191 apartment units as compared with 136 single family residences.

Last year, apartment unit construction outnumbered single family residences by more than 2.5 to one and this year by more than seven to one.

Although the city can now boast of at least three so-called "high rise" apartment structures (five storeys and over), the great bulk of multiple family housing construction has been in the form of three storey six - plexes and twelve-plexes.

And in the past couple of years some of the local building contractors have pushed the number of apartments in three-storey complexes to as high as 34.

These six- to 24-apartment complexes are dotted throughout all the "older" part of the city where zoning permits.

In many cases vacant lots have been utilized but more often developers have purchased old homes with comparatively large lots as construction sites.

But available sites are becoming scarce and builders are beginning to look toward still undeveloped areas in the city's outer fringes.

One instance of this is in the Palmer Heights subdivision near Centennial Secondary School where a series of high-rise apartments has been planned by Toronto developers.

Also in the east end of the city, three local businessmen have plans for the construction of two high-rise apartments in the Bridge Street - Farley Ave. area immediately to the east of The Belleville Plaza.

Developers are also looking to the north and within the past few years a number of 12-plexes have been constructed just north of the CN double tracks in the West Park Village area and along College Street.

And at the extreme north end of West Park Village, at least two developers are planning sizable developments of multi-family structures east of Sidney Street in the Tracey Street extension area.

(This area is still undeveloped and although zoning has been tentatively decided, it is being reviewed by the planning board.)

The high cost of serviced land, increasing construction costs and high interest rates, all have contributed to the swing to apartment living.

And the balance in favor of apartment construction has been further boosted by the Ontario Housing Corporation which in the past year has swung away from single family residences for its low rental "geared - to - income" housing accommodation.

A few years ago OHC built approximately 30 single low rental residences in Belleville.

This year another 91 low rental housing units are being completed in Belleville by OHC — but they have been townhouse units with up to eight or 10 apartments in each complex.

Fifty-four of these OHC housing units were opened in the Flint Street area last week and before the end of the year another 37 will be completed on North Park St.

Also, OHC is building an 82-unit apartment structure for senior citizens on Bridge Street across from the fairgrounds, and also has another complex of about half that size under way on Turnbull Street adjacent to the first senior citizens' apartment complex opened three years ago.

He Has New Job

When Paul M. Faguy was appointed commissioner of penitentiaries this fall, he had no background in the difficult field of corrections. He had never even seen the inside of a jail. But he has good credentials as an administrator and his main task will be to recruit staff to implement programs of rehabilitation for prisoners.

Differing Living Cost Formulas Upset Parity

TORONTO (CP) — Details of a proposed new three-year contract offered by General Motors of Canada Ltd. to the United Auto Workers Wednesday show how the major issue of wage parity has arisen.

Under the old contract signed in 1967 assemblers—the most common job classification—earned a basic wage of $3.39 an hour in both Canada and the United States.

But by the time that contract expired last September, differences in the formula for providing cost-of-living increases had ended parity between Canadian and U.S. auto workers.

Canadian assemblers were getting an allowance of 19 cents an hour for an hourly total of $3.72 while their U.S. counterparts were getting an allowance of 32 cents an hour for a total of $3.82.

The sharp difference reflected the fact that the U.S. allowance was based on the U.S. consumer price index, which rose higher and faster than the Canadian index on which the allowance for Canadian workers was based.

The UAW has remained firm in its demand that Canadian workers receive the same $4.25 base rate as do their counterparts south of the border. The latest offer is 23 cents short of that goal.

Their argument is that Canadians do the same work and should get the same pay.

As part of that argument, they say the Canadian cost-of-living allowance should be on a par with that in the U.S., and should be tied to the U.S. consumer price index.

In relation to the latest offer from GM Canada, that would mean cost-of-living allowances would have to be increased an additional eight cents.

Rangers Continue to Find Winning Play-off Formula

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When a hockey team wins most of its games at home and a fair share of those played on the road the combination often means a playoff berth at the end of the regular schedule.

New York Rangers have been using such a combination to good advantage since the 1926-27 season when they made the National Hockey League playoffs after missing the four previous seasons.

Wednesday night they won another home game, rallying in the third period to defeat St. Louis Blues 4-3 and extend their home-ice streak to 12 games without a loss—nine wins and three ties.

The victory moved the Rangers into a first-place tie in the Eastern Division with Boston Bruins, who were downed 4-1 by Chicago Black Hawks despite the three-goal performance of Phil Esposito, the Boston centre and NHL scoring leader.

Both Boston and New York now have 32 points on identical records of 14 wins, five losses and four ties.

Another three-goal performer Wednesday night was Toronto's Dave Keon, who scored two of his goals while his team was shorthanded as the Maple Leafs shut out Los Angeles Kings 7-0.

In other games, Montreal Canadiens and Pittsburgh Penguins played to a 3-3 tie and Minnesota North Stars edged California Golden Seals 3-2.

The Western Division Blues also had a streak of their own before their game with the Rangers! Unbeaten in their last five games, they also had a record of seven wins, one loss and three ties against East Division teams and until Wednesday night had lost only three games all season, fewer than any other club in the NHL.

The Blues still have the fewest losses in the NHL but they now must share that distinction with the Black Hawks, who lead the second-place Blues by six points in the West.

The Blues held the Rangers in check for the first two periods, allowing them only one goal, a tip-in shot by Ted Irvine at 5:32 of the second period. But in the third period Ron Stewart, Jean Ratelle and Dave Balon scored in quick succession to offset third-period goals by Jim Lorentz and Jim Roberts.

Bert'os Espasito's three goals, the Chicago-Boston game was marred by a brawl late in the first period with the scoreless 2-2 Both benches emptied after Chicago's Jim Pappin and Bruin defenceman Don Awrey came together at the Chicago Blue line and fists started flying.

After tempers cooled, referee John Ashley handed out five-minute penalties to Awrey, John

DAVE KEON

McKenzie and Ted Green of the Bruins and to Pappin, Keith Magnuson and Dan Maloney of the Hawks.

Dennis Hull scored two goals for Chicago and the Black Hawks' victory also extended their unbeaten streak at home to 13 games.

Keon's two shorthanded goals gave him a total of six for the season and left him just one short of the NHL record of seven shorthanded goals scored in a season by Jerry Toppazzini with Boston during the 1957-58 season.

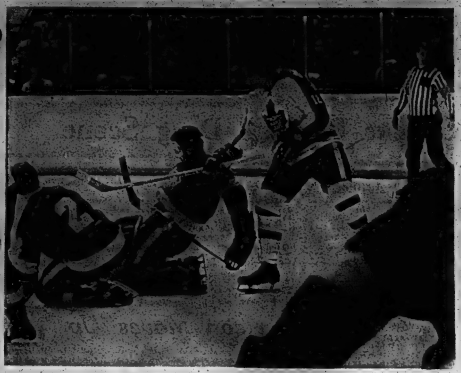
Keon dismissed as stupid any suggestion that he will be out to topple Toppazzini's record when reminded he was nearing the mark.

Discussing his penalty-killing assignment, Keon said:

"I'm not out there to score goals. If I score (when the Leafs are shorthanded), it's an accident."

"If you play it right, then you get the point," he said. "If you start gambling (for a goal), then they'll get a point."

The shutout was the first this season for the Toronto team and the 74th in the career of Toronto goalie Jacques Plante who also played with Montreal, New York and St. Louis.



Pete Mahovlich's goal on a rebound shot midway in the third period gave the Canadiens the tie against the Penguins. Ken Schinkel was top scorer for Pittsburgh with two goals.

The Minnesota-California game also was marred by a fight which resulted in the banishment of Minnesota's Bill Goldsworthy and Dennis Hextall of California from the game.

Someone Scored

Expert Claims Trout Record May Be Slightly 'Charred'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A Newfoundland outfitter says two Americans who claim they broke the 54-year-old world record for eastern brook trout during a fishing trip to Labrador actually hooked Arctic char.

Peter P. Pasor, who operates three fishing camps from his headquarters at Happy Valley near Goose Bay in southern Labrador, describes the claim by Jerry Lynch of Stoughton, Mass., and Frederic Shew of Westwood, Mass., as a "fishy fish story."

The landing of a 15-pound, two-ounce eastern brook trout by Shaw and a 14-pound, 10-ounce fish by Lynch was first reported in the Boston Evening Globe Sept. 30.

The newspaper said the fish were identified as eastern brook by scientists at the Harvard Museum of Comparative Zoology.

The previous record was set in 1916 by Dr. W. J. Cook with a 14-pound, eight-ounce trout taken from the Nipigon River in Ontario.

Ray Simmons, outdoor columnist with the St. John's News, reprinted the Globe story which said Shaw's fish had been officially recognized by Field and Stream magazine as a record.

What Makes Luan and Miki Run, and Run,and Run....?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The question was obvious: Why would anyone want to run 100 miles or more in 24 hours?

The answer: Like the mountain that was climbed, there is an indoor track at the Los Angeles Athletic Club which is not good for anything except to run on.

So, recently Luan Dosti, a 43-year-old aerospace engineer, and Miki Gorman, a 92-pound Japanese-born secretary said housewife, set out all alternately for their marathon.

By the clock, 35-year-old Miki ran, trotted and jogged for 21 hours, 4 minutes, 4 seconds and completed 108 miles.

Dosti, once a high school soccer player in his native North Albania, plugged on 22 hours, 49 minutes and logged 126.6 miles.

As far as Dosti and Mrs. Gorman are concerned, both set world records. Agreeing was Dr. Steve Seymour, the silver medal winner in the javelin for the United States in the 1948 Olympic Games in London.

The 48-year-old Seymour's reference was the English-published Guinness book of records which credits one J. Saunders of England as having run 730 miles in 24 hours 40 minutes in 1952.

Dosti, who said he lost eight pounds from his normal 138, took up running three years ago—25 years after his kid soccer days.

The 5-foot-4 Miki got into the thing differently. "I started warming up too much."

It seems she used to accompany her husband Mike to the LAAC where he played handball.

Hoping to gain weight, Miki tried bicycle riding, but switched to running when she discovered the running track. Pretty soon she was padding around 30 and 25 miles and thinking little of it.

Miki, in her big run, took a five-minute rest break every hour but Dosti, fearful of a muscle tie-up, continued without interruption "except for a few hurried visits to the men's room."

Equipped with special plastic containers, he took his nourishment on the run. Both runners' nourishment consisted of honey, tea, protein tablets, high sugar content candy bars.

Baseball Honors Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The envelope please, Mr. Stengel."

The Academy Award-style presentations will be made at a black-tie, $50-per-plate dinner in the Beverly Hilton Hotel as a highlight of baseball's annual winter meetings.

Awards will go to the player of the year, top pitcher, top defensive performer, manager of the year and the player who best typifies the game on and off the field.

Caldwell Johnny Bench of Cincinnati and first baseman Boog Powell of Baltimore, previously named most valuable players in the National and American Leagues, respectively, are the nominees for the player-of-the-year award.

And Casey Stengel will be there, too, along with a host of baseball celebrities and show folk.

The World Series Trophy will be presented officially to Herold C. Hefferman, chairman of the board of the world champion Baltimore Orioles, and Orioles manager Earl Weaver.

Special honors will be paid to Ted Williams, George Sisler, and Bill Terry, baseball's only living .400 hitters, and to Stan Musial, Hank Aaron and Willie Mays, the game's only living 3,000-hit men.

Recognition also will be given to the batting, home run, RBI, and pitching kings in each league.

Backus Not Lonely

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Billy Backus hopes he won't be lonely on the banquet circuit of his life tonight when he tries to win the world welterweight championship from favored Jose Napoles.

"Nobody ever comes to the loser's dressing room," said Backus who once quit the ring because losing was becoming a habit.

Napoles also was worried about people not being around but he was concerned about how many of them would be in the Onondaga War Memorial's 8,300 seats for the scheduled 15-rounder set for 10 p.m. EST.

The promoter hopes for a crowd of 8,300 for Napoles' fourth title defense. Napoles is guaranteed $60,000, with Backus to get 18 per cent of the net.

Win or lose, Backus said he would not quit fighting as he did in 1965 after losing three straight.

To earn this title shot Backus compiled a record of 21 victories against three losers and a draw to gain the No. 2 welterweight contender ranking from both the World Boxing Association and Ring Magazine. His over-all record is 28-18-4.

Kuhn Checks Baseball Drug Scene

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Concern over possible drug abuse by major league players and late-season trading plays by baseball's new commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who indicated he will investigate the deals that sent relief specialist Wilhelm from the Braves to the Cubs for last season's National League East Division stretch drive and then back again.

HOYT WILHELM

The use and abuse of drugs was among several medical items discussed by doctors of the 24 major league clubs, whose meeting concluded with the formation of the Association of Professional Baseball Physicians.

"We're not talking about narcotics," the commissioner said later in the day. "They are concerned with whether ethical drugs, such as amphetamine and pep pills, have been overused and whether their use is being properly regulated."

In the Wilhelm affair, the major leagues' oldest player was sold to Chicago with two weeks remaining in the regular season and the Cubs in the thick of the division race.

Wilhelm, who had joined the Braves in a waiver deal during the 1969 stretch run, helping them capture the National League West crown, appeared in just three games for the Cubs. Atlanta got him back Monday in exchanges for first baseman Hal Breeden, a minor league home-run king.

The day's inter-league trade sent Johnson to the Pirates along with shortstop Jackie Hernandez and catcher Jim Campanis, in return, Kansas City received free-foot-base shortstop Fred Patek, smallest player in the majors, pitcher Bruce Dal Canton and catcher Jerry McNertney.

Johnson, a 27-year-old right-hander had an 8-13 record for the Royals last season and struck out 206 batters—third highest total in the American League.

Celtics Down Lakers As Jag Continues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The trade controversy centred around Atlanta's reacquisition of 41-year-old Hoyt Wilhelm two days earlier in a deal with Chicago Cubs.

The Wilhelm trade was one of 19 transactions made at the major league level during the first two days of the meetings. But the market fell off Wednesday and there was only one deal of consequence.

But the teams by physicians shared the spotlight Wednesday with commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who indicated he will investigate the deals that sent relief specialist Wilhelm from the Boston Celtics, on their biggest winning jag in years, beat Los Angeles Lakers 114-111 Wednesday night in the National Basketball Association.

It was the Celts' sixth straight —their longest streak since Dec., 1967.

And John Havlicek, who helped Boston produce a basket of winners down through the years, was the big gun Wednesday night with 29 points.

Jo Jo White put in a 29-foot jump shot in the closing moments and Havlicek added a clutch free throw with six seconds left in Boston's victory.

Don Chaney then added two free throws with two seconds left after the Celtics let Jerry West hit an uncontested layup. West and Wih Chamberlain both had 30 points for the Lakers.

Dave Bing fired in 29 points while Jimmy Walker had 22 as Detroit bombed the Knicks, who only scored 12 points in the final period—their fewest in any quarter since 1954. Their scoring total was the lowest of the season for the defending NBA champs.

Connie Hawkins' season high 32 points led Phoenix over Atlanta. Lou Hudson had 19 for Atlanta.

Keon Moves Up

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

National Hockey League action Wednesday night was highlighted by two individual three-goal performances.

Dave Keon of Toronto Maple Leafs picked up three goals in the Leafs 7-0 whitewashing of Los Angeles Kings, raising his season points total to 25 with 13 goals and 12 assists.

Esposito tops the league in scoring with 41 points, one ahead of his nearest rival, team-mate Bobby Orr who has 23 points.

Chargers Sweep Albert College

In a closely played senior contest Centennial downed the home team 69-54. Bob Henderson led the winners with 15 points, while Mike Thompson added another ten. Harvey Cotton was the top Albert College scorer.

The junior Chargers laced the opposition 77-37 as twelve Centennial players recorded points. Vahe Parsehouian was top man with 23 points while Brian Murphy scored 17. Colin McIntyre and Derold Dent followed with ten points each.

Centennial's midgets managed to ring up a 52-36 win over Albert despite a 27-point performance by Jess Garza. Names of the Centennial scorers were not available.

Referees Can Earn Wrestling Stripes

Anyone wishing to "earn their stripes" as a high school wrestling referee should attend the Saturday morning clinic being held at Centennial Secondary School.

The Bay of Quinte wrestling league, which last years' produced two Canadian junior champions, is in urgent need of competent officials.

The clinic will consist of a review of rules and some practical mat work.

Referees will be rated on three levels, depending upon the results of their tests and no charge will be assessed unless the interested parties wish to join the Ontario Wrestling Referee's Association.

New Exec In Trent Valley

The lower Trent Valley Fish and Game Club will undergo a change of command Tuesday, when they elect the new officers for 1971.

A raffle will be held for 12 pair of ducks and a few turkeys. The meeting will get under way at 8 p.m.

Former GI Says He Watched Men Shoved Out of 'Copter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former United States Army intelligence agent told Wednesday of being in a U.S. Marine Corps helicopter in Vietnam and twice witnessing marines ordered rest, on an officer's order, shove prisoners out the door.

Former agent Kenneth Barton Osborn added those other points about his 15 months in Vietnam:

—He said he watched a marine push a sharpened peg into a prisoner's ear during interrogation. The prisoner died.

—He said he himself circumvented an order to "terminate with extreme prejudice" one of his own agents.

—He told of knowing an army captain who admitted executing one of Osborn's agents. The victim was a Vietnamese-Chinese woman, Osborn said.

For 15 months in Vietnam in 1967-68, Osborn said, he was attached as a private to the 525th Military Intelligence Group, masquerading as a civilian government employee in the Da Nang area, recruiting and controlling nets of Vietcong agents.

The U.S. defence department says it does not dispute the credentials of Osborn or any of the 39 other honorably discharged veterans taking part in an anti-war group's "war crimes inquiry."

However, the department says, it cannot act on the accounts if no official charges have been made.

Delay in Paying Pension Increases Inexcusable--Stanfield

OTTAWA (CP) — Welfare Minister John Munro met opposition demands for "more" and "sooner" Wednesday as he presented legislation in the Commons to beef up payments to needy old-age pensioners.

The concern of the critics was that the boost in the pension supplement still will leave those receiving it below officially-recognized poverty lines and that the change will be delayed until April 1, 1971.

"I intend to emphasize the delay is inexcusable," Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield told the House. "Just as the delay to date has been inexcusable."

"Why are the older people in this country faced with the difficulty of having to work their way through this winter with these old rates?"

Presenting the legislation, the first product of the white paper on social security tabled Monday, Mr. Munro said the monthly pension supplement would be increased to $55 from $51.82 for single persons, and to $95 from $83.66 for couples.

The supplement is paid to those with no other income than the basic pension, to be frozen at $80 a month, an increase of 42 cents from the figure reached by annual cost-of-living raises since 1967. The supplement would continue to be increased annually by a maximum of two per cent a year.

The pension issue was given added emphasis with presentation by Veterans Affairs Minister Jean-Eudes Dube of legislation to increase payments to pensioners. The bill, which Mr. Dube said would add $22 million next year to the present total of $214 million, was given routine first reading.

The focus for attention in the Commons today shifts to the budget speech expected from Finance Minister Edgar Benson at 8 p.m. EST.

In the Senate, meanwhile, second reading was given to government legislation slated to replace the emergency regulations proclaimed under the War Measures Act to meet terrorist activity in Quebec.

The public order bill, passed Tuesday by the Commons after a month of debate, goes today to the Senate committee on legal affairs with a warning from Senator Grattan O'Leary (PC—Ontario) that he will vote against it if amendments are not made to protect civil liberties.

Senator O'Leary said he had agreed to the invocation of the War Measures Act "but since then there had been a "rivers of blood flowing" of liberty and there was growing doubt about government behavior. The government had dramatized and then anything "quiet and stabilizing" was dramatized and "played politics" with the issue, he said, and the people had a right to know all the facts.

But Senator Hartland Molson (Ind—Quebec) maintained that national security takes priority in moments of crisis over individual rights.

Senate Opposition Leader Jacques Flynn (PC—Quebec) felt the legislation was far from satisfactory but "we have no choice but to support the principle."

Davey To Report Next Week

OTTAWA (CP) — A report on the state of the press and broadcasting in Canada and suggestions for change will be published next Wednesday, a year to the day since the special Senate committee on the mass media opened public hearings.

Senator Keith Davey (L—Ontario), who proposed and headed the investigation, will present the Senate with the outcome of public testimony and private studies in a report of half a million words.

The report consists of the committee's main findings in 100,000 words, a 250,000-word study by outside consultants on the economics of publishing and broadcasting, plus 150,000 words of other research material compiled by committee staff and outsiders.

Auld Wants to Accept Higher Mercury Level

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — After patiently pressing for relaxation of restrictions on Ontario game fish which have been contaminated by mercury, tourist camp operators got a nibble from a cabinet minister Wednesday.

James Auld, Ontario Minister of tourism and information, told the annual convention of the Northern Ontario Outfitters Association he would ask the federal government to raise the permissable level of mercury content in fish.

He said he would meet with federal fisheries minister Jack Davis in Toronto today but did not say how much higher he would ask that the current acceptable mercury level of 0.5 parts per million be raised.

The tourist outfitters, many of whose guests were not permitted to eat their catches because of the high mercury content, have sought an increase from .5 ppm to 1 ppm—the standard in Sweden.

The camp operators state that if the acceptable mercury level is raised to 1 ppm most of them would then be operating on lakes falling within acceptable contamination levels.

They also point out that most of the lakes they operate on are free from mercury pollution from industrial wastes. The mercury is part of the natural environment.

Mr. Auld agreed. "Tests have shown that if mercury appears in other areas than industrial the mercury has been there since the 'ice age recorded," he said.

The biggest problem in getting the contamination level raised, he said, is that the United States, Canada's largest market for fish, has set it's level at 0.5 ppm.

Gregory Denies He Had Share Option

TORONTO (CP) — Wilfrid P. Gregory, former president of British Mortgage and Trust Co., denied at his Supreme Court trial Wednesday that he had been granted an option to buy shares in the Dale Estate Ltd.

He is charged with accepting a bribe in the form of an option to purchase 10,000 shares in return for approving a $500,000 mortgage loan by British Mortgage to Dale Estate, a Brampton forest-growing firm.

Gregory told the court that Carman G. King, a Toronto investment dealer whose firm was underwriting the Dale Estate offering, suggested he buy the shares as a long-range investment.

"I had no option," Gregory said. "I made a commitment to buy the shares. If they had gone down, I would have lost."

Gregory said he did not disclose his share purchase to his fellow directors in British Mortgage because it never occurred to him to do so.

"At the time (1961), my financial equity in British Mortgage and Trust was over $1 million," he said. "If you think I would prejudice my position over $10,000 you'll have to think again."

PCs, NDP Fail To Get Debate About Auditor

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservatives and New Democrats were unsuccessful Wednesday in launching a special Commons debate on motions in defence of Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson.

The motions by Gerald W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River), who said there is a "conspiracy" against Mr. Henderson, and Doug Rowland (NDP—Selkirk) were refused the unanimous consent needed to allow debate.

Mr. Baldwin referred to "deliberate downgrading" of Mr. Henderson's employers. His motion said that Treasury Board President C. M. Drury "no longer enjoys" the confidence of the House.

The Conservative House leader said a government bill that would reduce Mr. Henderson's power to scrutinize government spending is offensive and should be withdrawn.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen said that Mr. Baldwin was abusing the rules by adding "hysterical debate" to the motion. The government might seek equal time if this continued.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) said that if the government wants to raise its case, all it had to do was consent to debate the motion.

There was a chorus of "Nos" from Liberal benches when Speaker Lucien Lamoureux asked whether there was unanimous consent.

Indictment Is Upheld

EDMONTON (CP) — The Supreme Court of Alberta ruled Wednesday that the Crown has the right to proceed by indictment in a case which can also be handled summarily.

Chief Justice J. V. H. Milvain said there is no discrimination against an accused if the Crown chooses to elect trial by indictment, even though a person could receive a longer sentence than he could if convicted in a summary trial.

Chief Justice Milvain was dealing with an application from lawyer Ian Baker, who claimed that two of his clients charged with trafficking in the drug MDA were being discriminated against because the Crown had chosen to try them by way of indictment.

Pat McClary, 36, and his wife, Carole, 32, were charged Oct. 22 under provisions of the Food and Drug Act. If convicted by indictment they face a maximum sentence of 10 years, seven years longer than the maximum sentence for the same offence by summary conviction.

Mr. Baker said the Crown's election was a violation of the Canadian Bill of Rights.

The Alberta ruling follows a decision Nov. 9 by Judge Joseph Kelly of Ontario county court that the Crown had no right to proceed by indictment in a tax evasion case.

The ruling came when Judge Kelly quashed charges against Stafford Smythe, Toronto Maple Leafs Hockey Club president, of evading income tax of $200,375 and filing false or misleading returns.

Judge Kelly's ruling was appealed to the Supreme Court of Ontario. Chief Justice Dalton Wells reserved decision May 17 on a Crown application asking him to order a trial for Mr. Smythe.

Monsignor James Sullivan

TOWNSHIP ELECTORS

It has been a pleasure to serve you for the past six years. I would like to have pleased everyone, you know that is impossible. Now with the threat of Regional government we should have second thoughts in our selection for council.

Experience with positive action will be a big factor in retaining our local powers.

The past two years I have been chairman of the following committees: Planning, Emergency Measures, Fire Protection, also on Roads, Hall Board, Recreation and Property.

If you think these qualifications will be helpful to the Township, then . . .

"Look at the bright side. Think how much more that insurance policy would cost you if you were a 90-year-old flying crop-duster."

TORONTO (CP) — A conflict of opinions on the circumstances surrounding the crash of an Air Canada jetliner with a loss of 109 lives has left an investigating judge with a knotty problem of preparing a report on a tangle of evidence.

Adjourning a federal inquiry Wednesday at the close of eight days of hearings, Mr. Justice Hugh Gibson of the Exchequer Court of Canada said he would proceed to write his report "with all speed."

He was told in a final submission by the commission counsel, B. J. MacKinnon, that if an engine had broken cleanly away and not taken part of a fuel tank with it, the DC-8-63 giant jet would have survived.

Mr. MacKinnon said the evidence was clear that the plane would have lived through a runway bounce at Toronto International Airport last July 5 if the fuel tank had not ruptured when the engine tore away.

Earlier evidence was that these bolts were designed to break cleanly, letting the engine fall.

However, Douglas Laidlaw, counsel for McDonnel-Douglas of California, the plane's builders, said that if an engineer knew the exact way an aircraft would crash he could design a plane to withstand it.

"But that's not reasonable," he said. "You can't design an aircraft for a specific crash. They build in everything they think that the plane will be required to and then they add a safety factor.

"You hope—that's what design philosophy means—that if an aircraft crashes, it comes apart 'in the way you intend it.'"

Mr. Justice Gibson was urged to consider recommending substantial modifications to DC-8 passenger jets. There now are 500 DC-8s in service for 44 airlines with a total of more than 8,128,000 hours in the air.

Mr. MacKinnon said the evidence showed that premature deployment of the jet's ground-spoiler braking system by First Officer Donald Rowland was the most probable cause of the crash.

However, air accident investigators of the federal transport department, who pieced together the fragments after the crash, cited a number of structural shortcomings and deficiencies in systems on DC-8s.

Mr. MacKinnon, who represented no particular party at the inquiry, told the judge it was the commissioner's job to make recommendations that might help prevent future air tragedies.

He said the judge should "look very closely" at evidence regarding the ground spoiler system—10 steel panels that deploy upward from the wing surfaces to slow and steady an aircraft on the runway after its wheels have touched down.

A lever between the pilot and co-pilot arms the spoilers for automatic operation once the plane's wheels touch the runway. But the lever can also be used for instant deployment on the ground or in the air.

Mr. MacKinnon said the commissioner must also consider the other factors that were present in the crash:

—The failure of the Air Canada instruction curriculum and the Air Canada and McDonnel-Douglas operations manuals to inform pilots adequately that the ground spoilers could be manually deployed in flight;

—The failure of those who knew about the possibility of inadvertent in-flight deployment to inform those who did not know;

—The absence of an adequate alarm system in the cockpit which would have immediately informed the flight crew of the damage to their aircraft after the runway impact.

Mr. Laidlaw said the cause of the crash could be found in the evidence of First Officer Rowland's response to a command from Captain Peter Hamilton.

"He responded instantaneously by pulling the control lever to deploy the spoilers rather than arming the spoilers. There is no other theory that fits the known fact that First Officer Rowland responded improperly."

Mr. Laidlaw said the material in the operations manual had nothing to do with the accident.

"Every pilot who flies a DC-8 knows you shouldn't deploy the spoilers in the air. If he knows he shouldn't, what difference does it make whether he can or not?"

John Keenan, counsel for the estate of Captain Hamilton, said the pilot died proving the point he had argued in life—that the spoiler system was a hazard.

Mr. Keenan criticized both the McDonnel-Douglas ! design and the honesty of the aircraft manufacturer's and Air Canada manuals. He said the department of transport should have noticed that the CP Air manual warned of the danger of in-flight manual deployment and informed Air Canada.

W. A. Grant, counsel for the estates of First Officer Rowland and Second Officer H. G. Hill, said the testimony of witnesses at the inquiry had "convicted the manufacturers of the aircraft more than it had hung any blame on the members of the flight crew."

He said that because of the failure of the aircraft design the Air Canada jet was doomed the moment it hit the runway and lost an engine.

Air Canada's lawyer, Francois Mercier, said that if Captain Hamilton had followed the established procedure for arming the spoilers—at about 2,000 feet during the before-landing check—the accident would never have happened. The spoilers then deploy automatically on touchdown.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 4

Your birthday today: A period of changeable conditions. Psychological growth surges in response to pressures you'll others who depend on your skills as well as a few who compete with you. Your emotional life veers toward many complex moods, high and low moments passing swiftly. Today's natives take interest in practical arts, physical feats, athletic skills.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): New ventures can be given a push today with good results. Settle weekend plans by definite reservations. On home question, say where you stand and have done with it.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Conventional approaches work best with people of power. You may meet some irresponsible person — deal with the problem simply and early. Home life is better if you strike a definite decision.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Consideration for others wins you an unspoken advantage in future dealings. Clear off routine chores, leaving major projects for next week.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your money has wings today, both for outstanding accounts and ad-speculative ventures. Review your health program, resolve to change some habits. Meditate this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your associates are full of surprises. Tend your own affairs without getting involved with others. Money goes for purely temporary benefits. Meditation this evening brings enlightenment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 —, Sept. 22): The world is sharp-eyed, and at the moment there's no hiding place. Put in a complete day to fulfill your duties. Not much opportunity appears for breaks or an early rest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Skip the inside tip, the secret path to easy money — it's illusory. Outside interests, travel produce better results. A passing moment of mischief enjoys your romantic life.

Zeller's Plans $2.5 Million Shopping Plaza on Trent Road

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Zeller's Limited today announced it will open a new shopping centre just west of Belleville by next summer.

Construction of the $2,500,000 project is expected to begin early next year on a 15-acre site on Highway 2 and Wallbridge — Loyalist Road in Sidney township.

Among its key features:

An enclosed shopping area featuring about 30 stores — including a Zeller's outlet covering 70,000 square feet and a major food supermarket.

Parking area for 1,000 automobiles.

Arrival of another major retail centre in the Belleville area was revealed some months ago. But today's announcement filled in both the identity of the developer and details of the project for the first time.

At the same time, the development will cost downtown Belleville one of its largest established businesses.

Opening of the new development will see Zeller's close its Front Street store — an outlet that has operated some 35 years.

Details of the new development were revealed simultaneously by Zellers and D. J. Whalen Real Estate — the city realtor which handled the transaction and is now the chain's leasing agent for the development.

R. W. Morvell, Zeller's vice-president in charge of expansion, called the Sidney-township centre "one of our biggest developments in 1971."

The development recognized the "present importance and

James Cross After Release

Cross In Hospital But Health Good

Yukon Flies Seven to Cuba

MONTREAL (CP) — James Richard (Jasper) Cross, a free man today after being held a prisoner by kidnappers for 60 days, rested in a hospital where doctors say he is in good physical and mental health.

The 40-year-old British trade commissioner was taken to Jewish General Hospital early today after his terrorist abductors and their immediate family members landed in Cuba by plane.

Four men, two women and a child were flown to Havana in a government plane, winding up a dramatic and tense day of negotiations on a deal that sent the kidnap suspects on a flight to Cuba in exchange for the safe release of Mr. Cross.

In an interview late Thursday the British envoy described Thursday as "one of the happiest days in my life."

"It's almost like being out of hell—perhaps purgatory would be a better expression."

He had spent eight weeks cooped up in a windowless room of a duplex in suburban Montreal North. Thursday was his first look at sunlight since he was forced at gunpoint from his fashionable Montreal home Oct. 5.

Doctors at the hospital said Mr. Cross had lost 23 pounds while in captivity.

Dr. David Costen, his personal physician, and Dr. Leonard Brandt, the hospital's physician in chief, gave him a brief checkup early today. They said the British diplomat is expected to remain in hospital for at least a day for a more thorough examination.

After that, he would probably be flown to London Saturday. Of his impending departure from Montreal, he said in a television interview Thursday night:

"I've enjoyed enormously my three years here and it's a bit sad that we ended up on this note. . . It may be difficult for me to return to Montreal."

In London, Mr. Cross is expected to be reunited with his wife Barbara, who left her Montreal home Nov. 6 to stay with friends in Bow, Switzerland She was in the house when the kidnappers, pretending to deliver a birthday present for the diplomat, forced their way in and whisked her husband away.

Mrs. Cross told a news conference at the Bern residence of British Ambassador Eric Midgley:

"I am deliriously happy after these long weeks of tension during which, like my husband, I was my own prisoner. But I never gave up hope."

She said she was "too excited" to remember her husband's first words when he telephoned her Thursday following his release into custody of the acting Cuban consul at the St. Lawrence River island s/he of Expo 67.

In line with terms of the safe-conduct offer by the Canadian and Quebec governments, Mr. Cross remained in the custody of the Cuban diplomat until word was received that the Canadian Armed Forces Yukon plane had delivered the seven persons to Havana.

Fifty minutes later he arrived by car at the second hospital.

Mr. Cross suffers from a blood-pressure ailment, but apparently had medication for the condition during his captivity.

His release brought a happy ending to a suspense-filled drama in which troops stood guard with automatic weapons in Quebec province and Ottawa and police powers were strengthened with special powers of arrest and detentions under the War Measures Act.

Flown from Montreal to sanctuary in Cuba, meanwhile, are kidnap suspects Jacques Lanctot and Marc Carbonneau, Lanctot's brother-in-law Jacques Cosette Trudel and Pierre Seguin, an unknown. With them are Lanctot's wife and child and Trudel's wife.

Mr. Cross remained in custody of Cuban officials Thursday night under an agreement between his kidnappers and the Quebec and Canadian governments. He was released about 3 a.m. today after Cuban officials received word from Havana that the kidnap suspects had arrived.

But the diplomat spoke to Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier Robert Bourassa by telephone and met Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette at the Man and His World site where Cuban authorities were holding him Thursday night.

Mr. Bourassa described Mr. Cross as in "excellent shape and excellent spirits."

"He told me it's the first time he has seen the sun in eight weeks," the premier told the Quebec national assembly.

"The thing he found ex-

Exile Ends In 7 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — The statute of limitations means the abductors of James Cross may return to Canada scot-free in seven years, it was learned Thursday night.

Informed sources said kidnap suspects Marc Carbonneau, 27, and Jacques Lanctot, 25, face charges that could lead to life in prison if they come back before 1977.

But the government can't revoke their citizenship and the statute of limitations eventually will alter their return.

"If they come back before then, they come back at their own risk," Justice Minister John Turner said Thursday night, shortly after they left for Cuba at 7:47 p.m. EST.

Also on the plane is Pierre Seguin, the third man in the north-end Montreal apartment in which the British trade envoy was being held.

No warrants were out for Seguin but informed sources here said he was fingerprinted before departure.

Yukon Flew From Trenton

TRENTON (Special) — The Yukon used to fly the Cross kidnappers to Cuba is one of seven still operational with Trenton's 437 Squadron and, despite reports to the contrary, was flown directly to Dorval yesterday morning from CFB Trenton. It arrived back from Pakistan at the beginning of the week.

Today the plane is at Nassau where the crew is resting for the return flight to Trenton via Ottawa. It is scheduled to depart Nassau at 10 a.m. tomorrow, arriving in Ottawa at 3 p.m. A source at Canadian Forces Headquarters said today that the Yukon would only make a brief Ottawa stop before setting off for Trenton.

No Tax Cuts

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has chosen make-work projects rather than personal tax cuts to pump new life into the Canadian economy in the next year.

In his Thursday night budget, Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced a string of measures designed to funnel more money into public and private projects in an effort to stimulate the economy and reduce unemployment.

His announcements included:

For other Budget Stories See Page 7

—A 10-per-cent increase in unemployment insurance benefits starting Jan. 3.

—A new loan fund of $150 million to help finance provincial public works projects.

—An ingenious plan to save business about $25 million next year and encourage plant construction and expansion.

—Additional spending of $23 million on federal job-creating projects. $20 million for roads and services for the new Montreal airport and $40 million for Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. to encourage home construction.

—Extension of government programs aimed at assisting industry in certain slow-growth areas where unemployment is highest.

Mr. Stanfield said the only bright note was the increase in unemployment insurance benefits and Mr. Lewis called it ridiculous since the increase was so small.

The loan fund to encourage new works in the provinces is to be allocated on a formula tied to the unemployment rate, thus putting the majority of the new jobs where they are most needed. It could lead to creation of 15,000 to 25,000 year-long jobs.

The budget was the second this year. The first, last March, came when inflation was the main concern and Mr. Benson said Thursday that this danger has not passed.

The increase in unemployment insurance benefits will run until the end of June, when a revised, higher scale of payments becomes effective.

The interim increase, the first since June, 1968, will provide an extra $20 monthly to unemployed workers whose earnings while they were getting $90 a week or more. About half of those now unemployed fall within this range.

The program of loans and grants for public works projects by federal, provincial and municipal governments pumps an extra $200 million or so into regions where jobs are scarce. About half goes to Quebec.

The major scheme is the $150 million loan fund from which the provinces can borrow at low interest for long terms. Tied to a regional unemployment formula, it provides amounts ranging from $68 million for Quebec and $35 million for British Columbia to $1 million for Prince Edward Island.

An earlier program designed to cool off commercial building in fast-growing areas will be allowed to lapse on schedule in the coming year.

In a new move to encourage spending on expansion or construction of plant facilities, manufacturing and processing companies will be allowed to claim depreciation on 15 per cent more than their actual cost of machinery, equipment and buildings between now and April 1, 1973.

Mr. Benson said this would save these companies about $25 million a year in taxes. Such costs are written off over different periods but one estimate is that tax move could cut business taxes by $225 million over the full depreciation period.

He rejected tax cuts as the most effective way of stimulating the economy.

The general tone of the budget, Mr. Benson said, is to get more growth and more jobs without causing renewed inflation.

The government's program of grants and loans to encourage more industry in slow-growth areas is being extended to include Montreal, Hull, Que., all the southwestern part of Quebec province and the counties of Stormont, Glengarry and Prescott in eastern Ontario.

Bay Bridge Is Limitless

By HOT PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

That 20-ton load limit on the Bay Bridge between Belleville and Rossmore doesn't mean a thing!

In fact, as far as the Ontario Department of Highways is concerned, there is no load limit on the Highway 14 route swing bridge.

That there is no load limit on the bay bridge has been confirmed by R. G. Burchfield, regional functional engineer for DHO at Toronto, in a letter to Prince Edward county industrial commissioner W. J. Duggan.

Mr. Burnfield in his letter said that any bridge in Ontario that has a load limit of 20 tons or greater is normally not posted, since any vehicle licensed in Ontario is allowed to cross any bridge which can support 20 tons or more safely.

Just how or why the 20-ton load limit sign came to be erected at the bay bridge remains a secret to know.

Mr. Burnfield said that no one at the Toronto DHO office could say why the Belleville - Rossmore bridge has been posted.

The question of the 20-ton load limit was raised at last week's meeting in Belleville when Quinte area municipal residents met with Mr. Burnfield to press a request for a new high - level bridge over the bay.

Area residents feel a new high - level bridge is necessary to eliminate traffic tieups when the present swing bridge is opened for boats during the busy summer season.

But Hon. George Gomme, highways minister feels the present bridge is adequate for traffic needs for at least another 19 years.

The Prince Edward county industrial commissioner said, however, that the 20-ton limit on the present bridge is a discourage location of industry in the county.

In his letter answering Mr. Duggan's question, Mr. Burnfield said it was his understanding that there are trucks operating on Ontario highways with a gross weight of 80 tons and a vehicle even with this weight would be able to cross the bay bridge safely.

He said that a two-axle vehicle carrying 20 tons actually applies more load in one spot on a bridge than a 60-ton vehicle with six axles.

Mr. Burnfield, in his letter answered another question regarding the liability of the operator of a vehicle that caused structural damage of a bridge, if the truck's gross weight was greater than the posted weight.

"To this I have been informed that the trucker could be held liable for the cost of repairs" he wrote.

"In the instance of the bay bridge, the (20-ton-limit) sign has now been removed, and therefore no person is liable for damage caused by truck weight, provided he is within his licensed load."

But despite advise from Mr. Burnfield that the load limit had been removed from the bridge, this reference apparently was only to the sign at the north end of the bridge.

At 1:30 Thursday afternoon, the 20-ton-load limit sign was still in place at the south end of the swing bridge.

Norris Whitney, member of provincial parliament for Prince Edward - Lennox said he might have the answer as to why a load limit sign was erected at the bridge.

He surmised it had been erected at the time extensive repair work was being done to the bridge's understructure, and no one thought to have it removed.

Mr. Duggan, in Picton said he was "very pleased" that the limit was now off the bay bridge.

"From an industrial standpoint it means that large transports can use the bridge," he said.

However, Mr. Duggan suspected that heavy local transports were using the bridge despite the 20 ton posting.

And this was borne out by the duty bridge tender Thursday who said that heavy equipment trucks far in excess of 20 tons commonly used the bridge.

Today all the 20-ton limit signs are now off the bridge.

A hurry - up call from Mr. Whitney to the highways department Thursday afternoon resulted in the despatch of a truck with directions to take down the sign — on the south end of the bridge.

Meaningless Limit

This 20-ton load limit sign at the Belleville-Rossmore bay bridge doesn't mean what it says. Department of Highways now says the bridge has no load limit an dthe signs have been removed.

A Step Nearer the Stars

Moving a step nearer to the stars, repeater mechanism for communications satellite is gently hoisted onto truck platform at Northern Electric last night. The sophisticated electronic package is enroute to Britain for integration into Telsat 4.

Satellite On First Trip

A million-dollar baby was gently transported from Belleville last night in silence.

But the world is scheduled to hear from it again — and again and again.

For the one-ton package shipped from the city contained Northern Electric's major contribution to Intelsat — the international communications satellite program.

Now on its way to Britain is the repeater unit for the satellite Intelsat 4, scheduled for launching some time in 1972.

Described by Northern officials as "the heart" of the satellite, the repeater will receive and relay signals from satellite ground stations.

Its transportation has significance for both Northern and Belleville.

For company scientists and technicians last night's move was the culmination of more than a year's work — a project which grew daily in the hands of a team assembled in signed for them in Belleville.

For Belleville, the Intelsat 4 project briefly touched the city's industrial complex with the prestige of space-age technology.

The repeater package was launched at Northern's Belleville plant to fulfill a contract of more than $1-million from Hughes Aircraft Corporation of California — manufacturers of the Intelsat series.

To produce their electronic prodigy, the team worked in a specially - built, dust - free "clean room" at Northern.

The off - spring of their skill is a space - age mechanism that can handle 5,000 two - way telephone calls or 12 television channels.

On its arrival in Britain the wheel - shaped unit will be secured atop the satellite and mounted with antennas, its components integrated with the rest of the satellite.

The entire unit, assembled by British Aircraft Corporation then will be reshipped to Hughes Aircraft for testing and eventually launching more than a year from now.

Actual shipment of the repeater also demanded skill and patience.

Because of the need to ensure air - pressure levels in the "clean room" partitions had to be removed and rebuilt in phases as the component was edged toward the plane's delivery area.

Earlier this year there were hopes the unit would continue in operation after Hughes won the contract for TeSat — Canada's first communications satellite. Northern already held a Hughes work promise for a $3,250,000 contract on that project. However, Northern recently announced centralization of all such communications production at a new plant to be built in Hull.

The Intelsat 4 repeater thus becomes the only major spaceage unit which will bear a Belleville stamp of origin in the foreseable future.

It's despatch last night also evoked sentimental reaction from the team which had assembled its delicate mechanism.

...ule proud of their achievement, they also were very sorry to see it go, said one member of the team for which the unit has been a daily production pre-occupation for more than 12 months.

Moving the component took hours of gentle manoeuvring.

The repeater nestled in a special shipping chest sent from British Aircraft Corporation. The shipping unit was spring - loaded and contained desiccant — air-absorption c...

The amount of its insurance was not known. A northern official said the protection was taken out by BAC.

Final phase in the move came when the unit was hooked to a 25-ton mobile crane operated by Finkle Crane Rental, and gingerly locked onto the platform of a tractor-trailer.

Members of the team which had created the unit shepherded its departure to the last — up to the time it was despatched for Toronto and air shipment to Britain.

Just as you were, you will always be Always remembered by Kay, Lorne and Ann.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear mother who passed away on Saturday, Dec. 4, 1954.
It's seldom we speak
Of the love we still feel
But half of a heart that is broken
Is left with us still
When loved one's cannot be spoken
Though gone she is not forgotten, for with memory
In the hearts of those who loved her
She lives on.
—Dearly loved and missed by Pearl.

MADDISON — In memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Dan, R.I.P.
In memory's shrine I keep
In memory's shrine I keep
The thoughts of you dear
And no one can take your place.
—Sadly missed by Pearl.

ABBOTT — In loving memory of a dear father and grandpa, Ray Abbott, who passed away Dec. 4, 1969.
Peace, God, forgive a silent tear,
A farewell wish a dad and grandad was here.
Others have taken you we know,
But to you were you we loved best.
His health was yes a last farewell,
His eyes said goodbye,
His heart stopped beating we knew it,
And only God knows why.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Margaret and son-in-law Lawrence, also by his grandchildren.

LAZIER — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Lena Lazier who passed away Dec. 4, 1966.
Loving memories are all we have,
Unforgotten and just to the end of time.
Memory and time, to her heart and mine.
Beautiful memories she left behind
Memory never leaves us dear,
Memory never leaves us, Larry and Ann and Kevin Reid.

SAYLOR — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Lloyd Saylor who passed away Dec. 4, 1965.
God has him in His keeping,
We have him in our hearts.
—Sadly missed and remembered by Helen, Ruth and Ken.

LAZIER — In loving memory of a dear husband, father, grandfather, Lena Hunt Lazier who passed away Dec. 4, 1966.
God saw you getting weary,
And the end was drawing near,
He came and heard beside you,
And whispered "Come to rest."
Your work is done, your race is run,
Your crown awaiting,
Your life was filled with kindness,
And love for all to share.
—Always remembered by Kay, Lorne and Ann.

Separate School Rift Becomes More Visible

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Fragmentation of the structure of Roman Catholic education in the Belleville area was evident again last night as the Hastings-Prince Edward board of education held an information meeting for ratepayers at Nicholson Catholic College.

As the two-hour question and answer session ground on in accusation and counter-accusation, it revealed trustee set against trustee, trustee against ratepayers and ratepayers against ratepayers.

Nor has the combined committees board succeeded in wedding the districts in its large territory into one unit, as statute trustee attributed to Belleville ratepayers' attitude in insisting that the board is still a city board.

Only on one point did everyone seem in agreement — all deplored the publicity given to the problems in separate school board's troubles.

Mr. Lucy said the separate school system is on trial in the press, trustee Rev. Louis Casartelli of Marmora said it was not the board's fault "that this has been kicked around in the press and made a public scandal," and Ted Thompson of Tweed acclaimed trustee on 1971-72 board, added that "we all feel badly for what has happened in the press."

However, he noted that press coverage "could in the long run not be a bad thing."

Chairman E. J. Buckley attempted to head off any display of board disunity at the start of the meeting by telling the audience of over 150 people that a board must act as a unit. "it has a corporate character".

"After a decision is rendered, an individual trustee has no more to say about it," he asserted.

But the first question from the floor revealed that a split on the board over the suspension of superintendent F. B. Allore.

Paul Fleming, a candidate in the coming election, asked why and considered the suspension. When he was told Mr. Lucy cast a negative vote and Msgr. James Sullivan abstained, he rose later to ask these men to give their reasons.

Both repeated information they had given at previous public meetings on the issue. Mr. Lucy said the superintendent, under extenuating circumstances, did the best job possible and Msgr. Sullivan said he thought it unfair to blame the man for less than 100 per cent performance when he had not the proper staff.

Considerable opposition was expressed to the holding of the board's information meeting in the school of a school board election campaign.

"This board is seeking its own immunity," shouted candidate John Granville and Rev. Mr. Casartelli snapped back: "They (committee trustees) have every right."

Mr. Granville continued to say that he thought it "undignified for a board to act as a board" before an election.

"You could have done it (held the meeting) three months ago, a few weeks ago," he said. "You did it (presented the board's side of the Allore situation) at a town hall meeting a few weeks ago. The trustees have had an equal share of time (with the ratepayers' group)."

Candidate and ratepayers critic(ald) a letter, a "trustee's report to separate school supporters" sent by mail Wednesday to all ratepayers in the system(over the names of the 14 trustees.

Mr. Fleming asked if the board considered the five-page letter slanderning material and Mr. Granville asked what was new in the letter "that we hadn't heard before and that required the cost. from tax money, of production.

"We waited seven months for this," he said. "Why couldn't we have waited another week?"

Michael Collins read a presentation from the Belleville ratepayers' group that has supported Mr. Allore and called the meeting "an election ploy".

Another candidate for election, Gerard Brosnan, questioned Mr. Buckley on a paragraph of the letter saying "In August, 1969, there occurred a flagrant violation of authority and from then on relations worsened between the superintendent and trustees."

The flagrant violation of authority mentioned was "the Paterson incident", Mr. Buckley said.

He went on to tell his listeners that on Aug. 25, with no prior information to the trustees, Mr. Allore dismissed Mr. Patterson, the board's controller. He gave the controller a half hour to collect his effects and "get out" and notified the banks at the same time.

This, said Mr. Buckley, was a violation of Mr. Patterson's contract, which stated that he could not be dismissed without the approval of a two-thirds majority of the board. A regular meeting of the board at which the matter could have been put before trustees, was scheduled for two days later.

A ratepayer's representative then noted that Mr. Allore was in the audience and might want to give his explanation of the incident.

Mr. Allore said he had decided to attend the meeting in view of the sending of the letter and he "knew the gross errors in the letter probably would be perpetuated at the meeting".

He turned the issue back to the board by asking if it did not vote later, with a two-thirds majority, to dismiss the controller?

In a surprise move, Mr. Buckley said Mr. Patterson was in the audience and invited him to the microphone to give his version.

Mr. Patterson related the events concerning his relations with Mr. Allore and the board and said a personality clash with the superintendent was the reason for his dismissal. The time before his dismissal was he criticized by Mr. Allore, he said, except on one occasion when he was charged with having opened the superintendent's mail. Mr. Patterson denied the accusation.

Mr. Patterson was re-instated by the board but left its employment three months later.

"I submitted a resignation later because I couldn't stand working there — it was proper hell," he said.

"You people," he added, addressing the ratepayers aligned with Mr. Allore against the board, "are doing a great injustice to education here and I'd be ashamed to walk up the aisle of the church with you."

Mr. Patterson said later he had driven 75 miles from his home to attend the meeting because he had heard of "the Patterson incident" being raised in a ratepayers' meeting held to permit Mr. Allore to put his case before the public.

It was left to another candidate for election, Zdenek Kvarda, to cool the emotion-charged atmosphere of the Nicholson gym at this point.

"This meeting is not conducive to good public relations," he rose to declare. "This board is constituted for the benefit of the children; not for trustees or for employees. We are not judges here."

He asked about board-teacher relations and channels of board and its staff.

In reply, Mr. Buckley told film the procedures by which teachers could approach the board were "pretty well fouled up" in the past two years.

He called C. G. Mersereau, supervisor of curriculum to explain the procedures, and Mr. Mersereau said a board-teacher liaison committee has been set up to hear teachers' complaints.

Father Casartelli came to the defence of the board in a lengthy speech chastising ratepayers for their lack of interest in school business until "someone has an axe to grind."

He hinted at the regionalism among ratepayers, saying that the concern of the pro-Allore ratepayers' group was for the city of Belleville only, and "I have noted far greater interest by Belleville ratepayers in things that concern Belleville alone, rather than the county as a whole."

He defended the board's silence on the Allore situation, adding that the board had decided initially to protect the man's reputation by not commenting on the matter .

He told the ratepayers' meeting in Bancroft a week ago, called by "Friends of Mr. Allore" to which he, as trustee representing the area, had not been invited and at which only six ratepayers out of 400 in the district were in attendance.

"These aids are better fitted than any others you might elect to carry on, because they will not make the same mistakes again," he said. "We have learned a lot in the past two years. If a new board is elected, it would be a repetition of the same thing, as new trustees have to learn the things we have learned over the past two years."

Mr. Kvarda quizzed the board on its financial situation and Edgar Paquet, business administrator was called up to present figures.

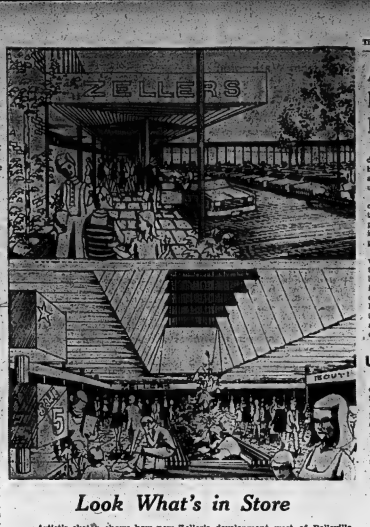
He said the board had, at the end of 1969, a $118,000 deficit from former boards.

In addition, during its first year of operation the board had an underlevy of $117,000.

"This is the amount that should have collected to have a balanced budget," said Mr. Paquet. "Underlevy is another word for deficit. Under current grant structures, a board should levy a certain number of dollar a year against property owners. If the board levies less, this is an underlevy."

Scattered applause after each remark indicated that ratepayers present were divided about equally .between those in opposition to board policies and those in support.

Several ratepayers went to the microphone to defend the board.



Leo Fleming of Picton said it made him sick to see separate school affairs "splashed all over the front" and added that the trustees are elected by ratepayers.

If the ratepayers don't like them, vote them out," he said. "Don't get together and form minority groups. Vote it out."

Mrs. Ben Burley questioned "the advisability and prudence of a minority group approaching the department of education."

Mr. Courneyea, the trustee already elected by acclamation in the Tweed - Hungerford district, had the almost-final word toward the end of the meeting.

"There is a lot of animosity here tonight," he said. "I know what I'm getting into and I know its not very pleasant."

future growth potential" of the Belleville area, he said.

Don Whalen, president of D. J. Whalen, said the project re-emphasized the confidence of national business developers in the Belleville-area potential.

"Sometimes people from out of town show more interest or confidence than we do ourselves," he said. Sometimes we just can't see the forest for the trees . . . We're just too close to it and we can't think optimistically enough."

The planned Zeller's department store is projected as one of the chain's largest, carrying a "vast variety of merchandise," said Mr. Marvell.

It will be designed as a self-one-stop family shopping. Its retail sectors will include home improvement, furnishings, camera, pet, and home entertainment units, a drug store and 76-seat luncheonette.

The identity of the centre's second major tenant — a supermarket — may be announced within the next 10 days, said Whalen representative Jack Diamond.

Services on the site may be provided by well water and a septic tank, said Mr. Diamond.

Sidney reeve Jack Bush, who attended the press conference revealing development details, said the commercial project blended with development plans for the area.

Such expansion explained the necessity for setting up sewer and water services on an area basis, said Reeve Bush.

Advance Balloting Is Light

The advance poll for Monday's school board election being held at city hall today and Saturday, was quiet up until noon today.

To shortly before 13 o'clock, only three voters had cast their ballots at the advance poll being held in the city industrial commissioner's department.

Monday's election in Belleville is for school board trustees only with five members each for both the Hastings County Board and Education, and the Hastings and Prince Edward School Board to be elected by city public and separate school supporters.

UNICEF Total Up

This year's Hallowe'en campaign for UNICEF netted $5,284.52 despite the bad weather Hallowe'en night, the Hastings County UNICEF Committee announced this morning.

The fund - raising project which was a co-operative effort between public, separate and Christian schools was organized for the first time on a county-wide basis.

While no complete records are available for comparison purposes with last year's donations, organizers feel that an over all increase was received and that a contribution of a county approach was desirable.

Public Schools under the Hastings County Board of Education, netted $3,819.52. The separate school system netted $1,971.53 for UNICEF. Additional collections resulted in the total.

Life Goes On

"Dawn," a daily newspaper in Karachi brought back by Intelligencer representative Kenneth Smith gives wide coverage to measures being taken to relieve cyclone victims, as well as to the coming national elections.

While Dawn acknowledges help being received from abroad, there is emphasis naturally on the relief efforts at home — a visit to the battered offshore islands for example by the commander-in-chief of the Pakistan navy — and on aid from near-neighbors such as Iran. Shown making a television appeal is Empress Farah Pahlavi, wife of the Shah, and two planes a day were reported arriving in Dacca with Iranian aid.

An article on this page today speaks of "generally sluggish world reaction to the Pakistan calamity." We cannot agree that this has been the case, certainly not in our own midst where full publicity has been given to Transport Command's flights to Dacca with Canadian relief supplies.

But even in the midst of disaster, life goes on. Advertising reflects the same kind of materialist world we are familiar with here. In addition to an appeal to citizens to send cash for cyclone victims, in space donated by a Karachi firm, the Automobile Corporation of Pakistan has a front page ad for the "shapely, spacious, sturdy" Zastava auto which sounds suspiciously like a Russian vehicle. Alongside is an attractive young woman in an ad for "Ok-Ok sunglasses. On an inside page there are ads for a Japanese motorcycle and a "vaporub" ointment well known in the west as a cold cure. There are tender notices and job opportunities, as well as accommodation available.

But perhaps the most obvious indication of normality are the sports pages. The front page has a report on the England-Australia test cricket at Brisbane from former Aussie test player Keith Miller. In the sports section proper, "a scintillating century" by test player Shafqat Rana was credited with putting the Governor's Eleven in a strong position against Punjab University, and there were reports of a field hockey tournament and "exhilarating" play by a Pakistani badminton team touring Ceylon.

Short of nuclear war then, our world is always demonstrating its ability to bounce back, so to speak. Whatever our own troubles here in Canada, or whatever the troubles of Peru in the wake of its earthquake, or of say Northern Ireland, we may be quite certain that the essential normality of life in all these places is being well maintained, as it is in Pakistan.

Welfare Reforms

That there is mixed reaction to the government's proposals regarding old age security and family benefits is clear from comments gleaned by The Canadian Press. It ranges from Opposition leader Robert Stanfield's "inadequate — we see here no effective broadening of the basis of security," to Stanley Knowles' acknowledgment of "a number of good things," while deploring "cruel" move to eliminate the cost-of-living increase of two per cent a year in the basic old age pension which will be frozen at $80 a month.

At least it is a start toward improving the lot of the many Canadians in need. For example, the premise that families earning more than $10,000 are in no need of family allowance, while those earning less than $4,500 should have increased allowances, seems to us a good one.

There could be some argument about the cutoff point; a figure of $12,000 has been suggested, for example, but from here it is far, why bother to eliminate it at all? No, $10,000 to $12,000 seems an eminently sensible figure.

They Hate It!

CP Air is getting a lot of mileage from its great mid- hassle. Assailed by protests from passengers affronted by the stewardess' new "country" look, CP asked the public to answer either of the questions "I hate it," or "I like it." Interim figures showed 15,987 against the mid and a scant 2,148 in favor of it. Not content with this blockbuster sign of public alarm over the mid, CP has put out another advertisement seeking further votes, noting that the mid would go if balloting continued in the above vein. It just goes to show an airline will go to any lengths to please its passengers.

As Seen from Washington

Pakistan Disaster: A German Laments World Unconcern

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — In the wake of generally sluggish world reaction to the Pakistan calamity—possibly the worst natural disaster on record—a few voices are being raised in sorrow at man's faltering capacity for pity and shock.

With 150,000 known dead reported in the New, 12 cyclone and tidal wave—and the estimated final toll running as high as one million—the world has seemingly pretty well lost interest in the story.

Whether the news media is at fault in its reporting of the tragedy, or mankind has simply become stunned by the vastness of events in this remote area remains an open question.

The public debate here was launched by Helmut Sieger, chief of the Washington bureau of the German news magazine Der Spiegel, who in a letter to the editor of the Washington Post, noted that the gas chambers of Auschwitz, the A-bombing of Hiroshima and the French carnage in Algeria have acquainted the world's conscience."

Decrying the world's offer of what he termed a few helicopters, a few million dollars, third world, and possibly a message from the Pope, he asks:

"How, one wonders, would the world react if 150,000 white men had been washed into the ocean on the coast of Holland, if cyclonic tornadoes to destroy the nation of tulip-growers—how the world would grow over the terrible loss."

Whatever the rationale, the story evaporated fast in the U.S., being swept from the front pages after only a day by the renewed bombing in Indochina, the frustrated rescue mission in the Hanoi prison-of-war camp, the aftermath on the life of Pope Paul and the like.

The Post, in a companion editorial published with Sieger's letter, suggests that part of the retarded, indeed, "gross out of the psychology our overpopulated depletion that Decca is so far away from us and little a part of our world that the death of a couple of hundred thousand or even a million Pakistanis means no concern of ours." It adds:

"Most of the news media, ourselves included, have treated it as just another chapter, and a brief one at that, in the tragedies that have befallen mankind."

The situation is heavy with paradox. The activities of antiwar dissidents, college youth, so-called "new" politicians, liberated women all suggest a modern America, more concerned for the individual, more anguished over human misery than ever before.

Yet human tragedy in far-off East Pakistan, or in Vietnam, gets only slightly less attention —except for occasional political skirmishes—than does poverty in the ghettos, in the U.S. South or in America's vast depressed Appalachia areas.

James Reston, highly respected columnist for the New York Times, noted that even while the U.S. has 4.3 million unemployed, and Congress refused to accept President Nixon's family assistance plan the grounds the U.S. cannot afford it, Defence Secretary Melvin Laird announced a new military budget must go up next year.

. . . And very few people even notice the paradox," he says, except the critics.

"A decent, fair-minded, well-informed people somehow do not act that way, often do not even think about, the inhumanities they have, not because they are wicked or pitiless, but because they do not feel what they know, or if they do, think they are helpless to do anything about it."

Luxury Fittings Transform Bus Into Rental Profit

German Features

COLOGNE — Frank Jakob Goddertz, of Cologne — friends call him "Jack" — has a soft spot for old busses. Now he's added a money-making rarity to his collection, a 1935 French model that used to serve on Paris' Gare St. Lazare-Place Clichy line.

Goddertz acquired the old timer last year for $1,370, then got his money - making brainstorm. He spent another $8,220 to transform the interior into a pub with thick carpeting, stereo, a grill and refrigeration facilities.

Goddertz rents his traveling pub to companies and other groups for picnics and, of course does the driving himself. Though the top speed of the bus is only about 20 mph — and that downhill — the owner is finding that the model attracts many enthusiasts who share his fascination for old busses.

He has little difficulty renting the model, which he calls the "Paris Express", 100 days each year. Goddertz is getting his original investment back in full, with the promise of profits in the future.

Freedom of Speech

The Trentonian

That hornet's nest that sprung up Tom Gould stirred up at the annual Chamber of Commerce meeting should not be considered a loss. It is easy to sit and nod to people who preach platitudes. To be brought up short rudely and made to think is the kind of challenge we all need.

Mr. Gould made us think, even if only to search for the reasons behind what we believe. What is more he uttered some valid warnings. The encroachments upon freedom by governments are many, and must be resisted. Our system allows us the freedom to resist by lawful expression of opinion.

It is that right to express opinion that we must not lose. Mr. Goddfi served us well by reminding us that it is our main bastion of defence against all kinds of tyranny.

Litterbugs in Oregon Face Jail Term Clearing Highways Of—Yes—Litter

Kingston Whig-Standard

Canadians shouldn't have to be reminded of the seriousness of the litter problem that blights which bedevils our cities and spoils the beauty of the countryside. All they need to do is look around them.

Our governments are demonstrating an increasing concern over the problem of environmental pollution and a general awareness that a tough approach is necessary. On the problem of litter, unfortunately, they have done little but quibbling.

In the state of Oregon, persons convicted of littering face fines of up to $250 and six months in jail. But that's not all. In addition, they must spend most of their jail time picking litter off state highways and cleaning up other trash-covered areas.

The Intelligencer,

In 1945, Brantford, Ontario began adding fluoride to the water supply. Each year, since the people began drinking fluoridated water, the amount of tooth decay in Brantford has decreased steadily.

In a message in June of this year, marking 25 years of fluoridation in Brantford, Federal Health Minister John Munro noted that more than 300 Canadian municipalities with a population of some 7,000,000, "are enjoying the protection of fluoride-adjusted systems."

The minister added: I would like to congratulate the residents of Brantford who, today, are celebrating the 25th year since becoming the first community in the Commonwealth to fluoridate its water supply."

Ontario Health Minister Thomas Wells, in another message, noted that studies conducted in Brantford, and many other centres throughout the world, have provided conclusive evidence that fluoridation reduces dental decay in children by 60 percent and that dental health is improved throughout the lifetime of people who have had fluoridation during the period when their teeth were forming.

Work for Unemployed?

Hamilton Spectator

Several electioneering candidates have revived an old idea—finding useful voluntary work for unemployed men who have been forced onto the welfare rolls.

It's a scheme worth sifting through 1970 conditions and values. Within a period of two or three weeks, a civic committee could explore the facts in depth and find out if a modern version of Depression - style make - work projects is feasible.

There are grounds for initiative.

The number of Hamiltonians on welfare has grown by more than 30 per cent this year, to a total of nearly 8,100. This includes 685 employable men who are heads of families, 889 employable single men and 367 employable women. Welfare authorities report many work - work forced onto the welfare rolls.

Costs of local welfare are expected to run $1.3 million over the original $3.3 million budget for this year. The price is more likely to go up than down as natural and inflation policy and the normal winter slow-down cut into the job market.

Hamilton has a growing number of maintenance projects requiring unskilled labor—certain Face clean-up, dead elm works that will have to be borne by a civic budget being squeezed by rising welfare costs.

Stakes Were too High - - Life of Cross - - to Raid House Earlier

MONTREAL (CP) — What was the price of breaking a kidnapped ring Thursday?

"Extraordinary security measures . . . In order not to jeopardize . . . human life," Justice Minister Jerome Choquette told a news conference.

James (Jasper) Cross, the kidnapped British envoy, had to "pay the freedom we have fought for and enjoyed in this country."

Mr. Choquette said that while police suspected a Montreal North cellule for about 3½ weeks, they were not really sure until Wednesday night.

The raiders were too high — Mr. Cross' life — to move in earlier.

As it turned out, the three persons holding the 49-year-old envoy got wind of the police presence and threatened to kill him if any attempts were made to rescue him.

After police had encircled the house — sealed off now for an indefinite period — and were ready to move in Thursday morning, someone threw out a lead pipe containing a lengthy-scorned message which read:

"If you try anything gangsters, like Mr. Cross will be the first to die. We have several sticks of dynamite with detonators."

Mr. Choquette confirmed police fears about the danger involved in any premature action, saying they had to "pay attention" to Mr. Cross' life.

"The threat of an explosion was a real threat."

With the house "completely cornered" by several hundred police and soldiers, Mr. Choquette said, the three men holding Mr. Cross had to negotiate their way out.

What would have happened if the trio had refused to negotiate?

"I can't see many avenues," Mr. Choquette said. "I can see a siege, a long drawn-out siege, or other police actions. But the problem never arose."

The note added that a reporter from Le Devoir, the weekly Quebec-Presse or lawyer Jr. Gerard Mergler, who has often represented accused terrorists, enter negotiations.

Mr. Mergler was selected and an agreement was reached about 1 p.m., with a total of seven persons getting safe passage to Cuba in exchange for Mr. Cross, Mr. Choquette said.

Mr. Choquette said it was even a tight-rope situation in getting the entire group to the Canadian pavilion on the former site of Expo 67, where Mr. Cross was to be released on temporary Cuban soil and the seven would be taken to Montreal International Airport.

"I don't think that they (those found with Mr. Cross) were armed" when they reached the Canadian pavilion. "But I am told there was dynamite in the back of the car."

The car, an old, beat-up Chrysler, was driven under heavy police escort by Marc Carbonneau, wanted in the kidnapping Oct. 5 of Mr. Cross and the Oct. 10 abduction of Pierre Laporte, Quebec's labor minister slain Oct. 17.

Mr. Choquette said, however, that despite the warrant for Carbonneau, a 31-year-old former taxi driver, he was not involved in the Laporte case.

Otherwise, he would never have been allowed safe passage to Cuba, since people wanted in the Laporte case are not included in the exchange offers from Quebec and Ottawa.

Mr. Choquette said Carbonneau's "main activity" was connected to the Cross abduction.

With Carbonneau on the flight to Cuba were Jacques Lanctot, his wife and child, Lanctot's brother-in-law Jacques Cosette-Trudel, his wife and Pierre Seguin, an unknown.

Mr. Cross, according to Premier Robert Bourassa spent most of his 59 days of captivity in a small, windowless room.

As Mr. Choquette put it:

"I can assure everyone that Mr. Cross seemed in excellent physical and mental condition."

In a brief chat with Mr. Cross, Mr. Choquette found him to be stoic and courageous, accepting his lot, "but he was a man who had lost two months of his life."

Mr. Cross had suffered physically to some extent "because a man who was held in detention for two months was bound to have some marks."

A videotape of the conversation was shown on the CBC Thursday.

Mr. Cross said Thursday was "one of the happiest days of my life."

Referring to his sunless eight weeks, Mr. Cross said: "It's a small thing and suddenly you came out of a house and it's a bright day like today and you suddenly realize how much a little thing like that, that costs you nothing, means in one's day-to-day life."

He described his situation in captivity as "a state of suspended animation" and said he thought he had seen more than 100 films on television.

"They were French films so that I'm probably the leading expert of the past 30 years," he joked.

But he introduced a more sombre note as he said he did not know his future plans.

"It may be difficult for me to return to Montreal," he said.

"I've enjoyed enormously my three years there . . . and it's a bit sad that we ended up on this note."

Mr. Cross also talked to his wife Barbara, staying with friends in Switzerland, to Prime Minister Edward Heath of England and to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Meanwhile, there was still the search for the kidnappers and murderers of Mr. Laporte, strangled with a chain around his neck that held a religious medal.

"We will pursue to the end the murderers of Mr. Laporte," Mr. Choquette said. He called Mr. Laporte "a valiant Quebecer."

Cross Longs for Rest In English Countryside

LONDON (CP) — A few days of quiet rest in the English countryside — that's the most ardent wish of James (Jasper) Cross at the moment.

A foreign office informant said the British diplomat, released Thursday from a harrowing, two-month ordeal at the hands of Montreal terrorists who kidnapped him, has flashed this wish to his British colleagues.

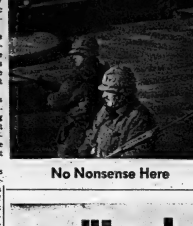
Meanwhile, Britain seemed to be shouting the good news about the Cross release from the rooftop as newspapers from one end of the country to the other headlined the end of anguish for the 49-year-old trade commissioner.

Prime Minister Heath telephoned his congratulations to Prime Minister Trudeau at Ottawa. The Queen planned to send a personal note to Cross in Montreal.

His wife, waiting patiently in Bern, Switzerland, was virtually swamped by telephone calls from newspapers and broadcasting stations around the world as news spread that abductors belonging to the Front de Liberation du Quebec had yielded their victim alive.

It appeared likely that she and her husband would be reunited in London or in the neighboring area either Friday or Saturday. Officials said Cross planned to leave Montreal after a medical check-up and likely would make the transatlantic trip aboard a Canadian government plane.

"But he doesn't want to see anyone for a few days," a foreign office spokesman said. "He just wants to spend a few days with his wife somewhere in the countryside. We will respect that wish."



Later Cross will discuss his 59-day captivity with British colleagues before going on a long holiday. It appeared likely that the Irish-born diplomat will receive a high award when the Queen's honors list comes out on New Year's Day.

The Cross release, with all its high drama of a trip in a repeated bomb-rigged car, signals of police and hundreds of troops, came as Britain took sides in a big clash over proposed new laws to tame unruly unions.

But that fight was slipped to one side as the papers poured out the Cross story.

The Evening News described Cross as "the man who returned from the jungle." The Evening Standard headlined its story: "So haggard — after 60 days."

In the earlier morning papers the big word was "Free."

No Nonsense Here

Police Were So Close Kidnappers Asked Talks

MONTREAL (CP) — Official information indicates that police were so close to discovering the Montreal North house where kidnapped James (Jasper) Cross was being held that his abductors decided to negotiate for their own safety.

Prime Minister Trudeau said police and the army surrounded the house after police received a note from the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Mr. Trudeau said the Common law FLQ abductors sent the note Wednesday night, after police began an intensive search in Montreal.

In Quebec City, Premier Robert Bourassa said the negotiations resulted from "two or three weeks" of work by Quebec Provincial Police and other police forces.

Quebec Le Soleil says the break in the case followed the arrest of the sister of Jacques Lanctot, a kidnap suspect.

In Montreal, La Presse says that for "several days" at least, an upper level of the hideout was occupied by police.

Quoting an anonymous source, the newspaper says Montreal North police, suspecting the presence of thieves, investigated the upper level — and found other policemen.

The newspaper did not name the occupying force.

But it says they feared raiding the downstairs hideout because it might have been rigged with a dynamite trap.

Radio station CJAD said police suspected the house for two weeks and were certain Wednesday night that it was the hideout.

CJAD said police surrounded the house Wednesday night and as they were about to move in Thursday morning, a lead pipe containing a message was thrown outside.

The message said that if Mr. Cross were to be protected, negotiations should be started.

Mrs. Cross, Too, Set Free at Last

Wearing a blue coat-dress and stroking her Dalmatian, Holly, she told a crowded news conference at the residence of British Ambassador Eric Hildyard:

"I am definitely happy after these long weeks of tension during which, like my husband, I was my own prisoner. But I never gave up hope."

Looking tired after only a few hours sleep, Mrs. Cross said she was "too excited" to remember her husband's first words when she spoke to him on the telephone during the night after his release in Montreal by kidnappers who held him for two months.

"But I remember him saying he had seen 162 French films on television and this improved his understanding of the language. But he said he spoke very little with his captors."

Sitting beside Ambassador McAdgar — he and his wife are old friends of the Cross family — as Canadian Ambassador James Roberts, she said:

"My husband said he lost a lot of weight — about 20 pounds. I asked him what food he had had he jot said he didn't like it very much.

"The kidnappers gave him a good collection of revolutionary literature, but its very unlikely he was converted."

"Two men with sub-machine guns guarded him day and night and he said he kept hoping they were well trained in controlling them."

She said her husband "did not seem bitter" towards his kidnappers. "He was so buoyant. He told me he felt the fairness" ion his captors were not very keen on the idea of going to Cuba but it seems they had no choice."

She said there was "one bad day" in Canada when a boxer pretending to be her husband phoned her. "I only found out it wasn't him when I got a bit suspicious and asked him for the name of the bull terrier we used to have in India. He didn't know."

She expressed gratitude for "the support and comfort from an enormous number of Canadian friends and hundreds of people unknown to her who sent letters and gifts. She said they mene from French- and English-speaking Canadians.

"They sustained me throughout this time — it will take my husband six months to read them."

Asked for her personal opinion of the separatist movement in Quebec, she replied quietly: "This is a problem too personal for me to be able to answer objectively."

Embassy officials said there are no set plans for the reunion between Mr. and Mrs. Cross but it is expected to take place this weekend.

Mrs. Cross said they have no plans for the near future. "We will decide later where we should go for a rest," she said.

Seven Flown to Cuba

tremely hard to bear for eight weeks was to be completely cut off from light."

Mr. Cross had said he was held in a small, windowless room during his captivity.

There were indications that police were aware of the hideout location before they began surrounding it Wednesday night.

A top-level source in Ottawa said police knew the location for "three or four days" — no more, no less.

He also said that Trudel and his wife, who were given passage to Cuba, were arrested Wednesday.

This seemed to back up a report in Montreal La Presse that an upper level of the hideout was occupied by police for "several days" at least.

The newspaper said the occupying forces feared raiding the hideout because it might have been rigged with a dynamite trap.

Carbonneau is the only person to have significant ly Cuba who has been officially connected with the kidnappings. A warrant for his arrest in connection with both kidnappings was issued Oct. 16.

Original demands of the FLQ for Mr. Cross' release included release of 23 so-called "political prisoners" — persons in jail or awaiting trial in connection with FLQ terrorist activity.

Although the government rejected this and other demands, it offered to parole five of the prisoners who were eligible for release.

But in the final act of the drama Thursday, the Cross captors apparently abandoned this offer, contenting themselves with seeing only to their own safety.

Meanwhile, the search for the kidnappers and killers of Pierre Laporte continues.

"Look at the great shape the new Corollas are in."

We've changed our famous line of Toyota Corollas. They're bigger inside, a little longer and wider outside and a lot prettier all over. In fact we've changed everything except the high level of quality that's a part of every Toyota we build.

The Corollas are available in three models. A sleek low slung Coupe, a two door sedan for the economy minded, and a roomy wagon for sport minded families. The engine is the rugged, well tried 73 horsepower overhead-valve four coupled to a four speed all synchromesh transmission or an optional automatic (coupe and 2 door only). We've also added front disc brakes for even safer, more controlled stops and of course, all the safety and luxury equipment at no extra cost. Fully reclining bucket seats, rear window defogger, collapsible steering column, heavy duty heater, upper deck ventilation with four-boost, not to mention a few. Add Toyota's world-wide reputation for craftmanship, a service organization second to none and owning a Corolla makes a lot of beautiful sense. The Toyota Corolla Coupe, two door sedan and wagon. Transport Jet Subsidy Ended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted decisively Thursday to ground further federal subsidies for the supersonic transport, a plane President Nixon has personally sponsored.

The defeation of several Republicans clinched the 53-to-41 adoption of an amendment killing a $290 million SST subsidy fund from the transportation department's appropriation bill.

The amendment was sponsored by Senator William Proxmire (Dem., Wis.), who was able to muster only 33 votes for a similar amendment last year.

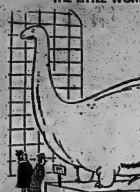
The big difference this year was concern for the environment, a new issue in which the embattled SST has become a major symbol of potential global pollution.

As Proxmire scored a personal victory, Washington state's two Democratic senators, Warren G. Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson, shared the defeat with Nixon. Their state is the home of the Boeing Aircraft Co., prime contractor for SST development.

Jackson said the Senate had "turned its back on 50,000 working men and women currently engaged in this program, and 180,000 who eventually would have been engaged."

Magnuson called the vote "a real blow at the future of American air superiority in the next generation."

Both men, aided by such senators as Barry Goldwater (Rep., Ariz.), argued in vain that an American SST is needed if the U.S. is to retain its supremacy in technology and in the aircraft markets of the world.



Reds Opposed To Ombudsman

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Angry Western diplomats charged Thursday that the Soviet Union and some Arabs are using filibuster tactics to stop substantive debate on proposals to create a UN high commissioner for human rights—a sort of world ombudsman.

The diplomats made the charge in interviews as the General Assembly's humanitarian committee resolved a stormy three-day procedural hassle almost along the lines proposed by the Soviets and their friends.

For the last four years, Western countries have attempted to get a substantive debate on the proposal. But the opposition has been strong by some countries.

Public Order Bill Given Royal Assent

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate gave final approval Thursday to the government's public order bill that will replace regulations under the War Measures Act to deal with terrorism in Quebec.

There was no formal vote on final reading of the measure that was passed by the Commons Tuesday after almost a month of debate.

The legislation later was given royal assent.

No Talks Held on GM Offer

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators for the United Auto Workers and General Motors of Canada Ltd. continued non-committal talks on secondary issues Thursday, but did not meet to discuss GM's latest offer on the major issues of wages, cost-of-living allowances and pension benefits.

Spokesmen for both sides said there was no indication the union had modified its initial reaction to Wednesday's offer which was described then as unacceptable by Leonard Woodcock, international president of the UAW.

Master-level talks were adjourned after the offer was made and there was no indication when they would be resumed. Meantime, low-level meetings continued on secondary items.

Canadian officials on both sides of the talks noted the union had not closed the door entirely on the new offer, having described it as a basis of negotiation, while the company had not described it as a final proposal.

Both sides were admittedly anxious to reach agreement before Christmas to end the strike by Sept. 15 by 23,000 auto workers in six cities in Ontario and Quebec.

Under the new offer, GM would pay assemblers—the most common job classification—a base salary of $4.82 an hour, plus a five-cent cost-of-living allowance to be adjusted periodically with fluctuations of the Canadian consumer price index.

But the UAW demanded parity with the 69,000 GM workers in the U.S. who are getting $4.35 plus a five-cent allowance under terms of a contract signed in Detroit last month.

The company has insisted parity is not justified because the Canadian cost of living is lower than that of the U.S. The union says Canadians should get the same pay as their American counterparts because they are doing the same job.

MPs Asking Themselves: What Makes This A Federal Budget?

OTTAWA (CP) — The most common question in parliamentary corridors Thursday night was why Finance Minister Edgar Benson chose to round up a series of mini-commons measures as a formal budget.

Mr. Benson at a news briefing followed his budget speech explained his tax changes as the continuation, "notably the easier ones," recommended by manufacturers as allowances for capital investment.

But that didn't stifle the questions.

More than half the additional spending announced for the coming months had been known.

Other features—increased unemployment benefits, aid for footwear manufacturers, extension of the regional development program—had been ready for simultaneous announcement by the departments concerned.

As for additional funds for public works to stimulate employment, Mr. Benson had presented a similar measure just seven weeks earlier as a single statement to the Commons.

In answer to a question at the briefing, Mr. Benson mentioned the decision to prolong the three-per-cent income surtax, but stressed the decision to give manufacturers an easier break on capital-cost tax allowances.

The opposition would have raised hell," he said, had he tried to introduce the measures other than through a formal budget. The change will reduce tax revenue by an estimated $25 million out of the total take approaching $14 billion in the next financial year, but extension of the surtax will add $97 million.

Mr. Benson also remarked that his officials had been misbriefing the clerk of the commons—which led them to the date of a budget—"long before the budget was prepared."

The first hint that there was to be an announcement of additional spending came two weeks ago in a statement by Works Minister Arthur Laing. A few weeks earlier, at the end of October, Mr. Benson had been looking ahead publicly only to a spring budget.

Roughly half of the additional spending announced Thursday night will go into Quebec in the wake of the separatist emergency that began with the kidnapping Oct. 5 of British trade commissioner James Cross, who was found on budget day.

Whatever the government's reasons for announcing a round up of aid to Quebec at this point, it won't hurt the anti-separatist campaign by the Trudeau administration in Ottawa and the Bourassa government in Quebec City.

High Jobless Provinces Given Financial Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — Areas facing severe unemployment this winter get a $980 million transfusion of federal funds in Finance Minister Edgar Benson's budget Thursday night. The complexion of the plan is Quebec.

The aid is mostly made up of low-interest loans for provincial and municipal public works projects on a formula, proposed by Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa, based on regional unemployment statistics.

Under this system, Quebec gets most of the total funds available—about $528 million—and Prince Edward Island would be eligible for $1 million.

Quebec would also get a $30 million grant for access roads and other municipal services for a new airport at St. Scholastique, near Montreal, and would share in other federal programs.

The main program, a special fund of $189 million, would immediately allow provincial governments to borrow, at relatively low interest, funds to finance such projects as roads, bridges and sidewalks. A further $60 million would be made available for federal housebuilding loans through Central Mortgage and Housing.

The allocation of the special fund among provinces is based on a formula related to average unemployment rates during the last half of this year in the various regions. It includes unemployment in excess of four per cent of the local labor force and counts treaty Indians jobless on reserves.

This brings Alberta and Saskatchewan into the program. Alberta with $3.6 million available and Saskatchewan $3.1 million.

Ontario, the biggest province but with a relatively low unemployment rate, is allocated $17 million. Manitoba would get $8 million and in the Atlantic region, Newfoundland would get $5 million and New Brunswick and Nova Scotia $4 million each.

British Columbia would get 24 per cent of the total, or $95 million, and Ontario would get 11 per cent along with the three Prairie provinces.

The budget speech did not include any comment on a program introduced last year that attempted to steer down construction activity in the strong inflation centres of Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta.

The program discouraged state aid to capital depreciation. Now, buildings started from the beginning of the new year will be free of the restriction.

Economy Good, Getting Better -Budget Chief

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Benson says the Canadian economy is in generally good shape and should show significant improvement next year.

But he warned in his budget speech to the Commons Thursday night that the twin spectres of inflation and unemployment are still the main concerns in the quest to give all Canadians a fair share of the country's bounty.

"Our only skimpiness concern is for the well-being of all our people," he said. "Our other concerns are significantly less—or less far as they contribute or detract from this goal."

Looking back, he said lates' statistics confirm a healthy international trading position, strength in the housing building industry, and a decline in the rate of price inflation.

Employment and output are again on the rise and unemployment, considering seasonal variations, "appears to be falling."

"There is no question, however, that the rate of growth of employment must improve and that unemployment must be reduced if the economy is best to serve our ever-riding objective of the highest sustainable improvement in the standard of living of all Canadians."

Both inflation and unemployment must be fought and controlled and the government "intends to maintain its fight on both fronts."

He indicated that the government has not given up on the fight against inflation even though the prices and incomes commission announced Tuesday it had failed to get business to agree to an extension of its commitment to hold down price increases.

That agreement expires at the end of the year and there has been speculation there will be a series of price increases by companies who have seen their profits eroded this year by the price-restraint formula.

Under the formula business agreed to hold price increases below cost increases. The commission had been seeking a six-month extension.

Mr. Benson hinted that further budget action could be used if the economy shows sign of flagging.

"In saying this I have in mind not only progress towards full employment but also continued satisfactory price performance.

"If we do not achieve the restraint of prices and costs that we must have we shall not shirk from action that may be required on that front."

While he didn't say so, he appeared to be talking about some sort of wage and price controls even though he has said in the past he doesn't like the idea.

For the future, both employment and output should continue to rise and gain momentum through 1971.

Unemployment figures would no doubt rise through the winter months as they always do. But Mr. Benson said he was hopeful that when seasonal variations are taken into account, unemployment will in fact be found to have peaked this quarter unless improvement is delayed by major labor disputes.

"I do not wish to suggest that the route to full employment will be easy. With the rapid expansion of the labor force . . . but with the prospect of increasing productivity as the economy expands, very substantial rates of real growth will be required to absorb the new workers and reduce unemployment."

But he expects renewed confidence in the private sector will advance towards full use of human and material resources, growth in consumer spending and stronger investment in housing next year.

He forecast that by the second half of the year the gross national product—the total of all goods and services—should be running about 5½ per cent above that of the second half of this year.

His budget speech ended with this note of confidence:

"Investors from all over the world are obviously willing to share their bets on Canada.

"My strong advice to Canadians everywhere is that there is no better bet."

Unemployment Benefits Hiked by 10 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment insurance benefits are to be increased Jan. 3 by 10 per cent, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey announced Thursday.

The raise—an extra $5 a week for those at the top end of the benefit scale—is an interim measure until July 1, 1971, when the government's revised unemployment insurance program is to be implemented.

The increase, costing $54 million, was listed by Finance Minister Edgar Benson's budget speech and is to be absorbed by the government rather than the unemployment insurance fund.

Benefits for an unemployed worker with dependents will increase to a range of $19 to $58 a week from $17 to $53.

Single unemployed workers who now get weekly benefits ranging from $13 to $52 will find increases of between $1 and $4.

The increase is well short of the increase to a maximum of $100 a week proposed by the white paper on unemployment insurance on which new legislation is to be based.

The revised plan, to pay benefits equal to 66 2-3 per cent of normal weekly earnings, will be financed in large part by the extension of the plan to all employees in the work force.

Manufacturers Get Relief

OTTAWA (CP) — The only actual tax change announced by Finance Minister Edgar Benson Thursday is aimed specifically at increasing capital investment in manufacturing and processing industries in Canada.

What the change does is to allow these industries to claim an additional 15 per cent in the form of depreciation allowances on machinery, equipment and structures.

"Effective today, manufacturing and processing enterprises will be permitted to value new investments in machinery, equipment and structures at 115 per cent of their actual cost . . ."

Concrete buildings, for instance, can be depreciated, for tax purposes, at five per cent a year until they are fully depreciated. For trucks and cars it is 30 per cent.

"Since the measure will increase significantly the net return on capital investment, I am confident that it will encourage new capital projects and speed up the implementation of capital outlays planned for the future. . . ."

The allowances would apply to new investments put in place until March 31, 1972. In the next fiscal year, they would reduce federal revenues by $25 million.

Mr. Benson announced the three-per-cent surtax which has been applied to basic personal and corporate income taxes since 1968 will not be removed as planned at the end of this month.

"We have decided with reluctance that we shall have to find some of the cash required this fiscal year and next by means other than borrowing."

The already extended surtax will be continued through the 1971 calendar year, bringing in $345 million over a 12-month period.

Effective Dates

OTTAWA (CP) — Effective dates of budget changes announced Thursday night:

Jan. 1—Unemployment insurance benefits increased 10 per cent.

Immediate—Federal loans totalling $126 million to be available to provinces for make-work projects.

Immediate—Revision of capital cost allowances to permit manufacturers and processors higher writeoff of costs.

Immediate—An extra $23 million in federal works projects in high-unemployment areas starting this winter.

Immediate—Extra $20 million for roads and airports for new Montreal airport.

Immediate—Direct loans and loan guarantees to be available to footwear industry.

Immediate—Parliament to be asked to approve expansion and revision of industrial incentive program to give additional benefits in specified areas of Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic Provinces.

Budget Reaction

Opposition: Groans, Bones and Loans

OTTAWA (CP) — A chorus of opposition criticism greeted Finance Minister Benson's budget Thursday night.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield described the budget as one of means, bones and loans" and David Lewis, deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, said "there's no excuse for it at all."

Mr. Lewis said that apart from the continuation of the surtax and the increase in capital cost allowances, there was nothing in the budget that couldn't have been presented to the House in the form of a simple statement.

Parts of the budget speech, he said, were "ridiculous, laughable."

And Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), the Conservative financial critic, called it a "posturing act of cliches and self-congratulations on the part of the government."

Mr. Stanfield said the only bright note was the 10-per-cent increase in unemployment insurance benefits. But Mr. Lewis said this was one part of the budget that was ridiculous, and laughable.

Quoting the speech as saying the increase will "give an immediate direct stimulus to the economy," Mr. Lewis said it will average about $2 a week for each unemployed person.

"Only a fiction writer could have said that about such an increase."

Mr. Stanfield said there is nothing for those not receiving unemployment benefits and the government should have done more to stimulate the economy generally.

"At a time people are desperate for work," said Mr. Saltsman, "the best Benson can do is a depression kind of winter relief instead of something to stimulate employment."

What was needed was a tax cut, but by continuing the surtax Mr. Benson was actually increasing taxes, he said.

The 10-per-cent increase in unemployment insurance benefits, he said, is "unbelievable condescening charity."

Mr. Lambert said Mr. Benson should have tried to relieve the tax burden on the poor. Help was needed now, not when the tax reform program is completed.

He said the government at first refused to recognize inflation, then over-reacted and went too far the other way, creating massive unemployment.

The program to provide $150 million in loans to the provinces was a "disguised winter works program."

Half of Spending

Benson Budget Steps Up 'Woo Quebec'

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal budget speech up the Trudeau government's decision to design to woo Quebecers back to contentment in Confederation.

The additional spending on anti-recession projects catalogued by Finance Minister Benson—some already known, some new—are national programs that will benefit high-unemployment provinces from British Columbia to Newfoundland.

But Quebec will collect the major share of the extra spending in the wake of the separatist spare generated by Pierre Trud de Liberalism in Quebec and the emergency public-order regulations.

The infusion of money for Quebec, presented as a formal budget, rather than as a spending statement like many in recent weeks, made the move dramatic.

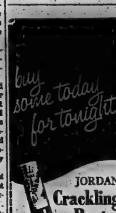
Quebec and its citizens stand to collect almost half the total additional funds allocated in the budget, putting more hard, federal cash behind the federalist Quebec administration of Premier Robert Bourassa.

Mr. Benson made no point of that in his budget speech. But in a statement to the Commons three weeks ago he referred to "a significant change in the political climate in Quebec, which is reflected in the election to office of a provincial government pledged to place a new emphasis on promoting healthy economic growth."

The support for Quebec ranges from the direct grant of $30 million for public works at Ste. Scholastique airport, through help for shoemaking and shipbuilding—both prominent Quebec industries—to the automotive benefits of grants and loans related to regional unemployment.

Quebecers, who constituted 36 per cent of Canadian unemployed in October, thereby should collect about $35 million of the extra $64 million in unemployment benefits to next June.

Almost half the $150 million from the new public-works fund for the provinces—a Bourassa idea—will go to Quebec.



The Montreal area, newly-designated as a region qualifying for incentive grants to new industry, will get the lion's share of $130 million earmarked for that program in the next few years.

That could help raise jobmaking investment in a province that last year received only 52 per cent as much investment as the average for the country as a whole.

Newell – Fahey

Monsignor J. A. Carley officiated at the wedding ceremony in St. Joseph's Church, Belleville for the recent marriage of Estelle Eileen Fahey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fahey, Belleville, to James Paul Newell, Belleville son of Mr. and Mrs. David Newell of Ottawa. Kathleen Lynch rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the bride as Anna Lynch. The bride's father, James and Peter Fahey served mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk velvet featuring an empire waistline, ruffled neckline and sleeves trimmed with Guipure lace. Matching lace banded the sweeping train which extended from a bow at waistline. Her headdress, a cluster of flowers adorned with pearls held a full length flaring veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of Talisman roses.

Mrs. Patricia Bonn of Trenton attended her sister as matron of honor wearing a floor - length sheath gown of forest green silk velvet in empire style with stand - up collar and full sleeves with the tight cuffs trimmed with Guipure lace. Her headdress consisted of roset with green velvet ribbon and matching veil. She carried a white fur muff. Bridesmaids Miss Joanne Fahey, sister of the bride, Belleville, Miss Judy McKay of Bowne and Mrs. Sue Sylke of London were dressed identically to the matron of honor and all carried white muffs.

Michael Fahey of Belleville, brother of the bride, was groomsman, while the ushers were Patrick Newell of Ottawa, brother of the bridegroom, John Marvin of Belleville and Paul Bennett of Oshawa.

For the wedding trip to Florida, the bride wore a wool pant dress with brown accessories. The couple will reside at 308 Dufferin Ave., Belleville.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT BRUCE MacLEOD

MacLeod – Potts

Flower girls Miss Laurie MacLeod, the bridegroom's sister, and Miss Margaret Sommerville, the bride's cousin, were floor length gowns of white velvet. The empire waistlines were accentuated with velvet sashes that tied into bows at the back. Both wore white velvet bows in their hair and carried colonial nosegays of red roses and white baby gardenia with velvet streamers.

The best man was John Potts, brother of the groom from Belleville and Orville Mindell. The ring bearer was David Potts, the bride's cousin.

The reception was held in the Army, Navy and Airforce Hall. The bride's mother wore a coat and dress ensemble of beige and gold brocade, with black accessories and a corsage of orange-tinted roses and lily of the valley.

The matron of honor Mrs. Judy Sararas wore a floor-length gown of green velvet, with long set-in sleeves. The bodice was pleated at the sides and back to give the effect of a train. Her three-tier nylon illusion veil was caught up by a green velvet bow. Her bouquet consisted of white roses intermingled with fern and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Sharon Van Dyke and Miss Judy Potts, sister of the bride who were the bridesmaids were dressed identically to the matron of honor but in red velvet. Their bouquets were also identical to that of the matron of honor.

St. Thomas Anglican Church Belleville was the scene of the November 21 wedding of Irene Yvonne Potts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Potts of Belleville and Robert Bruce MacLeod son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken MacLeod also of Belleville. Rev. Peter Lewis conducted the double-ring ceremony and D. Davenport, organist, and Bob Burke, soloist provided music for the occasion. The bride at ceremonies was Mr. B. Burke.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length empire style gown of antique lace with a wedding band collar trimmed with guipure lace. The full bishop sleeves and the empire waistline were adorned with matching lace. Her cathedral - length train featured a band of matching lace and lace medallions. A four-tier scalloped nylon illusion veil fell from her headpiece of antique satin with pearl de nole flowers and beaded pearls. She carried a traditional prayer book covered with a nosegay of red roses, white gardenias and lily of the valley.

The matron of honor Mrs. Judy Sararas wore a floor-length gown of green velvet, with long set-in sleeves. The bodice was pleated at the sides and back to give the effect of a train. Her three-tier nylon illusion veil was caught up by a green velvet bow. Her bouquet consisted of white roses intermingled with fern and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Sharon Van Dyke and Miss Judy Potts, sister of the bride who were the bridesmaids were dressed identically to the matron of honor but in red velvet. Their bouquets were also identical to that of the matron of honor.

Women's Study Guild Views Interesting Films of Expo 70

An armchair visit to Expo '70 in Japan transported the members of the Belleville Women's Study Guild hall way around the world during their recent monthly meeting.

Mrs. G. Wishart, in the chair, welcomed members and guests to the home of Mrs. J. R. Reynolds. The meditation, by Mrs. Mary Ashley, centred on the theme - "As Christ there is no East or West."

The evening's program was taken by Mrs. C. C. Sellers, who introduced her topic with a brief description of Japan, which is made up of four continental islands enclosing the Sea of Japan, as well as over 1,000 small islands extending off the coast of Asia. Climates on the islands are varied, with Hokkaido on the North having at least five months of winter, and Shikoku and Kyushu enjoying mild, snow-free winters.

The ancient city of Nara, the first capital, was described as a small tranquil city of ancient shrines and temples. Kyoto, the Capital from 794 A.D. to 1868, remains the cultural and spiritual hub. It is definitely modern, with a population of 1.3 million, but still rich in historical and artistic traditions. It is to Kyoto that the Emperors come, from Tokyo, to be crowned.

The two religions of Shintoism and Buddhism, the former with its Shrines and ancestor worship, and the latter with its Temples and belief in the trans - migration of souls, are basic to the character of life in Japan. Today the Japanese freely mix the two religions, and many homes have two altars, one honoring Buddha, and the other dedicated to the Gods of Shinto. There are also numerous Christian churches.

The distinct character of the Japanese people, for 200 years cut off from the outside world, has been influenced but not submerged by the 20th century West. And this year Expo '70, with its theme "Progress and Harmony for Mankind" was the realization of a dream of all Japanese people - a dream of making their country a bridge between the Orient and the Occident - between all peoples of the world.

Having introduced the members briefly to the physical, mental and social climate of Japan, Mrs. Seldon showed slides of the adventure which began on the morning of May 31 when the 39 - member tour under the guidance of Rev. Frank Hyderman and his wife Eva, flew by jet to Vancouver, to Alaska for a brief stop and on to the new domestic terminal at Tokyo, Japan at linen hour the next morning and a bus to Kyoto - altogether a 16½-hour air trip. The pictures brought to members the beautiful, (and still to western eyes), mysterious Orient. Ornate shrines and temples, fronted by bazaar - like stalls of the vendors, low Japanese tables in a restaurant with bright red cloths, and floor cushions, contrasting with the higher tables and chairs also provided for the convenience of westerners, the Sun God over the theme building at Expo, Canadian Mountain in scarlet tunics a vivid contrast in the atmosphere of oriental splendor and delicacy.

The camera had captured Les Feux Follets dancing in the big Canadian Pavilion where the mirrors reflected and movement, answering the oriental and universal spell of the magic of seeing one's own reflection. Picture after picture showed Japanese pagodas, exotic gardens, rock and miniature landscape arrangements akin to sculpture or painting in their artistry, ancient trees which have been tended and pruned by artists for centuries, an ancient bronze Buddha cast in 1252 and weighing 210,000 pounds, a charming little Japanese boy having his socks and shoes put on the right feet by a Canadian airline wrote his daintily smiling sister watched in complete childish faith which spanned two widely differing cultures.

In imagination the members visited Tokyo, with its pollution problems, its four avenues of 15,000 Japanese cedars planted 300 years ago by feudal lords, its contrast of western dress and the Japanese kimono. Its homes which to the western eye are very bare of furniture, but a restful atmosphere, and sometimes an electric organ!

Tokyo has been summed up — on the surface — as an atmosphere of noise, traffic congestion, confusion and Coca Cola'. At the end of the time spent with their charming Japanese tour guide, each member of the party was given a unique souvenir which the guide had created herself — the bearer's own name in Japanese lettering.

Members were taken on to Singapore, where the Sultan's Palace in Thailand, a rubber plantation, a Malaysian village where youngsters crowded around for coins, saw Hindu bones built high off the ground, Mosques in every details — in all a fabulous look at an entirely different world which surely whetted appetites for travel, and fostered an awareness and a new respect for a culture very different from our own.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. L. F. Reid, and Mrs. J. R. Reynolds.

The December meeting promises to be an enjoyable one also, with its timely topic "Some of the World's Great Madonnas."

Women's Club Donates Toys

The presentation of a large selection of toys to Reg Hamilton representing the Belleville Fire Department highlighted the Christmas party held by the Belleville Women's Sales and Ad Club held at the Sun Luck Garden on Tuesday evening. Club president Mrs. Jane Ann McCaw dressed as Santa Claus presented the gifts.

Following a Chinese dinner, a humorous fashion show was staged, much to the delight of the large number in attendance. Mrs. Anita Brown gave a running commentary of the various "Original" creations worn by the eight models. These ranged from "Miss Bath Mat" and "Miss Girdle" to a "Miss Colander" which featured all sorts of kitchen wares.

True to the role of Santa, Mrs. McCaw distributed exchange gifts and candy canes to each of the members and guests.

An attractive centrepiece of flowers which graced the head table was won by Mrs. Anita Brown.

During a short business period, Mrs. McCaw announced that the next meeting will be held Jan. 5 instead of Jan. 12 as planned. This will be in the form of a "Boss and Slave Night" to be held at Sun Luck Gardens.

Ann Landers

Fears Are Clear-cut Symptoms of Illness

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I a m a 16-year-old girl and about to go nuts. I am afraid of so many things I don't know where to begin. I get uptight sitting through church services. Sometimes I actually shake. I'm absent from school a lot because I get nervous around people. I can't go to a football game or a basketball game. Now it's getting so I can't eat in public.

My fear of elevators is awful. I'd rather walk up twenty flights of stairs than take an elevator. I can't stand to be in a car unless I'm seated by a widow which I roll down. My fear of being suffocated (if overwhelming). I am also terrified at times that the floor will cave in under me or the roof will collapse.

Last year I told my parents I had stomach pains (not true) and needed to see a doctor. I tried to get across to the doctor what my real problems were but he didn't understand. He gave me some tranquilizers which made me feel better but tranquilizers are no solution for me and I know it.

I'm a fairly good student. I love music and art and I enjoy painting. My parents have no idea what goes on in my head and I don't want to worry them. But I'm on the verge of cracking up. Please, Ann, help me. — PEGGY OF OHIO.

DEAR PEGGY: I was struck by the neatness of your letter and the perfection of your handwriting, spelling and grammar. I was also impressed by your ability to describe fears which are clear-cut symptoms of emotional illness. You need psychiatric care and you need it at once. Stop fooling around with doctors who "don't understand." (Many doctors do understand but you weren't lucky enough to find one). Tell your parents you want to see a professional who recognizes your anxieties as symptoms of emotional illness — one who will help you get off this collision course. I see you live in a small town which may not have a psychiatrist. Go to the nearest large city or write to the American Psychiatric Association, 1700 18th Street N.W., Washington, D.C. for guidance. And keep in touch with me, Honey. I want a progress report in 60 days.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I did not agree with your views on signing "Love" to a letter. I also disagree about "Sincerely" sounding "trite." I believe "Love" should be reserved for those whom we like. "Sincerely," to me, is a very meaningful word and it should not be used indiscriminately.

There are far too few sincere people in this world. For example: How many times has a friend passed a friend on the street, who asks, "How ware you?" and then hurries on his way, without even listening to your reply. He does not have the slightest interest in how you are. Why then did he ask? Do you see what I mean?

So Ann, encourage your readers to keep things as close to the truth as they can. This world needs less phoniness and more honesty. — MEXICO, MISSOURI TEACHER.

I DEAR TEACHER: Your point is well taken and while I do not agree, completely, I thank you for expressing it. The question is, is our society ready for a greeting than an inquiry. It's a shade friendlier than "Hello" — but I don't believe it means, "Please give me a detailed report on the state of your health."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Yesterday our 13-year-old son had to stay after school because he misbehaved in class. It has happened before and my husband made a rule that when this occurs Jim must walk home. (I usually drive him.) We live 14 blocks from the school.

About 4:30 it suddenly turned very cold and the sky darkened. I began to worry and got in the car and started out to look for the boy. I found him six-blocks from home, cold and worn out. My husband was home when we arrived. He was furious with me for having gone to get Jim. He said I was undermining him by interfering with the agreed punishment. I say the boy might have been caught in a storm and I did the right thing. Please settle it. — CHIPPEWA FALLS.

DEAR CHIP: The fact that a 14-block walk is considered punishment these days is a good example of what's wrong with some of our kids. I suggest the boy walk every day — and it should be called exercise, not punishment.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I retired two years ago and moved to Florida. He is 65 and I am 63. The problem is relatives. His mother and dad, who are in their 80's piled in on us less than three weeks after we arrived here. They stayed two months. Ten days after they left, my parents (also in their 80's) came down and moved in for four weeks. My mother is hard of hearing and she yelled at my father constantly. She also used to take over my kitchen, which I resented. My father got into a political argument with my husband every night at the dinner table. He is still mad that Alf Landon was not elected president and insists that somebody "monkeyed with the votes."

We have gone through two winters of company and we can't take any more. Our little home has only one bathroom and 30 minutes is too long to wait. How does one tell parents who are in their 80's to stay home? — OVER GUESTED.

DEAR OVER: You can't tell anybody to stay home — but you can tell anybody, including your parents, that your home cannot accomodate four people comfortably and they should not plan on staying with you.

Successful Living

Music Can Do Wonderful Things

By DORIS CLARK

PLEA

Cry "Slow in there!
Who think the fast
Ta'k too fast
Act with impulsive animation
And keep a number of other people
Coping with perspiration!

Dear Doris: I think your column is one of the best in the paper. You seem to understand other people so well.

Paul's short letter was quite an interesting one for me, because I just fall for music. I've seen myself go love sometimes, and only music could cheer me. I imagine that they're making specially for me. Crazy, isn't it?

So best of luck to you Paul, and hope you've already found your "sibling."

Next time you play, think of me! — Muddy Allen, Ont.

Dear Muddy: You aren't the only one. My elderly uncle says good music can change his mood and make him feel wonderful. More than one piano player — including me — can work intuition out the ends of the fingers and relax completely in a few minutes at the piano. The same with our guitarists.

Dear Doris: In a recent column, a lady wrote in and signed herself "What Next?" Perhaps the young mother realizes her shortcomings, and to get a job might be the answer, and let Grandma take the reins.

I did something similar, and it works very well. My daughter - in - law doesn't bake or her worth it, but so we exchange — a few pies and cookies (for the lunch pails) — and she does some washing for me or polishes a floor.

At present she is working and I keep the four - year - old. The other two come here after school.

My eight - year - old granddaughter loves to help me bake and has just married home with her chocolate marble cake iced rather crudely, but done with a will to learn.

I figure my time well spent. — Another Grandma.

Dear Doctor: Now that's the kind of family unit that I like to hear about. Obviously you and your daughter-in-law have heaps of confidence in each other.

So much depends on individual personalities and the will to give a little.

Dear Doris: I wonder if you could give me some information regarding godparents to a baby. Do all churches recognize godparents, and also what are the duties and obligations of people asked to be same? Can they be relatives or close friends? — Godmother-to-be.

Dear Godmother-To-Be: Not all, but many churches do. At the time of the infant's baptism, godparents promise to oversee their god-baby's spiritual welfare, and if the parents should die before the child is grown up this is a serious responsibility indeed.

You are being honored by this invitation — and nobody should ever turn it down. Your gift to the baby should be a lasting one, like an initialled baby fork and spoon set or an initialled silver mug which could become an heirloom. You always remember your godchild's birthday or Christmas, and take a special interest in his first communion or confirmation.

If you really want to do it up brown, you make a job of companionship with your little charge from infant hood to teens and wedding day — and beyond.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Girl: "Everybody else will get to stay at the party until 9 o'clock. I'll be the only one who has to go home. My date won't like it."

Mother: "Well, I suppose you can stay until the party ends. It seems pretty late to me."

Mother: "We think the club's dance committee made a mistake in setting such a late hour for the dance to end. I'm sorry, you'll have to come home earlier, but I'm sure some of the other parents will feel the same way."

Teen-agers may argue and protest about restrictions, but they expect parents to set guidelines and they usually know what "everyone else is allowed to do" is not always wise.

Bread Similar to Johnny Cake

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I am a young bride of several months and I would like to introduce my husband to your Maple Syrup Johnnycake — originally published about six or seven years ago — something like Quebec Corn Bread or Johnnycake. — Janet W., Champlain, Illinois

ANSWER: I am always glad to send recipes to our transplanted readers in the U.S.

QUEBEC CORN BREAD

1¼ cups sifted pastry flour
½ cup corn meal
½ tsp. salt
2-3 cup milk
1-3 cup maple syrup
4 tsps. baking powder
½ cup sugar
1 egg
¼ cup melted butter

Sift flour, then sift again with sugar, salt, corn meal and baking powder. Beat egg, add milk and maple syrup and melted butter. Add to dry ingredients. Mix until smooth. Pour into greased 8 x 8" square pan. Bake at 400deg. Fahr. for 20 min.

QUESTION: Is there space to repeat your best yet Blood Florida Fruit Cake? — Maude W.

ANSWER: I hoped you would ask.

DARK BLONDE FLORIDA FRUIT CAKE (yield 5 lbs.)
½ lb. butter (no substitute)
1 cup granulated sugar
3 large eggs
1¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
¾ lb. sliced glace cherries (mixed green and red)
1 lb. candied pineapple (sliced on ¼" shredder or chop finely)
4 cups whole or coarsely chopped pecans (buy 1 lb.)
1 tbsp. vanilla
1 tbsp. lemon extract or 2 tbsps. lemon juice

Cream butter and sugar together until very light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat in each one as you add it, until smoothly blended. Sift the unsifted flour with the baking powder and salt. Mix ¼ cup of this flour mixture through the prepared fruits and nuts which have been mixed together.

Sprinkle remaining flour mixture over creamed mixture and stir until blended. Stir in vanilla and lemon extract or lemon juice. Add floured fruits and nuts and stir well. Turn into two loaf pans (8½" x 4½" x 2¾") lined with three thicknesses of wax paper, brushing top one generously with butter. Do not preheat oven. Put waterpan below cakes (Three-quarters fill broiler pan with boiling water after it is in position in oven.) Turn on oven to 250 deg. Fahr. (to "bake" not "preheat"—which means only bottom burner is on). Bake about 4 hrs. or until top feels firm to touch. Cool in pans on cake rack. This cake is moist enough that it slices perfectly within 24 hrs. It freezes well.

District Deputy Grand Matron Visits Minerva Chapter

On Friday evening, Mrs. Marry Bedford, District Deputy Grand Matron of District No. 12 of the Order of the Eastern Star of Ontario was welcomed by Worthy Matron, Mrs. Rita Hessing and the Worthy Patron, William C. Calvert, on her official visit to Minerva Chapter.

A most sincere welcome was also extended to the presiding Matrons and Patrons present, Mrs. Anna Poste and Thomas Bedford, Trenton, Mrs. Eva and Hugh Weese, Ameliasburg, Mrs. Dorothy Jones and Rex Chaplin, Belleville and Mrs. Hazel Lindsay, Cobourg.

The worthy patron welcomed the many visitors and members and thanked them for the support they had given the officers in being present on this special occasion.

After the close of chapter business, Mrs. Bedford congratulated the officers for the efficient and capable manner in which they had performed their duties and carried out the ritualistic work of the order. She extended a sincere welcome to the newly initiated member and wished for her many years of a happy and rewarding membership in the Order of the Eastern Star.

Mrs. Bedford pointed out that as representative of the Worthy Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, it is her duty to ensure that the presentation of the work of the Order is consistent with that of the other chapters within her district and throughout the province of Ontario as advised by the Worthy Grand Matron, Mrs. Bedford concluded her remarks with a message based on the story of Electa.

Mrs. Dorothy Steadman, Associate Matron presented Mrs. Bedford with a gift from the chapter and finished her best a happy and successful year in her travels throughout the district on her official visits. She closed her presentation with an old Irish blessing.

A social hour at the close and lunch prepared by the November-group, assisted by members of the special refreshment committee concluded a pleasant and instructive evening.

Students Entertain Residents

Over 60 boys an dgirls of the William R. Kirk School, John Street, Belleville, arrived at the Hastings Manor to spend a couple of hours with the residents.

The Kirk Kombo Rhythm Band, two sets of square-dancers, and the whole group of singers provided a program which was often joined by the voices of octogenerians who lavishly applauded the youngsters' efforts.

Pictures of residents holding young pupils, with smiles and affection being prominent on both sides, showed mutual needs being met with understanding and enjoyment.

S. Alec Gordon, a special guest for this occasion, joined in by playing the final number with boys and girls. For him, a feeling of nostalgia was inevitable because of his many years of work helping other handicapped children to enjoy music and thus live enriched lives.

Ken Yorke, superintendent of the Manor, brought the thanks of the elderly folk for the excellent entertainment and social exchange. Principal, staff and volunteer helpers were given encouragement from his remarks. Especially did he mention the square-dance instructor, G. May, who has brought these children to such a fine degree of performance.

Mrs. Dawson MacLean, social convenor of the Women's Auxiliary of the Manor, served refreshments to the performers and others who were helping with this outing.

The age-range at this party was from five years to close to 100 and yet there seemed to be no evidence of any chasm which needed spanning.

Dairy Outlook Bright

Despite the fact that the number of dairy farmers is decreasing and the cow population is also down, the Canadian dairy industry is not on a downhill run.

This is the feeling of Kenneth Wright, news relations officer for the Prince Edward Milk Committee who sees increased efficiency resulting in a more viable industry.

He notes that many dairy producers, seeing neighbor after neighbor ceasing to milk cows, have concentrated there soon won't be any dairymen left.

At the same time they see stable operations going out of business and are seeing milk processing plants closing down or selling out.

However, Mr. Wright says he is too much of an optimist to believe that the dairy industry is going downhill. "I believe that there will be many more dairymen leave the industry and that, because of this, those who remain will have a more viable industry," he says.

Many dairymen who have left the industry are now better off financially raising heifers, for beef cattle or in cash cropping.

According to Mr. Wright, one of the rules of the dairy game is that you must specialize.

"I like to feel that we specialize in crop production and that dairy cattle is the means by which we market our crops."

He says that a good dairyman today needs three skills — managerial, technical and social. As a manager he deals with money, credit, crops and cow handling, while technically he must be proficient in crop production, fertilization, weed and disease control and cow nutrition.

Socially he must be capable of dealing with people, acquiring and training help and giving them suitable wage packages and working conditions.

We have tested over 300.

We've had our share of failures. We've had more than our share of "almost successful" heartbreaks. Of the more than 300 varieties we have tested so far in the thirty-five years since we started our great program of viticultural research, 250 were failures. Nothing. Of the remaining fifty, perhaps 30 showed initial and even exciting promise, then faded; but the other 20 came through brilliantly and are now flourishing in our growers' and our own vineyards.

From these twenty great varieties come twenty famous grapes from which we are producing not just fine Canadian wines, but excellent universal wines. These are wines that compare in quality, bouquet, body, in taste and in value with the great majority of wines produced anywhere in the world.

Wines like these:

President Champagne • Canada's prize Champagne.
President Burgundy • A great dry red table wine.
President Sauterne • A delicate light white wine.
President Sherry • Ideal before lunch or dinner.
President Extra Dry • A dry white wine of quality.
President Port • A distinguished dessert wine.

Ghent Drive Residents Get Hope from Council

According to homeowners, council and surveyors, the original subdivider has played the role of villain in the case of Ghent Drive subdivision. Tuesday before Sidney council for yet another attempt to solve their drainage problem.

Following a petition to council in 1969, surveyors and health officials were sent in to look the subdivision over.

The result? Partial drainage on the east side would cost in the neighborhood of $3,000 with the homeowners' share in the neighborhood of $60.

"Sorry, we don't think we should pay," was the response from homeowners.

Yesterday, Don Bource of the firm of Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates Ltd. presented a new plan for complete drainage . . . to the tune of at least $37,500 and an extra $8-10,000 if a storage tank and force pump is installed.

The basic problem is a high water table which causes water to lie on the surface of land surrounding the 13 homes.

Drainage was not provided by the subdivider. The homeowners didn't provide drainage, but when Sidney township took over the subdivision the homeowners demanded action.

On June 3, The Intelligencer reported that pools of muddy water were to be seen all over the area.

The residents again approached council on July 6.

Reeve Jack Bush stated at the time, "When you people bought that land you didn't pay for proper drainage . . . there should have been at least $1,000 set aside on these lots for drainage; speaking in round figures, that is.

"Under today's standards, Ghent Drive subdivision wouldn't have met the standards but we didn't have control of the subdivision then and we couldn't control what you invested in."

The most recent preliminary survey would provide for the installation of a series of connected 15 - inch storm sewers over the entire subdivision, emptying the runoff into the bay. A storage tank, at extra cost, could hold the water, to be later pumped into the bay in bulk. The council reassured by Mr. Bource that this was only water, no effluents were involved.

Councillor Reg McCurdy asked "Is there any other type of proper drainage for this problem area?"

"Not a chance, not that I know of anyway," replied the engineer.

He further reported that existing ditches could be utilized for the trenches required to lay the pipes.

He also explained that because of the topography, the pipes would come near the surface of the ground in some locations.

Some areas are critical because of "insufficient cover over storm sewers" to prevent freezing. He explained that some freezing would occur in spring and fall when temperatures change rapidly . . . but should not present a serious problem.

Surface drainage would be diverted into storm sewers; ditches would be dug correctly; roads would be relinished where necessary; and road shoulders would be attended to.

Reeve Bush this morning explained that the municipal branch of the dept. of highways will investigate the feasibility of subsidizing the construction costs."

If the dept. of highways agrees, a grant of 50 per cent of the costs would be in order. This investigation might occur as early as next week.

If the survey is approved, necessary alterations made, and approval from residents is received, the township will determine where the funds for construction will come from.

Mr. Bush reassured the residents that they would "most probably not" be approached for funds.

The Ski Whiz Rocky Mountains Endurance Run

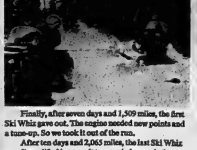
The Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute pounds Massey-Ferguson snowmobiles day and night over 2,000 miles of ice and rocks and railroad ties, 12,000 feet up in the Rockies.

We think a lot of snowmobilers are fed up with machines that talk tough, and keep on breaking down. So we decided to go all out to prove just how reliable the Massey-Ferguson snowmobile really is.

We gave a nationally-known testing company, the Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute, four of our stock model Ski Whiz 400,SST's, and told NCTI to put them through the most demanding endurance test they could dream up.



They put them through what they call "accelerated testing". You'd call it sheer torture. NCTI told us that 500 miles of driving under the conditions they set up would be equal to one full season of normal snowmobiling.

On October 15th, they began running the Ski Whiz day and night, around the clock, 12,000 feet up in the Rockies. A team of 14 NCTI drivers took turns pounding them over ice and slush and frozen crust. Over stretches of rocks and bare ground and mud. Over slick hardpack and deep powder.

Every day they rammed them up an old abandoned railroad bed—a treacherous incline of 3,000 feet in six miles. Over railroad ties, gritty cinders and winding ditches. They maneuvered them through dense forests, around icy hairpin turns with 1,000 foot drop-offs. With winds gusting at 20 to 50 mph. And temperatures varying from 4 to 50 above.

The key to NCTI accelerating testing program was to see how much punishment the four machines could take without a major repair. No repair that couldn't be done by the driver with the normal replacement parts and an instruction manual would be permitted.

Finally, after seven days and 1,509 miles, the first Ski Whiz gave out. The engine needed new points and a tune-up. So we took it out of the run.

After ten days and 2,065 miles, the last Ski Whiz was disqualified because it too needed a repair the driver couldn't make by himself.

According to the "accelerated testing" standards of the National Consumer Testing Institute—that distance equals four full seasons of operation. Under the most rugged conditions.

But durability wasn't the whole story. The NCTI drivers, all experts with long experience on other machines, told us a lot more.

They crawled at the engines. At 12,000 feet you can burn them out fast. Let alone run them 2,000 miles for ten days around the clock. They couldn't believe the way the tracks held up under the constant pounding they were taking. "Excellent", they said about the stability and the steering response. And they were most thankful for the unusual seating comfort. Understandable when you're running over 200 miles a day.

Before you get stuck with a snowmobile that talks tough and breaks down easy, check out the machine that proved its reliability the hard way. The Ski Whiz Rocky Mountains Endurance Run proved there's one you can count on to get you back—wherever you take it. Season after season after season after season.

There are four tough Ski Whiz models to choose from. All built for keeps by Massey-Ferguson, the company with 123 years of engineering know-how.

Hastings County Public School Board Candidates

Fifteen people are in the running for ten seats on the Hastings County Board of Education. The Intelligencer has made this page available to them to present their views on education and their potential role in the administration of it. Those candidates who chose to make their positions known in this way are presented herewith.

James Clarke, incumbent chairman of Hastings county board of education served as the last chairman of the Bay of Quinte District High School board before its amalgamation into the county board and was elected chairman of the new board for both 1969 and 1970. He was also chairman of the committee set up to organize the changeover from individual boards to the county system.

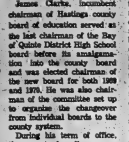
During his term of office, the county board's accomplishments included integration of secondary and elementary school systems, changes in the transportation system, setting up of new business administration procedures, accommodation of an increased enrolment, updating of outmoded school facilities, upgrading of professional staff and supervision of a tight budget limited by a low ceiling on provincial grants.

"This board has built a strong, sound organization, with a tremendous spirit of progress and co-operation," Mr. Clarke says. "It has avoided the difficulties of many other boards — gender and custodial staff strikes for example.

"But there is no cause for complacency. In the next two years we must consolidate our position and attempt to eliminate some of the inequalities. I feel the experience gained in the last two years will be vital in the years to come and therefore I am seeking re-election."

James Clarke

Everett S. Fairman received his elementary and secondary education in the town of Campbellford. He is a graduate of Peterborough Teachers' college and came to Belleville in January, 1936. He has spent 33 years in the Belleville school system — 18 years as vice - principal and 23 years as principal.



During the last war, he served for 5 years with the 5th Canadian Armoured Division and commanded the 28th L.A.A. Bty. through the entire Italian and West European campaigns. In 1958 he retired from the militia as Commanding Officer of the local regiment.

Mr. Fairman states that some of the reasons that he was as aspirant to the board of education two years ago were:

1. To ensure that maximum advantage be taken of department grants to purchase reading laboratories, reference libraries and encyclopedias which were badly needed in our elementary schools.

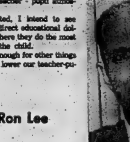
2. To help to close the wide gap which existed between the elementary and secondary schools in the detriment of hundreds of grade eight graduates.

3. To encourage the board to hire teachers who are qualified to do remedial work with slow learners so that they might move along with their own age group with a similar degree of success. Mr. Fairman is seeking re-election to see some of these objectives attained.

Everett Fairman

Education is at the crossroads. If it continues to swallow an utterly disproportionate amount of the tax dollar, it may well collapse on the altar of its own ambitions. If it accepts there are only 100 cents in every tax dollar that has to take care of all society's needs and follows a common-sense approach, it may survive to see its ambitions fulfilled.

No longer is the public liable to remain docile and acquiescent while millions of tax dollars are squandered on unnecessary or speculative ventures.



At this time we have no money to spare for new administration buildings. We cannot consider any further raises in pay for the senior administrative or teaching staff.

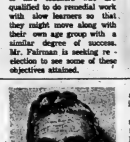
This year's $1,000 increase was unjustified for and irresponsible.

We have to come back to the basic principles of the intimate relationship between teacher and pupil. Filling the teacher's side is to substitute for the teacher - pupil atmosphere.

If elected, I intend to see that we direct educational dollars to where they do the most good — the child.

Time enough for other things when we lower our teacher-pupil ratio.

Ron Lee



Frank Follwell, seeking election to the Hastings county board of education for Ward 4, is a former federal member of parliament, mayor of Belleville and member of Sidney township school board.

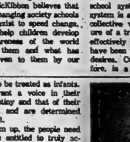
He says one of the major needs at any level of public administration is the establishment of clear priorities. In education, the costliest of all public undertakings in the province today, the need for such priorities is paramount.

Mr. Follwell believes it necessary that the taxpayer receives 100 cents on the educational dollar. This must be achieved without detriment to the high standards of excellence in the professional staff of our school system. A system of priorities must be set up to do what is necessary in the best interest of our students while at the same time not overburdening the taxpayers.

In many areas, the local school is the only centre for community gatherings. Ways must be found to make our schools more available to the total community.

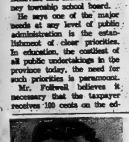
Because administration is any sector of public endeavor today is no easy task Mr. Follwell is offering his experience in public service and local education.

Frank Follwell



In ward 4, the main issues are representation, communication and self-determination.

The people in ward 4 need, and are entitled to, truly active representation. It is not enough for a trustee to attend meetings and to vote when called upon. He must keep himself fully informed on all business and issues and be always prepared to take an active part in discussions. Only then can he fulfil his endeavor to secure the utmost value from every education dollar.



Municipal councils complain that they are not informed about school board matters. They, as the people who are asked to collect the taxes to support the board, are entitled to full reporting and explanation of board business. It is my contention that the councils and indeed all the people should be kept fully informed as to what is being done.

The attitude that the great white father knows better than the people do is somewhere what is best for them is no longer acceptable. The taxpayers are no longer prepared to be treated as infants. They want a voice in their own destiny and that of their children and are determined to get it.

To sum up, the people need and are entitled to truly active representation, full, accurate information and the right to help determine their own future and that of their children.

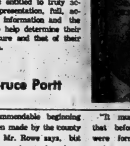
Miriam Graham a candidate for re-election to Hastings County Board of Education has served for two years on the county board, and before that for three years on the Belleville Public School Board.

A native of Napanee, she is an honors graduate of the University of Toronto, a former research economist with the federal government and the Royal Securities Corporation. Married to Belleville lawyer Ralph Graham, she has three children in school.

Mrs. Graham was chairman of the non - teaching personnel committee of the county board when a two-year contract was amicably negotiated, a member of the business administration committee and Belleville replacement for the trustee on the building committee.

She is very much aware of the critical high tax situation faced by every member of society. The housewife will understand that it does not take much imagination to relate the economic budgeting of the household dollar to the careful budgeting of the education tax dollar.

She feels that in this next two years of economic emergency, the experienced trustee will be best able to divide the education dollar for the greatest benefit of the student.



Miriam Graham

Raymond Rowe, Frankford furniture and funeral service operator, is again contesting a seat on the Hastings County board of education.

A trustee with the county board during its first two years, and vice-chairman for one, he has served for 13 years on the Frankford Public School Board, the Bay of Quinte District High School Board and the village council.

A commendable beginning has been made by the county board, Mr. Rowe says, but much remains to be done. Additional schools, teachers and services are needed, but if the taxpayers want the services they must not forget they are the ones who pay.

Mr. Rowe has supported transportation improvements and late buses for extracurricular activities. He feels community use of the schools should be extended and has encouraged efforts towards this goal.

Raymond Rowe

"It must be remembered that before county boards were formed, top officials such as superintendents, inspectors and officers were paid by the department of education," he says. "They are now paid by county boards. We have become the payhorse of governments."

"The taxpayer is being given full value for his tax dollar," says Mr. Rowe. "No person can be more aware of this than a businessman who himself pays a substantial tax in his community."

L. Gunning

We must make sure that education's "product" (the student) is worth the price — and is the product we need.

The county board's annual budget is close to $18 million dollars, with more than $10 million going for teachers' salaries.

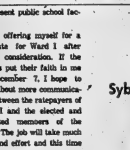
The teacher's job is to create the product: we need an educated, well-rounded, fully developed individual, capable of meeting the challenges of a world most people over 40 will never fully comprehend.

The school trustee's job is to see that the teacher creates this individual as efficiently and as effectively as possible. It is not the trustee's job to think in terms of bricks and mortar, but in terms of people, in terms of the taxpayer and of how much it is costing him. He must think in terms of the student and of what useful skills he is gaining through the school system that is costing millions.

There should be more communication between the board and the ratepayer, particularly the mother so intimately involved. There should be more use of business and industry as a training ground for some students and there should be more use made of educational technicians.

If this were done the taxpayer would save money, the business world would get a person more adapted to the world of commerce and the student would get a education more applicable to a lifetime in which the requirement will be adaptability.

Sybil Saylor



In accepting the nomination for school trustee in Ward I, I offer you the following qualifications:

I am married with two school aged sons, a graduate of grade 13, Brantford Collegiate Institute, business course with ten years experience in costing, administration, secretarial and marketing research. At present my husband and I own and operate Lakeview Resort.

It is felt in North Hastings that, although we pay equalized taxes with the city of Belleville, we have no control over our educational system.

The issue at hand in Ward I is the closing of the L'Amable elementary school and the building of a senior elementary school in Bancroft to which our children would be bused up to 5 miles one way. I am of the opinion that the needs of our children could be better served by expanding our present public school facilities.

I am offering myself for a candidate for Ward I after careful consideration. If the electors put their faith in me on December 7, I hope to bring about more communication between the ratepayers of Ward I and the elected and appointed memoers of the board. The job will take much time and effort and this time and effort I am prepared to give.

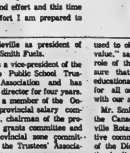
Ron Lee

His area teachers as guardians of this heritage and that a trustee's basic function is to see that experience is not forgotten. He suggests the mastery of basics makes the children aware

He sees each citizen as a shareholder of our public school system and that the system is a reflection of their collective wishes. The measure of a trustee, then, is how effectively the tax dollars have been used to meet these desires. Cost control, therefore, is a vital objective.

Macdonald Smith

Macdonald Smith has served 18 years on local school boards over the last two as a trustee of Hastings county board of education.



He has 33 year's experience in Belleville as president of Harry Smith Fuels.

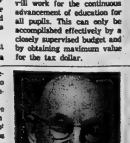
He is vice-president of the Ontario Public School Trustees' Association and has been a director for four years. He is a member of the Ontario provincial salary committee, chairman of the provincial grants committee and the provincial zone committee of the Trustees' Association.

"School board business is big business in which everybody has a big investment. Each dollar spent should be used to obtain the maximum value," says Mr. Smith. "The role of the trustee is to ensure that we have the best educational system possible for all our children in line with our ability to pay."

Mr. Smith is a member of the Canadian Legion, Belleville Rotary Club, the executive committee of the Synod of the Diocese of Ontario of the Anglican Church and is a past warden of St. Thomas Church.

He is married, and has five children in school.

Sybil Saylor



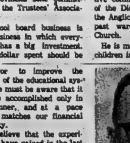
L. A. Kells came to Belleville as principal of King George School in 1929, and in August retired from the position of superintendent of administrative services with the county board.

He was business administrator, supervising principal, inspector and superintendent with previous boards in the city before formation of the county board in 1969. He served several times as a summer school instructor for the department of education and was the second recipient, in 1968, for the Sir Mackenzie Bowell award for service to education.

Married, he has three children, two of them teachers and one a graduate in nursing science.

Mr. Kells proposed to continue as a trustee the role he carried out during his years as a professional educator: services to the citizens for the children in education. As was his commitment when he was business administrator for more than 25 years, he will relate his work and thinking to the resources of the community.

He believes, as most people must, that little that is worth while can be achieved except by harmonious relationships within the board and between the board and its various groups of employees. All is concerned have a responsibility for maintaining such an atmosphere of good-will.



Lawrence Kells

Don Williams for the last two years has represented Ward 4, which consists of the Township of Sidney, Villages of Frankford and Stirling on the county board. Mr. Williams is married and has two children in elementary school, two in secondary school. He has been chairman of the staff-board relations committee of trustee for seven years on the Stirling Public School board; Past president of Stirling Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce, Past Chairman Belleville Presbytery; United Church of Canada; owner and operator of Stirling Motors (Stirling) Ltd. He has been a strong promoter for safer and more efficient school busing along with kindergarten or a three-entry system, oral French and free community use of schools.

"I believe that in the last two years we have made the first step toward the goal of equal opportunity of education for all children. As we endeavor to improve the quality of the educational system we must be aware that it can be accomplished only in a manner, and at a pace which matches our financial capacity.

"I believe that the experience I have gained in the last two years will be of benefit to the people of Hastings County and particular Ward 4. I ask for your support at the polls on Monday."

Mays, Bench Among Baseball's Most Honored Performers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Baseball, regally attired in a plush Hollywood setting on the final night of its winter meetings, will be somewhat poorer next spring without Emmett Ashford calling "em as he sees 'em."

The bouncy, 56-year-old umpire, first black man ever to call balls and strikes in the major leagues, bowed out Thursday after five turbulent seasons.

His retirement announcement came several hours before Cincinnati Reds' catcher Bench, St. Louis Cardinals' Bob Gibson and San Francisco Giants' Willie Mays received top honors at baseball's inaugural national awards banquet in a swank Beverly Hills hotel.

Bench, the major league slugging king last season, was named player of the year. Gibson, a 23-game winner, captured 1968 pitching laurels. Mays, the Giants' 39-year-old superstar, was selected as the player who best typifies the game on and off the field.

Other award winners included third baseman Brooks Robinson of world champion Baltimore Orioles, named defensive player of the year, Pittsburgh Pirates' Danny Murtaugh, named manager of the year, and Orioles' front office chief Harry Dalton, executive of the year.

Ashford, who reached the normal retirement age of 52 for American League umpires a year ago, announced he was stepping out "with a great deal of reluctance" after 38 years on the job—the first 15 of them in the minors.

Joe Cronin, American League president, who brought Ashford up from the Pacific Coast League in 1951, and who invited him back last year, denied that pressure had been put on the ebullient showman to retire. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn hinted that he would offer Ashford a job in his office.

Ashford, who worked the World Series for the first time this year, insisted he merely wanted to "depart on top."

"Trying to top . . . the thrilling events of the 1970 World Series would be superfluous and anti-climactic," he said.

"He wasn't pushed out," Cronin said. "He certainly has been a credit to baseball and contributed greatly to it."

"You can't give him (Cronin) enough credit," he said. "In every league I worked in, the president has been on the spot and I've had to get him off—by working."

WILLIE MAYS

Ashford did his job with a flourish, and his antics behind the plate and on the bases delighted the fans.

"I've toned down on that stuff the last two years," he said. "I think I was taking a little away from the players."

He said he was disappointed at first that there were no other black umpires in the majors.

"Now I'm very happy, because we have about half a dozen black umpires on the way up."

Ashford will receive a pension of only $1,800 a year for his five-year stint in the big leagues. He intends to stay active, he hopes with baseball.

Trading was at a standstill Thursday as club officials wound up an informal, joint meeting and then broke up for league session. The meetings were to wind up today after another joint session.

NHL Celebrates Mahovlich Day

By IAN MacLAINE
Colton Press Staff Writer

Frank Mahovlich, the reluctant leader, is paying dividends for Detroit Red Wings in the absence of Injured Gordie Howe.

The 32-year-old Timmins, Ont., native, who came out of Detroit's St. Michael's College 14 years ago with stardom written all over his clippings, never attained the leadership qualities he looked for in 11 seasons with Toronto Maple Leafs although he was under constant pressure to produce.

But since his trade to Detroit late in the 1967-68 season he has been scoring at a clip Torontonians ad expected of him: 49 in '67-68 and 38 in '68-'69.

He has also been playing on a line and in the shadow of Howe, a 25-year veteran in the Detroit organization and the NHL's all-time scoring champion, and of the Wings' veteran centre and captain, Alex Delvecchio. This has been to the liking of the quiet-spoken Mahovlich.

Now with Howe's serious rib injury suffered in the game against Pittsburgh Penguins Nov. 21, Detroit's leadership burden has fallen on Mahovlich's shoulders. He has responded well.

Tuesday night he scored his 400th career goal as Detroit held Los Angeles Kings to a 4-4 tie at Detroit. It was his fifth goal in the last four games and doubled his output for the season.

In other games, Al MacNeil made a successful coaching debut with Montreal as the Canadiens scored on every 4-3 win over St. Louis Blues. The defending Stanley Cup champions, Boston Bruins, were hard-pressed to pull out a 4-4 tie with the expansion Buffalo Sabres.

Mahovlich, in reaching the 400-goal plateau, became only the sixth player in NHL history to reach that figure in regularly-scheduled games. His linemates, Howe and Delvecchio, are in that select few along with retired Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Jean Beliveau of Montreal and Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks.

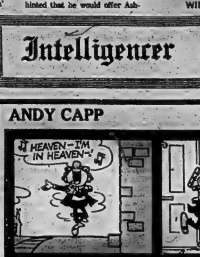
It was also Mahovlich night at Montreal where the Canadiens' Peter Mahovlich, the younger but bigger brother of the Big M, scored his 13th and 13th of the season.

At Buffalo, the Sabres rebounded from a 3-6 deficit and held a full house of 18,331 cheering wildly with a 4-4 lead before the Bruins started putting their game together again.

Fred Stanfield's goal at 12:28 of the third period but Boston within reach and Ken Hodge's 58-foot slap shot with just over a minute left in the game put the Bruins on even terms.

The Boston Bruins threesome of Phil Esposito, Bobby Orr and Ken Hodge, 1-2-3 in the National Hockey League individual scoring race, picked up four points Thursday night in Boston's 4-4 tie with Buffalo Sabres.



Esposito picked up an assist to bring his league-leading points total to 43. Orr scored once and assisted on another for 35 points while Hodge, with a goal Thursday night, now has 31 points.

Garrett Saves Again

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — League-leading Peterborough Petes were saddled by Hamilton Red Wings Thursday night but came up with a 5-3 win in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A play.

The Red Wings fired 46 shots at Peterborough goalie John Garrett while his mates managed only 29 tries at the Hamilton goal.

The win gives Peterborough an 11-point lead on Montreal Junior Canadiens and St. Catharines Black Hawks, who are tied in second place with 25 points each.

The Petes' record now is 17 wins and two ties against three losers.

A brief second-period fracas boosted the penalty total to 27, 14 of them to Hamilton. Among the penalties were three majors, three misconducts and a game misconduct.

Tonight, Ottawa 67s face Niagara Falls Flyers, Oshawa Generals meet Kitchener Rangers and London Knights take on Toronto Marlboros.

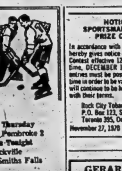
'Ruel Never Wanted Job'



MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Ruel's famous cries of "skate, skate, skate, shoot, shoot, shoot," which had become a trademark since he took over as coach of Montreal Canadiens, no longer will be heard in National Hockey League rinks.

Ruel, 32, resigned Thursday as coach of the Canadiens and was replaced by Al MacNeil, a one-time NHL defenceman and assistant coach with the Canadiens since September.

The chubby Ruel, who took the coaching job in June, 1968, after Hector (Toe) Blake retired, never really wanted the coaching chores anyway, said general manager Sam Pollock. Ruel had been director of player development and chief scout before he was elevated to the coaching position.

Pollock said Ruel had wanted to resign last year and was talked out of it.

"Two days ago he asked me again but I told him to think about it," said Pollock. "I considered his request very carefully."

CLAUDE RUEL

"Other people don't say it, but I say it. Nobody could have done a better job than Claude."

Pollock said that Ruel asked club president David Molson to be relieved of his duties but no decision was reached until 5 p.m. Wednesday. A meeting then was arranged for Thursday morning.

Ruel, who will revert to his former post, said he was happy with the turn of events.

"I am the Canadiens greatest fan if I wasn't I would go to work for some other team. I am glad for Al MacNeil because he is an honest man.

"Some nights I had nine men working, other nights only six. When I couldn't do the job my way it was time to resign."

MacNeil, 33, played with five NHL teams before becoming playing coach of Montreal Voyageurs of the American Hockey League last season.

Backstrom Back

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Ralph Backstrom has returned to Montreal Canadiens.

Backstrom was the ice at the Forum Thursday noon working his way back into shape while Sam Pollock, general manager of the club, was telling a news conference the 33-year-old native of Kirkland Lake, Que., had decided to terminate his abrupt retirement.

Backstrom decided to retire from the National Hockey League Oct. 18 on the eve of the Canadiens season-opener in Philadelphia against the Flyers.

He cited the fact he wanted to be with his family in a warmer climate as the reason for packing up his 13-year pro hockey career.

Local Lifters Share Spotlight Saturday

The two-handed snatch is the finest member of weightlifting's three-lift family.

And that's where Art Walk comes in.

The 19-year-old is accomplished beyond his years—and weight class — in the snatch, and that has made him a Canadian champion.

Art, the youngest of three accomplished Apollo Barbell Club brothers, hoisted a 275-pound snatch in Woodstock last month en route to an 820-pound three - lift total. This week he was recognized as Canadian Intermediate light-heavyweight title - holder.

Art Walk will be one of the featured performers Saturday as the Apollo Club stages the Eastern Ontario Christmas Teenage Contest for the 38th consecutive year.

But Walk, whom coach Ken Carr-Brahnt expects to be a club seniors, so he's looking ahead, not back," explained Carr-Brahnt. "I expect Ron to be a winner in Saskatoon, too."

The public is invited to attend Saturday's contest—admission - free, with a $1.50 turkey plate dinner available from 5-7 p.m.. Proceeds will help defray Apollo Club travelling expenses.

ART WALT

winner in February's Canada Games in Saskatoon, will share the spotlight with Ron Hayes.

The 13-year-old Sywright has really come into his own in the past year, establishing clean-and-jerk of 187½ pounds and last month totalling 453 pounds, also a national standard.

"Not bad for a 15-year-old," beams coach Carr-Brahnt, who has 18 of his pupils entered in Saturday's 30-lifter meet. For example, Ron's total will far exceed that of Walk, who's last month totalled

Welter King Backus Glad He Came Back

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Five years ago Billy Backus couldn't win in the ring, so he quit and went to blacktopping roads. Today, after a ring comeback, he's the welterweight boxing champion of the world.

Backus scored a stunning upset Thursday night by stopping Gene Hamelink on a badly-cut left eyelid at one minute of the fourth round of a scheduled 15-rounder before a crowd of 8,500.

"Is it Christmas?" said the 27-year-old Backus. "I guess it is. Boy, it's here."

He was given Bills chance to beat Napoles, who was making his fourth title defence and who had lost only four times against 68 victories that included 43 knockouts.

Since returning to boxing in 1967, Backus has held no outside job and his record has been 32-3-1 for an over-all record of 39-10-4.

The left-hander comes from nearby Canastota, the same town that produced his uncle, Carmen Basilio, the former welter and middleweight world champion. He hit it he known right from the start that he intended to carry the fight to the 30-year-old Napoles.

But at the beginning it appeared the challenger's bulling tactics were doomed as the cool, methodical Napoles speared him with left jabs and hooks.

Napoles had the best of the first round and controlled the second round when he opened a cut over Backus' right eye. Reversal, Napoles also suffered a cut over the right eye and later contended he was butted. Backus admitted it could have been a butt.

Napoles continued to prosper away with his jab early in the third round. Then the fight changed from the challenge's bull-like rushes and Napoles' swirling tactics into a Pier 6 brawl.

For the last two minutes of the round the fighters traded punches and Napoles went to his corner with blood streaming from a cut on his left eye lid. He again said "butt."

However, the time Backus said it was his right hooks which opened the cut.

The fourth round started as the third had ended and then with a minute gone referee Jack Mileski stopped it and the former road worker was a champion of the world.

Backus' immediate plans were to rest for a few days. But he said he would have something to say about the financial terms of his next fight. His 18 per cent of the net for the Napoles fight could come in handy.

Napoles, who weighed 144½ pounds was guaranteed $60,000. Backus weighed 145½.

Rebel No More

Jocelyne Bourassa, one-time rebel of women's golf, has become less demonstrative on the fairway and now keeps her emotions inside. The 23-year-old native of Shawinigan, Que., a member of the Canadian team in the world amateur women's championship in Madrid, says she is not interested in becoming a professional. (CP Photo)

Three Have Same Idea

TORONTO (CP) — Canada recorded its first triple dead heat as three-entered racing Thursday when three horses tied for second place in the fifth race at Greenwood race track.

Susan's Page, Lee's Theme and Better Be Fast all crossed the finish line together. Country Dude finished First and set up a three-way exacta. The best payoff was $8.20 for the combination of Country Dude and Better Be Fast.

The finish resulted in a three-and-place refund pool, with all three horses paying $3.20 to place and show.

The only other triple dead heat in Canadian racing occurred last October in harness racing at Windsor Raceway.

Sandy Hawley of Oshawa, was four races in being his season's total to 404, 20 short of Willie Shoemaker's North American record of 424.

Duncan Swapped to Bombers

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes, 1970 Grey Cup champions, have swapped ball backs with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, last-place finishers in the Western Football Conference.

The Als announced Thursday they traded Dennis Duncan to the Bombers in return for the rights to Bob Hoimard.

Duncan and wide receiver Mike McCauley were suspended prior to the Alouettes' Eastern Football Conference semi-final against Toronto Argonauts for breaking curfew.

Sport Briefs

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (CP)-AP) — Seven players, including Winnipeg's Wilf Hemenuik, shared the first-round lead Thursday in the $125,000 Coral Springs open golf tournament. Hemenuik, Bob Lunn, Mike Hill, George Johnson, Butch Baird, Mac McLendon and Brian Allin, the latter a Vietnam war veteran playing in his second professional tournament, fired four-under par 67s to hold a one-stroke lead over a group of 11 others. Hemenuik had steady nines of 33-34 to top a four-man Canadian contingent in the field on the 6,943-yard, par-71 Springs Country Club course. Bill Wright Jr. of Edmonton had nines of 31-36 and his 70 had him among the 80 who were at par or better after 18 holes. Gary Braverman of Toronto had two 37s for a 74, while Ben Kern of Toronto was well off the pace at 76 with a front nine of 39.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lew Alcindor and Oscar Robertson did just what they were expected to do — score the most points and the clutch points for Milwaukee Bucks. Between them they split 44 points and teamed for seven down the stretch that provided the Bucks with a 107-102 victory over Chicago Bulls in the only National Basketball Association game Thursday night. Chicago led most of the way until Robertson, directing a fourth quarter rally, hit a 20-foot jumper for a tie at 81 with 8:13 left in the game. With the Bulls trailing 85-84, Robertson and Alcindor went on their final spree that wrapped up the victory.

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Bolduc of Quebec City, a groom at Blue Bonnets Raceway, has been suspended for five years in connection with an incident Nov. 24 in which a horse was drugged. Raceway stewards discovered that Prima Pick, which won the sixth race Nov. 24, had been injected with procaine. Prima Pick was later deleted from the finishers of the race and the purse was redistributed.

Timothy T Top Trotter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Timothy T and Most Happy Fella are the top three-year-olds in harness racing for 1970, the U.S. Trotting Association announced Thursday.

Timothy T, collecting 190 votes in the association's poll of U.S. turf writers, Hambletonian, Kentucky Futurity and Colonial to reign as three-year-old Trotter of the Year. Marie Pride was a distant second.

Most Happy Fella, the top pacer, won the Cane Futurity, Little Brown Jug, Messenger, Adios and Shapiro this year. He polled 157 votes to 28 for his season-long rival, Columbia George.

Timothy T scored 13 victories in 1970 for owner John F. Simpson of Hanover, Pa. Simpson's son, John Jr., driven Timothy T, as Ayres colt which won $304,736 in 1970.

Women's Lib Hits Tennis

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Formation of the first all-women's professional tennis tour, featuring Billie Jean King, was announced at a news conference Thursday.

A star-studded group, each of whom has been suspended by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association when they protested inequality with men pros over prize money, has lined up eight tournaments in the first two months of 1971 with purses totalling $305,000.

Mrs. King said the girls eventually will tour England and likely Australia and South Africa.

Friction between the girls and USLTA came to a head when the leading women refused to compete in the Pacific Southwest Open here because of the disparity of purses.

It was brought to a head when Mrs. Gladys Heldman, a magazine publisher, signed each of the girls to a 51 contract.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Image Doesn't Match Truth

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When I published some figures a few weeks ago on the foreign aid the U.S. has given the last few years — in terms of the percentage of the gross national product — many readers were incredulous. What doesn't check out is the vast discrepancy between reality and our perception of it — most people have highly distorted views of themselves as individuals, and this distortion carries over to our national self-image.

At another example. I attended a dinner last month for the 25th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations. Many Americans seem to feel that we are carrying a disproportionate share of the costs of running the UN. But how many actually know what these costs represent?

The total U.S. contribution to the UN in 1969 was less than — The New York City Fire Department budget,

— Half of the New York City Police Department budget,

— One-sixth of one per cent of the U.S. defense budget,

— The cost of the war in Vietnam for three days.

What it amounts to is cash is $1.22 per person per year, or 2½ cents a week.

Even if the UN weren't involved, however feebly, in trying to keep countries talking as an alternative to fighting, all the subsidiary activities of the UN alone would be worth that pittance — the support it gives to health, science, education, and cultural interchange. These would be desperately needed in our time even if no political organization existed.

Similarly, we have exaggerated notions about what is spent for welfare within the U.S., as contrasted with war spending and "luxury" spending. We need more hospitals, better mental institutions, effective rehabilitation centres for juvenile offenders and drug addicts, and a host of other social apparatus to cure or alleviate a dozen disorders in the community—and all these areas are hurting for money.

Yet we blithely permit billions to be poured into military experiments of dubious value, without even questioning their necessity or validity — and those few who do are promptly labelled "unpatriotic". But genuine patriotism means wanting what is best for one's country, and demanding sufficient information to be able to make a rational decision.

As long as we imagine that we are "squandering" money on foreign aid and "subsidizing" the UN for huge amounts, we are living in a fantasy world of our own making; while the real squanderers go on their merry way unencumbered by the candid scrutiny of an informed electorate.

Old Age Pension Revisions Subjected to Sharp Assault

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's old age pension proposals continued to take a hammering from the opposition in the Commons Thursday. MPs insisted old age pensioners would get a better basic pension after Jan. 1 under the current system than under the proposed legislation.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) and former Conservative health minister J. Waldo Monteith (Perth-Wilmot) said pensioners would receive $81.50 a month under the present system with a cost-of-living increase after Jan. 1 as opposed to the $80 basic rate proposed by the government.

The government legislation would freeze the basic pension at $80 a month—an over-all increase of 42 cents—while the guaranteed income supplement would be increased to $55 from $51.25 for single persons and to $85 from $83.65 for couples.

The debate was interrupted by an announcement from Prime Minister Trudeau that kidnapped British diplomat James Cross had been released.

Earlier, after some confusion, opposition and government combined to have proposed legislation limiting the powers of the auditor-general withdrawn.

In the Senate, the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970 received third reading. The measure, later given royal assent, replaces the War Measures Act regulations invoked by the government Oct. 16 to deal with the Front de Libération du Québec.

Also receiving royal assent was legislation establishing the Federal Court of Canada. The act reassigns the Exchequer Court with separate trial and appeal divisions established.

Mr. Monteith, in the pension debate, said the proposed increase is "woefully small."

But though pensioners would receive a better basic pension after Jan. 1 under the current system than under the proposals, he said he would support the bill because of the increases in the income supplement.

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) said the bill has "the sour smell of poverty about it."

She repeated NDP demands for a straight $125 monthly pension for the 1.7 million persons 65 and over, or a $100 pension and a $50 supplement.

Creditiste Henri Latulippe (Champlain) supported the recommendation for a $150 monthly pension and said there should be no means test.

Gaston Isabelle (L—Rfld), parliamentary secretary to Health Minister John Munro, said the white paper on social security will be presented shortly. The minister had received a flood of congratulatory telephone calls and letters across Canada.

Drury Is Pleased His Bill On Auditor Is Withdrawn

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said Thursday he was pleased a bill introduced by him in the Commons restricting the powers of the auditor-general had been withdrawn.

The post of auditor-general was becoming a political football," he said.

He also told reporters he had no intention of resigning over the government's acceptance of an NDP motion to withdraw the bill from the Commons order paper.

Mr. Drury, who was not present in the Commons when the motion was given unanimous approval, also said the bill wasn't a government bill. It had been drawn up to meet the recommendations of the Commons public accounts committee.

The bill would have authorized the government to reply to findings of the auditor-general at the same time as he published his annual audit.

The auditor-general's reports in the past have been critical of the government. Many cabinet members have felt he was overstepping his role and intruding in the field of government policy.

The government obviously was caught by surprise when Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) moved that the House give unanimous consent to the government removing the bill from the order paper.

Mr. Knowles said he made the motion because Mr. Drury had said outside the Commons the bill could be withdrawn only with the consent of all MPs.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen said outside the Commons he had intended to ask only that withdraw the bill later in the Commons sitting.

He said the NDP motion "was not entirely unwelcome because it cleared an item of business in record time."

Since it was the government's intention to withdraw the bill, he didn't mind how it was done.

Gregory Acquitted

TORONTO (CP) — Wilfrid P. Gregory, former president of British Mortgage and Trust Co., was acquitted early today on a charge of accepting a bribe in return for approving a $500,000 mortgage loan.

An Ontario Supreme Court jury of nine men and three women deliberated 13½ hours after the four-day trial before delivering their verdict.

Mr. Justice Maurice Lacourcière said the verdict was one "that I would not personally express any disagreement with."

Gregory was charged with accepting an option to buy 10,000 shares of Dale Estate Ltd. in 1961-62 in return for approving a mortgage loan to the Brampton firm.

Gregory denied he had been granted an option. He said Carman G. King, a Toronto investment dealer whose firm was underwriting the Dale public offering, suggested he buy the shares as a good long-range investment.

Gregory testified he made a commitment to buy the shares and would have lost money had their value declined.

He said it was accidental that his oral agreement to purchase the Dale shares and the granting of the mortgage were only two or three weeks apart.

Canada Urged to Lead World-wide Pollution War

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Canada should take the lead in a world-wide attack on industrial pollution, the Northern Ontario Tourist Outfitters' Association said Thursday.

The recommendation was contained in a resolution dealing with mercury contamination that was passed at the final session of the association's annual convention.

The resolution said in part that "all industrial pollution be halted immediately and further that the Canadian government shall initiate discussion that would lead to the end of worldwide pollution by industry."

The resolution received unanimous backing by delegates, many of whose camps are situated on waterways affected by mercury contamination.

The preamble to the resolution said that in some areas of Northern Ontario the mercury contamination is such that it is impossible to operate a profitable tourist outfitting business.

The association also asked the provincial government to initiate an advertising campaign emphasizing that "many hundreds of lakes in Ontario and Northern Ontario are not contaminated by mercury and that lakes in areas adjacent to industrial contamination are not necessarily polluted, and that whole fish are available in many of these lakes."

The association also asked for a program of federal and provincial compensation to outfitters "who have been placed in a precarious financial position because of industrial mercury contamination and adverse publicity."

Several resolutions sought controls against campers who put up their tents, or park their trailers along roadsides and lakeshores instead of licensed private or provincial camp sites.

The association said the practice is "creating garbage dumps which have to be cleaned up at the taxpayers' expense."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 5

Your birthday today: Your path through the coming year brings much growth, against rest to changing conditions. You must depend more on yourself. Relationships pose a problem as you test your own feelings, find them sometimes contrary to logic. You now outgrow some once close relationships. Mediation opens a way. Today's natives have great personal energy; the women frequently show exceptional charm, beauty.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Let other people take care of most of the chores. Seek fresh contacts, introductions. Gather friends about you for an impromptu party this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Think of ways you may get more use and possible earnings from your possessions. Here is a new experiment you can make this afternoon. Lightly pursue romance this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Get an early start, enjoy your travels. Take somebody with you, find new things to do. Apparel worn the first time today works out better than expected.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Let everybody know your regard for them, without flattery. Be ready to entertain. Everybody has a good story to tell — to be taken with a grain of salt.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Cultivate social and business connections. In your home situation many different factors converge — you realize things that perhaps you should have known long ago. Accept a renewed responsibility.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You compete well today, and should be in fine humor. Get going by having people along with you, make a miniature holiday trip of whatever you do, even errands.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): New ways of doing things are happening that you may start taking them for granted. Keep busy, return the favors of others. Home life is most comfortable this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Leave your plans flexible, as you should bear much which inspires you to fresh activities. Listen to news from unlikely sources. Young people sprug surprises.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Serious personal business is not amenable to progress today. See the lighter side of things; laugh with your friends, share your favorite pastime with another.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Indications are for good news in your family. A minor but very satisfying change is promised. Go along with the ideas of those you care about.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Product your willingness to meet everybody halfway, and today can be like a picnic with pleasant surprises. Refurbish your home a bit, invite visitors.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your own agenda now is the controlling factor; as you feel about yourself, so the world around you. Travel, give serious thought to any proposal concerning your home.

'French-pastry' Cars Are Expensive to Repair

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian insurance companies have launched a campaign against "French pastry" car design with fragile fronts and bumpers, an insurance spokesman said Thursday.

Bert Warrick, a director of the Insurance Bureau of Canada and chairman of the bureau's British Columbia advisory committee, said that placing too much of the car ahead of the bumpers where it is vulnerable in collisions results in high repair costs and therefore high insurance premiums.

"We think there should be pressure from every source possible to de-emphasize style and promote durability of cars because we have the unhappy task of passing on the cost to the driver in the form of premiums."

The bureau, representing the largest single group of insurance underwriters, plans to show a film to prove its point to members across the country. The film depicts automobile accidents and their effects under varying test conditions, and gives estimated repair costs.

Costs to repair 1970-model cars crashed into a solid barrier at 15 miles an hour ranged from $625 a Volkswagen to $1,344 for a Chevrolet Camaro.

The study on cost of repairing damages was done by the bureau and the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

Twelve models were used and repair costs were based on Toronto prices, which the agencies considered average for Canada. Labor costs were estimated at $6 an hour.

The costs to repair cars crashed into a solid barrier at 15 miles an hour were: Chevrolet Impala, $975; Ford Galaxie, $946; Plymouth Fury, $784; American Motors Ambassador, $1,341; Chevrolet Camaro, $1,344; Ford Mustang, $999; Pontiac Barracuda, $1,136; American Motors Javelin, $936; Volkswagen, $625; Toyota, $737; Ford Maverick, $761; and American Motors Hornet, $883.

Smiling But Tired, Cross Flies Home

Forces Plane Leaves Dorval

MONTREAL (CP) — James Jasper Cross, smiling but looking pale and tired, flew from Montreal International Airport to London today to be reunited with his wife who has not seen him since his terrorist kidnapping two months ago.

In an airport statement before his departure, the British trade commissioner said he hoped to resume a "normal family life".

He thanked friends and strangers in Canada who had sent messages to his wife Barbara during his 60 days of captivity in a suburban Montreal house.

The 49-year-old envoy boarded a Canadian Forces Boeing 707 immediately after delivering his statement and answering reporters' questions in a packed airport lounge.

The plane took off at 9:05 a.m. EST and was scheduled to land at Heathrow Airport in London about 9 p.m. After that Mr. Cross is scheduled to spend a secluded weekend in the English countryside with his wife.

Wearing a grey suit and smiling briskly as he came into the airport lounge, Mr. Cross told reporters he did not know if he would be coming back to Canada. He has been senior trade commissioner here for three years and planned to have talks with the British government on his future duties.

He talked about the last dramatic day of his captivity, after police had staked out the suburban Montreal North duplex where he was held. That was Wednesday, 59 days after he had been forced at gunpoint from his downtown home Oct. 5.

"They told me at 10 p.m. Wednesday that police knew where I was. The power went out around 2 a.m. (Thursday).

"They got me to the back me into the corridor and handcuffed me to a door knob. I spent a restless, uncomfortable night. Then nothing much happened until the lawyer arrived about 10 a.m. Thursday."

The lawyer set in motion negotiations that led to the release of Mr Cross in exchange for safe passage to Cuba for seven persons—four men, two of their wives and a two-year-old daughter.

Of those who held him captive Mr. Cross said:

"I'm glad they're out of the country and away from me."

The British trade commissioner was held in the custody of the exiled Cuban consul in Montreal from Thursday afternoon until the plane carrying the group of seven landed at Havana early Friday.

Internment Without Trial

Irish Police Seize Seven As Warning to Extremists

DUBLIN (AP) — Detective seized seven persons in a raid on a house near the Dublin airport today, only hours after the Irish government invoked emergency powers to deal with what is called a "secret armed conspiracy."

The seven were not identified, and police said they had not been formally arrested. It appeared that they had been picked up mainly as a government warning to extremists.

Prime Minister Jack Lynch announced Friday that the government had invoked part 2 of the 1940 Offences Against the State Act, which gives police the power to intern any citizen without trial, and that detention centres were being prepared. He said he was acting because police believed conspirators were planning to kidnap leading citizens and to attempt bank robberies likely to involve murder.

His action brought an outcry today from opposition politicians, newspapers and the outlawed Irish Republican Army IRA. Irish rightists, however, welcomed the move.

Northern Ireland's premier, James Chichester Clark, and his governing Unionist party were reported quietly pleased with the move, seeing it as confirmation of their long-standing claims that underground terrorist forces were at work to wreck the rule of law and order throughout the divided island.

Identity Cards In Ontario Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — Three of Ontario's leading law enforcement officials have ruled out identification cards for Ontario residents, similar to those being considered for Quebec province by Justice Minister Jerome Choquette.

"Absolutely not," said Attorney-General Arthur Wishart Friday night when asked at a public forum on the police if Ontario was likely to endorse the idea of some form of universal identification cards to help combat crime and terrorism.

"I see no reason for them," said Harold Adamson, Metropolitan Toronto's chief of police.

"I completely concur in what has been stated," added Judge C. O. Ilich, chairman of Metro's police commission.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A storm centre north of Lake Superior is expected to move across northern Lake Huron tonight and to eastern Lake Ontario Sunday morning. This storm will spread from one to three inches of snow to the north of its track with only a few periods of light snow to the south.

Tonight and Sunday brisk northwesterly winds will bring snowflurries and a few local snowsqualls to some Great Lakes regions. Colder air west of the storm will drop temperatures tonight to 5 to 15 degrees below zero in Northern Ontario and to near 20 above in the south. Afternoon temperatures Sunday are expected to range from 25 to 30 in the south.

Gold Truck Hijacked In Crowd

LONDON (AP) — Britain's air and sea ports were on maximum alert and a massive hunt was under way by Scotland Yard today for three masked bandits who stole £100,000 (about $265,000) worth of gold and diamonds from an airline truck in the middle of London Friday night.

The thing that puzzled Scotland Yard most was how the robbers found out that the KLM truck was carrying such a valuable load. The means and times of moving such a cargo are normally closely-guarded secrets.

Detectives also were handicapped by inadequate descriptions of the bandits. The robbery took place in the middle of the rush hour Friday and was over too quickly for the details to register with witnesses.

City Parade for Santa Is Largest in History

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Hundreds of costumed walkers, horses by the dozens, more than 70 floats and Old Santa himself!

That was the scene in downtown Belleville this morning as the annual Santa Claus parade thrilled thousands of youngsters of all ages.

It was the biggest Santa Claus parade ever in Belleville, and the thousands of watchers lined the streets would agree that it was also one of the best.

Even the weatherman co-operated. Temperatures in the 20 degree range greeted the parade personnel and before the show was over the sun gave evidence of attempts to break through.

Pushing off from the firehall area on West Moira Street, the parade of walkers and floats — many of them depicting characters right out of Old Mother Goose nursery rhymes — was headed by a police escort and by color parties sponsored by the Piston Pushers Motorcycle Club and the Quinte Western Horse Association.

Then came the costumed walkers, the colorful floats, the majorettes, the bands, the horses, and finally Old St. Nick himself.

City police had the parade route along Moira and down Front Street well prepared for the pre-Christmas visit of Santa.

Parking meters along the Front Street were "hooded" and parking banned to allow an unobstructed view by the spectators.

And the crowds of spectators made sure that they would be on time for the show.

Even before 9:30 eager children, with parents in tow, began to gather along Front Street and by the time of the parade the sidewalks were lined in tiers to watch the procession.

To what the kiddies' appetite for what was to come, a pre-parade army of clowns and helpers passed down both sides of the parade route handing out candies and potato chips.

Then came the color parties, and the Salvation Army Band to head off the parade. Appropriately the first float in the parade was that of the Navity scene by the East minister Church Canadian Girls in Training.

As always in a Santa Claus parade, there was the Snow Queen, floats depicting such favorites ad Donald Duck, the Three Little Pigs, Humpty Dumpty, Mickey Mouse, the Queen of Hearts and Old Santa himself.

Adding variety to the parade were the "funny" cars, the toyland express, old time fire fighting equipment, done buggies, and even a big cheese, giving recognition to the Quinte district's dairy industry.

The success of this year's Santa Claus parade gave little evidence of the organizational difficulties which beset the parade committee a year or so ago.

This year, under parade committee chairman Frank Foley, the parade plans went smoothly ahead, with an unprecedented number of volunteers turning out for both organization and actual participation.

London Prepares To Welcome Cross

LONDON (CP) — External Affairs Minister Sharp of Canada and other officials from the Canadian and British governments were preparing today to give James (Jasper) Cross a warm welcome on his arrival in London after two months of captivity in Quebec.

Sharp has been attending a meeting of NATO ministers in Brussels.

Scheduled to be with him tonight at Heathrow Airport when Cross arrives from Montreal was Charles Ritchie, Canadian high commissioner in London, who is to extend a personal message of welcome from the Queen to Cross.

Representatives of the foreign and Commonwealth office also were scheduled to join the reception party.

Parade Winners

Following is a list of winners in today's Santa Claus parade:

Best float in parade — Trojan Horse by Town of Trenton young people: Nativity Scene, by OGIT Eastminster Church;

Nixon Squeeze on U.S. Oil Prices Likely to Benefit Canada

NEW YORK (CP-AP) — The Nixon administration is applying an economic squeeze on the United States oil industry in an effort to crush what it deems inflationary price increases.

The president announced the pressure in a major economic policy speech to the National Association of Manufacturers here Friday night.

One jew of the vise is a presidential order permitting oil importers, currently unable to tap their annual sources in the Middle East, to use now-idle import quotas for Canadian oil, about 50 or 60 cents a barrel cheaper than the Texas and Louisiana product.

The other is an order to the interior department to start negotiating oil production from "state/federal leased lands in the Gulf of Mexico independently from the Texas and Louisiana production restraints, thus, presumably, increasing domestic production.

By increasing domestic supply while undercutting the domestic price with cheaper Canadian crude, the administration hopes to drive back a price increase of 25 cents a barrel recently adopted by U.S. producers.

Under the scheme announced by Nixon, oil companies now may use their overseas tickets to import overland from Canada.

Overseas oil from Venezuela, and the Middle East in particular, has been slowed by the critical shortage of ships.

Education Roundup

Election Interest Locally Focuses on Separate Board

The normally placid separate school board in Hastings-Prince Edward has provided its only controversy in the elections for school trustees coming Monday.

And the controversy appears centred in Belleville, where eight candidates are seeking the five city seats on the Hastings county Roman Catholic board.

The size of the board was whittled down this year from 11 members to nine, Trenton and Belleville both lost one trustee, leaving five for Belleville and two for Trenton.

One incumbent Belleville trustee, Paul Mercier, dropped out of the running leaving the five remaining trustees to campaign for their seats with six candidates new to county board elections.

Superintendent of separate schools J. P. B. Allore last May 6 blew up this fall into a major issue, climaxed by the appointment of Judge A. R. Campbell of Kingston as a commission to inquire into the suspension and make recommendations to the minister of education.

But the announcement of the hearing came too late to prevent the "Allore situation" becoming a campaign issue in Belleville, where a ratepayer's group has been formed earlier to seek Mr. Allore's re-instatement.

Incumbent trustees seeking re-election on the separate school board are: Msgr. James Sullivan, Robert Lacy, Mrs. Jean Wilson, Paul Wall, and chairman E. J. Buckley.

The remaining six candidates are Paul Fleming, separate school representative on the Hastings county board of education for 1969-70, Zdenek Kvarda, John Granville, Gerald Bryanton, James Wiesmuller, and Joseph Chapelle.

Elections will be held in only two other wards of the separate school system. In Trenton, the three incumbent Mrs. Bessie Kostek Addison, Scout and William Menzies, will battle for the two seats left by Trenton.

In the ward comprised of Marmora and Lake township, Marmora village, Deloro, Frankford, Batawa, and Stirling village, incumbent Father Breen O'Connor is opposed by Ernest F. Allore, brother of the suspended superintendent.

Other trustees are in by acclamation: Rev. Walter Hamilton of Picton for Prince Edward county, Gerald Walsh for Thurlow, Tyendinaga and Richmond townships, and Edward J. Courneya for Tweed-Hungerford and Rev. Louis Casarelli for North Hastings.

Voters will elect the five Belleville trustees to a dual position. As well as being separate school trustees, the successful winners of the election in the city will form the board of directors of Hastings Catholic College, and board members in charge of the separate school board has been chairman of the college board.

No issues have developed in the public school election, but all candidates have expressed their concern over the high cost of education.

Although most agree that the limit has been reached on taxation tax-wise, a similar platform has developed to include how taxes can be stabilized and spiralling costs controlled.

Belleville voters will elect five trustees from the seven candidates running. Five incumbent trustees are seeking re-election: chairman James Clarke, Mrs. Miriam Graham, Edward Fairman, Macdonald Smith and Mrs. Ruth Anderson.

Ronald Lee, now an appointed member of the advisory vocational committee, and L. A. Kells are the non-incumbents in the running.

In ward 4, comprised of Stirling, Frankford and Sidney township, veteran politician and two ex-MPP's, former member of Parliament Frank Follwell is challenging the two incumbent trustees: Raymond Rowe of Frankford and Donald Williams of Stirling. Ward 4 voters will elect two trustees.

In three way fight for two seats is also taking place in ward 4 — Tweed, Hungerford, Huntingdon, Desoronto and Tyendinaga.

Incumbent trustee Laurason Gunning is running against two men with experience on boards that existed before the county board was formed two years ago. They are Bruce Pratt and S. C. Genejs.

In Ward 3 — Marmora, Madoc, Deloro, Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, Marmora and Lake and Rawdon — where the trustee is to be elected. Gordon Bennett and incumbent James Spry are competing for the seat.

In the far north of the county, Tuerenon Robinson Robinson will contest the seat for Ward 1 with Mrs. Sybil Saylor.

In three wards incumbent trustees were re-elected by acclamation. In Ward 2 Mrs. Jean Hutchison and Ralph Weaver were returned and in Ward 5 Lennox F. John Follis was unopposed in Bancroft and Mildred Waller was returned for Thurlow.

Two other trustees, elected by separate school supporters, also gained their seats on the Hastings county board by acclamation. They are John Forbes of Trenton and Robertson Collins of Belleville who will succeed, respectively, the county and the city on the Hastings county board of education.

The two separate school trustees sit on the public county board to represent the interests of the children of separate school supporters who attend public high schools.

Because the government requires separate schools only at the elementary level, separate school children attend public high schools unless they are enrolled in the private Nicholson Catholic College. Their two representatives on the public board are therefore entitled to a vote on only those board matters pertaining to the secondary schools.

Only one trustee on the 17-member county board is not elected.

He is the representative from Tyendinaga reserve, who is appointed by the Mohawk band council. Carl D. Brant now holds the position.

And sadness was the call,
He dearly loved by one and all,
His memory is an sweet home,
Where he is sadly missed by mother, Ruth.

SHEPHERD — In loving memory of Richard Shepherd, who passed away Dec. 6, 1967.
Dearest William, Lorraine and Donald Shepherd.
Sometimes memories leap over
As time rambles another year,
And I'm with you once more,
Still loved and missed in every way.
—Lovingly remembered by wife and granddaughter.

HOLLOWAY — In loving memory of our dear father, Arthur Holloway, who passed away Dec. 4, 1967.
Dad, you left us one sad day,
Your last word never spoken and heard,
Your last look never seen and known,
With the passing of the years,
Lovingly remembered by wife and family.

SEWARD, Harry — Who died 4 years ago, December 4, 1966.
Dear Dad not forgotten.
—Love inserted by Jean, Pat, Helen, Keith and grandchildren.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Harry Seward wish to express their sincere thanks and appreciation to Dr. Cornelius, Dr. Hall, Dr. Hutchinson and the many floral tributes, spiritual offerings and expressions of sympathy extended to them in the loss of a loved husband, father and grandfather.

Hees Says Opposition Did Job

George Hees, Conservative MP for Prince Edward — Hastings, yesterday told students and staff at Loyalist College that had the government been able to change the role of the auditor general it would have been "one of the most severe blows to parliament in a long, long time."

Mr. Hees was discussing recent legislation and issues with questioners in the lecture room at Loyalist.

"When you get a government removing elements of criticism, you're heading towards a dictatorship," he said.

Mr. Hees, in his opening remarks, explained that the auditor general's job was to supervise government spending. He said that he was a servant of parliament, not a servant of the government.

He added that the auditor general had recently shown how the government had been wasting money and he cited the $17 million spent on the Arrowhead Provincial Park which was later sold at $750,000 for scrap as an example.

"All governments have had that happen," he said.

Mr. Hees commented on the budget just brought down.

"It's not extraordinary. It's the standard approach when you have high unemployment. But I would have liked to have seen the government do two things to stimulate the economy."

Mr. Hees said that in conversations with Mr. Benson he had suggested he urge the charter banks to lower interest rates.

He said that banks set the pace with their interest rates and that at present they were high enough to prohibit a great deal of investment and thus add to the unemployment problem.

His second suggestion was to offer tax incentives to introduce greater productivity. Such a step, he felt, would bring down prices, make products more stable, cause a larger volume and therefore create employment.

Mr. Hees also discussed old age pensions, family allowances, the retirement of John Roberts and pollution.

Ward Three Candidates

GORDON BENNETT

Before casting your vote on Dec. 7, for the candidate to represent you from Ward 3 on the Hastings county board of education, I ask you to consider my experience and qualifications.

I have lived on a farm and shared in farm work and chores while attending public and high school.

I attended Ontawa Normal School 1937-38 and took up teaching in a one room school at St. Anthony Gold Mines in northern Ontario.

I enlisted in the RCAF in 1941 and served 23 years as an officer and a pilot.

A member of the Marmora and Lake Public School Board in 1956-57, I returned to teaching in 1966 until 1969.

I drove a school bus for three months and attended task force meeting in 1969 and in many other ways attempted to keep abreast of new developments and to keep my self thinking in educational matters.

I have two sons graduated from university, one attending university and one attending Centre Hastings Secondary school.

I believe I can provide good representation on the board of education for the rural as well as the village residents. If elected, I would encourage more communications between parents and school board and would like to see information about school board deliberations sent out to the local weekly papers.

Greater utilization of school board facilities after hours by the public is desirable.

Students who have no interest in remaining in school before 16 should be encouraged to seek employment and return for schooling later, if they wish.

JAMES SPRY

A 40-year-veteran in municipal life with service as township councillor, six years and on three levels of school board, Rawdon township farmer James Spry is seeking re-election as trustee in Ward 3 of the Hastings county school board.

Mr. Spry has served on the Hastings board for the past two years and prior to election on the county board served for years on the Centre Hastings area number 2 board.

He believes in close communication with his constituents as the best way to serve them as their representative.

"Bring me your recommendations and complaints and I will present them to the board," Mr. Spry says. "At all time I have presented your needs to the county board."

With the schools now filled to capacity, Mr. Spry notes that more new accommodation will have to be provided. Planning will require the knowledge that comes only from long experience.

He first served on a section school board before he was 21, appointed to fill out a term of office left vacant by his father.

After serving on Rawdon township boards he served for nine years as councillor, deputy reeve and reeve.

In the past two years as member of the Hastings Board he has served on the advisory vocational committee, on the building committee dealing with planning for the new secondary school at Bayside, and on the board bylaw and policy committee.

Rotary to Hear O.W.R.C. Chief

Chairman of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, Donald J. Collins will address the Belleville Rotary Club on Monday, Dec. 7 at 12:15 p.m. at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

Mr. Collins' remarks are expected to be topical, in view of the present activity of the Water Resources Commission in connection with developments in this area.

What He Said

In the account of the candidates' meeting published in The Intelligencer Dec. 3, Paul Fleming, candidate for a Belleville seat on the separate school board was paraphrased as saying: that 11 of 14 trustees didn't vote lightly or without sufficient cause to suspend the superintendent.

He insisted today that his actual words were: "It doesn't seem likely that 11 of the 14 members of the board would vote lightly and without sufficient cause to suspend Mr. Allore, but only the judge can decide".

Platforms Interchanged

Editor's note: In yesterday's account of the stands of candidates for the Hastings County School Board the platforms of Miriam Graham, standing for election in Belleville and S. C. genejs, contesting a seat in Ward 4 be inadvertently interchanged.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Health Unit Defers Birth Control Decision

Members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit Board, voted at a meeting yesterday to take no action on a family planning clinic, deciding to leave it for the new board which takes office in 1971.

It was the last meeting of this particular board which may be replaced by a board consisting of some new members in 1971.

The decision to hold the matter over followed discussion among the members and Dr. C. R. Lenk, medical officer of health for the unit. They discussed the problems of such a clinic and the aims.

The discussion was initiated by communication received from the Population Zero Growth organization.

Dr. Lenk related his efforts in investigating the possibility and the problems of organizing such a clinic.

He related his inquiries among the medical profession a number of years ago and outlined the general feeling that most people with family planning problems had doctors they could talk to.

He said there were women who wouldn't go to a general practioner possibly because of moral or religious reasons.

The clinic would operate by having a nurse that might refer patients to general practitioners or a specialist.

Part of the problem, Dr. Lenk explained, would be the issuing of The Pill and whether it would be issued to all women coming to the clinic or to the women that warranted getting it. In the latter case, the health unit would have to have the facilities to judge whether a particular woman could afford it herself or not.

Some board members felt that if women wouldn't confide in their physicians for certain reasons they possibly wouldn't confide in a nurse at the health offices.

The members felt that this was especially true with teen-age girls who would be embarrassed at the thought of seeking family planning assistance.

In other board action, members voted in favor of a motion to recommend that another board.

The benefits of that representative being a medical doctor were discussed, but members felt that such a decision should the recommendation be approved by the municipalities represented on the board, would be up to Belleville,

Sidney Approves Crossing Signals

Level crossing signals for Sicklen Road were approved Tuesday by Sidney Township Council.

Total cost of the signals is approximately $28,000, with the township paying about $3,500, CNR $2,100 and the Dept. of Transport footing the remainder.

On top of this, the township has the expense of grading and widening the approach to the crossing.

Maintenance of the crossing, estimated close to $500 a year will be jointly shared by the township and CNR.

Installation of the signals, situated just east of Frankford, is scheduled for sometime near the first of next year.

Reeve Jack Rush yesterday presented the council with a silver - plated inscribed gavel for use during meetings. A gavel had not been present for use since the construction of the new township offices.

On the lighter side; council was amusingly disturbed throughout their meeting yesterday by the antics of a field mouse, caught in the ceiling, every once in a while appearing on the light gradings.

Although the township will attempt to round up stray dogs, they were hesitant about mouse'- napping.

The last meeting of the 1968-70 council to be held on Dec. 11 at 1.30 in township offices.

A new council will be formed following elections on Dec. 7.

Winter Bouquets Speaker's Topic

J. E. Boyd, executive director of the Civic Garden Centre at Edward Gardens in Metropolitan Toronto, will be the guest speaker at the December meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society.

The topic of Mr. Boyd's address at the meeting to be held Dec. 7 at Tabernacle Church will be Winter Bouquets.

Formerly with Massey Ferguson, Mr. Boyd became associated with the Civic Garden Centre when he retired and since 1962 has been executive director. In addition to his administrative duties, he organizes garden courses which are held at the centre on a regular basis.

Post Office Is Ready For Christmas Rush

Christmas is still more than three weeks away but already the tempo is picking up at the Belleville post office.

Postmaster Roy Wainwright said this morning that the annual deluge of Christmas cards had still not commenced but Yuletide parcels for overseas were increasing in volume.

But in anticipation of the Christmas rush, extra help requirements for the post office have already been hired up.

Mr. Wainwright said that the pre-holiday extra help would start reporting for work this weekend with the main force arriving about Dec. 13 or 13.

To handle the expected Christmas mail, a total of 150 extra workers will be hired for tais year's rush period.

The regular complement of workers at the post office is 68.

This year's number of extra postal workers will be about the same as last year, but Mr. Wainwright says the total keeps creeping up a bit each year.

"This year we will have one or two more than last year" he said.

Toy Receipts Are Increased

In two weeks the Belleville Fire Department will have seen the bulk of toy donations that it is going to receive this year for underprivileged children.

Dec. 17 is the date the firemen have set for completed collection of toys and beginning the huge chore of sorting and getting them ready for delivery a few days later.

Toys have been arriving at the Belleville fire stations for three weeks now from where they have been moved to the gymnasium at the Belleville City Police station.

"They've been coming in very well," said Paul Stephenson, Belleville fire inspector. "We've only had a couple that can't be repaired."

Mr. Stephenson said that the fire department was unable to use toys that needed repairs.

He added that this year toy contributions have increased over last year's quantity due possibly to donations by local organizations, institutions and commercial outlets.

Several school classes such as those in St. Joseph's School St. Michael's Academy, OSD and others have helped in the toy crusade. The Avondale Girl Guides have made their donation and some organizations have bolstered the Fire Department's efforts with cash donations.

"We raised more money of our own this year," Inspector Stephenson added. "The firemen are buying gloves for children."

And getting toys to all the children that need them will be no easy job. This year, 1,100 children will receive toys from the Belleville Fire Department, approximately the same number as last year.

"We hope to start delivery Dec. 21."

Highway 37 Bottlenecks Irk Doctor

Traffic bottlenecks on the Highway 37 route into the city have resulted in a complaint from a Tweed doctor.

In a letter read Monday at the city traffic and light committee, Dr. R. S. Berry says that it often takes him as long to get to Belleville General Hospital from Highway 401 as it does to drive from Toronto.

Adding to the bottleneck in the city was the CN level crossing on Canniffon Road with trains frequently holding up traffic and poor road conditions on Canniffon Road and along Bleecker Ave.

Committee members admitted they were well aware of the problem and directed that a letter go to Dr. Berry assuring him that something was being done.

They noted that a study was now under way by a firm of consulting engineers who would make recommendations for north-south arterial routes into the city.

City Map Planned

A new city map is to the planning stages with joint production by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Commission.

Enough requests had been made at the C of C offices on Pinnacle Street to prompt manager J. C. Pat Houston to approach Industrial Commissioner Fred Bemis with a plan to jointly produce the map.

Mr. Houston explained to the chamber board of directors last night that he "had not been impressed" with Mr. Bemis' recommendation that a new city map be produced out of town.

However, the map is to be produced in Belleville, jointly by the C of C and the Industrial Commission. Approximately 10,000 will be printed, both commissions sharing half the cost.

Must Remain Vigilant

For Jacques Cross the "dead dream" is over, but for Canada the continuing nightmare of the kidnapping murders it took yet at an end. Only when the FLQ menace has been finally laid, or at least brought under control, will Canadians be able to breathe more easily.

The first necessity now must be to press on with the hunt for the kidnappers and murderers of the late Pierre Laporte. His death remains a stain on our political history that cannot be erased, a monument to the apathy or lack of awareness, that has allowed the FLQ and other apostles of the New Left to warp our social fabric.

It is ironic that the old Expo 67 site should have seen the final enactment of this phase of the kidnapping story, for we well remember a television interview with a young Quebec separatist at the time of the world fair. He said that Expo would likely see a lull in overt political activity, but once the fair was concluded it would be resumed. The revolutionaries in Quebec have been as good as their word.

It would be tempting now for Ottawa and Quebec to relax their guard and to question the need for such measures as the Public Order Bill. However we believe so much relaxation can be contemplated at this time, for there is no evidence that the FLQ organization is broken, and no guarantee that other kidnappings or acts of terrorism will not occur again.

Twists of Fate

"I'm so lonely I could die," wrote Mrs. Jean Rosenstein, 84, to the Los Angeles Times. Since then she has been inundated with phone calls, flowers and letters.

It was an inspired idea to write, as she did, and even if she retains only a handful of active friends as a result it will have been worthwhile. We recall similar words of Seventh-born actress Inger Stevens. Found dying in her kitchen from an overdose of drugs some months ago, Miss Stevens was said to have observed once that she was so lonely she could scream. Ironically, Miss Stevens' words are enjoying quite a vogue on television these days.

Another U.S. family who have found happiness in a roundabout manner are Howard Taylor, his wife Mary, and their daughter Rebecca, 4. They were pictured in Miami recently after being rescued from their sailboat which struck a Bahamanian reef and sank. The Taylors sold all they owned two years ago and set out in the boat, but after their rescue Taylor said he is "the happiest guy I know . . . I've got a real Thanksgiving story to tell."

It is a reminder that rescue from the brink of death is the most effective cure-all for dissatisfaction with life. Sometimes the humdrum can be very appealing.

Mail Code

We had been thinking what a cumbersome system is the British six-digit code used in sorting mail. Here is an example: BT9 5FH and it is one of the area codes in the city of Belfast. Other cities have similar combinations.

For the individual sending a lot of Christmas cards to Britain it represents a tricky bit of memory work, unless of course you can find that address book. Even then the codes are so new that the book itself will need bringing up to-date.

Now we see that Canada intends to fashion its national postal code along the same lines and we shall have a merry old muddle with two different sets of codes. Yet it appears that by computerizing sorting in this way letters can be directed to a specific part of a postman's walk. The system is to begin experimentally in Ottawa in 1971.

Happy mailing then! Perhaps we will all need our own personalized computer to keep abreast of things.

'Dev' May Retire

The man who once was under sentence of death by the British for his part in the Easter Rebellion in Dublin in 1916, and escaped, is said to be contemplating retirement.

Now 88, President de Valera of the Irish republic is the world's oldest active statesman. However, he is known to be in failing health and worried about his ailing 92-year-old wife. Some quarters predict he may step down in January.

"Dev," as he has long been known throughout Ireland and abroad was prime minister from 1937 to 1948; 1951-54, and again from 1957 to 1959. Once caricatured by Punch magazine as the "Spanish onion in the Irish stew" (a reference to the fact he was born in New York of a Spanish father and Irish mother), his retirement would represent another turning point in Ireland's turbulent history.

Anti-Americanism Is 'Fatuous' Says Senator

U.S. Buys 30 Per Cent of Overseas Goods from Canada

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Canadians have been told there is no more "fatuous attitude" than the anti-Americanism which has become fashionable in some areas of the country.

Senator John Connolly, former government leader in the Senate, today predicted that a Canada — U.S. free trade area may be on the way.

He said that despite exaggerated and over-publicized nationalistic talk heard in Canada, Canadians and Americans were basically the same kind of people.

"We have similar economic philosophies, democratic institutions, systems of education, and social goals. We have been partners in war, we are friends in peace."

The senator conceded there was bound to be concern that Canada, neighbor of the wealthiest and most powerful country on earth, would be overshadowed to the point of domination in every aspect of national life.

In acknowledged that not only Americans but its culture, technology, and research influenced Canada. "But who is to say that all this is good or bad. I personally believe we are fortunate in having such a neighbor as we have to our south."

There was no incompatibility, Connolly declared, between close ties with the U.S., and development of Canada as a distinct national entity.

A leading member of Canada-U.S. inter-parliamentary links, the senator noted growing interest in the possibility of a free trade area between the two neighbors. He recalled that several planning associations had urged this measure and Connolly pointed to the close economic partnership already existing between the U.S. and Canada.

He emphasized that of U.S. purchases abroad, nearly 30 per cent were obtained from Canada. The U.S. in fact bought twice as much from Canada as from any other country.

"Not only this but the U.S. production machine is so oriented that it depends upon Canadian manufacturers to help supply the American market. This is a built-in assurance of a continuity of business between our country and the U.S., and from this we can only benefit."

Foreign investment in Canada today Connolly observed is about $40 billion and 25 percent of this is of U.S. origin. Canadian investments abroad were about $6 billion and 8 percent of which was in the U.S.

The senator observed that without investment U.S. capital investment Canadians would not enjoy the high standards of living that now obtain.

He very much doubted where Canada could have generated enough capital to endow her remarkable economic growth of the past decade, without substantial help from the U.S.

Connolly's defence of a U.S. presence in Canada came at a time when there is considerable criticism about American domination of industry and key resources areas in this country.

There is also concern voiced about the large number of American citizens on the staffs of Canadian institutions. There is some agitation too because much of the best college property around desirable lakes and ocean fronts has been bought by U.S. citizens.

And what really irked many citizens was the recent sale of Ryerson Press Ltd., a Canadian publisher of school books, to an American subsidiary firm in Canada. Some commentators observed that Americans were preaching in the schools and now U.S. firms would be supplying the text books.

But what really fired up Canadians was the fact that Ryerson Press was owned by the prestigious United Church of Canada. Others lamented that if this ecclesiastical pillar was ready to sell out to Uncle Sam, nothing was safe.

Ireland's Charm

Exquisite homes like this one are a common sight in the Irish countryside. Synonymous with gracious living, estate management, and hunting, shooting and fishing, properties such as these have also had their share of tragedy; for during the troubled times of the twenties many were the target of arsonists. But all is peace and tranquillity as this pony- trekking group gets under way at Foulksmills, County Wexford.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 5, 1970 . . .

The Nova Scotia-built brigantine Mary Celeste was found at sea 98 years ago today—in 1872—between the Azores and Cape Rock, Portugal, with no man aboard her. It became one of the great unsolved mysteries of the sea. Mary Celeste was in seaworthy condition, there was no sign of a struggle, but her chronometer, boat and papers were missing. The fate of her crew remains unknown.

1954—Canada announced a recall of its remaining troops in Korea.

1925 — Medina, Arabia surrendered to Ibn Saud.

1945—The presidential message of James Polk announced that gold had been found in California.

1749—Explorer Pierre Gaultier de Varennes, Sieur de la Verendrye, died.

1615 — Sieur de Poutrincourt, founder of Port Royal died.

1598—Francis II of France died.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board issued a statement that it helped had been named to inquire into the suspension of Fred Allore, superintendent for the counties school.

Unfortunately, the board included with that some propaganda which hardly seems entirely immediately prior to an inquiry of this nature, leading itself, and saying how impartial it is.

Labor and the Political Scene

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

With regard to recent comments in an area newspaper concerning the endorsing of election candidates by the Quinte District Labor Council, I take exception to when it states that by endorsing candidates we introduce politics in local elections and that it might be in the public interest if non-labor people were in office.

Never at any time did the Quinte District Labor Council support a person because of his political beliefs: because we are a labor organization the mistake in thinking is that we must follow the idea of NDP sponsorship. If these writers of these comments would properly investigate before giving vent to their misguided opinions it could easily be found that one person we endorse is a well-known member of the Liberal party in the Trenton area. We believe in the freedom of choice. Labor organizations' foundations are built on freedom of the vote and the democratic way of life.

The next mistaken opinion is that the "Local administrators have little to do with policies which affect labor, except only as they assist deal with organized employees." If the opinion on this is also the opinion and belief of people running for various offices, it is little wonder that the labor people, organized or otherwise, are often disenchanted with local administrations — when it should be very easily realized that if the majority of taxes any given municipality or board operates on is from those very same people. A conservative estimate often used is that 60 per cent of taxes are from the labor people. With that in mind isn't it a fair statement that their voice should be on administrative boards?

How can it be "in the public interest if only non-labor people were in office"? Considering what has been stated above, what could the majority of people in the area have a voice on council or school boards?

Student Says Teachers Earn All They Get

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to comment on the education scene. I have been reading articles concerning teachers and their demands for a higher salary.

I get the impression taxpayers feel teachers are receiving a sufficient income. But do these taxpayers know what teachers actually do to earn their wages?

I believe not. They send their sons and daughters off to school for the entire day not knowing or caring (as the case may be) what they do or how they act or how the teachers manage to teach them.

Teachers earn their pay. They must teach a lesson that will be understood by the 30 per cent student and not bore the 30 per cent student. They must cope with students who do not care to be in school, students who make trouble and parents who believe low grades are the fault of teachers. Teachers must come to know 180 students or more during the first months of school. They must learn their names, their capabilities and their weaknesses. The teacher must also be parent and friend to the students. A good teacher is hard to find; it is not a job everyone can fill.

So when you condemn teachers, remember that you have given them a big job, you have raised the education of your child during his formative years in their hands and that education they receive is priceless.

How do I know what teachers do to earn their wages? I am a student.

Pollution in Paradise!

Fiji Times

In a relatively small island group as the vast Pacific Ocean it is easy to read or hear about the growing menace of pollution of air, land and water elsewhere in the world and to think comfortably: "It can't happen here."

But it is happening here, and on an increasing scale, especially in and near Suva. The air is being befouled by fumes from industrial plants and, more seriously and more continuously, by filthy fumes from buses and trucks.

The disgraceful thing about the traffic pollution is that so little is being done by the owners or users of the vehicles concerned and by the police and other authorities.

It will be an offence, accordingly, punishable by fine of $800 for individuals or $3,000 for companies, to advertise that a night man is wanted for gas - pump duties at a service station. The advertising will have to retreat behind the screen of obscurity, and say only that a job is open for a person.

The only thing that is wrong about this is that it is silly. If a job is offered, it's a man who will be hired.

The obscurity can accomplish little but harm. It will deceive job-hunting girls to waste their time and hopes applying and it can cause some innocent service - station operator into a criminal act if he does employ this legal pitfall in the wording of his ad.

Everyone else knows that men are not women, and vice versa. Why haven't the officials and journalists who write regulations noticed?

The irony of the new regulations is that they are to be enforced by an agency titled Ontario Women's Bureau.

If there is to be clear-cut discrimination, we get more discrimination.

If this attempt to make the sexes identical with each other were consistent, we should have equal rights for sex in Ontario Men's Bureau. Or does the new Women's Bureau recommend changing the law, thus avoiding the discrimination it is to prohibit—to the rest of us.

Drivers—Be Prepared For Onset of Winter

Ottawa Journal

The Canada Safety Council issues a reminder that 81 people died in snowmobile accidents across Canada last winter. As warns of an increase in casualties this year unless snowmobile operators take more care.

The council's snowmobile operators should take more care!

Winter spells trouble for all forms of transportation. To pick out the method that killed 93 last winter, but forget the fact that last winter 626 were killed in street and road accidents would be absurd.

Now is the time, or nearly so, when all drivers should review their habits. Let's check our fellow usage skid. All drivers should realize they can't see through windows obscured by snow or fog. All drivers should know that driving 60 miles an hour on a dry summertime highway. All pedestrians should cross streets on the basis of assumption that the approaching driver has failed to see us all drivers should approach crowded corners knowing that every other pedestrian is going to try to beat the light.

In short, snowmobilers too are only people. All people should look sharp, be sharp and act sharp in winter when skidding is driving. And the police should see to it that we do!

Let's see if these are three four-letter words worth remembering.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 5, 1950

Three ministers from the Belleville area recently took part in the proceedings of Queen's University Theological Alumni Association conference held at the university. They were: Rev. D. M. J. Buttars of Inglewood, and Rev. Harold Bloomfield; Rev. J. F. Everson and Rev. J. W. Flint, both of Belleville.

The "Gypsy Rover" a period operetta, was presented at BCIVS through combined efforts of Holloway Street Church and St. Paul's Church, Stirling. Alderman Dr. Richard T. Potter has announced that he will be a candidate for the mayoralty in the forthcoming civic elections.

30 YEARS AGO

December 5, 1940

The mystery of the shortage of lake trout that has confronted Prince Edward County and other Lake Ontario fishermen for the past two years may have been cleared up by the statement made before the International Great Lakes Fisheries Board of Inquiry, by Overseas fisherman William Cahill, "that the depredations of millions of eels are responsible for the death of this type of fish". One of some 30 fishermen who testified, Cahill stated that he had travelled over the trout spawning beds and had seen eels by the million, with heads buried in the gravel and tails pointing toward the surface. These eels, he said, were feasting on trout eggs.

40 YEARS AGO

December 5, 1930

Bridge Street United Church women had a banner in the Sunday School rooms.

Winners of the public speaking contest for pupils of public and separate schools were: Evelyn Badgley, Shannonville, third; Nan Elliot, R.R.3 Tweed silver; Raymond Gunsolus, Madoc, gold.

50 YEARS AGO

December 5, 1920

Subscriptions in this city to the China Famine Fund now total $722.86. City Treasurer E. T. Frederick, is treasurer of the fund.

Dr. J. J. Robertson has returned from Toronto where he spent several days.

A new School of this city has been selected as a member of the local police force and has assumed his duties.

Another Form of Discrimination?

Male-Female Connotations

By the age of two, or soon thereafter, a normal child has probably noticed that there is a difference between males and females. He or she soon gets straightened in his or her own mind what sex he belongs to. Anyone who was uncertain would find life inconvenient in many practical matters.

When the child grows up to be 21, however, the only useful thing is to look at the conveniently - arranged columns in help-wanted ads. Everyone can say that help is wanted in two lists: male and female. If the job - hunter is looking for a category fits, one small hurdle is cleared at the beginning of the job-hunt.

A boy won't have to waste his time applying for a job as a waitress, at least in theory.

In Ontario this open-eyed recognition of the facts of life is shortly to change. Beginning Dec. 1, regulations will come into force which will ban all ads "An act to prevent discrimination in employment because of sex or marital status."

One of the effects of the regulations will be to draw a veil of silence over the nature of jobs which are advertised as open. The printed description of the regulations says, "... advertisers may not place and publications may not print advertisements limiting a position to a person of one sex or marital status unless an exception for the job has first been established."

It will be an offence, accordingly, punishable by fine of $800 for individuals or $3,000 for companies, to advertise that a night man is wanted for gas - pump duties at a service station. The advertising will have to retreat behind the screen of obscurity, and say only that a job is open for a person.

The only thing that is wrong about this is that it is silly. If a job is offered, it's a man who will be hired.

The obscurity can accomplish little but harm. It will deceive job-hunting girls to waste their time and hopes applying and it can cause some innocent service - station operator into a criminal act if he does employ this legal pitfall in the wording of his ad.

Long-time Oblate Missionary Fears Eskimos Being Spoiled

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — Rev. Roland Courtemanche, an Oblate missionary who has spent 30 of his 39 years with Eskimos, believes the once-exploited natives of Canada's North now are in danger of becoming spoiled.

"In the old days you could access compassion and sympathy. Eskimos, but that's changed," he says.

"Now they are becoming spoiled, by social welfare especially."

Father Courtemanche, a native of Mont Laurier, Que., said that since he first came to the North the traditional Eskimo way of life has been revolutionized, particularly by new forms of transportation.

The advent of air transport and snowmobiles has changed Eskimo life to such an extent that he is afraid "the young may be losing their traditional instinct for hunting with modern life taking over."

A softly-spoken man whose love of Eskimos testifies to his three decades of northern life, Father Courtemanche confirms a deep concern with the plight of the Eskimo and a quiet sense of honor as he spills his anecdotes to visitors from the south.

An issue he regards as being of great importance is the increasing availability of education to the Eskimos.

Father Courtemanche estimated most Eskimos now reach about grade 9 or 10 in the course of their schooling but, while pleased with the increasing opportunity offered them, he is worried about the further disruption of Eskimo life.

"The Eskimos may get better jobs, but I'm afraid they'll lose their pride who'll go outside when they get educated.

"The ambition of the girls is to marry white men.

"The first girl I asked about this said 'We will be safe if we marry a white man, we won't be starving.'"

Father Courtemanche said in an interview the Eskimos "should have more authority over their family to make their children marry Eskimos" and preserve the community.

He explained that before white civilization stretched into the North, it was most important that Eskimos produce as many male children as possible to replace older leaders.

"Thirty years ago they lived in snow houses and used the old forms of transportation. And because they lived on the land they didn't need.

"At 45 they were old men but if they passed 45 or 50 they could live for a long time if they had sons to do most of the work."

His experiences travelling with Eskimos taught him they had better uses for water than washing.

"The first use is for making tea and the second for icing the sled."

Mud was applied to wooden runners of the sled and covered by a layer of ice. The ice would last for three or four hours, then the journey would be broken for lunch and a new ice covering applied to the original mud base.

While hunting and fishing are not as important to the Eskimos as they once were, some trappers still go on two-week treks covering more than 120 miles and inspecting from 200 to 250 traps.

"They used to share their wives when making hunting trips," Father Courtemanche said, "But when the babies were born they were always sure they were theirs."

Father Courtemanche has a congregation of between 45 and 50 Roman Catholic Eskimos in Frobisher Bay as well as about 350 whites.

Most of the area's Eskimos belong to the Anglican Church.

When he first came to the North "religion, the police and the Hudson's Bay Co. were the three authorities for the Eskimos."

Social problems have increased since then because "the Eskimos copy the whites and their faults" even the habit of pollution.

But Father Courtemanche believes the major problem is alcohol.

After 30 years in the North, the missionary is content to spend the rest of his working life in this barren land.

"If I hadn't been a priest I probably would have stayed in the North for only 10 or 12 years. But I spend Eskimo and there's no use sending me to the south."

John previously performed by missionaries are being taken over by young married couples known as Catechists who work in isolated Eskimo settlements.

"But there are no young priests replacing us so we stay until we can't work any more."

Old Folk Find Choir Can Be Fun

OTTAWA (CP) — Wednesday is choir night for the Good Companions, and neither rain nor sleet nor dark of night keeps these choristers, all aged more than 60, from their music.

When Lorna Rowebottom, our accompanist and I began with the group five years ago, some of the members could not and scribbled and I had to be firm with them," director Bill Dunning recalls fondly.

"Grooping is one of my pet hates—but my choir members aren't the only ones guilty of this fault because many singers do it."

At the beginning of the season it takes a few practices to get over the rough spots "but by Christmas the choir usually sounds lovely sounds."

Mr. Dunning has approximately 15 singers and is aiming at a choir of 25 to 30 voices.

Male singers are needed especially.

John Morgan, who confesses to being over 80, has been singing with the choir for five years.

"I sang in church choirs when I was a boy in the old country," said Mr. Morgan, who arrived from England 60 years ago. "I should have stayed with the church choir, but I moved away and that was the end of that."

Most of the singing is in unison rather than parts.

"With all older voices, it sounds better," said Tillie Ward, who has been singing all her life and has been with the choir since it began 15 years ago at St. George's Anglican Church hall.

Of Welsh ancestry, Mrs. Ward, who's "over 70," particularly enjoys singing for groups of older people.

Ridgway Pottery Shown At Great Exhibition

A Ridgway started in business as a master potter in the second half of the 18th century. He had two sons, John and George; Job had two sons, John and William. All were potters, separately or with one another.

Job and George were in business together from 1793 to 1795, as Ridgway Smith and Ridgway. From 1799 to 1802 they were in business as Job and George Ridgway. Their main pottery was the Bell Works, Shelton, now incorporated in Stoke - on - Trent, England. In 1802 when they split up Job built the Caledon Works.

Job's two sons John and William traded under the name of J. & W. Ridgway, marking their wares as such, as JWR or simply JWR. In 1830 John and William broke up. William continued in the Bell Works and other plants. John worked with his father at the Caledon Works.

John was named Potter to Her Majesty and was entitled to use the royal arms, which he did, as a mark. He placed his initials in the centre of the arms with no other identifying mark, making it frequently difficult to identify. The arms were so large that small objects had to be identified by a crown alone.

In 1840 the firm incorporated and marked its wares as John Ridgway and Company, until 1858 when it became Ridgway, Bates and Co.

John Ridgway exhibited at the Great Exhibition of 1851. His exhibit included the forerunner of the modern bathroom sink, a fountain handbasin on a decorative pedestal, glazed, a style that survived until the 1930s.

He also exhibited in 1851, an earthenware stair rail which did not survive and a number of dinner sets which did.

William Ridgway was in business as William Ridgway and Son; William Ridgway and Son and Co. (which operated a number of factories). William Ridgway (in two locations, one formerly belonging to George); and as Ridgway, Morley, Wear and Co.

The Ridgways and associated potteries did a large business in North America. They used Bartlett American and Canadian views extensively, on their blue printed ware. Much of their business was in the United States where they did not advertise the Canadian origin of the views used.

American collectors began collecting blue printed historical china in the 1930s. In 1938 an American issued a handbook of collectible pieces, identifying among other makers, the Ridgways, and their artists, particularly Bartlett. The views were not identified.

Prices for good blue printed wares were relatively higher in the '30s than they are now. In the U.S. the most desirable piece seems to be a platter (circa 1840) which sells now for $255. The next most desirable scene is the Boston State House at $218. Canadian views are not collected in the U.S. and the prices have remained reasonably low. Ridgway made many styles beside blue printed wares and were noted for the quality of their product and the durability of their ware.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth M. Thompson of Roslin announces the engagement of their oldest daughter, Marilyn Jane, to John David Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Patterson of Tweed. The wedding will take place on Thursday, December 31, 1970 at 10 a.m. in Thomasburg United Church.

MARRIAGE NOTICE

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McLean, Belleville R. 6 of the death of their sister-in-law Mrs. J. A. McLean, 2513 Lucille Drive, Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Mrs. McLean formerly resided in Buffalo, N.Y.

'Doctors' Over-perscribing Drugs'

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan doctors let too many drugs get onto the streets though bad habits in prescribing, says Dr. C. J. Kilduff, president of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons.

In an address to the association, Dr. Kilduff warned doctors to be more careful in prescribing mood - modifying drugs and to keep personal prescription pads in a place not readily available to drug addicts.

The consumption of amphetamines mood - elevating drugs in Canada doubled between 1962 and 1969 and consumption of amphetamine derivatives increased by 56 per cent in the period 1962 to 1965, he said.

"This amount is very high when the indication for these drugs is very low."

He said over-prescribing now is considered a basis for discipline by the General Medical Council in England.

Some of the increased consumption is related to forged prescriptions, Dr. Kilduff said. He warned that doctors should take more care.

District Women's Institutes Meet

MELROSE WI

MELROSE — The special speaker at the November meeting of Melrose Women's Institute was Ray Pinder of the Ontario Dept. of Agriculture who spoke of 4-H Clubs, courses available and awards obtainable.

The committee appointed to see that the awards provided by the Women's Institute were suitably engraved, had taken care of this matter and displayed them at this meeting. The individual award as well as the larger more impressive one passes to a different one each year.

Mrs. Don Macfarlane thanked the speaker and presented him with an appropriate gift.

A business period followed when secretary - treasurer reported on finances and noted that donations had been made to the Cancer Fund, the Mentally Retarded, recreation, and the Girls Club. The WI will sponsor euchre euchres again this year and the time and place of the first one will be announced at a later date. It was noted that the next training school for leaders will be Jan. 18 and 19."

The delegate to the area convention gave a brief outline of the first day's program.

A Christmas party will be held on Dec. 9 at the home of Mrs. Leslie McLaren and Mrs. Roy McLaren. The committee responsible for food request that two dishes be contributed by each member.

Mrs. Gerald Stratton who had made a study on pollution gave a paper on this subject. Several readings were given followed by a contest with winners Mrs. K. McMechan and Mrs. R. Clarke.

Refreshments were provided by the hostess Mrs. MacLarier and the social committee.

CARMEL W.I.

The highlight of the November meeting of the Carmel Women's Institute was a tour of the local Constellation Canada Company, located at 562 Dundas Street East, Belleville.

The tour was arranged by the Agriculture and Canadian Industries convener Mrs. Bert Grills. There were 17 members and three visitors shown through the building.

First to be viewed was the carpet as it arrives in an off-white color. It is then dyed and dried. If it is to have a pattern or design, they proceed to apply the design. The patterns are formed and made right in the factory. As the pattern is completed, the rug is put through a steam bath and dried again.

If the rugs are to have the rubber back coating this is applied in the next procedure. They then inspect the carpet for flaws. If in perfect shape the rugs are ready for shipment.

The group returned to the home of Mrs. Russell Ritz and a business period was conducted. The president Mrs. George Graham expressed thanks to the hostess and to Mrs. Grills for having arranged the tour.

Mrs. J. Jessop reported on the 4-H Girls work and announced the Achievement Day which was held Saturday, Nov. 28. Mrs. Earl Ross gave a report on the recent area convention held at Club Canara.

The meeting closed and a social time was enjoyed.

'Mother Hubbard' Fashions Now Popular Style in Honolulu

HONOLULU (CP) — A lot of men have been joking in recent months about "Mother Hubbard fashions" in the new, longer lengths, but here in Hawaii it has really happened —the original long look brought to these tropic islands by 19th century missionaries is the new fashion item.

The native word for the Mother Hubbard missionary line was muumuu, and now the Malia of Honolulu fashion house will feature the muus in its collection for spring.

"The timing for the fashion was right, too," said Mary Foster, who heads the Malia house. "We are ready for a revival of Victorian modesty."

Malia's eight muu styles are named for the first missionary wives who arrived in Hawaii in 1820 after a five-month voyage from New England.

Each missionary style combines at least four calico prints plus lace and trim, almost as Mrs. Foster said, "the missionary wives were very frugal by character and certainly would not have thrown away any scraps of material."

So "Mercy," in a leg-of-mutton style, is in a tiny sprigged floral print with lily yoke and mutton sleeves in floral stripes, or any other calico combinations and with the light sleeves below the puffs in two different prints.

"Jerusha" in real life was rather fashionable and so her style is a party princesse, with a deep ruffled yoke and long cuffed and ruffled sleeves The sleeve ruffles are lined in another color. It's these details that bring the missionary muus into the $40-$50 price range.

Most of the muus have modest high collars and sleeves. But to update some styles, Malia took "Elizabeth" out of character in a tunic pants-suit but with the collage of prints. "Sybil" is also modernized in a sleeveless ankle-length version but with the high collar and deep square front-and-back yoke.

To add to the old-fashioned flavor, Malia calls the calico prints by such reminiscent names as Sunday meeting, Schoolhouse, Bandstand. And the colors are old-fashioned, too, as candy apple, strawberry soda, spearmint, licorice, peppermint and lilac.

Mary and Bill Foster, married Malia 19 years ago with a little plant of 5,000 square feet. Now there are 125 workers in two factories. To capture the Canadian, Australian and South African markets, out-priced by the high import duty from Honolulu, the Fosters have a factory in Hong Kong. Prices from there are practically the same as in Honolulu or the mainland United States. The missionary muus for Canada will be produced on Hong King and will be available in the spring.

The Fosters are Americans. Mary was born in Chicago and Bill in Hilo, Hawaii. They met at Stanford University where Mary graduated in journalism and Bill in economics and foreign trade. They have four teen-age children.

One of Malia's several designers is Beverly Stearns, born in Niagara Falls, Ont., and educated in Toronto and Seattle. She and her photographer husband came to Honolulu nearly two years ago.

The missionary muus are only a small group in Malia's spring collection of resort clothes. Included in the line are prints that look like circular lava flows, trailing stylized flowers and floral circles.

Malia also produces two men's lines called Print Break and Sandwich (the old name for Hawaii) Islands. There will be men's mini-vercy shirts, too, but not intended as a his-and-hers idea. They will have different calico tabs and contrast collars and cuffs.

Ann Landers

Epilepsy Foundation Has Free Literature

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a normal 15-year-old girl. When I say normal I mean I look like a 15-year-old girl, I act like a 15-year-old girl and I have all the desires and dreams of a 15-year-old girl. The only way in which I am different is that I am an epileptic. . . .

I have the Epilepsy Foundation to thank for educating me so that I now live a fear-free life. I have learned from their booklets to hold my head up and to help other epileptics. I have also learned not to be ashamed of my affliction.

It is estimated that one out of every 100 ANN LANDERS people have epilepsy. This means about two million in the United States. And I don't forget — for every epileptic, three or four members of his family are involved in his illness. They should understand the nature of epilepsy and know what to do in case of a seizure.

I have not had a seizure in years, thanks to dilantin, a marvelous drug which has changed the lives of millions. Please, Ann Landers, print the address of the Epilepsy Foundation and urge interested people to write for free literature. They also have films for groups who wish to understand. God bless you for the good you do. — ONE OF TWO MILLION.

DEAR ONE: Here's the address of the Epilepsy Foundation: 733 15th Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005. And God bless, you, for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column a few days ago made me mad. It was about brides who don't get around to writing thank you notes for wedding gifts. You were not one bit sympathetic with the brides who are exhausted from all the showers and trousseau shopping — followed by the honeymoon and setting up housekeeping. A lot of brides these days are pregnant and don't feel well.

I have already received three copies of your column in the mail and I am very annoyed. It so happens I was married 16 months ago and by the time I got around to writing my thank you notes a year had passed so I decided "better never than late." . . .

You can get back in my good graces by printing my name and address and saying a great big thank you to everyone who sent us wedding gifts. — CORNING READER.

DEAR CORN: "If you think I'm going to take you off the hook by printing your thank you note in this column you are off your ever lovin' rocker.

I don't know where you picked up that "better never than late" jazz. It's a loser. Sit down now and write those long overdue thank you notes. . . .

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Am I feeling sorry for myself? My husband and I are nearly 60. We have married children and grandchildren. All through our married life he has had affairs with older women — widows or divorced friends of mine. I've gone through the same agonies each time — tears, humiliation and heartbreak. Then I'd forgive him because I loved him very much. I was certain he had straightened around these past few years and that I had won, but last night the bomb fell. A widow again — another friend of mine. My husband is begging me to forgive him. He says he has finally awakened to his foolishness. Has he? What should I do? — O. CITY.

DEAR O.: What are your options? Would your life be better without him? Only you can make that decision. Good luck.

GIRL GUIDE and BROWNIE NEWS

BELLEVILLE DIVISION . . . At the holiday meeting of the Belleville Division Girl Guide Association held at the home of the Division Commissioner Mrs. J. R. Colden on Tuesday, December 4, it was announced that the annual guide and brownie tea will be held on Tuesday, February 23 at St. Thomas Parish hall, Mrs. Stewart Robertson has offered to convene this annual event. A coffee party will be held in the evening to allow girls and their mothers and friends who are unable to attend in the afternoon to enjoy a social hour with members of the guide movement. Posters, handicrafts and hobbies will be displayed and as usual each district will convene a home baking cooking table.

Correspondence read during the meeting included a letter from Mrs. R. W. Arnott thanking the division for inviting her to be their honored guest at the area dinner held in Peterborough recently. This year being the jubilee yeft, each division was asked to bring along guests whose service to guiding warranted special recognition. Mrs. Arnott and Mrs. D. Stewart, past district commissioner attended from Belleville. On behalf of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary Mrs. P. M. Till thanked the units who supplied the tray favors for the hospital at Hallowe'en.

Mrs. Munroe reported on trainings, past and pending. A successful commissioners' day was held at the Kiwanis Centre recently with 13 attending. Miss E. Baker and Mrs. W. Neelands planned and conducted the program.

Results of the poll taken among the guides showed that they wish the bi-laws form as part of the uniform but would appreciate the addition of a loop or epaulet to hold them when not being worn. An appeal from the Hudson Bay division for used uniforms or parts of uniforms in good condition was read. Plans for cookie day in March were discussed. Brownies and guides are busy planning good deeds for the Christmas season.

Successful Living

This Reader Distressed by Forgetfulness

By DORIS CLARK

One difficulty I experienced as I grew older was the forgetfulness. I was distressed by this and decided to try to solve my problem.

I came to the conclusion that forgetfulness is nothing more than a lack of keeping your mind alert. Concentration is an important factor.

You will be surprised how good your memory can become. Concentration can be kept strong only by taking a few minutes' practice every day; Many older persons say, "Oh dear, I simply don't have any memory lately, guess I am growing too old to remember anything any more." They resign themselves to what they feel is the inevitable. Such reversals can be true.

Practice concentrating. Don't let loss of memory or forgetfulness as you grow older become your master. Be alert, active, exercise your mind daily and 'I am sure you will find as I have, as the age of 77 years, that growing older is an admirable occupation and gives you a new incentive for living. — from Modern Maturity.

Dear Doris: As it turned out, I stopped worrying about my boy friend, and started going out with an old time friend.

The boy who always brings his sister and her girl friend still comes over quite often but I'm not paying too much attention and, as you say, maybe eventually he will realize how much I think of him.

Gee, I really hope some day it will blossom into real romance! Until then I'll keep busy with others and hope for the best.

Thanks again, Doris, for being there when I wanted to discuss my silly problem.

Sure Now.

Dear Sure Now: Glad to have your report. It might surprise you to find that you begin caring more for the old friend! I don't think you are, as sure as you think you are.

Anyway, keeping your own counsel and remaining your own person is good behavior.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Repeat for Meat Turnovers -- French Style

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Late in October you gave us a recipe for Salmon Turnovers and referred to some French Meat Turnovers you had given in your column two years previously. Could I please have that French Meat Turnover recipe? — Kate Mc.

ANSWER: Not an inkling of the popularity of these French Meat Turnovers reached me until the flood of mail this current week. It was given in May 1978 and here it is again for those who missed it and for our new readers.

MEAT TURNOVERS FRENCH STYLE
(7 or 8; will freeze)
Pastry:
2 cups sifted all - purpose flour
1 tsp. salt
3.3 cup hard butter
7 (or 8) tbsps. milk
Filling:
1 cup (not packed) bread crumbs (or 2 small slices bread)
1-3 cup milk
¾ lb. lean pork finely ground
1 egg
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
2 tbsps. butter (or margarine)
½ onion chopped finely (or ¼ cup minced chives)
½ garlic clove chopped finely
2 tbsps. chopped parsley
1 beaten egg for glazing

To make Pastry cut the hard butter into flour and salt with pastry blender until size of peas. Add milk, 1 tbsp. at a time, tossing with fork until you can press it into a ball. Flatten ball, wrap and chill. In mixing bowl soak bread crumbs (or bread slices) in milk then stir in meat, egg, salt and pepper. In frying pan melt butter (or margarine) and add chopped onion, garlic and parsley and gently saute until limp. Add meat mixture and heat and stir until meat is all sealed but not brown. Cool.

Roll out chilled pastry on lightly floured board to ⅛" thickness. Cut into seven six-inch circles. (Note: There is enough meat filling for eight turnovers if you patiently roll your pastry thin enough to cut out eight circles.) The last circle will have to be made from scraps of dough and hand-shaped.

Measure ¼ cup (no more) cooled meat filling and place at side centre of each pastry circle, spreading it out to come within ¼" of one half. Moisten edge, fold over and seal with fork tip. Place on two ungreased baking sheets and brush neatly all over tops and crimped edges with one beaten egg. Now prick tops at four places with fork to allow steam to escape. Bake at centre of oven at 409 deg. Fahr. for 25-30 min. Serve hot with . . .

VELOUTE SAUCE

Simmer 3-3 cup finely chopped celery in 3-3 cup boiling water, covered, 10 min. Melt ¼ cup butter (or margarine) and blend in ¼ cup flour. Stir in cooked celery and ¾ quid, one 10-fl. oz. can undiluted consomme and 3-3 cup canned mushroom stems and pieces (or thinly sliced scrubbed raw mushrooms) until thick.

Dinner Menu

Alaska Baked Brain (see Tuesday); Tropical Cole Slaw (see Thursday); Citrus Fruit Cup; Angel Cake; Tea. . . .

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "You cannot run around with Tim. His long hair and untidy look give him a bad name. You know what people say about 'birds of a feather flocking together'."

Mother: "I don't care for Tim's lack of cleanliness, but he is very kind and seems to have a lot of integrity. He'll eventually outgrow his casual habits of dress, I'm sure."

Don't judge your teen-ager's friends by their outward appearance alone. Talk with them, try to understand them, and then decide if they have defects of character or are merely having a hard time growing up.

ANAF Weekly News Notes

The businessmen, service clubs and veterans association, of which the Duke of Edinburgh is proud to play its part, are co - sponsoring an absolutely free night for the youngsters below the age of sixteen, at the Belleville Arena. The time and date of the hockey match which is between the Peterborough Petes and the Belleville Junior B Fairways, is 8.30 Friday, Dec. 4th. In addition to the usual excitement of the game and entertainment there will also be a draw for a number of prizes the chief of which is a live pony.

Blocks of tickets were purchased by the sponsors and these are being distributed free to the young lads and lassies. Each ticket is numbered, one number on each half with the proper half being retained by the customer. When a prize, winning number is announced, whoever has that number must be in the arena and be able to produce the retained half of the ticket to correspond to the number that is drawn.

All proceeds of the game will be presented to the Belleville Junior Hockey League. It should be a great night for the young citizens of Belleville that they will long remember. Especially the winners of prizes including that coal pony for the luckiest one of all.

Members are asked to hand in the books they received from the Pipe Band secretary as soon as possible as their dance will be held next week. At the dance some very lucky person will have their name drawn and become the winner of the portable color TV set.

Books may be handed in to the stewards who would also be pleased to supply you with tickets for the annual New Years Eve Ball. Remember, only fifty couples get yours now.

The following comrades are on the sick list: P. McTaggart, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston; A. H. Burns, 123, D. Locke, 625 and J. R. Boyle, 627, BGH. Resting at home are W. J. O'Brien, J. Cronin, C. Davis and B. Feather. All will be visited and cared for.

The large crowd that attended the club Saturday afternoon to watch the Grey Cup Final were very appreciative to Bambi's for the loan of a big color TV set. They also were thankful for the buffet lunch supplied by the club where they could renew their shattered nerves and energies caused by the thrills and excitement of the game. Even with this assistance no one was too interested in the afternoon dart matches but they will be renewed again next Saturday.

In the evening another good crowd was on hand for the fortnightly Mr. and Mrs. Darts with the usual fun and excitement. The club again supplied tasty sandwiches and extras at 11 p.m. This makes for a pleasant break and is enjoyed by all. The results of the contests were as follows: Winners, Mary Northey and Ron Culhane. Runners-up, Eleanor Butcher and Bill Salter. Ladies high three darts, Anne Feener 121. Men's high three darts, Johnny Browning, 128.

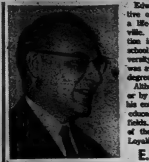
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1970

Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board Candidates for Election

I am seeking a seat on the separate school board because I consider it my duty, first as a parent, second as a taxpayer, to do so.



As the father of five children, I am disturbed over the resignation of 37 teachers from our board last year. This represents almost 30 per cent of the experienced staff. In my opinion, no institution can survive with a mortality rate this high. No one can deny that the loss of these professional teachers is a direct loss to our children.

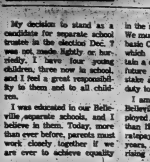
The majority of these resignations were prompted by the loss of confidence and trust in the board brought about by lack of communication.

It is a disastrous situation, when the people we have elected to formulate policy and administer the educational needs of children cannot or will not communicate with the staff they employed to perform the duties of educators.

With your support, as a trustee, in addition to sound administration with decisions formulated with a cool head and back bone, it will be my endeavor to re-establish lines of communication so that the taxpayers are better informed and to establish more effective working relationships between board and staff in order that our children will not be decided that which is rightfully theirs.

Gerard Brennan

Edward J. Buckley is a native of Hastings county and a life-long resident of Belleville. He received his education in the local separate school system and at the University of Ottawa, where he was awarded a master of arts degree.



Although a high school teacher by profession he has spent his entire life in business and educational administrative fields. He is now co-ordinator of the retraining division at Loyalist College of Applied Arts and Technology. In connection with his work in this division he has served on several province-wide committees established to resolve problems peculiar to the community college system.

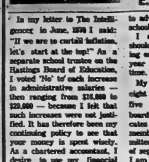
During the past years he has served as a member of the former Belleville board of health and as Belleville's representative on the retarded children's authority, from its inception until its dissolution with the formation of the Hastings county board of education.

On the separate school scene he has been the chairman of the board or chairman of finance since 1964. During this time he has presided over a constantly efficient development which saw the former Belleville board expand its operation by 300 per cent between 1964 and 1968. He presided over the formation of the new Hastings-Prince Edward county system which doubled the size of the Belleville operation.

In offering his services to the electorate, he represents years of proven efficiency as a promise for the continued advantage on the separate school board.

E. J. Buckley

My decision to stand as a candidate for separate school trustee in the election Dec. 7 was not made lightly or hastily. I have four young children, three now in school, and I feel a great responsibility to them and to all children.



I was educated in our Belleville separate schools, and I believe in them. Today, more than ever before, parents must work closely together if we are ever to achieve equality in the separate school system. We must live and uphold those basic Christian principles which are essential to maintain a democratic society. The future of our children is at stake and it is our right and duty to guard it carefully.

I am a life-long resident of Belleville, and have been employed by the CN for more than 19 years. Having been a ratepayer for a number of years, I am well aware of the rising cost of education.

Despite what we may have been led to believe in regard to the smooth operation of the present board and the supposedly existing harmony — if this were true, would so many problems exist?

We need new members on this board, people who will strive to work together efficiently, effectively and harmoniously.

Joseph Chapelle

In my letter to The Intelligencer in June, 1970 I said: "If we are to curtail inflation, let's start at the top!" As a separate school trustee on the Hastings Board of Education, I voted "No" to each increase in administrative salaries — then ranging from $14,000 to $23,000 — because I felt that such increases were not justified. It has therefore been my continuing policy to see that your money is spent wisely. As a chartered accountant, I desire to use my financial and organizational knowledge to advantage on the separate school board.

I also believe that you should know what is happening on your board during the year and not just at election time.

My experience as a trustee, eight years in all, including five on the separate school board (vice - chairman) indicates that my service as a member of the county committee for financial extension of separate schools to 10 is in order. I am also president of Nicholson PTA and a past president of St. Joseph's PTA. I have served the United Appeal and was a vice-president of this organization.

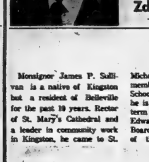
I believe that excellent and happy teachers are a prime requirement, together with the best program for students. As a father of seven children who have attended or are attending Catholic schools (Grades 1 to 13, I have a personal interest. I have your children's interest at heart too.

Paul Fleming

Born in Halifax, and educated in Catholic schools, John Granville graduated from St. Mary's University with a bachelor of arts degree.

Following a year with Simpson's - Sears, he joined the federal civil service. For most of his civil service career he was responsible for replacement of foreign aid students in Canadian universities.

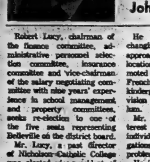
John Granville



The balance of his employment with the civil service was spent in financial and personnel administration in the department of agriculture, the latter part as the administrative officer of the Belleville Research Institute. He is now a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute in Picton.

Mr. Granville's main interests are centred around the improvement and advancement of Catholic education in the area, and improved relations between board and community. It is the community at large that must accept the equality of the separate school system and its administration before acceptance of the idea of equal grants through to grade 13.

Mr. Granville says he has both the basic education and the experience in finance, personnel and education for the position of trustee with the separate school board.



Married, he and his wife have six children in the separate school system.

Zdenek Kvarda is a long - time resident of Belleville, educated in the Belleville separate school system and its figurous school of architectural technology.

He is active in community affairs, with a reputation of speaking out in a positive manner in the interest of all the people.

Zdenek Kvarda

He believes that a community, large or small, is made up of people united by agreement as to the basic objectives. Such a group will set up standards in aim at, choose leaders to give point to its activities, debate plans, collaborate, co-operate and participate.

Mr. Kvarda also believes that competent leadership raises group thinking to a high level and brings out people's thought and effort, thus unifying their activities in a common purpose.

His main platform planks are: "good public relations, effective communications between board, public and students, effective long range planning, efficient financial, positive priorities."

He believes that electors will judge a candidate on his individual accomplishments in community work and on the manner in which these responsibilities have been met.

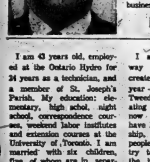
Robert Lucy, chairman of the finance committee, administrative personnel selection committee, property committee and vice-chairman of the salary negotiating committee with nine years' experience in school management and property committees, seeks re-election to one of the five seats representing Belleville on the district board.

Mr. Lucy, a past director of Nicholson-Catholic College was elected vice-president of that institution this year by his fellow board members.

He was instrumental in changing the method and approach regarding school locations, supported and promoted the introduction of French, special education, kindergarten, music supervision and art in the curriculum.

Mr. Lucy takes a keen interest in the problems of the individual ratepayer and delegations seeking aid in personal problem areas.

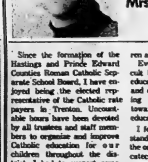
He is married to the former Eve Robbins and has a son and four daughters all attending schools in the city.



In addition to his position as a manager in the production organization of the Northern Electric Co. Ltd., Mr. Lucy is a member of the Knights of Columbus, a past president of the Industrial Management Clubs of Canada Quinte Chapter, a past director of the Northern Electric Credit Union and a past president of Holy Rosary PTA.

Robert Lucy

Monsignor James P. Sullivan is a native of Kingston but a resident of Belleville for the past 19 years. Rector of St. Mary's Cathedral and a leader in community work in Kingston, he came to St. Michael's Belleville in 1958. A member of Belleville Separate School Board for six years, he is now seeking his second term on the Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board. He is past president of the United Community Service of Belleville and District, and at present chairman of the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital.



Msgr. J. Sullivan

Incumbent trustee Paul Wall is seeking re-election in the Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board, for the fourth time.

Now a teacher of business administration at Loyalist College, he has had 25 years of experience as an executive and administrator. "I can't afford, which were spent as a president and general manager in business.

Paul Wall

He is a graduate of Assumption College, University of Western Ontario, a navy veteran of World War II and has seven children, five of them still attending separate schools.

"My experience on boards and in business points out how important it is not to get carried away by vision of fa- ilities one can't afford, even if, in the case of the separate school board, you are talking about something good and beneficial to the children," he says. "A trustee must be realistic and if the funds aren't available, he must sometimes say 'No' regret, as hard as it is.

"My prime objective as a trustee has always been to work hard at helping to provide the best possible separate school system within the limits of our budget. I have never lost sight of that objective and sincerely hope I never will. It is gratifying to note that your board is achieving that objective particularly well during the past six months."

Mrs. Jean Wilson

I am 43 years old, employed at the Ontario Hydro for 24 years as a technician, and a member of St. Joseph's Parish. My education: elementary, high school, night school, correspondence courses, weekend labor institutes and extension courses at the University of Toronto. I am married with six children, five of whom are in separate schools from grades 3 to 13 at Nicholson Catholic College.

I am concerned with the way the existing board has created problems this past year — the school building in Tweed — the delays in negotiating with the teachers, and now the "Allore affair". I have lost faith in the leadership, and I am afraid more people will. If elected I will try to restore confidence in the board, as we had with past boards.

The new board will have to keep taxes below those of public school supporters, which I promise to do, or we will lose our support from people who do not have children.

I supported the kindergarten to grade 13 grants from the provincial government by joining our boys and girls at their rally in Toronto, and will continue to do everything possible to assist them in their endeavor.

James Wiseman

Since the formation of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Roman Catholic Separate School Board, I have enjoyed being the elected representative of the Catholic rate payers in Trenton. Uncontestable hours have been devoted by all trustees and staff members to organize and improve Catholic education for our children throughout the district. I had to support some difficult and unpleasant decisions, but these decisions were always made with our children and the taxpayers in mind. Every being is difficult but finally, with capable educational, administrative and other staff, we are working in reasonable harmony toward our goal of equality in education.

I feel the board's most outstanding accomplishment was the organization by the board's catechetical staff of a very successful teacher training & what followed were courses on Catholic education. "The ultimate in education" — teachers, parents, staff and board, all working to bring as many children as Christians.

For the last four years, on your behalf, I have been working toward the best possible education for our children, at the lowest cost to the local taxpayer not only for Trenton but, during the past two years for the district.

I will continue to do so in the future.

Ben Kroeze

William Menzies, a Bakewell resident, is seeking re-election to the Prince Edward-Hastings Separate School Board because he feels "the ranks of labor should be represented on all board and councils spending the taxpayers' Money".

The Ontario Hydro employee has been a union steward for 20 years and was recently elected president of the Prince Edward-Hastings Liberal Association. He has been on the school board for one year.

Mr. Menzies is concerned over the allocation of money to support students of military dependants in the area.

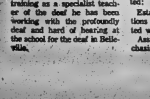
He objects to the fact that for each student from Middleton Park attending Nicholson College DND gives $220 but for each attending Trenton High School $600 is given.

Mr. Menzies, with one daughter at Nicholson, another at Brighton High School and two sons at St. Peter's School, Trenton, feels the chairman of the board should have children in the school system.

On the Allore situation, he says that he board his decision to sign the petition calling for Allore's resignation on a report by business administrator, Edward Pacquet.

"Knowing the facts as I do now I would never have signed the petition to suspend Allore" Mr. Menzies said.

William Menzies



Austin Scott of Trenton is standing for re-election as a separate school trustee on the Hastings - Prince Edward board.

"We, as separate school supporters, find ourselves at a very difficult and transitional time, both in the life of our church and in our school system," he says. "One of the few (so far) rewarding aspects of the original set-up is the fact that we have been able to introduce a catechetics department.

"This department has been most effective in instigating a program to make the parents, as well as the children, more aware of the new attitude of our present day theologians.

"I think it is most interesting to note that the Experience, in Living approach embraces a philosophy which is supported by and contained in religious teachings of all denominations. Hence never before has most, headed by Basil Arbour, the survival of our separate school system been more important. Not only for our sake but for the sake of those parents who, one day in the future will rise up and demand the right to send their child to a school system where God is not dead, where the importance of your relationship with your fellow human being is a daily experience and the development of the child's character is given at least equal importance with the development of his ability to earn a dollar.

Austin Scott

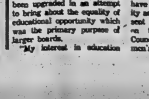
Mr. Allore has been in education for 12 years. He was employed by the Separate School Board in the Toronto-Bradford area before taking a position with the Belleville Separate School Board.

Mr. Allore then became interested in special education for the handicapped. Since training as a specialist teacher of the deaf he has been working with the profoundly deaf and hard of hearing at the school for the deaf in Belleville.

He is a member of the Special Education Teachers' Association, Ontario Industrial Arts Association and the local members of the deaf association.

Mr. Allore states that after having visited many of the ratepayers he would like to see the following points initiated:

Establishment of good relations with all parties connected with the board;



Assurance of a fair purchasing system in practice for the purpose of reducing unit cost;

Establishment of an effective and sound basis for the expenditure of the grant monies;

The development of plans for behavior, within the system and a way of solving its problems;

And a sincere effort to develop a climate of mutual trust and co-operation with all trust and co-operation.

E. B. Allore

Lillian O'Connor is married to Breen O'Connor and is the mother of 10 children. She has been on the Hastings a n d Prince Edward RCSS board since its inception two years ago, as trustee for the Marmora - Sidney district.

In the course of those years, schools and courses have been upgraded in an attempt to bring about the equality of educational opportunity which was the primary purpose of larger boards.

"My interest in education is very keen and is kept alive by the fact that four of my children are teachers, four are in secondary school, three in elementary school, one is a secretary, one is married and one is in university," she says.

"I have lived in Marmora township for 36 years, a n d have been active in community and church affairs. At present I am first vice-president of the Kingston Diocesan Council of the Catholic Women's League secretary on the diocesan committee of the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace and secretary - treasurer of the Marmora New Century Women's Organization.

"I have worked hard and have attended all meetings. I feel I have much to offer in the office of trustee and am sincerely hoping I will be returned to office in the coming election."

Ottawa Moves Into Second

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa 67s moved into second place in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings Friday night, 10 points behind Peterborough Petes, as they defeated last place Niagara Falls Flyers 9-2.

In other action, fifth-place Toronto Marlboros blanked London Knights 4-0 and sixth-place Kitchener Rangers moved out of a three-way tie with London and Hamilton as they downed Oshawa Generals 7-5.

Russ Friesen and Don Lever had one goal apiece for Niagara Falls.

In Toronto, more than 2,000 fans were on hand to watch Marlboros' Mike Ralph register his shutout, facing 39 shots while Toronto fired 33 on the London nets.

Gavin Kirk, Dave Gardner, Bill Harris and Chris Meloff shared the Toronto scoring.

In Kitchener, the Rangers broke a 5-5 second period tie with two unanswered goals in the final to defeat Oshawa.

Duffy McCarthy and Jerry Byers managed a pair of goals each for Kitchener. Teammates Tom Cassidy, Bill Barber and Juri Kudrasovs each scored once.

Don Selling led Oshawa with two goals. Single goal scorers were Gerry Methe, Pete Sullivan and Al Avery.

It was the 12th defeat for the ninth-place Generals, who were outshot 45-33.

Flyers Improve NHL Position

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia Flyers spent most of last season fighting for second place in the National Hockey League's West Division, burned themselves out and dropped right out of the playoff picture by losing their last six games of the schedule.

This year the Flyers have been hard-pressed much of the season to keep abreast of the pacesetters but their position improved Friday night as they did all their scoring in the third period en route to a 4-0 shutout of California Golden Seals.

BERNIE PARENT

It was only the second road win of the season for the fourth-place Flyers who moved to within one point of Minnesota North Stars and five points ahead of fifth-place Pittsburgh Penguins.

Philadelphia's Bernie Parent and Gary Smith of California were locked in a goaltenders' duel until the last period.

Serge Bernier's 19th goal of the season at 7:14 of the final period broke the ice and the Flyers had a lieir own way until the end of the game.

They added three more goals in the next eight minutes and directed 13 shots at Smith in the third period while limiting California skaters to three and making it that much easier for Parent to register his second shutout of the season before 4,000 fans.

Boston Bruins are at Montreal against the Canadiens tonight while Toronto Maple Leafs entertain New York Rangers, Detroit Red Wings will be without injured defenceman Dale Rolfe when they go against the Blues in St. Louis, Vancouver Canucks are at Pittsburgh Penguins, Chicago Black Hawks visit Minnesota North Stars and Philadelphia moves on to Los Angeles against the Kings.

Crescent Blitz Fails

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Woodstock Athletics, with a 5-2 lead over Owen Sound Crescents in the third period of an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A hockey game Friday night, needed extra time to scramble for a 6-5 win.

After a Crescent blitz that tied the score 5-5 at the end of the third, Woodstock's Marc Pesain netted the decider at 4:31 of the overtime period, giving the Athletics their second victory in 17 outings.

In other Senior A games Friday, Galt Hornets defeated Barrie Flyers 4-1 in Barrie and Orillia Terriers grabbed a 5-3 win from visiting Oakville Oaks. Kingston Aces' date with Belleville Mohawks in Belleville was postponed to Tuesday.

In Woodstock, Don Watson and Bill Tungstead were the only scorers for Owen Sound before Bill McComb led Mayo Pacquette and Dan Whiting on a three-goal blitz.

Woodstock's other marksmen besides Pesain were Al Blair, Wayne Goetz, Mike Embro, Gene McLaren and Gerry Harrison.

Galt Hornets broke a 1-1 tie in the final period with three unanswered goals to shoot down Barrie Flyers 4-1.

Barrie's lone scorer was Corby Adams.

Galt was paced by Cec Hoekstra's two-goal effort, with Mike Doersan and John Beechey marking up one apiece.

Team benches emptied twice in the third period for brawls.

Galt outshot Barrie 33-29.

Orillia kept its first-place position, leading all the way over the Oaks.

Jim Keen, Bob Cunningham, Connie Mandale, Grant Moore and Paul Laurent all found the range for Orillia.

Cubans Conquer

CARTAGENA, Colombia (AP) — Defending champion Cuba beat the United States 5-3 Friday night to win the 1970 amateur baseball world championship.

The Cubans had won the first game of the best-of-three set, 3-1 Wednesday.

Cuba now has won 10 amateur world championships since the tournament started in 1938.

The game was decided in the first inning when the Cubans scored four runs.

Clobber Curry

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It didn't take long for Floyd Curry to taste defeat as an American Hockey League coach.

Curry, who replaced Ron Caron as coach of Montreal Voyageurs Thursday, saw Rochester Americans score four unanswered third-period goals to crush the Voyageurs 6-2.

In other games, Providence Reds edged Cleveland Barons 6-5, Quebec Aces shut out Hershey Bears 4-0 and Springfield Kings blanked Baltimore Clippers 8-0.

At Montreal, the Americans snapped a 2-2 third-period tie on goals by Duke Harris, Don Blackburn, Bob Cook and Jack Stanfield. Ralph Stewart and Doug Dunville rounded out the Rochester scoring.

Phil Roberts and Chuck Lefley counted for Montreal.

At Providence, Alton White, one of only two Negroes playing professional hockey, flipped in a five-footer about midway through the last period, giving the Reds the win.

Over 20 NFL Teams Still Have Chance at Super Bowl

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota Vikings, with unbeaten quarterback Bob Lee leading his first start, try for the second time to clinch a National Football League playoff spot today when they meet Chicago Bears.

Lee saw the most action of his three-year career with the Vikings last Sunday in a 16-10 loss to New York Jets after Gary Cuozzo sprained his right ankle in the first half. Lee threw for 124 yards and a touchdown but had four passes intercepted.

The Vikings, 9-2, will clinch first place in the Central Division of the National Conference with a victory over the Bears and earn the right to play host to a semi-final playoff game later this month.

But if the Bears, struggling through a 4-7 season filled with injuries to key players, beat the Vikings, then Minnesota will have to wait until next weekunless Detroit Lions lose to St. Louis Sunday.

The Minnesota-Chicago game this afternoon kicks off a long weekend of 13 NFL games culminating when Cleveland Browns play the Oilers in Houston Monday night.

As the season heads towards the playoffs, 18 of the 26 teams still have a chance—although some are slim—to land in the Super Bowl January 17. All 13 games have a bearing on the divisional playoffs.

Kansas City Chiefs and Oakland Raiders are tied for the Western Division lead in the American Conference; Cincinnati Bengals, Cleveland Browns and Pittsburgh Steelers are deadlocked atop the American Conference Central Division and it is Los Angeles Rams and San Francisco 'Gers in the National Conference's Western Division, but none of the contenders plays one another.

Kansas City, unbeaten in its last five games despite a series of injuries, entertains Denver and the Broncos have quarterback problems. Oakland, meanwhile, will be in New York for another grudge meeting with the surprising Jets, who have won three in a row.

Although under .500 5-6, Cincinnati has won four straight to climb into a tie with the Browns and Steelers. The Bengals get rookie defensive tackle Mike Reid back but they're still underdogs against the Chargers in San Diego.

The Steelers are at home against Green Bay Packers, who have a similar 5-6 record but who are runner third in the ragged National Conference Central Division. Terry Bradshaw showed signs of improvement last week with two touchdown passes while Bart Starr, with his nose arm and eyes lines, is all the Packers have at quarterback, with backup man Don Horn out.

Los Angeles entertains New Orleans. The Saints haven't scored a touchdown in their last 11 quarters. San Francisco, which had a three-game losing weeks ago, is at home against Atlanta. The Falcons haven't won in their last six starts but they've beaten San Francisco three in a row.

The rest of the Sunday schedule finds St. Louis at Detroit, Washington Redskins at Dallas Cowboys, Buffalo Bisons at New York Giants, Philadelphia Eagles at Baltimore Colts and Boston Patriots at Miami Dolphins.

The tough Cardinal defence, now without safety Jerry Stovall, will have its work cut out against the Lions, highest scoring team in the league. St. Louis is 11/4 games in front of Dallas and the Cowboys lead in National Conference East Division.

The big question of Dallas will be how the Cowboys react to the loss of Lance Rentzel, arrested earlier in the week on indecent exposure. Doug Dennison is his replacement. Washington's Larry Brown, the league's leading ground-gainer, needs four yards to reach 1,000.

Crippled Buffalo is down to two runners—240 Bryant and Lloyd Pate—for the Giants, who are not certain that star running back Ron Johnson will be 100 per cent.

The Colts have a 1½-game edge on Miami in the American Conference East Division but also have problems. Four starters are rebuilding and Coach Don McCafferty has revised his offensive backfield and defensive line.

Joe Kapp gets the start again at quarterback for Boston after being taken out in the second half, but the offensive line has plenty of injuries. Willie Richardson, a standout receiver, should be back for Miami.

Dealers Fold Hands Senators Holding Bag

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The dealers have folded their hands at baseball's winter meetings, leaving Boston Red Sox and Baltimore Orioles holding the blue chips and Washington's financially strapped Senators holding the bag.

Trades sending shortstop Luis Aparicio to the Red Sox and pitchers Pat Dobson and Tom Dukes to the world champion Orioles stood out among the 13 deals made at the major league baseball meetings' conclusion at the week-long meetings.

While his American League rivals raced to strengthen themselves for the 1977 season, Washington owner Bob Short, deeply in debt, failed in a bid to unload top talent for the needed cash.

On the administrative side, commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Friday that World Series games

DAROLD KNOWLES
No Takers

might be played for the first time at night next year because of their television ratings.

"We have suggested night World Series games to the network (NBC)," he said, "and they are intrigued by it.

"Last summer's all-star game (played at night) was one of the great prime-time sports show in television history."

Short, who last picked up controversial stars Denny McLain and Curt Flood in earlier deals, offered to trade Darold Knowles, one of the league's best relief pitchers, for $500,000. He also is reported to have placed a $1 million price tag on slugger Frank Howard.

But there were no takers, and the financial plight of the Washington franchise continued to concern other AL officials as they headed for home after the meetings ended.

"Short's problem was discussed, informally, but officially," AL president Lee MacPhail said Friday. "We'll keep in contact with him, of course, but he hasn't asked the league for any money."

The Rec Sox broke up their 1976 infield by dealing Aparicio, a 38-year-old veteran who batted a career-high .316 for Chicago White Sox last season, to the next second baseman Mike Andrews and young shortstop Lois Alvarado to the Chisox. They also acquired nine players in four deals during the meetings.

"Getting Aparicio is going to make Boston that much tougher, but all the other clubs in our division have strengthened themselves, too," said Earl Weaver, whose Orioles added outfield potential Al Cowens when they got Dobson for Dukes in a 4-for-2 swap with San Diego Padres.

Dobson was 14-15 for the National League West tailenders last year, Dave Roberts, the Padres' relief pitcher Tom Dukes from the Padres in return for pitchers Tom Phoebus, Fred Beene and Al Severinsen and shortstop Enos Hernandez.

California Angels picked up centre Ken Berry from the White Sox and Pittsburgh Pirates obtained pitcher Bob Johnson from Kansas City Royals in other multi-player deals.

After Friday's closing joint meeting of the two leagues, commissioner Kuhn said he has approved the Chicago Cubs' widely-criticized deal that returned 47-year-old pitcher Hoyt Wilhelm to Atlanta Braves less than 3½ months since the Braves sold him to the Cubs during the NL East stretch race.

It had been suggested that the original deal amounted to a lend-lease gambit which damaged the game's image.

"I am satisfied there was no impropriety in the deal as it was made," said Kuhn, adding that he had spoken to both clubs since Monday's return swap.

Key Supporters

TORONTO (CP) — The large, yet voluntary organization in Canada threw its support behind the Canada Games Athletic Competitors Bursary Fund here Friday with the announcement of a drive to raise $500,000 for the cause.

Jack Lendberg, president of the Dominion Command of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada, said the 30,000 members of his organization would sell $2 key chains on behalf of the starters.

Boston Reinstated by AAU

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ralph Boston, former world record holder in the long jump, was reinstated Friday by the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States.

The AAU track and field committee recommended reinstatement of Boston, now assistant dean of students at the University of Tennessee. He had been suspended after taking a television job as a sports commentator.

The AAU, at its 63rd annual convention, let a reciprocity policy for the AAU's national track and field championships.

Athletes from foreign countries will no longer be eligible for U.S. meets unless the national meets in their countries are open to American athletes.

The only countries in which U.S. track stars are still eligible in such meets are Canada, Great Britain and Australia.

Sports On All Fronts

TORONTO (CP) — Frazbreche, the Jean-Louis Levesque — second daughter of Northern Dancer, was named Canada's horse of the year Friday night in the Daily Racing Form's annual poll of champions.

The chocolate-colored filly from Montreal early in the week became the first Canadian-bred horse to be named North America's champion three-year-old filly by the Thoroughbred Racing Association.

As Canada's horse of the year, Frazbreche also won the country's three-year-old filly's award, won last year by Conn Smythe's Not Too Shy which was unanimously selected as 1976's best older filly or mare.

The only other horse named on all 23 ballots cast by turf writers, sports editors, commentators and racing form officials was Kennedy Road, owned by Mrs. Arthur Stollery's Tweedsmuir stable, a two-year-old colt.

Parivar Stable's Alnomer, winner of the Queen's Plate and Prince of Wales Stakes, received 22 of 23 votes in the balloting for the leading three-year-old colt.

Another of Northern Dancer's offsprings, Dance Act, owned by Mrs. William Seitz of Milton Ont., was named on 20 of 21 ballots for the older-horse-of-the-year award while champion two-year-old filly honors went to Queen Louie, owned by Marc Cavotti and Lou Vottese of Toronto.

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet hockey official said Friday there was "no reason" for an American hockey team to step out of the fourth annual International Izvestia Tournament Dec. 6-12.

"There were no reasons whatsoever for the American team's refusal to take part in the traditional tournament", Andrei Starovoitov said. He is head of the hockey section of the Council of Ministers' Committee for physical culture and sports.

The United States, which usually takes part in such tournaments, has been planning to send New Haven Blades of the Eastern Hockey League. But the team pulled out last week because it could not get guarantees that the Soviet hosts would provide round-trip air fare.

Sweden, Czechoslavakia, Finland and Poland will have teams in the tourney, which is sponsored by the government newspaper Izvestia.

Palmer Counted Out Bowerman Makes Cut

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — They're starting to bury Arnold Palmer—again.

"It happens this time every year," Palmer said Friday. "But I have no thought of quitting.

"I still enjoy playing. I will continue to play. And I'll win again, too."

Palmer, who has yet to win an individual title this year, made the tight-lipped comment after taking a disappointing 78 in the second round of the $125,000 Coral Springs open golf tournament. He just made the cut for the final two rounds with a 36-hole total of 142 par for Coral Springs Country Club course.

While Palmer continued to have his troubles, a couple of

Jerry McGee, 27, stormed into a two-stroke lead going into today's third round with a 65 for 133. And weighing 235 Gary Bowerman matched the course record at 64 and moved into a share of second.

He was tied at 135 with Lee Trevino, Gardner Dickinson and Jack Montgomery. All had second round 67s. J. C. Snead, with another 67, and Bob Goalby, winner of last week's Heritage Classic who had a 65, followed at 136.

Winnipeg's Wilt, Honeycutt, who shared the lead with a 67 Thursday, followed his 71 for 138 and was the only one of four Canadians to survive the cut.

Toronto's Gary Bowerman had a 71 for a-145 total, while Bill Wright Jr. of Edmonton was 4 at 77 and 147 for the two rounds, one stroke fewer than Ben Kern of Toronto who finished with a 72 and 148 total.

May Leads Buffalo Upset

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dennis May, who never really got a chance to look like a world champion for New York Knicks, came out of a slump for his chance to look like a champion against them.

May, suffering from an ear infection that made him dizzy and nauseous, scored 15 of his 20 points in the final quarter as the lowly Buffalo Braves whipped the Knicks, defending National Basketball Association champions, 97-91 Friday night.

In other games, Boston Celtics won its seventh straight game, beating Cleveland Cavaliers 118-107, Milwaukee Bucks edged Golden State Warriors 136-122 in overtime; Baltimore Bullets routed Seattle Supersonics 121-101, Detroit Pistons held off Chicago Bulls 107-103, Los Angeles Lakers routed San Francisco Warriors 123-101 and Phoenix Suns ripped Portland Trailblazers 126-111.

"There were times when I almost asked to come out," May said after the Braves raised their record to 9-17 and dropped the Knicks to 21-8. "I didn't know I'd be able to play until just before the opening tip off."

Dick Garrett's basket put the Braves ahead to stay at 94-93 and went ahead 91-83 with 3:53 left on a shot by May, who hit four of five shots from the field and two free throws in the final 7½ minutes.

Ali Winding Up Pre-fight Training While Lawyers Prepare for Biggest Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Muhammad Ali is winding up his training for a return to Madison Square Garden in New York, his lawyers are preparing for a court battle which could be his last big fight for a while.

It has been nearly 3½ years since Ali, born Cassius Clay, was convicted of refusing induction into the armed services. The long struggle that followed has kept him out of jail so far, but until last October it had kept him out of the boxing ring as well.

All continues his return to boxing Monday night in the Garden against Oscar Bonavena.

His legal fight is back before the U.S. Supreme Court, which is deciding whether to hear yet another appeal.

Lawyers on both sides of the case deny any charges that the process of judicial reckoning has been soft on Ali, who gave up his heavyweight boxing crown rather than fight with a gun.

"There sure as hell has been no collusion on our part," retorted U.S. Attorney Anthony Farris of Houston, Ali's chief prosecutor.

The full appellate process runs for years for any defendant who can afford to pursue it.

Even after 3½ years, time is critical since promoters already envisage a $7 million championship bout between Ali and heavyweight titleholder Joe Frazier early next year.

Ali, reigning heavyweight champion and unbeaten in a glamorous boxing career, stepped into the judicial ring when he refused to take the traditional one step forward April 28, 1967, at the Houston armed forces induction centre.

He said he was a conscientious objector to the war and a Black Muslim minister and should have been granted exemption on that ground from the draft.

Indicted May 5, 1967, Ali was convicted the following month by an all-white jury of six men and six women who deliberated only 20 minutes. The trial lasted less than two days and included only five hours of testimony by eight witnesses. Ali did not testify.

Judge Joe Ingraham slapped Ali with a $10,000 fine and a five-year prison sentence.

But Ali has remained free under $5,000 bond while his lawyers fought the long and complicated paths of appeal, rehearing and appeal again.

One year after his conviction, Ali's case reached the U.S. Supreme Court for the first time. It was remanded to the district court in Houston after the government admitted it had monitored conversations in which Ali had participated.

The biggest issue in Ali's current appeal is a challenge to the legal authority of the attorney general to use electronic surveillance in national security cases without prior permission of the courts.

This is the first time the Supreme Court has been asked to determine whether such permission is needed for electronic surveillance, just as a warrant is required before a home can be searched.

Ali's appeal was rejected by the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. His lawyers now are asking the Supreme Court to deny the hearing. A decision is not expected before January.

Should the court refuse to hear the appeal, Ali likely would go directly to jail. The probable legal action would be to seek a reduction of the sentence, but Ali most likely would not remain free during this phase.

Peterborough Shows Class In 8-1 Win

BY ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

It may have been Percy Night in Belleville, but it was the Peterborough Lions who had the horse laugh. The Eastern Ontario Junior B leaders showed why they have lost only four in 12 games by completely dominating the home town Fairways en route to an 8-1 win.

"It was beautiful to watch", said Belleville coach, Floyd Crawford of the Peterborough performance, "their forwards were skating both ways and it allowed the defence to stand up and hit."

"We were outshit", the Fairways mentor admitted, "particularly in the first period."

The first nine minutes of the hockey game gave every indication that Belleville could hold their own with the high-flying visitors as some close checking by the Fairway forwards and Ron Jurry's sharp goaltending combined to prevent any scoring.

Centre Jim Johnston broke the deadlock at the nine-minute mark. The shifty Peterborough skipper fired the puck into an open net after Jury had been pulled to the side making the initial stop.

Doug Murray counted 30 seconds later on a high screened shot and Gord Rodin and Johnston added two more tallies to make the score 4-0 in the opening 20 minutes.

While Jury wasn't up to his usual form in his return to Junior B hockey, the Belleville goalie was often left at the mercy of enemy forwards in scrambles around the Fairway net.

The Fairway defence was particularly weak in the first period, getting caught up the ice frequently.

The home team tightened their defence in the second period allowing only six shots on goal, but were unable to score on Peterborough netminder Doug McFadden. The Lions defence played a brilliant game limiting virtually all of the Fairways scoring attempts to long range shots.

Johnston tied the only goal of the middle period to complete a hat trick performance. The younger brother of Mo-Hawk winger Ray Johnston was easily the best player on the ice, proving to be an opportunist on offence in addition to setting up plays and killing penalties effectively.

Dave Smith tallied Belleville's only goal early in the third period to break a string of 180- minutes and seven seconds of scoreless play against Peterborough.

The Fairway winger drilled a rebound past McFadden from a scramble in front of the Peterborough net.

The winners killed any comeback hopes as Murray added two more goals, giving him a hat trick, while Rodin scored his second goal of the game.

While only 500 adults were in attendance, the Memorial Arena was jammed to capacity as Percy Night drew well over 1000 children.

Steve Raymond of Sinclair Street Belleville with the pins, while Greg Towers of Belleville and Bruce Meyers of Stirling each won a bicycle.

Mrs. Brenda Tupah of Oshawa won the draw for a snowmobile. The prizes were donated by the Belleville Merchants.

Stoppages in play were all-to-frequent as the fans continually littered the ice with debris.

The Fairways travel to Peterborough Sunday for a return engagement with the Lions.

Tricky Fairway

Fairways defencemen John Mulrihill eludes a sweep check attempt by Peterbrough captain Dave Cooper. Not many of the home towners managed to elude the Lions' tenacious checking as the Eastern Ontario Junior B leaders racked up an 8-1 win. Hundreds of public school students packed the Memorial Arena for the annual Pony Night.

Saints Sweep Pair From Centre Hastings

In Bay of Quinte High School basketball action last night the Quinte Saints completed a two game sweep from Centre Hastings with wins from the Midgets and the Juniors. Centre Hastings does not have a senior team.

In the midget division, Centre Hastings continued to have trouble hitting the win column as they had lost their previous two games.

The midget Saints added more troubles to the slumping Maroc team with an easy 44-27 win.

John Ashley led the way for the winners ringing up 17 points, while Peter Vos laced in ten.

For the losers it was Jim Gayford who played a strong game racking up 12 points. The Saints used a close man-to-man zone combined with fine foul shooting to record the win.

Strong rebounding and good outside shooting by the junior Saints enabled them to hit the eighties as they stamped Centre Hastings 80-41.

Quinte' had 11 men get on the scoreboard aided by some quick ball stealing and rebounding which allowed them to do this. The Saints had most of the height and ball control all night.

Terry Collins and Neill Dunning led the way for the winners scoring 18 and 11 points respectively. A standout for the Centre Hastings team was Doug Meyers who netted 10 points and pulled down most of Madoc's rebounds.

No report was handed in for the Moira and Trenton contests.

Oshawa Edges Golden Hawks

Trenton Golden Hawks came up with one of their best recent performances, but were nipped 5-4 by the second place Oshawa Crushmen Friday night.

The league leading scorer Steve West got the visitors off to an early lead, but Trenton's Mike Slaven managed to give Trenton a 1-1 split for the opening 20 minutes.

Crushmen captain Don Dudgins made it 2-1 but the Golden Hawks battled back as Paul Lavender scored a power play marker.

Mike Wall sent Trenton into the lead converting passes from recent addition Ralph Francis and Pete Ulman, who has been shifted to defence.

The winners came up with three consecutive goals in the final frame to provide the comeback win. Chris Bone, Gerry Armstrong and Larry Hopkins tallied for Oshawa.

Art Barnett narrowed the lead to one goal but Trenton was unable to knot the contest in the dying minutes.

The game was a cleanly played affair with Oshawa drawing four of the game's six minor penalties.

Consumers Told to Ask For More Durable Cars

MONTREAL (CP) — Consumers were told Friday in convention in a little more on the durability of automobiles and a little less on their glitter.

Charles Mercer, manager of the Quebec division of the Insurance Bureau of Canada, said that Canadian insurance companies pay out $1,200,000 to repair and replace flimsy cars each day of the year.

Speaking at a symposium on misleading advertising, he described modern automobiles as being "so easy to dent, they cost too much to repair and they offer little protection."

"I'm sure if we could get a group of engineers to design a car for modern conditions . . . they'd probably come up with something that could withstand an impact of reasonable intensity.

"Today's cars? They're nothing but luxury items."

Michael Trebilcock, a McGill University law professor, said a reform in legal procedure is necessary if misleading advertising is to be reformed.

He said legal processes are often inaccessible to consumers who have a complaint about a particular product or advertising or sales practice.

"Logistically, it pays no one at present, whatever his financial position, to litigate a small consumer claim.

"Thus, the challenge facing the law in making the courts open to everyone who has a legal claim is formidable. Until that challenge is met, all the substantive reform in this, as in other areas of laymen's protection, will go for naught."

Mr. Trebilcock said the ability of governmental regulatory agencies, such as the Federal Trade Commission in the United States to deal with misleading advertising is becoming blunted.

The agencies were subjected to political pressure through threats to cut financial appropriations, and also became "tamed" by being in too close contact with the industry they were supposed to regulate.

Mr. Trebilcock said the FTC receives about 9,000 complaints a year. It investigates about one of eight, and only one in 10 of those investigations actually results in an action.

Ron Basford, federal consumer affairs minister, said his Canadian counterpart agency receives about 300 complaints monthly alleging misleading advertising.

Since last July 31, 1969, 23 cases under the Combines Investigation Act have been brought to court with 11 convictions. Another 48 prosecutions were initiated under the misleading price advertising section and 34 were completed.

In his speech, delivered by Warren Allmand, MP for Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace, he said that the volume of misleading advertising may eventually make the public immune to all forms of appeal and enlightenment.

"It is a great pity, if the impact of such useful information is lost through conditioned mistrust or if the advertiser who wishes to be honest is driven to exaggeration by the inflated claims of his competitors."

"No bonus this year!... If my boss got shot, he'd be lucky if the bullet hit his heart and got deflected before it could do any damage."

Food Savings Are Real

TORONTO (CP) — The savings on food prices in Ontario's supermarket price war appear to be real and apply to each of the six major chains operating in the Metropolitan Toronto area, the Ontario Food Council said Friday.

A two-month comparative study of food prices conducted by the council indicates that the cost of a basket of groceries purchased in each of the chains on seven Wednesdays dropped significantly between Oct. 14 and Nov. 25.

The items did not include non-grocery products which make up about 20 per cent of supermarket sales.

The council study showed that a basket that cost $52.82 at Dominion Stores Oct. 14 could be purchased Nov. 25 for $53.28. The drop was progressive through the seven weeks.

Price changes for similar baskets bought on the same days at five other chains:

A and P, $61.14 Oct. 14, to $54.58 Nov. 25; Loblaws, $56.73 to $54.86; Super City, $57.94 to $54.09; M.P.M., $55.15 to $53.98; and Food City, $6.28 to $53.58.

Poor Asked to Aid Poorer Is NDP View of Pension Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is asking poor people to help those who are even poorer in its bill amending the Old Age Security Act, the Commons was told Friday.

"There is nothing in these proposals which can be taken to mean that the rich will be asked to pay to help the poor," said David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North).

Mr. Orlikow and other members of his party continued to heap criticism of the government proposal to freeze the basic old-age pension at $80 monthly starting Jan. 1.

That is only 42 cents more a month than the basic pension now paid. In the future, there will be no cost-of-living benefits to be added as before.

If the bill is not approved, the basic pension would rise to $81.17 starting Jan. 1.

The bill also would increase supplementary benefits now paid to pensioners with little or no income. Supplements would be raised to $53 monthly from $51.83 for single persons and $95 from $95.86 for couples.

The Commons Monday will turn to debate on Finance Minister Edgar Benson's budget brought down Thursday. It returns to the old-age bill Wednesday.

Mr. Orlikow said many of the pensioners who will get only the $80 are those with small private pensions or modest savings.

He said he was convinced that Canada could afford to pay old-age pensions of $120 monthly. Those who didn't need this much would pay it back in income tax.

Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) said pensioners would have to be grateful for small mercies.

He said elderly people have been used in the past as pawns in elections and treated with insensivity by governments.

They were entitled to a better deal than the one now proposed.

Murray McBride (L—Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton) defended the bill, saying the guaranteed had to balance its concern for the poor with monetary limitations.

No matter what was proposed, there would be a grey area fix which some would be displeased.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said the bill would tempt old-age pensioners to cheat in order to become eligible for supplementary benefits.

He said that some 510,000 old-age pensioners earning between $1,700 and $4,000 annually would want more than the 42-cent increase proposed by the government.

The government was applying a means test and thus penalizing those who saved a little money for their retirement.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said the bill would only redistribute poverty.

A single pensioner under the bill would receive $1,545 after taxes, well below the $1,944 that the Senate poverty committee deemed to be the poverty line, said the Toronto MP.

Chavez Jailed for Lettuce Boycott

SALINAS, Calif. (AP) — Farm labor leader Cesar Chavez, who used a boycott to unionize table grapes growers, has been jailed by a judge who says Chavez will stay behind bars until he calls off a United States-wide lettuce boycott.

Chavez, self-styled Mexican-American leader of the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, was defiant as he was led to jail Friday.

"Boycott Antle! Boycott Dow!" Chavez called to about 1,000 supporters at the Monterey County courthouse as bailiffs led him to jail.

Superior Court Judge Gordon Campbell told Chavez during a 3½-hour hearing he would "not stand for . . . the continued disobedience of this court's orders."

Campbell had issued an injunction prohibiting the boycott against Bud Antle Inc., large-scale lettuce grower owned in part by Dow Chemical Co.

The judge sentenced Chavez to two consecutive five-day jail terms for violating two anti-boycott orders and added that Chavez would stay in jail until the boycott is ended "in California and elsewhere."

Campbell also fined the UFWOC $1,000 for violating the judge's preliminary order against the boycott.

The boycott of all lettuce harvested by non-UFWOC labor was launched after Campbell had issued a court order against picketing last Sept. 16.

Chavez had called a strike Aug. 23 against Salinas Valley growers, who produce 70 per cent of head lettuce in the U.S., after most of them signed farm labor contracts with the Teamsters union. About 75 growers including Antle, still had to their Teamster contracts.

Chavez called his strike shortly after the table grapes growers of Central Valley signed UFWOC contracts following five years of trying to combat his non-violent strike and nation-wide boycott.

Since then, he has signed contracts with five of Salinas Valley's biggest lettuce growers, covering more than 12 per cent of the country's lettuce crop and nearly half the celery and strawberries grown in the western United States.

Lawyers Displeased With Divorce Kits

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyers and court officials say they are unhappy over do-it-yourself divorce kits being offered for sale in Ontario for $75.

Lawyers, whose charges can range upward from about $300 for getting a client a divorce, warn that people doing their own legal work are taking an unnecessary risk.

But the Law Society of Upper Canada says there is nothing illegal about the do-it-yourself kits it has inspected. The kits were introduced in British Columbia following introduction of the new Divorce Act in July, 1968.

The divorce law is the same for Ontario but there are differences in regulations and procedures for filing legal documents in the Ontario Supreme Court.

Since the kits came to Ontario last month about 30 such divorce petitions have been filed with the 4,500 divorce actions filed by lawyers at the Supreme Court's central office here. None of the do-it-yourself petitions has yet reached a courtroom.

William Bentley, 32, who is partnership with Rainer Moeller, 27, operates Divorce Data Co., said he sells his kits only to those who appear to have an uncomplicated divorce situation. He said he has referred many would-be clients to legal aid for advice because their cases appear complicated.

Mr. Bentley, who has no legal training, did research on the rules of practice and procedures for divorce cases in the Ontario Supreme Court. He said he has had a good response, receiving about 200 inquiries for kits since putting them on the market a month ago.

Pope Paul Home From Far East

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul returned without fanfare to his Vatican apartment before dawn today, ending his 79-day 28,000-mile ecumenical trip to the largly non-Christian Far East.

The pontiff stood in his open limousine in a whipping wind and almost freezing temperatures and waved to a small crowd that greeted him at Rome airport. Vatican prelates and minor Italian government officials also were on hand, but there was no official ceremony.

As his aides rolled into St. Peter's Square, about 200 persons, including many nuns, held candles and torches and shouted, "Viva il Pape"—the same wish for long life that Pope Paul heard in most of the eight stops he made in Asia, the Pacific and Australia.

The Pope smiled happily, appearing spry and relatively refreshed.

There had been concern about Pope Paul's health before he began the ninth journey in his 7½ years as spiritual leader of the world's 580 million Roman Catholics.

Stock Market Rally Longest in Three Years

By ART JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets pushed sharply higher this week, as a reverse in the downtrend continued for the longest unbroken stretch in more than three years.

By Friday, markets had advanced for 10 consecutive sessions, longer than any other period since May, 1967.

Observers said markets moved upward on hopes that the United States and Canadian governments were working towards improving the economy.

The Toronto exchange's industrial index, a prime indicator of market movement, advanced 5.41 points during the week to 172.41.

At the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index was up 2.62 to 170.12.

Wall Street also made great strides. The Dow Jones average of key industrial issues climbed 34.71 points to 818.06, its highest level since Nov. 21, 1969.

There was some evidence during the week that the U.S. was attempting to revive its economy. The Federal Reserve Board trimmed its discount rate to 5½ per cent from 5¾ per cent, the second such reduction in two weeks.

The Canadian government's budget, handed down Thursday night, offered little encouragement to investors.

W. H. A. Thorburn, chairman of the board of governors of the Toronto exchange, said he doubts the budget will affect Canadian stock markets.

Weak spot on Canadian markets during the five days was the western oils group. The Toronto exchange's oil index declined 4.54 points to 191.18.

Observers said the erosion was caused by disappointment that the U.S. had pegged the Canadian oil import quota at a lower figure than had been anticipated.

Oil and pipeline issues had been rising for several months in anticipation of greater U.S. needs for Canadian fuel.

On index at Toronto, golds were down 11.51 points to 170.12 and base metals .35 to 80.22.

Volume was 12.48 million shares, compared with 13.31 million last week.

FOR THURLOW COUNCIL
- Why can't we have council meetings in the evenings?
- Tax payers should know how their money is being spent!
- Land bought in Thurlow for a Trailer Park concerning me, where is the garbage dump going to be moved to?
- Having resided in Thurlow Township for eighteen years with my wife and five children, I am very concerned with all civic affairs.
- Are the taxes I have been doing my best to keep at their reasonable level, going to be hard in council also?
- We all have problems or events concerning the people and we will get it with your support.

THANK YOU!

Cross Is Flying to England For Reunion With His Wife

MONTREAL (CP) — James (Jasper) Cross flies across the Atlantic today to spend a secluded weekend in the English countryside with his wife Barbara and recover from his 59-day ordeal as a kidnap hostage.

He was pronounced "in excellent health" Friday despite the loss of 22 pounds while held in a useless room six miles north of downtown Montreal.

Mrs. Cross, visiting with friends in Bern, Switzerland, said she was "absolutely overjoyed" to hear that her husband had been freed from the clutches of his terrorist kidnappers. She planned to head for London after the takeoff of the Canadian Forces plane from Montreal. pp

The British envoy spent the night in the west-end hospital where he was examined early, Friday, after a Canadian plane arrived in Cuba with the man who bargained his life for their freedom.

But he slipped out a side door during the afternoon and was driven downtown in an unescorted car to say goodbye to his staff at the British trade commission offices.

His personal physician, Dr. David Coulson, said in an interview after the medical examination that the kidnappers handcuffed Mrs. Cross at nights but did not torture him.

The British envoy was given a mattress to sleep on and was allowed to watch television. But the ordeal was described by Dr. Coulson as "something that a lot of other people could never have withstood."

Mr. Cross hit the headlines as the victim of North America's first political kidnapping but, in just two months ago today, when he was spirited from his home by members of the terrorist Front de Libération du Québec.

The FLQ followed up Oct. 10 with the abduction of Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister, who was strangled a week later.

Mr. Cross' nightmare ended Thursday when the building in Montreal North where he was being held was surrounded and his captors were forced to bargain with the authorities.

They took advantage of an October government offer of safe passage to Cuba for themselves and their families in exchange for the diplomat's life.

A high-ranking RCMP official said in an interview Friday that the kidnap hideout was discovered as a result of one of the thousands of tips received by police in the last eight weeks.

Assistant Commissioner J. V. Dube said RCMP officers actually moved into the building, where Mr. Cross was being held, eight days ago, and kept an eye on comings and goings from an apartment above the one occupied by the kidnappers.

But they were unaware at the time that they had found the hideout.

"We knew we were getting hot but we still didn't know if Cross was in that house," the assistant commissioner said.

"Our strategy was to pick them up one by one as they came out," he added.

Wednesday afternoon, the RCMP picked up Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Lanctôt. Truth from one of the seven persons flown to Cuba on the street in front of the house.

After they were questioned, the main police operation started Wednesday night. Nearby buildings were evacuated and the electricity in the kidnap hideout was cut off.

Mr. Dube said this was "a safety measure in case the house was rigged with a bomb which could have been set off by electric current."

Investigators later found a two-stick dynamite bomb inside, but it was harmless because an essential piece of the mechanism was missing.

The kidnappers were armed with two sawed-off semi-automatic M-1 rifles and a .22-calibre revolver which they handed over to authorities along with Mr. Cross.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Have patience with people who are not very familiar with their jobs or yours. Rest, if you can, but in a place where you are unlikely to be disturbed. Relax early.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Business complexities get in the way of your pleasure and romantic interests today. Organize ahead so you can do something about both. Plan for a quiet evening.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): It seems to you that nothing is getting off the ground. Serenely push on, but make sure that you are heading toward your real goals. Quit as soon as you can, and rest.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Investi this morning are some what inconsistent. Stay out of squabbles. Check your facts to avoid error and confusion. Make it a tranquil evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Be selective in what you do and with whom you do it. Caution with tools, vehicles is especially in order. Use the evening hours for mental routine work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You are unlikely to get away with carelessness. Pet theories run into rugged testing, need further consideration. Persevere good - naturedly and see it all fall into place tomorrow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Be prepared for sudden stress, shifts in schedules; meet 'appointments promptly. Don't be rash with your money. Keep friends posted on your plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 22): In your work, get directly at what is important. Things bought today for your home turn out wrong—buy later or prepare to exchange. Friends here are not very co-operative.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): Routines you take for granted are interrupted. Formal applications are not favored. Any kindness to neighbors is misunderstood or unwelcome. Mind your own affairs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Conventional approaches are best: keep your dealings in the open. Quick, easy money is an illusion today. If you meet inconvenience, it's because your failure to let your plans be known.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Escaping your responsibilities merely complicates matters, solves nothing. Do your full share and finish in good order. Reflection will show you positive gains.

Kidnappers Embarrassment to Cubans

The Body Box

HAVANA (Reuter) — The Cuban government has accepted the kidnappers of British diplomat James (Jasper) Cross, but observers here feel their presence may be regarded as an embarrassment.

The seven French-speaking Canadian—kidnappers and their families—landed here early Friday aboard a Canadian Forces jet from Montreal, looking calm and relaxed.

They were greeted by Cuban foreign ministry officials while Canadian Ambassador Kenneth Brown looked on.

The Cuban press was allowed a photograph them, but foreign journalists were not permitted to approach the group, among them a little girl and a pregnant woman, which then was taken off into Havana in a small bus.

Observers said this conclusion of the international press night indicate embarrassment on the part of the government which during the last two years has been courting—among the majority of anti-called revolutionaries to leave Cuba.

The official Communist newspaper Granma made a point of saying that the Canadian government had asked Cuba to accept the separatist group.

"The transfer of these people to our country happened following a formal request from the Canadian government to which the Cuban government agreed with a view to realizing the rescue of the British official," it said.

About a dozen Quebec separatists exiled in five bases, but most of them left Cuba earlier this year by way of Algeria, informed sources said. The majority now are said to be living in French-speaking European countries.

As the "first free territory of America," as it calls itself, Cuba has little choice but to welcome political refugees from around the Western Hemisphere. They come from most American countries, especially Argentina and Brazil.

But their number, and the possible international complications they create, is becoming a burden for Cuba, which has enough problems of its own.

As soon as the four-engine Yukon aircraft came to a halt Friday in the light of television lamps, Ambassador Brown went aboard to meet the Canadian foreign ministry officials who travelled with the separatists.

The four kidnappers and their relatives then emerged quietly, without any waving or gesturing. They looked as though they had left Canada in a hurry—casually dressed, the men unshaven and with only few suitcases among them.

Shortly afterward, the Canadian embassy cabled Ottawa to confirm their arrival. The Cuban government also cabled the news to its embassy there, authorizing the release of Cross.

The separatists then were taken to one airport lounge to meet the Cuban press, while the Canadian officials were served refreshments in another lounge.

The exiles are Jacques Cossette-Trudel, 30; Marc Carbonneau, 28; and Pierre Seguin. Joining them in exile were Lanctot's wife, Louise, who is pregnant; their young son; and Lanctot's sister and the sister's husband, Jacques Cossette-Trudel.

Lanctot, a trash-faced young man sitting with his young daughter on his knee, appeared in reply to most of the reporters' questions, speaking in English.

Despite the interviews and photographs, the Cuban newspapers, radio and television so far restricted themselves to publishing the brief official communique on the group's arrival.

Observers said the Cuban government appeared to be at pains to play down the event in order to avoid endangering Britain and Canada, two of its main non-Communist trade partners.

After about two hours here, the Canadian plane, which had flown directly from Montreal, left again to return home via the Bahamas.

The whereabouts of the separatists was not known today, but observers guessed that they would have been taken to some secluded villa in one of Havana's residential districts.

GM Talks Stalled

TORONTO (CP) — Attempts to end the 83-day strike against General Motors of Canada Ltd. remain stalled on the key issue of wage parity although some officials are optimistic about a quick settlement.

Master-level talks were adjourned Wednesday after GM made an improved offer, but sub-committee negotiations on secondary issues continued throughout the week.

Leonard Woodcock, international president of the UAW, said only that the union is "going forward" before leaving Friday to rejoin negotiations in Detroit with Fred Mosher, who faces a Monday strike deadline in the United States.

No Time Limit on Charges

OTTAWA (CP) — The justice department said Friday that if any of the kidnap suspects flown to Cuba return to Canada at any time, they must face criminal charges.

Don Christie, assistant deputy attorney-general, said there is no time limitations in regard to kidnap charges.

Kidnapping is an indictable offence and carries a sentence of life imprisonment. Such serious charges as kidnapping can be laid at any time no matter when it was committed.

Jacques Lanctot, 25, Marc Carbonneau and Pierre Seguin, among the seven persons given safe conduct out of the country Thursday in return for the release of British diplomat James Cross, are among those who could be charged with kidnapping, sources say.

"If they (kidnap suspects) want to come back at any time, they would do so at their own risk," Mr. Christie said.

The Canadian Press announced Thursday that a statute of limitations applies to the kidnap suspects.

Toronto Lawyer Makes Offer To Run Train From Havelock

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto lawyer offered Friday to operate his own rail commuter service between here and Havelock, a railway divisional point east of Peterborough, to prove that the Canadian Pacific Railway can operate its commuter service at a profit.

John Medcof made the offer before a Canadian transport commission hearing, which is considering an application by CP Rail to discontinue service between Havelock and Toronto.

The hearing has also heard evidence on applications by CP Rail to drop one train on the Toronto-to-Markham, Ont., run and to end passenger service between Toronto and Windsor.

If the railways' applications are refused, the commission may partially subsidize the railways' losses on the runs.

Mr. Medcof said he made a $300 profit last spring hiring a passenger train for a run between Barrie and Toronto to prove the feasibility of rail commuter service between those points.

His present plan involves renting a self-propelled rail diesel car and hitching it to the CP Rail passenger car which operates each morning and evening between Toronto and Havelock.

Mr. Medcof said he could make a profit by selling passengers one-week reserved-seat passes.

CP Rail has said it lost $720,000 on the run over the last three years.

All witnesses at the commission hearings Friday concentred on the Toronto-to-Havelock service.

They charged that the railway:

—Refused to plow snow from the 500-foot lane to the Clairmont station.

—Allowed up to 13 passengers to stand in the vestibule of the crowded coach, thereby violating safety rules.

—Did not tell customers when the time of the train was advanced 10 minutes this fall.

—Did not tell customers when it left local newspapers for six years.

One witness called for a competent manager to handle the service before the commission accepts railway statements that the run cannot make money.

Mr. Medcof told the commission the train, for all its dilapidation, is the most efficient way to get to downtown Toronto.

From Agincourt to the centre of Toronto takes 38 minutes by bus or 35 minutes by car in rush hour, he said, compared with 18 minutes by rail.

J. E. Ricketts said h and other passengers who get on the train at Clairmont have to pay to have the 500-yard road to the station parking lot plowed in winter.

Mr. Ricktts also criticized CP Rail's method of selling tickets.

Each ticket had to be marked in three places with the date, in three places with the station of departure, in three p laces with the destination, and in two places with the tickets price.

H. E. Thompson of Bethany, who heads the train at Peterpool, said all customers missed the train when its schedule was advanced 11 minutes without notice.

Lawyer T. G. Mather, representing CP Rail, said notice of the change was posted at Toronto's Union Station and at Agincourt.

He said since most users go to and from Union station, posting the timetable change there was sufficient notice.

Joseph Cruden, speaking on behalf of the Toronto and District Liberal Association, said railway passengers, like the telephone service, should be based on the principle that public services must be available in both profitable and unprofitable areas.

British MPs Alarmed Over Red Espionage

Swiss Envoy Seized in Rio

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Ambassador Giovanni Enrico Bucher of Switzerland was kidnapped today by terrorists who shot a Brazilian government agent assigned to guard him.

The Swiss embassy said Bucher was on his way to his office in his car. The car was blocked by the terrorists, the ambassador removed and the agent shot and wounded as he attempted to stop the abduction, the embassy reported.

It is Brazil's fourth political kidnapping in a rash of such seizures that began with the abduction of U.S. Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick Sept. 4, 1969, in Rio de Janeiro. He was released after the military government freed 15 prisoners held in connection with politically inspired crimes.

The other kidnappings in Brazil were of Consul Nobuo Okuchi of Japan in Sao Paulo last March and Ambassador Ehrenfried von Hollenben of West Germany last June. Both were freed upon the government's release of political prisoners.

Initial reports of Bucher's seizure said the terrorists carried out their mission in no more than two minutes. He was bundled into another car and driven away.

During the operation, the terrorists scattered leaflets signed, "national Liberation Alliance, Operation Joaquim Camara Ferreira, Command Soares, Gimarares de Brito."

'How'd you like to be snapped for a kidnapped person?'

Basques Relate Torture

BURGOS (Reuter) — Two young Basques on trial here claimed Sunday they were tortured during police interrogation, giving the most detailed evidence of alleged police brutality ever heard in a Spanish military court.

Russian Trade Group Suspect

LONDON (AP) — British MPs were primed today to quiz the government on reports of a big step-up in communist spy activities in Britain and western Europe.

Prime Minister Heath's government is particularly sensitive to the reports, informants said, because of the political difficulties a previous Tory government ran into nearly eight years ago.

Government spokesmen refused to comment on published reports that three senior Russian trade officials were expelled from Britain recently for spying and two other East European missions have been warned about the activities of their diplomats.

British security offices were said to be alarmed over the steady growth in the size of Soviet trade offices despite a strict limit imposed on the size of the Soviet embassy.

And trade officials, supervising industrial contracts with British firms, have considerably more freedom to travel around Britain than Soviet embassy officials. Police sources said that because of this it was extremely difficult to keep watch on these officials.

Officials said an alert on increased Communist spy activities has been sent out from the Brussels headquarters of the Atlantic Alliance to all NATO member governments.

Seven years ago last June, John Profumo, secretary of state for war in the Tory government of Harold Macmillan, resigned with the admission he had been having an affair with a party girl who happened to be also mistress of the Soviet naval attache, Evgeny Ivanov.

There was no hint that Profumo had been caught in any spy dealings but the scandal rocked the nation and almost brought down the Macmillan government. Many political observers believed it was a contributing cause to the defeat of the Conservatives in national elections the following year.

The present flurry was started by a newspaper dispatch on the reported expulsion of the three Soviet trade officials.

Trenton Airmen Describe Flight

Going Into Exile, Terrorists React Diversely to Publicity

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Marc Carbonneau, 37, and his chum Pierre Seguin reacted "with definite enthusiasm" to reports of massive police efforts in Montreal while travelling in Cuban exile aboard a Canadian Forces Yukon, the plane's flight engineer Sgt. D. A. Johnson, 38, of Belleville says.

"It was like hell had been let out for recess" he explained. Sgt. Johnson told The Intelligencer that Seguin, grinning with excitement, drew Carbonneau's attention to a Montreal newspaper during the flight and the two mulled over reports about themselves and their confreres. Some political observers contend that the Front de Liberation du Quebec had engineered the Cross kidnapping to gain publicity for its causes. However, Jacques Lanctot, 25, described by Johnson as having the capacity for being "a died - in - the - wool revolutionary", appeared peeved at his companion's pleasure with the publicity, the flight engineer observed.

Taking the Yukon, one of seven with Trenton's 437 Squadron, to Havana Thursday were Carbonneau, Seguin, Lanctot, his pregnant wife, Marie Berthadelle, and 18 month - old son, Manuel; and Jacques Grosbetie-Trudelle and his wife, Louise (sister of Lanctot).

They were treated as "normal passengers", commander of the aircraft, Major Stuart Parmalee of Belleville, said Saturday.

In a press conference following arrival of special flight 602 from Havana, Major Parmalee, a 19-year veteran of the service, said although the group was, at times, "nervous and high - strung", there were no remarkable incidents on the 1,415 - mile trip from Dorval Thursday night.

Claude Roquet, 40, head of the External Affairs taskforce into the Cross-Laporte kidnappings, made the trip to Cuba to ensure, he said, that everything went "smoothly".

Mr. Roquet said that during the flight he did not "isolate" himself from the kidnappers and dependents but talked with them. He did not disclose the nature of these conversations. "It was not an unpleasant experience" he concluded.

Jordanian Forces Shell Guerrillas

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuter) — Jordanian forces attacked Palestine Arab guerrilla positions in Ajloun and Jerash, northern Jordan, a Palestinian commando spokesman said here today.

The Palestine resistance command spokesman said the attack started at 4 a.m. and was still going on four hours later.

The spokesman said Jordanian forces began to shell the area, including Jerash town and the refugee camps of Souf and Gaza, while armored forces advanced toward Thaghret al-Uahr and Jerash.

"Our forces held their fire and did not reply to the artillery until 8 a.m. local, that is two hours after the attack had started, and then they had to fire back," the spokesman said.

"Fierce clashes continue in all these areas," he added.

The spokesman also charged that Jordanian forces opened fire on commandos in various parts of Jordan Sunday and shelled Irbid.

Heavy firing continued in Amman until 7 p.m. and three persons were killed and several others wounded, he added.

Blast Razes Oil Plant

LINDEN, N.J. (AP) — Police sought today to identify from a voice recording a caller who said "the refinery is gonna burn, baby burn" less than two hours before an explosion and fire razed a 1,500-acre Humble Oil Co. complex.

The telephone call to the police was described by investigators as their only lead to the cause of the blast—felt 40 miles away—and pronounced fire bloss which injured 29 and caused damage in the millions Saturday night.

Shop windows were shattered in Linden, Elizabeth and Staten Island and police patrolled the shopping districts to prevent looting.

Police said the FBI would be asked to compare a voice print made from the recording with its own file of voice prints in the search for the caller.

"We feel this was a deliberate act of sabotage," said Mayor John Gregorio.

"We're assuming it was sabotage because of the actions throughout the country in the last few months," said a police lieutenant, referring to widespread bombings by militant groups.

The mayor said something dropped from an aircraft might have touched off the initial explosion. Four residents reported seeing a light plane or helicopter over the refinery at about the time the blast sent a fireball 1,000 feet into the air and shattered windows within a radius of three to four miles. But the mayor said the reports disagreed on whether the craft was spotted before or after the explosion.

A call received by New York radio station WINS early Sunday said a group called the United Socialist Revolutionary Front was responsible for the explosion. The caller said three incendiary devices had been set off.

Automatic monitoring will provide a record of events immediately before the explosion, he said.

Khrushchev Tells
How to Get Rid of A Would-be Communist Dictator

NEW YORK (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev engineered secret police chief Lavrenty Beria's down'all after Joseph Stalin's death, says the third instalment of the reminiscences attributed to the former Soviet premier.

Georgi Malenkov took over after Stalin died, but the reminiscences published in Life's Dec. 11 issue say this was part of a plot by Beria to build up Malenkov and then discredit him, clearing the way for his own rise to power.

The memoirs give this account:

Soon after Stalin's death in March 1953, Khrushchev tried to persuade Malenkov that he was being led into a trap and proposed that he deal with Beria through the Communist party presidium.

"Malenkov finally agreed," Khrushchev writes. "I was surprised and delighted. We wrote the agenda for the next presidium session and included some issues on which the others supported us, and Beria was defeated. This pattern was repeated, and only then did Malenkov become confident that we could use party methods against Beria."

The key meeting took place in June.

"As soon as Malenkov opened the session he said, 'Let us discuss party questions. There are some members on which we must deal with right away.' Everyone agreed. As had been arranged in advance, I requested the floor and proposed that we discuss the matter of Beria. Beria was sitting on my right. He gave a start, grabbed me by the hand, looked at me with a startled expression and said, 'What's going on, Nikita? What's this you're mumbling about?'

"I said, 'Just pay attention. You'll find out soon enough!'"

Most of those present denounced Beria, and Khrushchev then proposed his removal from official posts.

"Malenkov was still in a state of panic. As I recall he didn't even put my motion to a vote. He pushed a secret button which gave the signal to the generals who were waiting in the next room. Marshal (George) Zhukov was the first to appear . . . Malenkov said in a faint voice to comrade Zhukov, 'As chairman of the council of ministers of the U.S.S.R. I request that you take Beria into custody pending investigation of charges made against him.'

"Hands up!" Zhukov commanded Beria.

Beria was shot six months later.

The account portrays Beria as a hypocritical schemer at Stalin's death bed in his country home near Moscow:

"Beria had started spewing hatred against Stalin and mocking him. It was simply unbearable to listen to Beria. But as soon as Stalin showed these signs of consciousness and made us think he might recover, Beria threw himself on his knees, seized Stalin's hand and started kissing it. When Stalin lost consciousness again and closed his eyes, Beria stood up and spat . . .

"As soon as Stalin died, Beria was radiant. To put it crudely, he had a housewarming over Stalin's corpse before it was even in its coffin. Beria was sure no power on earth could hold him back now. You could see these triumphant thoughts in his face as he drove off to the city, leaving us at the dacha."

Capture Ends Dog's First Chase

By HARRY MULRALL
Staff Reporter

An escaped convict was back in Collins Bay penitentiary today after a 24-hour pursuit through Belleville and its surrounding countryside, ended in confrontation with a police dog.

Pte Eric Wayne Perrin, his surrender ended a bid for freedom during which he had held a soldier hostage at what many feared was knifepoint.

Pte Selsgo, the police tracker dog stationed at OPP Belleville district headquarters, the capture was his first assignment since he graduated from training school last Friday.

Police say Perrin gave himself up quietly after hearing the dog in pursuit when the escaper fled from his hostage's automobile on an isolated stretch of Rawdon township's eighth concession.

It was then police discovered that Perrin had been armed with a screwdriver that "looked like a knife," during the long chase began on the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway near Marysville.

OPP Sgt. D. E. Wellesley said Perrin — a native of Regina and recently an Owen Sound resident serving 9 months for burglary — escaped from Collins Bay penitentiary at 8 p.m. Sunday.

He fled after kicking out a window in the prison's farm annex.

A short time later Sgt. Robert Murray, a soldier stationed at Kingston, drove up to an apartment house about a quarter - mile from the prison with a girl friend.

A man holding what appeared to be a knife pulled the woman from the car and drove off with the sedan, said the superintendent.

The car was spotted by provincial police on the freeway near the Marysville turnoff.

The pursued automobile turned off the freeway at Shannonville and headed into Belleville on Highway 2.

The chase continued around Belleville streets, halting, at the Highway 37 freeway cloverleaf where city and provincial police cruisers boxed in the wanted vehicle.

As police approached the automobile, said Supt. Wellesley, they observed the fugitive had an object pressed to the soldier's neck.

Police allowed the car to pro-ceed — with the cruisers falling in behind.

The automobile headed west along the freeway, turning off at [illegible] and heading north along the Trent River [illegible] Stirling, the chase burned on to the county road link to Campbellford, continued around the Campbellford area then back on the country roads of Rawdon township.

At various times, the wanted car increased speed, but slowed again, said the superintendent.

Finally, the meandering ended about 11 p.m. when the car suddenly halted in a lonely strip of the eighth concession and Perrin fled into bush in the vicinity of the road, said Supt. Wellesley.

Sabrec, who had been in one of the cruisers dogging the escaper's tracks, was unleashed as police dashed in pursuit.

The dog picked up the scent instantly and "went straight after him," said the superintendent.

When the officers caught up they found Perrin standing still in the bush about 100 yards from the road.

"He heard the dog and decided to give up," said Supt. Wellesley.

J. LESTER STEVENS, regional director of the Ontario Region of the Unemployment Insurance Commission in Belleville, has been appointed director of general operations at the head office for the UIC in Ottawa. Associated with the UIC since 1964, Mr. Stevens spearheaded the move of the Ontario Regional Headquarters from Toronto to Belleville resulting in an annual saving of approximately $200,000 in rental.

Early Vote Is Light

This is the day electors go to the polls in Quinte district municipalities. Polling subdivisions will be open from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

In the city five public and five separate school trustees are to be elected. Elections for Hastings county board of education are also taking place in four other centres, and contests for the separate school board are being held in Trenton and the Sidney-Murrow area.

In Trenton, voters will elect six councillors, two Public Utilities commissioners and two representatives on the Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board.

Trenton voters are also faced with two referendums: one on whether the town's water supply should be fluoridated, the other on whether the town should be party to a condominium development on the site of the old Post Office on Dundas St. East.

In Belleville voting has been light, with only 7 people voting by noon today at the two polling subdivisions at the Dundas St. East fire hall.

Sixty-one voted at the advance poll in Belleville — an average turnout.

Northern Layoffs Averted By Bramalea Settlement

Belleville employees of Northern Electric received a Christmas bonus from fellow company workers at Bramalea last night.

The Bramalea group voted 79 per cent in favor of a new work contract — ending a month - old strike that had threatened company supply lines.

Last month, Northern warned any prolonged strike could result in work stoppages and layoffs in other company plants — including Belleville — dependent on Bramalea components for manufacture of communication systems.

Belleville plant manager G. A. Thompson said today the Bramalea accord came before any work stoppages were necessary.

Earlier the company had sought to offset the threat by "ridiculous use" of supplies already stocked when the strike hit.

Mr. Thompson today estimated Northern could have operated a "few more weeks" before a stoppage became inevitable. It was not known how many employees might have been involved in the resulting layoff.

Northern's Belleville work force was last estimated around 1,000.

At Bramalea, production resumed with the return of the 1,200 striking workers today.

The 2,500 workers—half of them women — members of Local 531, United Electrical Workers, will receive wage increases of 18 per cent in the first 18 months of the contract. Payment of a cost-of-living bonus will become effective in seven months. The union had sought a 15-per-cent increase in wages over 18 months. Management had countered with 11 per cent in two years.

Basic hourly wages, prior to the new contract, ranged from $2.46 to $2.85 for women workers, and $2.70 to $4.65 for men.

A feature of the settlement is payment by the company for the first time of full premiums for hospital insurance and medical care. This includes any increases that may take effect in such premiums.

In addition, the company will pay for prescription drugs, nursing care and other benefits for workers.

An added holiday—Boxing Day — will be paid this year, bringing the total of paid holidays to 10. Workers will get three weeks' vacation after seven years of service, instead of the current 10 years.

Similarly, the service requirement for four weeks' — now 20 years—will be reduced to 15 in 1971.

Another clause provides that workers will have their current rate of pay maintained for up to one year if, and when, they're downgraded due to lack of work.

Wrong Inference

Contrary to the inference in a Chamber of Commerce story in The Intelligencer, the Belleville Industrial Commission has not recommended that a new city map be printed outside the city.

This was made clear today by Industrial Commissioner Fred Bemis who said there was never any thought that the map be printed out of town.

"It is a case of getting the best possible map at the best possible price" he said.

Approximately 10,000 new city maps will be printed with the Industrial Commission and Chamber of Commerce sharing the costs.

IN MEMORIAM

DEMARE — In loving memory of a dear dad and grandfather, Harry Demare, who passed away December 8, 1967.
Just thoughts of those who loved him
Just some memories fond and true
And a heart that holds you dearer
Than you thought the world could.
—Lovingly remembered by son Ted, daughter-in-law Doris, daughter Ann, son-in-law Bill, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

BLEECKER — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ben Bleecker, who passed away December 7, 1967.
Sadly missed, but duty done with end
It rends a day I will never forget.
Sad memories are the only flowers we can send
To one we love but can never forget.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Ida, daughter Joan and husband Lloyd, son Ben and wife Shirley, grandchildren Lloyd, Barbara, Ben and Shirley Greg.

RILEY — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, who passed away December 7, 1967.
The very thing hurt will always be there
No one knows the grief I bear
When my thoughts of you will wander
But you left no memories I can part with —Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by wife Hattie and family.

BELL — In loving memory of our dear parents Hazel and George Bell, who passed away 7 and 8 years ago.
Treasured pictures we have in mind
An empty place we hope to find
In our hearts they are living yet,
We cannot have them in person we regret.
Sunday's where we shadows fall,
And memory keeps alive to all.
Our God above will link the chain
And we shall meet and live again.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter, Mildred, Georgey, Nicholas and Connie.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Beatrice Ellen Gregory, (Mrs. A. R. Trogdon) would like to thank all of our friends and neighbors for the gifts of fruit and baskets and messages of sympathy received during the illness and after the death of our mother. Also the Canadian Cancer Society, doctors and nurses for their kindness and care. A special thank you and mother's love to Mrs. Mary Ann Trogdon, Colonel Sherwood Forest Chapter, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, Mrs. John Wren for their comforting words.
—Lloyd, Barbara, Ben and Shirley Greg and families.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to my many friends and neighbors for cards, flowers and visits during my stay in Belleville General Hospital and after my return to St. Thomas A.C.W. for cards and flowers, Rev. Mr. Hawkes and Rev. Mr. Bridger for their visits, Mrs. Wilkins for Dr. McKenzie and Dr. Wilkinson for their care and kindness.

Yukon Crew Back From Cuba

"Co-operation of the Cuban government was an essential ingredient" in the success of the striking operation, he stressed, adding that "the Canadian government is grateful".

Referring to the seven seeking exile in Cuba, Roquet said "I assume it is the intension of the Cuban government to give them options."

O. W. Dier, head of the Latin American division, Department of External Affairs, who also made the trip told reporters here that there were "no negotiations" with the Cuban government during the 100 minutes the plane was in Havana.

Everything had been settled beforehand, he indicated. Asked whether Canada had given money for support of the seven, he said that he was "not aware of this area of negotiations."

Ricardo Escartin, acting Cuban consul-general in Montreal, escorted the party to Cuba and returned to CFB Trenton with the Yukon. He did not participate in the question-and-answer session that followed the plane's 3.00 p.m. arrival here.

Escartin spent part of the Montreal - Havana flight in the company of Carbonneau and Seguin, neither praising nor censuring them.

"He listened to them politely, as if to study them. . . He was courteous" one crew member said.

According to the plane's loadmaster, Cpl. Jean Gaumond, 32, of Trenton, Carbonneau and Seguin sat opposite each other on the flight.

The pair brought a portable radio with them on trip and were busy listening to news reports about their departure from Dorval until loadmaster Gaumond removed the batteries, explaining that use of the radio would not be permitted.

It is a standard practice to forbid the playing of battery-operated radios because they can disrupt sensitive navigational equipment aboard the aircraft.

Marc Carbonneau, wearing a T-shirt, looked "tough" according to Major Parmalee. However, he said Carbonneau was small in stature and only weighed about 130 lb.

Sgt. Johnson contends that Carbonneau may have been looked to for leadership but this was more because of his age than his intellect.

Carbonneau, he said, came to him asking what the cities were the lights of which he could see from the cabin window. Johnson told him the plane was flying over St. Petersburg, Sarasota and Fort Meyers.

Carbonneau asked what state they were in, Johnson recalls.

Seguin looked upon Carbonneau as a hero, several members of the crew have concluded. "He was a follower" one said. The pair were first of the FLQ party to leave the Yukon at Havana.

With their anxieties and constant questions, Sgt. Johnson got the impression that they were "the first time they (the seven seeking exile) had been on an airplane."

From snatches or conversation that he overheard, Cpl. Gaumond has concluded that the FLQ party had some doubts as to whether they would really be taken to Cuba.

Calm throughout the flight, Jacques Lanctot, was reportedly "white-knuckled" as the aircraft began its approach to Havana. For a man who had "kept everybody on their toes (in Montreal), he hid eyes as big as saucers" then, Johnson says.

Through much of the flight, Lanctot held his son cuddled against him. His wife, Marie, sitting in the right was described as "very pretty" and "very, very pregnant". Her knowledge of English was slight and her husband translated for her.

A Canadian Forces doctor, Major Yves Prevost was aboard the flight, just in case Madame Lanctot started to give birth in flight. "We told her to cool it," Major Parmalee said.

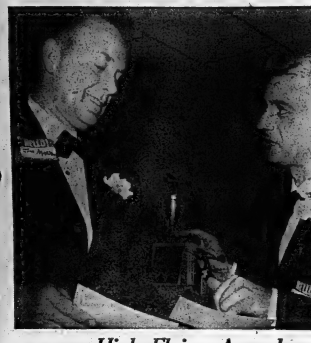
Medical attention was not necessary for Marie Lanctot. However, it was needed by Louise Crossette-Tradelle, who suffered from "a bad case of mismatched butterflies".

She complained of flight turbulance and was given a gravol shot for air sickness. Major Parmalee and the crew expressed doubt that the flight could have made her ill because it was remarkably smooth. In any case, she slept for much of the trip.

While London, described by one crew member as being "as hard as they come" sprawled across a seat, her husband wandered around the Yukon "like a lost sheep" peering out windows on one side then another.

"I know he was not happy about leaving the country," Sgt. Johnson said. However, he controlled his open expressions of misgiving on the part of the other FLQ exiles may have been tempered by the presence aboard of the Cuban consul.

Claude Roquet said that the group of exiles "ranged from the intelligent to the not so articulate." Clearly Lanctot must number as one of the intelligent, the crew say. Dr. Prevost assessed him as "more idealistic than the others."



The FLQ passengers travelled light — three small suitcases, a flight-bag and a packsack among the sevent of them.

"They were very hungry" according to the flight steward, Cpl. J. D. Belisle, 25, who served them three hatches that included salads and sandwiches during the five-hour trip to Havana.

"The leave-taking was civilized" Mr. Roquet said. The seven depianed in Cuba to be met by national press and television. The diplomats and crew were ushered to a VIP lounge for demi-tasses of coffee and Havana cigars without having contact with the press.

However, newsmen contacted the 437 Squadron crew during their layover in Nassau Friday and a CBC television team converged on Major Parmalee's Belleville home Saturday evening seeking details of special flight 622.

Crew members included Capt. Ray Aitken, 41, first officer; Capt. D. J. Hnata, 34, navigator; Capt. Ron Lamont, 40, radio officer; and Sgt. G. H. Brasseur, 47, flight engineer.

High Flying Award

Saturday night was Christmas party and graduation night for the Belleville Flying Club. Club president James Marker and chief flying instructor Ron Mason, winner of the Dr. J. N. Hartt award for contribution to the club and advancement of membership, sorted through some of the awards being presented to trainees and veterans.

Flying Club Graduates Thirty Nine at Party

The close of the 1970 Belleville Flying Club season was celebrated Saturday night at the Sun Valley Motor Inn in a festive mood and with tradition.

The occasion served not only as a Christmas party but as graduation for the new students of power and glider flying that have joined the club throughout the year.

Four commercial pilots, 12 glider pilots, 26 private pilots and one instructor were in the graduation class for this year.

The evening was also highlighted by the presentation of wings to the graduates and the awarding of trophies.

R. B. Mason, an instructor with the club, received the club's most valuable trophy — the Dr. J. N. Hartt Award which is given to the member who, according to the other members, has done the most to advance flying during the year.

The George Hees award, presented to the most outstanding glider student of the year, was given to Francis Lenk.

John McDowell won the Dr. Evans Trophy as the private pilot graduate with the highest average, and Geoffrey Ellis was presented with the President's Trophy for the highest commercial average.

1970 has been assessed as one of the best years for the Belleville Flying Club. During the years, the BFC added a fifth craft to the fleet — a Blanik Glider from Czechoslovakia.

Membership in the club ranges from Montreal to Toronto to London, Ontario. It now numbers approximately 270 people.

Bingo Raises $300 for Fund

"The mental health association should benefit by about $300," from Friday night's turkey bingo, said Dr. Richard T. Potter today. The bingo was held at St. Thomas Parish Hall and was sponsored by the Belleville Progressive Conservative Association.

Dr. Potter, MPP for Quinte riding, made his first public appearance in over three months at the bingo after having undergone an operation on his back.

In a short address Dr. Potter indicated he would be reporting to the riding on provincial affairs in the near future but did want to point out that all the funds for the city's geared-to-income housing were provided by the province on loan fro mthe federal government.

Lee Grills, MP, also spoke to those present and said that the efforts of federal government critics were responsible for the withdrawing of the bill which would have limited the auditor-general's powers.

Ottawa's Timing

Opposition leader Robert Stanfield is frequently capable of a pithy turn of phrase which is in strange contrast to the somewhat rambling nature of his discourse in opposition generally.

As when he termed Finance Minister Benson's budget one of "groans, bones and loans." But comically blunt as his words were, they do not really tell us very much about the merits or otherwise of Mr. Benson's latest manipulation of the national wealth. Any more than David Lewis, the deputy leader of he New Democratic Party, is offering any constructive criticism when he says some parts of the budget are "ridiculous, laughable."

But then the Opposition must appear to be critical, sceptical and at pains to make the Government and its policies look lopsided. That it fails to do so on occasions is eloquent of the fact it has no real alternatives at the present time.

The Government meanwhile is timing its present show of beneficence cleverly. There is the White Paper on Welfare Reform, for example, which recommends, among other things, increased family allowances to low-income families and an increase in the old age pension. This has been followed by increases in pensions and allowances to war veterans. The element of timing has to do of course with the fact that the life of the present government is about half over and moving inexorably toward the next election.

Granted the Opposition overall has been more detailed in its criticism of the above measures (with regard to pensions for instance) and of the budget than there is space to dwell upon here, but nevertheless there is merit in the Government proposals, including the low-cost loans totaling $150 million being made available to provinces for job-creating projects, the industrial incentive program changes to give additional benefits to areas of Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic provinces, and the further $23 million in federal government spending planned on works projects in high-unemployment areas.

It may not be a perfect budget, but at least there is an attempt in its provisions to stimulate the economy. Time as always will be the judge and electors may always express their dissatisfaction or otherwise at the polls, when that time comes around again.

Rail Transport

Is no one interested in keeping passenger traffic going on the railways? The two major companies, and the public?

It has been apparent for some time that passenger services have been relegated to a kind of Cinderella role in transportation in Canada. So sure is the lure of the turbo between Toronto and Montreal as well as the transcontinental trains, but generally speaking, and particularly on routes serving the smaller centres, the railroads face ever decreasing revenues.

For that reason they have been trying to eliminate a number of passenger routes. The Canadian Transport Commission has been conducting a number of hearings on this score, among them one in Peterborough. During this hearing chairman D. H. Jones complained that it had been getting more and more difficult to find out what CP's approach was to passenger rail services.

The chairman said the commission was not satisfied the potential market "is being sufficiently explored or met."

So, what is to be done? We can understand the railways' difficulties in a situation where so many people travel by car, but at the same time it is evident the railways are making no real effort to attract passenger traffic. Maybe if they could smarten up the railcars being used on declining routes, do some interior decorating, install some light music, maybe even provide uniformed hostesses and light refreshments they could stop the rot.

Certainly they continue the way they are going, and do nothing, passengers will stay away and the companies will continue to lose money.

Sour Note

A sour note in the wake of James Cross' release were the comments of his brother-in-law in Dublin. He said he had seen a television program praising Prime Minister Trudeau's handing of the affair, but he disagreed, noting: "I think he handled it very badly." We doubt if either Mr. Cross or his wife would condone such a comment by a relative far from the action of these last tension-filled couple of months.

South Africa Woos Neighbors

White and Black Grow Closer Economically

By KENNETH L. WHITING

PRETORIA (AP) — There are hints of relaxation in the long and bitter conflict between black and white countries in Africa.

For more than a decade the continent's white-ruled southern tip and the newly independent states to the north viewed each other with fear and contempt. Militant black leaders condemned racial segregation and threatened to "liberate" black in the south. A succession of South African leaders warned they would tolerate no interference.

Bitterness and tension increased in the late '60s until it appeared no negotiating room was left.

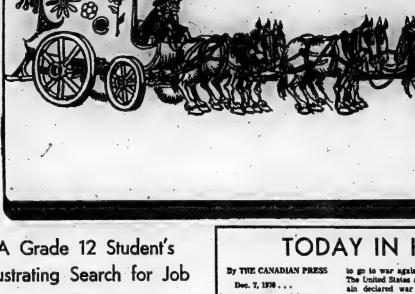
Now there are small signs of a breakthrough.

From the South African viewpoint it is one result of Prime Minister Vorster's "outward-looking" foreign policy of more co-operation and aid for friendly black neighbors. This was first outlined more than two years ago. Skeptics suggested that Vorster aimed at creating a ring of neutralized buffer countries around South Africa and economically dependent on South Africa.

Foreign Minister Hilgard Muller indicates Pretoria is still sensitive on this point. He told a political meeting:

"We want our neighbors to become our friends voluntarily. We do not want an iron curtain around South Africa. We want to establish a friendly circle of free, independent states in this part of Africa."

Geography puts the former British territories of Botswana Lesotho and Swaziland into South Africa's economic orbit. The unrecognized regime in breakaway Rhodesia depends heavily on South Africa for moral and financial support.



Malawi was the first real triumph for the outward-looking policy. In exchange for diplomatic recognition, Pretoria provided medical technicians and other specialists, communications equipment and funds to underwrite President H. Kamuzu Banda's dream capital at Lilongwe.

For more than a year informed sources in other parts of black Africa reported that South Africa's economic overtures were meeting with increasing success. Trade with more than half a dozen countries is cost and well developed under various guises.

Muller went to Malagasy in November to sign an economic pact through which South Africa will lend the Madagascar republic $3.25 million to develop tourism. Diplomatic links seem likely.

The Ivory Coast president, Felix Houphouet-Boigny, has suggested that black African leaders discuss the opening of "a dialogue" with South Africa. Five other French-speaking countries and Ghana supported his proposal. A smaller number of nations rejected the idea.

There is no sign of an early détente, but the proposed could eventually mean an end to the era of empty threats and counter-threats. It could immeasurably clear the way to devoting more money toward economic development and less to the politics of race.

A Grade 12 Student's Frustrating Search for Job

Letter to Hamilton Spectator

This is in response to Christine Brown's article in The Spectator.

I graduated from grade 12 at the age of 18 in June, 1968. It took me eight and one - half months to obtain a job. I tried constantly all this time to get a clerical job. I had gone for innumerable interviews and had written letters to all the reputable places in Hamilton.

It was the most depressing and humiliating eight and one-half months of my life. Convinced I had to get a job somewhere, as a last resort I applied to a bakery in the city. I thought I could do this for a while until I secured a clerical position.

(While attending school I had worked on a part-time counter for two and one-half years, so I felt I had the experience for a job in a bakery).

I was even more depressed when I found out I couldn't get a job there.

In October I was hired to train as a lab technician in one of the local hospitals, because I was young. Yet, I had no qualifications for this type of work at all. I left this job before the week was up because I felt that to do it well you had to have some knowledge of chemistry. I did not like the subject in course and wanted to use the skills I had acquired.

The answer I got almost everywhere was: "Actually we're looking for someone a little older with a little more experience." How is today's youth going to get experience if they aren't given the opportunity to get it?

I also feel that a single woman is just as reliable and responsible as a married woman, regardless of whether both are qualified or not.

However, I think that married women with a young family should stay home and look after them, unless this is impossible because of financial difficulties.

Some mothers are out working because they are bored staying at home all the time. They they are taking up jobs that girls getting out of school could have getting out of school to the increase in unemployment.

I agree with Christine when she said that it would be better for these women to take voluntary jobs to fill their spare time and to help the community.

Arabs Look Toward New Federation

Montreal Star

One might be impressed by the announcement in Cairo that the leaders of Egypt, Libya and the Sudan have decided to work toward a federation — except for a fundamental flaw. There has been no announcement of Arab federation since the First World War, and even then it was tenuous and short-lived, with the main purpose of driving out Turkish overlords. The union between Egypt and Syria in 1958 came about because of the dreams and ambitions of President Nasser, but he was forced to face reality with its failure three years later. Personal rivalries, narrow interests, differences in ideology and in development, continue to push Arabs apart despite their common religion and antagonism to world Israel.

President Sadat obviously has his own reasons for venturing on a grandiose path which even his predecessor, Nasser, kept away from after the abortive Union with Syria. As his country's new leader, he can claim a dramatic move forward should the federation come into being. Libya would benefit from the oil revenues of Libya and the bored agricultural potential of the Sudan. All of this would be commendable if it were designed for furthering the social and economic standards of Egypt's people. But its prime purpose, in the words of an official communique, is to face the challenges of "imperialism and Zionism." It is a negative concept, with a military overtone, that hardly serves the need of a contemporary society.

Two weeks earlier, just after the death of Colonel Nasser, Libya's Colonel Qaddafi had proposed a federation of Egypt, Libya and Syria. Sadat's response was to add the Sudan to the proposed union. Qaddafi's reaction was to refuse to have anything to do with it. Syria's Baathist regime, which has been in bitter conflict with Egypt since the breakup of the union, has also refused to have anything to do with it.

Sadat's motives are clear enough. He is trying to build a power base for himself in the Arab world. He is trying to create a counterweight to Egypt's dependence on the Soviet Union. He is trying to create a situation in which Egypt can negotiate with Israel from a position of strength.

But the Arab world is not ready for federation. Egypt's partners in the proposed union are not ready for it. Egypt is not ready for it. Israel is not ready for it. The United States is not ready for it. The Soviet Union is not ready for it. Only Sadat is ready for it.

Dec. 7, 1970 . . .

Canada formally declared war on Japan 29 years ago today—in 1941—only hours after Japanese aircraft bombed the United States air and naval bases at Pearl Harbor. The prompt action made Canada the first of the Western Allies officially to go to war against Japan. The United States and Britain declared war Dec. 8, Australia Dec. 7.

1949—Bulgaria became the fourth Communist state to oust the World Health Organization, an affiliate of the United Nations.

1911—William Griggs, the inventor, died.

1843—Edward Irving, Scottish theologian, died.

1815—Marshal Ney was executed.

1787—Delaware was the first state to ratify the United States constitution.

1542—Mary Queen of Scots was born.

Peterborough Pollution Probe Riles Cobourg Councillors

Peterborough Examiner

The town council of Cobourg has had its revenge.

At council the town fathers gave the cold shoulder to James White, co-ordinator of Pollution Probe, Peterborough, and, Frederick Pirie, the other so-called upstarts and out-of-town do-gooders who stick their noses into Cobourg's business.

When James White appeared to explain Pollution Probe's position and findings concerning pollution in and around Cobourg, the mayor and other council members sat in stony silence and listened with impatience.

When he finished, Mayor Jack Hedan expressed their "thanks" and told Mr. White there would be no discussion of the subject. He promised that "if, as, and when" they would discuss the subject, Pollution Probe would certainly be informed.

And that was it. If Mr. White had expected an avalance of criticism, as outburst of curses, threats or anything like it, he was in for a surprise.

Why would Cobourg council be so upset anyway? Just because Pollution Probe sent the letter stating that some samples taken from sewage effluent showed readings "in excess of 14 times the acceptable limit." Or just because the local collection readings in the Factory Creek "were 1,336 times the acceptable level?" Or just because in April they found that sewage flew through a secondary stage treatment without improvement and in October the situation was still the same?

This splendid and dignified behavior-must have shaken Mr. White—and shown the people of Cobourg that their council really knows how to behave — at least when strangers are around.

Two weeks earlier, just after Pollution Probe's letter was made public the councillors weren't nearly so dignified. At that time, Coun. Robert Love let loose with a 15-minute tirade against Pollution Probe and the news media. The rest of the town fathers pounded on their table in approval. He made such a good speech that a fellow councillor Wilfred Hunkins, called him the "Spiro Agnew of Cobourg."

At that meeting, Coun. Ed Haynes declared that more pollution came from Pollution Probe than from Cobourg. According to Mayor Heenan, the letter was nothing but pollution of the mouth. Coun. Hunkins called it diarrhea of the mouth . . . and there were other hilarious remarks.

But, of course, Pollution Probe's representatives were not present and council was free to have a jolly good time without being accused of talking and behaving in an immature manner.

Which is all right, of course. We just brought this up to show the people of Cobourg that they may drown in their own sewage, but that, as long as they have as strong council as this one, no one is going to blacken their image.

European Survey

A Look at Political Beliefs

HAMBURG — Conservative or progressive ? This was the basic question an American political scientist set out to answer about West Europeans. In a survey of 18,000 Britons, Frenchmen, Italians and with Germans, the researcher Ronald Inglehart comes up with non-surprising, but also interesting results.

Inglehart's survey classified people polled as progressives if they opted for two categories — "free expression of opinion" and "humanization of society". Conservatives were those choosing "increased law and security" and "the fight against rising prices". Moderates picked one from each of the two sets.

Unsurprising was the overall result. The bulk of conservatives fell into the over-54 age group, while youth (18-24 years old) formed the staunchest group of progressives.

Interesting was the variation from country to country. West Germany's over-54 conservatives, for example, headed the pack. Fifty-eight percent were given a rating "Prussian" versus a 54-plus group ran second with 49 percent, while England's and Italy's elders had the lowest number of conservatives — both 46 percent.

In the 24-34 age group, Italy's recorded the most impressive progressive showing (38 percent versus 31 percent, conservative), with West Germany running second (33 percent versus 31 percent). France was third (30 and 21 percent respectively) and Britain last (16:15 percent).

Among different social classes, the survey divided their European voting tradition as leftist or left - of - center, fell into the conservative category, while the upper class ran progressive by three - to - one. The overall lower class conservative - progressive ratio was 49:31 and of the upper class 18:64. Alone in Britain did upper class conservatism outweigh class progressivism (35:15).

The Slang Thing

Bruce West in the Globe and Mail

Considering the clever and enlightened age in which we are now supposed to be living, I find it remarkable how we swallow and repeat certain catch phrases these days with an eager kind of gullibility that would make the rawest country bumpkin blush with shame. Some of our favorite slang — "style wise" or "economy wise," were coined, I imagine, in advertising agencies.

Roles Reversed--Now It Is Kidnappers Who Face Uncertainty

LONDON (CP) — The end of an exercise in terrorist tactics came this weekend with the victim, James (Jasper) Cross, looking forward to picking up his life where it left off and the kidnappers looking into an uncertain future.

After 59 days of captivity, Cross, the British trade envoy settled down Sunday night to a traditional British roast of roast beef and Yorkshire pudding at Downgrowood, the official country residence of British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home.

His kidnappers, three members of the Front de Liberation du Quebec, and two wives and son of one of the men, were reported to have spent the night in a Havana house usually reserved by Cuban authorities for visiting workers' delegations from China, Russia and East Germany.

Cross, 49, arrived in London Sunday to be met by his wife Barbara and they were whisked off to the country home as guests of the British government "for as long as he desires." Cross is expected to meet with reporters some time this week before taking a vacation in Switzerland.

The FLQ group, say some Havana sources, will probably be asked to go to work in the sugar fields unless they have some special skills to offer Cuba, which, as the only revolutionary government in the Western Hemisphere, has accepted an assortment of revolutionaries, ranging from self-proclaimed exiles to plane hijackers.

However observers in the Cuban capital feel the government has been embarrassed by its self-proclaimed role as "the first free territory in America" and the Havana press has played down the arrival of the FLQ party, stressing that the country accepted them at the request of the Canadian government.

Cross was 30 pounds lighter after spending 59 days in the basement of a Montreal hous-guarded by men with sub-machine-guns and at one stage forced to sleep with sticks of dynamite strapped to his body. But the British newspaper says Cross emerged as "the real victor."

The Cubans were praised by Extra-al Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp of Canada for their role in the release of Cross —a sight-rope walking affair Thursday in Montreal during which Cross, the kidnappers and Canadian officials randezvoused with the acting Cuban consul.

After a check-up in Montreal hospital, Cross flew with his daughter Susan to London Saturday aboard a Canadian Forces jet aircraft to be greeted by his wife, Sharp, British officials and a crowd of reporters.

The FLQ party that flew to Havana aboard a Canadian Forces Yukon aircraft, included Marc Carbonneau, Jacques Cossette-Trudel, Pierre Sequin, Jacques Lanctot, Lanctot's pregnant wife Marie, their two-year-old son and Cossette-Trudel's wife Louise.

One Canadian official related that Louise wept as the plane took off from Dorval Airport, carrying the Quebecers going into voluntary exile and 12 other persons including crew, government officials and a doctor.

When the aircraft landed at Havana, the separatist passengers were whisked away to separate rooms to be interviewed by Cuban reporters and that was the last the Canadian officials saw of them.

There have been reports in Quebec that the Cross kidnappers were opposed to the killing of former Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte, who was kidnapped Oct. 10 and found strangled Oct. 17.

The kidnappings of Cross and Laporte are reported to have been carried out by different FLQ cells

Paper Gets Tape of Kidnappers' Conversation

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Presse, a French-language weekly, published excerpts from a tape recording Sunday, said to have been made by the kidnappers of British trade envoy James Cross.

The tape recording was the second received by the news media since Mr. Cross was released by his abductors last Thursday.

The newspaper says the tape, received Friday night, carries the voices of Marc Carbonneau, Jacques Lanctot, an unidentified woman and a voice believed to be that of Pierre Seguin or Jacques Cossette-Trudel.

The men are part of a group of seven kidnappers and their relatives flown to Cuba following the release of Mr. Cross, abducted from outside his home Oct. 5.

The 40-minute tape contains many remarks made in earlier written notes to the police by the group on behalf of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec. It was not known when the tape was made.

One excerpt says the outlawed FLQ decided to use tape recordings as communiques to outline their aims and motives more clearly.

Meantime, a provincial police spokesman said technicians are examing "a tape" received by the news media during the weekend. He did not specify whether the tape was the one published by Quebec-Presse or one published late in the week by Choc, a monthly French-language tabloid.

He said the veracity of the tape has not been authenticated.

The monthly newspaper said its transcript was a 90-minute conversation among cell members tape-recorded Nov. 26, eight days before Mr. Cross was handed over to the authorities.

Choc quoted the tape as saying Mr. Cross was chosen by the Liberation Cell of the FLQ as a bishop victim because "the impact of abducting a Briton would have been much greater" than kidnapping of Harrison Burgess, U.S. consul-general in Montreal, which the group considered dying.

No names were mentioned in the transcript. The speakers, including the woman, were identified only by the letters A, B, C, and F.

Stanfield Demands Accounting by PM

MONTREAL (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield blasted the Trudeau government Sunday night "for economic negligence" and challenged the government to give "an accounting of its stewardship" during the Quebec kidnap crisis.

Speaking to about 1,000 people at a $50-a-plate Progressive Conservative fund-raising dinner, Mr. Stanfield said he backed the government during the kidnap crisis when it moved troops into Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec City and invoked the War Measures Act to fight Quebec terrorists.

"I gave that backing despite the irresponsible statements of some cabinet ministers, including Jean Marchand, and I gave it despite the spate of government-inspired rumors whose chief result was to destroy the reputation of prominent Quebecers."

The Opposition leader, speaking almost entirely in French, then repeated several times during his speech, particularly in references to Confederation and in a reference to unemployment when he said:

"I accuse . . . the Trudeau government of having created misery in Montreal, in Quebec City, and elsewhere in Canada without valid reason."

U.S. Faces Fuel-short Winter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is heading into a long, cold winter on the brink of an energy crisis that could force industry shutdowns, balloon already inflated fuel and utility prices and spur widespread rationing of oil, gas, heat and electricity.

Barring a minor miracle, the situation next year will be even worse.

An Associated Press study of the United States energy crisis has disclosed:

—Some industries have been warned that if this winter is hard, their gas and electricity may have to be shut off to preserve sufficient supplies to heat private homes.

—Many businesses and industries have been told they can't expand or build new plants because there is not sufficient gas or electricity to operate and heat them.

—In some areas, private home builders have been told they will have to scrap their plans if they are thinking of heating with gas. There just isn't any available.

—Electric utility systems that use oil and coal to fuel their generators frequently have had to get by on a day-to-day basis as fuel contracts ran out. New contracts, hard to get, have run up fuel costs by anywhere from 10 to 275 per cent.

—The sky-high fuel prices paid by both gas and electric utility companies are being passed on to customers in utility-rate increases and further increases in utility bills are likely.

—The steel industry has had to pay such high prices for fuel that steel price increases are under consideration. Such boosts probably would raise the price of automobiles and appliances.

—Rising prices for coal, oil, gas and electricity have been a big factor in the steady rise of the Consumer Price Index, a major gauge of U.S. inflation. In October, the index showed a 6.3-per-cent increase in the price of fuel oil and coal over October, 1969. In the same period, the price of gas and electricity rose 5.8 per cent.

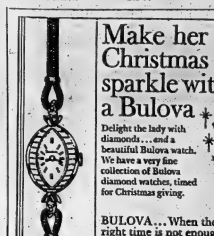
The crisis of power in the United States has been building for a decade, fed by disjointed and inconsistent regulatory systems, grossly inaccurate and inadequate long-range planning and emergency corrective measures which frequently proved too little, too late.

In addition, this year brought new air-pollution laws which require the use only of low-sulphur fuels, crimping the market even further; a new coal-mine health and safety law which adds considerable expense to the operation of coal mines and has forced the shutdown of some economically marginal mines, and international political crises which played havoc with the flow of oil from North Africa, the Middle East and the Caribbean.

The Consumers Power Co., which supplies nearly half of Michigan, is so short of natural gas that service has been put on a priority basis—private homes first, big industry last.

The new air-pollution laws that require burning clean fuel touched off the latest rush on Consumers' supply. Then a contract between Consumers and its pipeline supplier fell through because the pipeline company was short of gas.

"We've looked everywhere we can think of for new sources," said Jack Dyer, a company spokesman. "We couldn't find any."



Safety Check Ordered On CP's Havelock Run

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian transport commission appointed an inspector Saturday to check whether the Canadian Pacific Railway is following safety rules on its Toronto-Havelock, Ont., run.

C. W. Polley was appointed following nine days of hearings into an application by CPR to drop the morning run to Toronto and the return evening trip.

Mr. Polley, the commission's district transportation officer for Toronto, also will investigate the number of passengers taking the train and whether there is enough room for them.

Sr. Citizens Enjoy Slides

The Senior Citizens Club of Belleville enjoyed colored slides of Japan at the recent meeting held in the Recreation Centre.

President Mrs. Kathleen Adams welcomed the group with a special welcome to new members. Secretary Mrs. R. Ferguson read the minutes of previous meetings. Reports were also read by treasurer Mrs. Jackson, duchres Mrs. Vickers and on sick and visiting by Mrs. Clist who noted that past president Mrs. Mabel Doyle was still in intensive care at the hospital, but improving.

During business, members were reminded of the trip to Trenton to attend the bazaar of the Senior Citizens Club there. The Christmas supper for the local club is to be held Dec. 14.

For the program Mr. Harold Seldon showed many beautiful slides of the trip he and Mrs. Seldon took to Japan. His witty commentary was also enjoyed by the members.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Thornton with their helpers.

Door prize was won by Mrs. Alexandra Gamble.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

MARRIAGE NOTICE

MYLES — BIRD — In Assumption College Chapel, University of Windsor, on Saturday, Nov. 21, 1970, Barbara Jane Bird of Toronto, daughter of Dr. Ralph Lee Bird, London and Mrs. Jay Campbell, Belleville, was united in marriage to Walter John Myles, also of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Myles, Warsaw, Dr. Martin Rumscheidt officiated and Mrs. Martin Rumscheidt and Thomas Ackley were the attendants.

MARRIAGE NOTICE

BENNETT — JEFFREY — Rev. William McDowell officiated at the wedding ceremony in King Street United Church, Trenton, on Saturday, Nov. 21, 1970 when Nellie Mary Jeffrey, Trenton, daughter of the late William Lywood and the late Alice Grass was united in marriage to Andrew Bennett of Belleville, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Bennett. Attendants were the bride's eldest daughter Betty Jeffrey and the bridegroom's eldest son Reginald Bennett.

White Cane Club Enjoys Annual Christmas Party

The annual Christmas party of the White Cane Club of Belleville was held last Tuesday at the Recreation Centre. A good number of members and guides attended.

Mrs. Maude Rollins played the piano for the opening songs. President Pat Baverstock called the meeting to order. She extended a warm welcome to those present and thanked the Lions Club for transportation.

Mrs. Rollins read a letter from the National President of the Canadian Council of the Blind, Mrs. Mary Patterson, who extended warm wishes for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Traditional Christmas carols were sung, followed by contests and games. Pat Baverstock and Harvey Bailey were the contest winners.

Christmas gifts were exchanged by the members. A lucky draw followed and winners were Mrs. Alice Smith, Bob Gill and George Zimmerle. The prizes for the draw were donated by Mrs. D. Trimm.

Mrs. Rollins was in charge of the entertainment assisted by Mrs. Myrtle Peck, Mrs. Irene Gill and Tom Wardhaugh.

George Zimmerle thanked the Kiwanis women who served lunch.

The president closed the meeting with best wishes for a Merry Christmas.

Film Shown on 'Care and Cleaning'

A film on "Care and Cleaning" of miracle fabrics highlighted the recent open meeting held by the Belleville Women's Liberal Association at the Kiwanis Centre. Mrs. Betty Hobbs, of Belleville Plaza Coin - Op Cleaners, presented the film in her capacity as program chairman of the group, using afterwards a variety of misshapen garments to further illustrate the pitfalls to be encountered when labels are not read and directions unheeded.

After conducting a draw, Mrs. Hobbs passed out free dry-cleaning vouchers to all present.

At the brief business meeting preceding the film it was noted that $50 be donated to Belleville Fire Fighters Christmas toy program.

Lunch was served.

Ann Landers
One Underweight Also Has Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have printed letters from parents who are concerned because their daughters are too fat. My problem is just the opposite. Our daughter is 19, nearly 5' 5", and weighs 91 pounds.

ANN LANDERS

Alice thinks thin is beautiful. She practically starves herself to death because she is afraid she might gain an ounce. A few weeks ago I insisted that Alice go to the doctor for a complete physical check-up. He said the girl is in excellent health, but "underweight." I must say she has an amazing amount of energy, holds a full-time job, leads an active social life and is never ill. I don't see how she can keep this up. The girl is skin and bones.

You have told people who overeat that they need professional help in handling their emotional problems. What about those who undereat? Does the same go for them? — ALICE'S MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Yes. A girl who is nearly 5' 5", weighs 91 pounds and is afraid of gaining an ounce, is compelled by something stronger than the wish to be stylishly slender. Your daughter may be suffering from an emotional problem called anorexia nervosa. Girls who starve themselves into emaciation are often fearful of facing adulthood and sex. By starving themselves and remaining small and childlike they feel as if they are not a part of the grownup world and therefore exempt from adult responsibilities. Such people need professional help and I strongly recommend it for Alice.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 16-year-old son and his friend are in serious trouble because some stupid person put temptation in front of him. Being human, they couldn't resist it.

Juddy and a 15-year-old pal were walking along the street last evening and they saw a 1970 Chevrolet with the key in the ignition. On a moment's impulse they decided to go for a little ride. These boys didn't mean to steal the car — they just wanted to have some fun. They were picked up two hours later in a nearby town. The police treated them as if they were murderers.

Please say something about irresponsible adults who tempt kids and expect them to be responsible human beings. I am talking about our son and it has made his father and me sick. We would like you to print this letter and comment. — PROUD OF OUR BOY.

DEAR PARENTS: Granted, ignition keys should never be left in cars. But your letter is a beautiful example of what is wrong with many of today's youth. Parents like you have been making excuses for your children for so long it is pitiful. Surely you are aware that life is filled with temptations. Kids who have not been brought up to resist temptation are destined to be in trouble forever. If you came to me for sympathy you rattled the wrong cage.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 20-year-old nephew was classified 4-F two weeks ago. We were all surprised to learn he has a hernia. He does not want to serve in this war and he refuses to have the hernia repaired until he is safely out of the draft.

Is th is a dangerous condition? Please advise us. — ARLINGTON HEIGHTS.

DEAR A.H.: No one can answer this question without examining the boy. Only his doctor knows for sure.

As One Grows Older the Shadows Turn Gold

By DORIS CLARK

The children of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle found this note after his death:

"As a man grows older there comes a time when he feels that the shadows thicken around him. He feels at last his mortal limits, his eyesight contracts, his hearing fails, the strength which had seemed to be an inexhaustible well, has now to be collected before it is used.

"But when that time comes, I know, and I would have you know, that with a true knowledge of what is before us, the shadows all turn gold, and that there is much more of hope than of fear in the prospect."

— from A Biography of Conan Doyle by Pierre Nordon.

Dear Doris: Literature I have read on schizophrenia seem to make the normal, abnormal. For instance, some symptoms are given as follows: Fear of the inability to control actions and thoughts; insomnia; headaches; feeling of people watching.

Now I know a great many people who have headaches and insomnia, and of course we all sense it when someone is watching us. I'm certain this is not abnormal. Is it?

There are a lot of conceited people around who seem to think all eyes are on them at all times. Much to their disappointment, they find it isn't true. — Puzzled

Dear Puzzled: I'm sending you this booklet I have on schizophrenia, which comes from the Mental Health Research Fund in London, England. It will help.

People have headaches, insomnia and a number of other physical symptoms with out having schizophrenia. A good many are self-conscious enough to be worrying all the time about being watched. We don't call self-consciousness mental illness.

Only when a fear becomes an overriding desperation, accompanied by imaginary persecution, is it likely to get into the area of mental illness.

Dear Doris: It seems that whenever one of my girl friends likes a boy, then I begin to like him too. Now don't get me wrong, I'm not a boy-chaser. I figure, if she sees something in him, then he must be o.k.

There have been several incidents like this. In some cases I feel like a traitor to my own friends. This is beginning to worry me. — Worried and Clueless

Dear Clueless: At least you recognize what you are doing. It is a common failing, to take an interest in a person because someone else does, but most people wouldn't admit to following the other fellow's lead.

Give a little thought to what you, yourself, would like to see in a boy: Good manners? Good looks? Friendliness? An interest in sports or books or music? Write them down in a list.

Then when you meet a new boy, decide whether he has the qualities you like, not those which someone else likes.

Pork Chops Florentine Serves Six

By MARY MOORE

Since I was anticipating an argument, it was a pleasant surprise to hear the butcher say "Yes Ma'am" when I ordered six 1" thick pork chops "with tenderloin in".

I had plans for those chops so drove home happy with my precious parcel.

There were to be six of us for dinner and I figured one really thick pork chop each would be just right. It was.

PORK CHOPS FLORENTINE
(Serves 6)

Six 1" thick loin pork chops (about 2 lbs.)
Two 10-oz. pkgs. fresh spinach
6 tbsps. butter
6 tbsps. flour
1 tsp. salt
Milk (to add to spinach liquid — see below)
1 cup Parmesan cheese, grated

Under running water wash spinach thoroughly. Lift and shake and put in large pot and cook, covered, in water clinging to leaves until limp, turning all over once. Place colander over large bowl and drain spinach, chopping. Catch and measure liquid. I had two cups. To it add enough milk to measure 3 cups. Spread spinach on bottom of large shallow baking dish.

To make Sauce blend butter, flour and salt then stir in spinach-milk mixture until thick. Pour half of sauce over spinach in baking dish.

In large frying pan sear and brown chops until golden. Arrange in two parallel rows over spinach and sauce. Pour remaining sauce over all. Sprinkle liberally with Parmesan cheese and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. at least 1 hr. or longer if time permits. If they are baked longer the meat is so tender it will almost fall from the bones.

NOTE: As is obvious to experienced cooks this dish may be prepared in advance before baking stage, cooled, refrigerated until about 1½ hrs. before mealtime and then baked.

This is a gourmet dish that our good cooks should adopt.

Points for Parents

By MARY BEYSON

Mother: "Jimmy, stop showing off and acting so silly! Grandma and Grandpa don't think it's funny. They haven't seen the new baby yet and want to get acquainted with her."

Grandmother; "She's an adorable, precious baby."

A young child will try to himself if a new baby threatens to move in on most of the attention. Prepare him for what is likely to happen and make him feel needed and important in other ways.

Mo-Hawk Task Plain, Not Easy

GALT (Special) — Losing four of their last five games makes Belleville Mo-Hawks' senior hockey task greater, not lesser.

"We've got to win both games this week, and shoot for four of our next five," said coach Dave Jones after Mo-Hawks dropped a 5-3 decision to second - place Galt Hornets Saturday.

STEVE REXE

As 8-6 Tuesday night home game with Kingston Aces is of particular importance. The Aces replaced the Mo-Hawks in fourth spot in the eighteen standings Sunday with a win over Barrie. Kingston has 15 points in 15 games, leaving the Mo-Hawks tied for fifth with Owen Sound with identical 7-16 records.

Jones partially blamed lack of ice time for the current Mo-Hawk doldrums. "We're only getting one night's practice a week this year, and when we do play, we haven't been getting the crowd support we should. That bothers some of the guys."

Looking on the brighter side Jones is pleased with recent performances by goalkeeper Steve Rexe, who again bore the brunt of things Saturday as the Hornets outshot the Mo-Hawks in every period and 13-35 overall.

"Steve's played exceptionally well in the last two games — the best he's played all year," Jones asserted.

Unfortunately for Rexe, both of those efforts have been in lopsided losses against Orillia and Galt — the one-two punch of Ontario senior hockey.

Jones agreed Galt's 11-25 shooting margin was indicative of the play in Saturday's loss.

Goals by George Godson and defenceman Greg Marchen, who scored early in the second period — the only time the Mo-Hawks were close score-wise.

Pete Bottiglieri had given the Hornets a 1-0 lead after they outshot Belleville 13-4 in the opening 20 minutes.

The two second-period Mo-Hawks tallies were offset by Galt goals by Dave Crampman and Howie Dietrich as the Hornets took a 3-2 lead into the final period. Bob Ertel and Vance Miller scored third-period insurance.

Hayes Sets Three Canadian Marks

Apollo Lifters Break Four Records

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The Apollo Bar Bell Club, which claims to be "the Home of Canadian Champions", certainly couldn't be sued for false advertising after their Eastern Ontario Teen-Age Weightlifting Contest, Saturday.

Apollo entries set four new records in the one - day competition held at Sir Mackenzie Bowell public school.

Ron Hayes was the individual standout, setting three Canadian Senior and Canadian Teen-Age records. Hayes, competing in the flyweight class created a new mark in the two hand snatch with a lift of 144 pounds, breaking his previous record by one-half pound.

The 114-pounder set a new standard with his second clean and jerk effort of 198½ pounds and increased the mark to 196½ on his final lift.

The marks set by the 15-year old Belleville lifter rank as Canadian Senior, Canadian Teen-Age, Ontario Senior and Ontario Teen-Age records. His 405-pound total was 200 more than the runner-up.

Art Walt came up with a record - setting performance of his own by netting a British Commonwealth Junior record of 349½ pounds in the light - heavyweight clean and jerk. The lift by the 181-pound Apollo lifter set Canadian Teen-Age and Ontario Teen-Age records wiping out Wayne Wilson's previous mark of 347 pounds.

Belleville athletes dominated the meet that saw entries arrive from Toronto and Woodstock, despite the poor weather conditions which prevented a number of competitors from arriving.

Robert Kerxhaw was runner-up in the 56-pound class with a total lift of 215 pounds. Norm Walt and David Carr-Brainz placed second and third behind Hayes to give the Apollo club a sweep of the 114-pound division.

Robert Allore's 240 pound total was good enough for second in his weight division, while Joel Carr-Brainz took the 132-pound class by hoisting a 225 total.

Brian Rosebush, George Ferguson and Mike Kelly swept the 165-pound class for the local team.

Art Walt added a 245-pound press and a snatch of 220 pounds to his Commonwealth record clean and jerk in easily winning his weight division. Fred Bly finished fourth in the class.

Other Belleville winners were Dave Seeley at 198 pounds and 242-pounder Richard Sly.

Winners of the other weight classes were Roger Kuntze (98 pounds), Brock Tuffnail (123 pounds), Russell Tuffnail (148 pounds) and Chris Darby (super heavy), all of Woodstock. Jeff Ellerby and Lewis Muir of Toronto placed second and third behind Art Walt.

Standout Canadian weightlifters Russ Prior and Alden Roy were on hand to present certificates to the competitors.

Racking Up A Record

Apollo Bar Bell Club member Ron Hayes strains under the weight of a new Canadian clean and jerk record at the Eastern Ontario Teen-age weightlifting championships held in Belleville Saturday. The 15 - year - old lifter set three Canadian marks during the course of the competition, while teammate Art Walt added a British Commonwealth record to complete a highly successful performance by the Apollo club.

Cup Gone Again

TORONTO (CP) — Police believe at least two persons were involved in the theft of the Stanley Cup, the famed trophy taken from the Hockey Hall of Fame Friday night along with two other trophies.

Police said the glass case protecting the Stanley Cup, awarded annually as the winner of the National Hockey League playoffs, is too heavy for one person to lift.

Also stolen from the hall were the Conn Smythe Trophy, awarded annually to the most valuable player in the NHL playoffs, and the Masterton trophy, given to the player who best shows perseverance, sportsmanship and dedication to the game

Police said an alarm system, made to be sensitive after earlier thefts at the hall that a mouse once set it off, was not activated. They speculate that workmen digging beside the building may have damaged a wire. Investigation showed the thieves first attempted to enter the building through the bright-lit south door, shattering a glass pane and breaking a lock, but were unsuccessful. They then gained entry by twisting a lock cylinder out of a door on the east side—the same method used in April, 1969, when the Conn Smythe, Calder and Hart trophies and 198 medals were stolen.

The trophies and medals were recovered by police on an anonymous tip but no arrests were made.

Another theft occurred in January or last year when a collar including three rings from the original Stanley Cup was taken with its glass case. It still is missing.

The original bowl was presented by Lord Stanley in the last century at a cost of $48. It was replaced last year by a replica because its nickel-alloy base was turning brittle and the cup looked shoddy. It was the replica the thieves took.

League Leaders Trim Fairways

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — The Peterborough Lions quashed any comeback hopes the Belleville Fairways may have been harboring after Friday's 8-1 loss by taking a 15-1 Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey decision Sunday.

The Lions, who will represent the league in the Ontario Winter Games later this month, ran their season record to 12-3 by completely dominating the Fairways.

"You have to give our guys credit", said Floyd Crawford, "they never quit skating or hustling but Peterborough were just too good."

The Belleville coach was high in his praise of the league leaders, "They're getting good goaltending, their defence is out of this world and their forwards are backchecking. We tried everything we could, including going into a defensive shell, but we just couldn't stop them."

The game was a rough affair, particularly in the third period, when a number of fracases broke out.

Ron Jury worked the first, two periods in goal for the Fairways, with Ernie Ireland taking over in the third, but neither were able to contain the powerful Peterborough attack.

Brian O'Coin scored the only Belleville goal, while Tim Yohn played a steady defensive game for the losers.

Names of Peterborough scorers were not available.

Belleville will have a week to recover from their weekend losses before meeting the Kingston Frontenacs next Sunday.

On Her Toes

Belleville Garrison Badminton Club member Pat Hasselfelt leans into an overhand smash while partner Carol Wilson gets ready for the return. Over 60 competitors took part in the Doug Grant Trophy competition at the Belleville Armories Saturday. The event was won by Kingston.

Both Novice Teams Enjoy Clean Slate

Belleville's junior hockey representatives were on target in weekend action winning five and tying two of their eight OMHA contests.

Towers Novices battled to a 9-9 tie with Marmora Saturday as Brian Cook and Drew Stotesbury matched the shutout effort of Marmora's Tommy Lawrence.

Sunday, the Food City crew came up with an 8-1 win over Kingston. Gary Fredericks, Danny Duffy and Bruce McKinney matched two goals apiece for the winners. Other scorers were Pat Willman, and Gary McIntyre.

Mulroney's Novice Minors blanked Peterborough 5-0 Saturday to maintain the novice division's unbeaten weekend record.

In bantam action the Belleville Kinsmen tied Napanee 3-3 in a Sunday afternoon contest. Murphy counted twice for Belleville with Taylor adding the final score.

Maurice Rollins peewees showed the effects of a busy day, dropping a 6-0 decision to Peterborough Sunday night. That afternoon they had downed Kingston 4-3, getting two goals from Bobby Crawford and one each from Mike Bennett and Andy Lupenetie.

The Blake Kerr Imperials took a midget division contest from Kingston Lakeshore with a 3-1 Sunday win. Wally Dainard had a goal and two helpers for the winners with Peter Smyke and Brian Cousins each scoring one.

BCI Wrestler Makes Grade

Over 100 bouts were held in the regional meet in the Junior Olympic wrestling classes.

The 19-year-old Uddenburg will compete in the Ontario Games, held Dec. 27-30, with a chance to qualify for the Canadian Winter Games to be held in Saskatoon.

Kingston Conquers

Kingston Badminton Club walked off with the Doug Grant Trophy as four teams and 60 competitors took part in the action at the Belleville Armories Saturday.

Competitions were held in singles, doubles and mixed doubles with each win contributing a point to the team total.

Trenton was runner-up to the winning Kingston team, while the Belleville Garrison Club and Oshawa also competed.

Ice Broken!

Loyalist Lancers came up with their first win in Ontario Collegiate Athletic Association basketball play by downing Oshawa's Durham College 71-62 in a Saturday afternoon game.

Rick Webster paced the attack by pouring in 34 points for the Lancers, while Blair Culham notched 18.

The Lancers next game will be January 16 when they meet Centennial College of Toronto.

Good Guys Lose

The No-Stars doubled the Good Guys 6-3, while the Hornets stung the Dukes 7-3 in Northern Electric Hockey action Sunday.

Bob Moon had three goals and an assist for the No Stars while Al Walkers added a goal and two helpers. Gord Sine and Marco Mior were the other scorers.

Bob Bailey scored twice in a losing effort, with Les Sager picking up the other score.

Wayne Brown Jr., led the Hornets to their win by firing and Larry Lipscombe adding five goals with Brian Allen the others. Rick Rosebush (2) and Ted Soole counted for the Dukes.

Lamonica Handles This Oakland Miracle...But Blanda Helped!

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

So now Daryle Lamonica is playing the role of Miracle Worker for Oakland's Minutemen, pulling a football game out of the air.

But you'd probably know that the old master, George Blanda, had a hand in it.

Blanda came off the bench in typical fashion to revive listless Oakland with touchdown pass, then Lamonica threw a scoring strike as the last second to give the Raiders an unbelievable 14-13 National Football League victory over New York Jets Sunday.

"God's on our side," said Blanda, 43, football's most famous backup quarterback with a string of single-handed saves this year.

You'd have to believe his pronouncement after Warren Wells latched on to Lamonica's 23-yarder in traffic and carried it in for the winning score.

"I kept sight of the ball all the time," said a joyful Wells. "When I saw that it was going to fall short, I slowed up because I didn't want to let the defenders catch up to it. When I saw that it was tipped, I still kept my eyes on it, although I was losing my balance."

Lamonica threw the bomb, all right, but didn't ask him about it. He didn't have to.

"I can't tell you about it," said Lamonica. "I had company back there."

The victory kept Oakland tied with Kansas City Chiefs, a 16-6 conqueror of Denver Broncos in the American Conference's tight Western Division tangle. Both have 7-3-2 records and will meet next Saturday in a showdown battle.

Other Sunday results did little to settle the other division fights, either.

The National Conference East was thrown wide open when the New York Giants trimmed Buffalo Bills 20-6, Dallas Cowboys crushed Washington Redskins 34-9 and leading St. Louis Cardinals bombed Detroit Lions 16-3. The Cards, 8-3-1, lead that division by a half-game over the Giants and Cowboys, both 8-4.

Los Angeles Rams ripped New Orleans Saints 34-16 and enjoyed even wider San Francisco 49ers, who were 34-28 winners over Atlanta Falcons in the NFC West. Both have 8-3-1 marks.

Baltimore Colts, 9-3-1, stubbornly clutched a 1¼-game margin in the AFC East over Miami Dolphins after slapping Philadelphia Eagles 29-18. Miami, 8-4, outlasted Boston Patriots 27-20.

Cincinnati Bengals, 6-6, won their fifth straight by beating San Diego Chargers 17-14 and pulled into a half-game lead in the AFC Central Division. Pittsburgh Steelers, 5-7, dropped to third after losing to Green Bay Packers 20-12. Cleveland Browns 8-6, the runnerup in that circuit, play Houston Oilers tonight.

Cavalaris Wins By A Nose

TORONTO (CP) — Evestion, a South American bred entry from the Gardner Farms stable, won the $117,685 Yuletide Stakes Handicap at Greenwood race track Saturday as Ontario's 1970 thoroughbred racing season ended before 14,272 fans.

The easy win in 3:48 3-5 over a slow track was only the second Stakes victory for the six-year-old Evestion, trained by Lou Cavalaris of Toronto. The other Stakes win was the Canadian International championship in 1969.

For Cavalaris, the win made him Ontario's leading trainer for the second year in a row with 165 victories, one more than Frank Merrill.

The first prize money of $36,105 increased Gardiner's money earnings for the year to $451,700, best in Canada.

The $1-million handle recorded Saturday marked the first time this year the figure has been reached on the Ontario circuit, but was first of the year at Greenwood.

Officials announced that attendance for the year at all three Ontario tracks was 1,982,657, down from the 1969 total of 1,970,318.

This year's total handle at the tracks was $128,004,243, better than last season's $113,977,789.

Three in Row

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Lavonne Hanover won his third straight Driving Hall title as four-year-old pacer of the year and Dayan was voted four-year-old trotter of the year Saturday in a nationwide poll by the U.S. Trotting Association.

Lavonne Hanover, voted best two-year-old pacer in 1968 and top three-year-old pacer in 1969, and top three-year-old pacer last year, earned 147 of 201 votes.

Dayan, winning 13 of 30 starts for $189,849, easily won the trotting crown, collecting 191 votes of 201.

Nervous Texan Survives

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Big Bill Garrett is a fortunate jockey. Lee Trevino is the leading money winner. And Arnold Palmer still is looking.

"I was so nervous I could hardly walk when I started out," the gangling, drawling Garrett said of his final-round 69 that won the $25,000 first prize in the Coral Springs open golf tournament Sunday.

He hadn't even come close to wining before. His best finish this year had been a tie for 18th. The last in his five-year pro career was a seventh last season. He had won only $8,300 going into this tournament.

But the six-foot-six Texan conquered his nervousness, held off the frustrated Trevino and finished with a 72-hole total of 272, 12-under par on the 6,943-yard Coral Springs Country Club course.

Trevino, tied for the top spot going into the final round, just couldn't get it going, shot a par 71 and tied for third at 274.

But Trevino picked up $7,350 and moved past idle Billy Casper and Jack Nicklaus into the No. 1 money winning spot with $197,326.

Palmer had a 68 for 276.

"If I had made some putts, I'd have been in contention," Palmer said. "I've been immediately filled an entry for this week's Bahama Islands Open, the last event on the schedule this season and Palmer's last chance at keeping alive his record of having won at least one tournament a year since 1955.

Winner's Wiff Homemuik was in contention through three rounds but ballooned to an 80 Sunday and finished with a 286 worth $151. Earlier three Canadians failed to make the cut. Ben Kern and Gary Bowerman, both of Toronto, and Bill Wright Jr., of Edmonton did not have a low enough aggregate after 36 holes Friday.

Bob Murphy, five strokes off the pace going into the final round, charged in with a 65 and took second at 273, one stroke back of Garrett. Rookie Vic Loustalot, with a 66, tied Trevino at 274 and Julius Boros was alone at 275 after a 70.

Garrett, a 30-year-old North Texas State graduate, made his round with a string of three consecutive birdies starting on the third hole, but said a couple of desperately scrambling pars on the first two holes was the key.

Hawley Could Wear Out 'Shoe' Record

TORONTO (CP) — Sandy Hawley, 21-year-old Oshawa jockey, is heading for the Florida racing circuit with only 33 victories needed to surpass Willie Shoemaker's record for most wins in a season.

He left for Florida Sunday where he will ride one winner Christ mas Day at Tropical Park and try to beat the record of 485 wins set in 1953.

With only 22 racing days left in the Florida schedule for this month, Hawley will have to come up with some double-win days against tough competition to eclipse the record.

He closed out Ontario's thoroughbred season Saturday night at Greenwood race track, booting home only one winner—Delex in the first for a $6.90 payoff. However, the victory boosted his season's total to 451.

Looking over his timetable for the Florida meet earlier this week, Hawley was confident he could "overtake Shoemaker and become "the best jockey in North America." Catching Shoemaker is the chief ambition of the lean-jawed jockey who rode his first race in October, 1968, and brought home four winners in a month and a half.

Canadian riding champion of 1969, Hawley was the sensation of the tough Florida circuit last winter, booting home 19 winners in 15 days at Tropical before becoming the leading rider at Hialeah Park and Gulfstream's North America.

Another real wiry at 108 pounds and standing five-foot-one, Hawley rode his 400th winner in early November, becoming only the fourth jockey in North America ever to reach that mark in one season.

Ali Swings, Frazier Sings

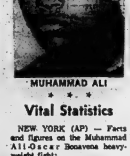
NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali takes another step in his bid for a showdown with heavyweight champion Joe Frazier when he meets tough Oscar Bonavena tonight in his first New York fight since 1967.

Frazier is scheduled to sing tonight with his rock group in the Catskills, hoping his time for the greatest one-night stand in boxing history—a possible $7 million title match with Ali.

Ali is a 6-5 favorite to beat Bonavena, probably the last stumbling block to a fight with Frazier in February.

The scheduled 15-rounder is set for 10:45 p.m. EST and will follow a 10-round non-title bout between lightweight champion Ken Buchanan of Scotland and Donato Paduano of Montreal.

A crowd of about 19,000, paying an estimated $650,000, is expected in Madison Square Garden.



The fight, Ali's second since being deposed as heavyweight king, will be shown on closed-circuit television beamed to 42 foreign countries but will not be broadcast on radio.

The closed-circuit telecasts will be seen at 175 locations in the United States and Canada with a seating capacity of one million.

Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, is guaranteed $300,000 against 45½ per cent of all receipts. Bonavena gets $100,000 against an option of 23½ per cent.

The fight will be Ali's first in New York since March 22, 1967, when he knocked out Zora Folley in a title defense. He then was stripped of his championship because of a conviction for refusing induction into the military service, and went into a 3½-year exile from the ring that ended with his fight with Jerry Quarry six weeks ago.

Ali's conviction, which carried with it a five-year prison sentence, is still pending before the United States supreme court. This is not expected to block a Frazier fight should Ali beat Bonavena.

Vital Statistics

NEW YORK (AP) — Facts and figures on the Muhammad Ali-Oscar Bonavena heavyweight fight:

Date—Monday, Dec. 7.
Place—Madison Square Garden.
Time—10:45 p.m. EST.
Distance—15 rounds.
Television—Closed circuit to 175 locations; and by satellite to 42 countries.
Radio—None.
Crowd—Estimated 19,000.
Ticket prices—$10, $20, $50, $60, $95, $75.
Gate receipts—Estimated $650,000.
Purses—Ali guaranteed $300,000 against 42½ per cent of gate and ancillary receipts; Bonavena guaranteed $100,000 against 23½ per cent of same receipts.
Records—Ali 30-0, 24 knockouts; Bonavena 46-6-1, 33 knockouts.
Scoring—By rounds system; referee and two judges to be announced at fight time.
Special: 10-round non-title fight, also on television—lightweight champion Ken Buchanan, Scotland, 36-1, 12 knockouts, vs. Donato Paduano, Montreal, 21-8, 8 knockouts.

Bonavena is expected to answer a question left unanswered when Ali stopped Quarry on cuts after three rounds in Atlanta.

What about Ali's stamina?

Ali was angered when Bonavena said to him last week: "Why you not in army—you chicken?" He has predicted he will win in nine rounds.

But Bonavena, a ball-strong, brawling type of fighter, went 25 rounds with Frazier, is a numbing puncher and has never been knocked down. Although he lost two decisions with Frazier, the second a 15-rounder, he slugged with the champion and dropped him twice in the first round of the first fight.

Ali, 28 like Bonavena, has been knocked down twice in his 30 pro fights, both times early in his career and both times by left hooks. Sonny Banks dropped him in 1963 and Henry Cooper put him down in 1963. Ali won both fights as he has the 26 others, 24 by knockouts.

Bonavena has scored 32 knockouts in compiling a pro record of 46-6-1. The Argentine has said he will win in 11 rounds.

Ali has likened this fight to a bull fight, with himself as the matador standing back and picking apart the charging Bonavena with left-fire punches. At 6-foot-2, Ali has 6½-inch reach advantage over the 5-11 Bonavena.

But Bonavena does have bull-like strength and a tremendous ability to absorb punishment. These qualities, along with his awkward style, make Bonavena a dangerous opponent.

Dionne Keeps Hawks Happy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Marcel Dionne and St. Catharines Black Hawks kept the home-town fans happy Sunday night.

Dionne scored a goal and three assists to become the most prolific scorer in Ontario Hockey Junior A series history as the Black Hawks tripped the series-leading Peterborough Petes for the first time this season, 7-5.

The victory kept St. Catharines in a two-way tie for third place with Montreal Junior Canadiens, 11-3 victors over Hamilton Red Wings, Ottawa 67's stayed a point in front with a 4-2 win over London Knights, fifth-place Toronto Marlboros hung a 5-4 loss on Kitchener Rangers and Oshawa Generals drubbed Niagara Falls/Flyers 9-2.

Peterborough's come-from-behind effort at St. Catharines was nipped by Dionne's goal into an empty Petes' net with six seconds remaining in the game.

The flashy little centre now has 31 goals and 39 assists this season to lead the league with 61 points. His four-point night give him a career total of 253, two ahead of the mark compiled by Brian Cullen with St. Catharines from 1957 to 1954. Including playoffs, Dionne has 261 points.

Clyde Simon and Bob MacMillan each scored twice for St. Catharines. Bob Pepplar, Mike Bloom and Dionne had singles. The Peterborough marksmen were Paul Raymer with two, Jim Mahon, Ron Lalonde and Doug Gibson.

Richard Martin and Bobby Lalonde sparked the Montreal effort with three goals each. Glenn Grigg, Allan Globensky, Jean Tetreault, Ian Turnbull and Serge Gamelin added singles.

The Hamilton replies came from Rick Kehoe, Tom Williams and Jim Morey.

Brian Barker scored the winning goal for Ottawa in the second period at London, to give the team its fifth consecutive win and its 16th in a row on the road. Paul Sheard, Blake Dunlop and Wayne Merrick got the others.

Reg Thomas and Terry West scored for London.

Ottawa's is the second period, the Mifflies worked their way steadily up the scoreboard until Gavin Kirk fired the winner with two seconds left in the game.

Kirk also scored the tying goal at 6:53 of the third. The rest of the Toronto output came from Bill Harris with two, and Steve Durbano.

Esposito 'Tricks' Penguins, Now Has 22 Goals in 26 Games

Phil Esposito is blessed with the knack for scoring goals, but when Punch Imlach's Buffalo Sabres score just one goal and win, that's blessedness of another kind.

Esposito, Boston Bruins' centre, scored three times Saturday night in a 6-3 National Hockey League victory over Pittsburgh Penguins. It was the third time this season he has notched three goals in one game.

The gangling Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., sharp-shooter now has 22 goals in 26 games for the East Division-leading Bruins. Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks' all-star winger, holds the single-season record of 58, set during the 1968-69 campaign.

At the other end of the division ladder, Ron Anderson slapped in a goal-mouth pass from Phil Govette early in the game and goalie Roger Crozier made it stand as Buffalo nipped Minnesota North Stars 1-0.

It was only the fifth win of the season for the new Buffalo entry—their last was a 7-3 clobbering of the Maple Leafs in Toronto Nov. 18—but it moved them into a sixth-place tie with Toronto in the East when the Leafs were bombed 6-2 by Chicago.

In other Sunday games, St. Louis Blues made it two in a row over Detroit, 4-3 following a 3-0 win at home Saturday and New York Rangers defeated Vancouver Canucks 4-1.

Pittsburgh rapped Vancouver 3-1, Chicago downed Minnesota 4-1, Boston defeated Montreal Canadiens 4-3, New York blanked Toronto 1-0 and Philadelphia Flyers played to a 4-4 tie with Los Angeles Kings in other Saturday night games.

Tuesday night Toronto is at Pittsburgh and New York visits Vancouver.

Crozier's shutout was the first by a Buffalo goalender since the Sabres joined the NHL this year. The diminutive native of Brandenbge, Ont., put on a classic display of netminding to hold the lead while turning aside 34 shots.

At Chicago, Bobby Hull's goal at the nine-second mark overshadowed Pit Martin's fine three-goal effort. The score against Toronto goalie Bruce Gamble missed by two seconds tying a league record for the fastest goal from the start of a game.

The late Charlie Conacher of Maple Leaf Kid Line fame holds the fastest-goal record, set Feb. 8, 1931, in Toronto's 6-0 shutout of Boston at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The victory extended Chicago's unbeaten string at home to 14 games and kept them six points atop the West Division ahead of St. Louis.

The Rangers opened a 4-0 lead before Vancouver's Dale Tallon ruined Gilles Villemure's

Oaks Fall . . . On Orillia!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oakville Oaks upset Orillia Terriers, Ontario Hockey Association Senior A leaders, 8-4 in Oakville Sunday night, but the Oaks still remain in seventh place in the standings.

In other Sunday action, Kingston Aces defeated third-place Barrie Flyers 3-2 and Owen Sound Crescents dumped Woodstock Athletics 6-1.

In Oakville, the Oaks took a 1-0 lead in the opening period and stretched it to 4-2 after 40 minutes.

In Kingston Charlie Convery, defenceman Tom Thurby and Bob Rawson scored for the Aces.

Barrie captain Corby Adams and Dan Patrick replied for the Flyers.

Despite their 15-4 edge in shots in the opening period, the Aces trailed 1-0 but bounced back for a 2-1 lead after 40 minutes.

Kingston outshot Barrie 41-32.

Rivals Struggle For Hughes Empire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Rival factions in the empire of billionaire Howard Hughes are struggling for control of his big stake in Nevada gambling and possibly his entire industrial and financial complex.

Amid reports that Hughes himself has gone to the Bahamas, sheriff's deputies searched his penthouse retreat on the Las Vegas Strip Sunday and reported they found no trace of the mystery man.

The sheriff's department reported that a doctor who treated Hughes Nov. 6 said he was too ill to be moved anywhere except to a hospital.

The doctor said Hughes at that time was suffering from pneumonia, anemia and a heart condition and had received blood transfusions, a sheriff's officer said.

Hughes, 64, disappeared Nov. 25 from the penthouse atop his Desert Inn hotel.

Undersheriff Lloyd Bell, who led a 16-man sweep of the penthouse, said the search was prompted by reports that foul play may have been involved in Hughes's departure.

Though they had no warrant, the deputies searched all but Hughes's locked personal room, before being asked to leave.

"On the basis of what we saw," Bell said, "we have as much reason to believe foul play was involved as that it was not."

He did not say what the officers saw and gave no further explanation.

Reports indicate that control not only of Hughes $300 million Nevada investment but of his entire $2.000 million industrial and financial empire may be at stake in the power struggle that surfaced here last week.

Pitted in the battle are executives of Hughes Tool Co. of Houston, Tex., the family firm on which he built his wealth, and the staff that handled his operations as the major figure in Nevada's legal gaming industry as well as the state's largest land owner and employer.

David Lean Is Movie Perfectionist

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — His three-year-labor over British film-maker David Lean was in a relaxed mood, and he expounded on critics and other hazards of his profession.

Lean has earned the reputation as the most meticulous craftsman among the film directors. He has brought forth but four films in the last 15 years. Ah but what films they have been: Bridge on the River Kwai, Lawrence of Arabia, Doctor Zhivago and now, Ryan's Daughter.

The first two won Oscars as best picture and for best direction and Dr. Zhivago became the sixth biggest money-making film of all time. The fate of Ryan's Daughter cannot be foretold, since it opened in New York and Los Angeles only last month. But long time Lean watchers are predicting another bonanza.

If Lean's films score at the box office, they rarely do with critics. On a visit to MGM studio, the director was smiling bravely over the notices for Ryan's Daughter.

"They were bad," he admitted. "But I always get bad reviews. I have the most gratifying notices on Zhivago—not a single quote which could be used in the ad.

"Lawrence was equally bad. I recall that it opened in New York during a newspaper strike. Bosley Crowther of the New York Times went on the radio to say that the film 'was as devoid of humanity as the desert sands it portrays'."

Do such criticisms hurt

"Of course," replied Lean. "They always have and always will. No one likes to be told that he has made a hash out of his job."

He has his own theory on why the critics are antagonistic:

"They all want my job—or the film writer's job."

But Lean has the resilience to rise over the rasp, and the healing process is aided by the box office performances of his films.

"I must say that MGM has gone on in the face of the Zhivago reviews," he said.

"They poured more money into the advertising budget, and their persistence paid off. The last I heard, Zhivago has brought in $94 million.

The film cost $13 million. Ryan's Daughter, which is a smaller tale, taking place in and around an Irish village of 1916, cost almost $14 million. Such outlays are highly unfashionable in today's movie world, and Lean admits the fact.

"Yet Zhivago did not cost too much in view of what it returned," he argued. "I think the film business is making a mistake in its present economy wave. What people are making nowadays are slightly enlarged television shows.

"That negates everything that films should be. I myself want to go out to the movie theatre to see something that is not merely an over-blown television show. And I suspect that other people do, too."

Lean denied that he insisted on making only spectacles.

"The budget must fit the subject," he said, "I could do a small film, too, if the subjects were right. I made Brief Encounter in 18 weeks with a tiny budget and two relative unknowns—Celia Johnson and Trevor Howard. I could do it again this time in eight weeks."

Donations Shelved

A complete book set on business laws, fundamentals, appraisals, instructions and concepts of real estate was presented Friday to Loyalist College's library by Frank J. Barry, president of the Trenton Real Estate Board (rending) and Frank B. Follwell, president of the Belleville Real Estate Board (kneeling). Receiving the books is Mrs. Carol Vander Kloit, assistant librarian.

Farmers Offered Course

Quinte area farmers in the "middle" income group, grossing less than $7,000 will be given the opportunity early in the new year to take an agricultural course to increase their potential.

The opportunity comes through an eight-week course called "Management of Farm Business" sponsored by Canada Manpower to be operated under the retraining division of Loyalist College.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food will assist with the course development and some of the instruction.

The course will commence on January 25 and will be held Monday to Friday from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. Basic information topics will be covered but emphasis will be on the management of Winning and ANF around 1920. Cde. Ben Feather, with almost fifty years' service. The president and all comrades extend their sincere sympathy to his bereaved family. The Duke of Edinburgh Unit has a well attended memorial service for him Sunday evening.

Other comrades on the sick list are P. McTaggart, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, J. R. Boyle, 627, D. Locke, 625 and F. Lacoltca. Intensive care, no visitors. Resting at home are Al Burns, W. J. O'Brien and F. Cronin.

The Navy game between the RCL and AVAF has been postponed until February in account of the holiday events and other end of the year bugaeg. Next Mr and Mrs. Davis will be on Saturday, Dec. 12th. Members and guests are welcome Saturday afternoon darts will continue every Saturday now the football games are over with lots of fun and many prizes.

ANAF News

Join the bowmie lassies and their bowmy laddies as they head for the Tartan Lounge next Saturday evening at 8.30, Dec. 12. Members of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit Pipe Band will be on hand to welcome you and entertain with music, songs and dancing at their grand ball. It should be an enjoyable and, providing you have returned the books that were sent you, quite a thrill if you are lucky enough to have your name drawn as winner of the beautiful portable color TV set. This event will take place during Intermission and this grand prize would make a wonderful Christmas gift for the family. Bring your gang along for this highlight of the season.

A very important meeting will be held commencing at 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 10. Besides the serious business to be discussed it is also Nomination Night when the comrades are free to nominate the candidates of their choice for the various executive positions. While on the subject of general meetings, here is some advance information on the January meeting. It is hoped that the Dominion President will be on hand for the election and installation of the next executive. While the votes are being counted, between twenty five and thirty faithful members will be presented with their 25-year pins for their continuous membership in the Unit for the past 25 years. The eligible members will shortly be notified by mail. Remember Thursday, Jan. 14 1971.

Turkey rolls will be held every Friday and Saturday from now until Dec. 19. A good chance to get a nice basket of Christmas groceries.

New Year's Eve Ball tickets are going well and members are advised to get them as soon as they will not be reserved for members after Saturday, Dec. 19.

All members harried with deep regret the passing of a grand old member who join-

Dogs Fingered As Stock Killers

Wolves are not prevelant in Sidney Township, cattle are going to the dogs.

With the rash of wolf scares being reported in neighboring Thurlow Township, the wanton killing of animals has spread to Sidney.

But councillors, township employees and those claiming reimbursement emphatically state that dogs are to blame.

Farmer Lloyd Faulkner Tuesday received $188 compensation for a beef steer which had to be disposed of after being attacked by a number of dogs.

Jim Sine, township cattle evaluator, described the damaged animal as having been attacked in a manner unusual for wolves.

A number of roaming dogs have been reported shot and Mr. Faulkner reported neighbors seeing roaming canines.

Reeve Jack Bush requested farmers having damaged animals caused by dog or wolf attack, to contact Jim Sine before anyone else, to immediately establish a compensation case for the owner.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Penicillin Not Cure for Colds

I have a friend who is practically happy. What I mean is that whenever anyone in her family has even a sniffle she gives penicillin capsules or pills. Her doctor also gives shots when, however she asks. She claims that because she uses it at the very first symptom of an infection that her four children have never had any severe sore throats or ear infections. And she and her husband have been free of real attacks of the flu.

Isn't it true that too much penicillin may be harmful? Besides, my own doctor refuses to give it to me for an ordinary cold. — Mrs. D.

Comment: If your friend is superstitious, she'd better cross her fingers and hope nobody in the family comes down with a penicillin reaction. Such disturbances may vary from a "delayed" reaction in which there may be a serious skin eruption to an "immediate" allergic response in which an actual medical emergency arises; sudden intolerance with breathing that may require a tracheotomy to save the patient's life.

Now I am not being overly dramatic. I don't want to frighten people who really need penicillin for some help to fight off bacterial infection. Millions of people have taken penicillin without any reactions whatever. I do doubt doctors use skin tests for penicillin anymore. But there is always the danger of allergic reaction. Especially in people who have become hypersensitive to other substances.

It is for this reason that most doctors refuse to administer or prescribe penicillin for the treatment or prevention of colds. We know that it has no effect on viral infections like colds and the flu. Only, if we suspect bacterial complications on top of the viral trouble do we prescribe penicillin.

Not too many years ago people with colds used to visit their doctor for penicillin "shots." These days you'll have to use a lot of persuasion to convince a good doctor to resort to this "gun" to cure an ordinary cold is the culprit.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: This letter is in response to your 42-year - old reader who wondered whether or not she should have a "nose job."

Nothing has ever brought me greater happiness. Although three other doctors have performed miracles for me, it is the plastic surgeon who performed the rhinoplasty that I admire the most because he gave me the beauty which was more important to me than life itself.

The first miracle - performing doctor revived me after my pulse had gone down to zero during shock after a near - fatal automobile accident.

The second miracle - performing doctor was a cardiologist who saved me during a fight with pulmonary emboli.

The third miracle - performing doctor was a neurosurgeon who put me on my feet. I hadn't walked for four months.

Then you see I am quite enamored by those in the medical profession who possess unbelievable skill. But, most of all, I love the plastic surgeon who gave me the power to love to live with.

However, I hope that you will continue to stress the importance of finding an extremely competent plastic surgeon. If he doesn't have the combined skills of surgery, artistry and godliness, the results could be hard to live with. Please tell your readers whose noses bother them, that one of your readers is most happy with the results of her operation. Thank you. — Mrs. H.

For Mrs. H.: Although it is true that animal dislike may be the reason for "wheezing" in your 8 - year - old daughter, I do not agree that you should get rid of the family dog and cat simply on the advice of a neighbor. Such advice is well - meant, but often sheer guesswork. Why not let your family doctor or an allergist make the decision?

Dual Exhaust System Not Worth Extra Cost

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"My car is equipped with a single exhaust system which is in need of a new muffler and tail pipe.

"Recently, I was told that a dual exhaust system (with lower - noise - and restrictive mufflers) installed on a car that originally was equipped with a single exhaust system, reduces back pressure and, therefore, improves performance and gas mileage.

"Since I do my own work and I buy the parts wholesale, the dual system would cost me about the same as having the single system replaced by a garage at regular list prices.

"Would making this change prove harmful to my 350 CID V-8 engine? If not, would you consider it worthwhile to install a dual system?" — P. C. C., Toronto

Frequently I am asked if switching to a dual exhaust system, or installing a muffler with less than the usual amount of restrictive baffles would increase power and stretch gas mileage.

Perhaps under certain conditions engines would be more efficient with no exhaust systems. An unrestricted pipe used to carry the spent gases to the rear of the vehicle would be efficient, too.

However, to do this would further increase the aggravation of the noise pollution to which we are exposed today. The ear-shattering racket of one or more motor bikes, or the high-pitched bark of some sports cars as they pull away at open throttle is bad enough. But if all vehicles were permitted to roam our roads with unrestricted exhausts, it would be sheer bedlam.

As to the use of less restricted exhaust systems, this also increases the sound effects of the exhaust.

For high - speed competition driving, where every fraction of horsepower is a major consideration, an open exhaust system or dual system is a definite advantage. But for the average driver, it's doubtful there would be any appreciable advantage in switching from a single to a dual exhaust system.

The manufacturers carefully consider the factor of back pressure, and many of their large high-performance engines are fitted with dual exhaust systems at the factory.

If you are not equipped with a single system, you can be sure it is capable of handling the engine's exhaust at wide-open throttle. Therefore, there should be no difficulty coping with today's existing speed limits.

In my garage days, I experimented with dual exhaust systems on my own car. After considerable research and testing, I concluded that, under normal driving conditions it was a waste of time and money.

The initial expense of making the switch, plus increased maintenance costs, runs into a lot of money. Even if there was a slight saving in fuel, it's doubtful that this would cover the extra costs involved.

Here is a suggestion for car buffs who are interested in proving the point for themselves. Find a strip where you can do an acceleration test from zero to any desired top speed using a stop-watch to record your time. Then disconnect the muffler from the exhaust pipe and repeat the test.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Here Are Real Dirty Words

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It's odd and sad that so many people object to "dirty words" of a sexual nature — which can be offensive on some rare but have never been shown to do any actual harm — while they accept and use and honor the most dangerous words of all.

These words are abstract political concepts that can mean whatever you want them to mean — words like "Americanism" and "socialism" and "anarchy" and "liberty" and "fascism" and "peace" and "equality" and "democratic" and "republican" and "extremism" and dozens of others.

If we really wanted to raise the level of public discussion and political morality, we would ban the use of these abstract words for a couple of years — or at least make the users pay a heavy fine if they could not define and defend their usage to general satisfaction.

For these are the words that hurt and kill — more than flame, the public, set off crises and spark wars, rupture confidence in the commonwealth, and prevent clear and honest communication between friends. It may not be true, as semanticists suggest, that our disagreements are largely verbal; but it is true that our bad verbal habits make mutual understanding nearly impossible.

What does a phrase like "free enterprise" mean? Exactly nothing. It is a flag waving combination of two other phrases: "free competition" and "private enterprise."

But many people who are in favor of private enterprise are not really in favor of free competition. They are primarily silent about such manipulations of the market economy as subsidies, cost - plus contracts, monopolies, price-fixing, import-export oil - depletion allowances, and so forth. All "private enterprise" means to them is the right to do whatever they like without government inspection or intervention.

On the left, what does "democratic socialism" mean in Russia? Also exactly nothing. It is an emotional phrase to make the mass of the Soviet system feel that they are "participating" in some noble cause, when in reality the "democracy" is non-existent, and the "socialism" is enjoyed only at the top by a bureaucratic elite.

Hitler also called his regime "democratic," and the actual name of the Nazi party was National Socialist Labor — which ruined the nation, killed the socialists, and turned Germany into a hell. All under the banner of political abstractions.

The true "dirty words" of humanity have nothing to do with sex. They have to do with abstract ideals that are semantically perverted by the political propagandists — who are next to the Senate, not to jail.

MON DEC 7na
HOROSCOPE

For December 8

Your birthday today: . The year ahead is an interesting, often exciting transition period to more profound self-expression, with many experiments. Your present program will need several revisions before you get settled, sometime in the middle of next year. Your views of life change with experience. Self-improvement comes from your inner drive. Today's natives have depths of personality which are seldom well-cultivated.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Do things in style today, taking nothing for granted. Decisions made now are certain to require revision, perhaps reversal later. Enjoy social contacts.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You persuade people more effectively by a soft-sell approach. An old arrangement fails, to be replaced eventually by a system that works better and brings you higher earnings.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your life is full of sound and opinion — relieving pent-up feelings and releasing ideas to see if they work. Most of them don't really. Common sense prevails, finally.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Concentrate on routines today, perhaps to take some other task tomorrow. Ride along, taking for granted that nothing is going to remain as it now seems.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Listen to another's side to any story heard now. Use your own theories, but do more listening than explaining. You will be glad that you followed a conservative course.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Think in terms of temporary arrangements. Any definite arrangements here are not likely to stand up under changes tomorrow. Nothing related to safety can be neglected now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Instead of carrying the initiative, let the other fellow, whether competitor or partner, brew matters to you. Avoid specials like movies, permanent promises.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Concentrate on routines which are well set. Interesting discoveries abound in stories told by people claiming to have all the answers. Check the facts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Take interruptions in stride. Your work today is apt to end in some way you hadn't anticipated. Resolve to clarify certain misunderstandings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): For a change, let others do the organizing; keep yourself off the list of critics, too. Then you minimize responsibility for things you wouldn't like. Make this a light, nonserious day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Look for defects in long established theories, customs. Realize there's no immediate solution to anything except your own personal affairs.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You easily blunder into saying the wrong thing today, so just mark time. Find the weak spots in your schemes, and give yourself overnight to come up with revisions.

Premier Robert Bourassa said Sunday.

Speaking at a joint news conference with Premier John Roberts after breakfast with about 150 Ontario business representatives, Mr. Bourassa said:

"We had some fruitful discussions on our policy of making French the working language in Quebec.

"The businessmen asked questions on this policy we are following and I gave some answers."

The answers, he said, were received sympathetically.

Mr. Bourassa's policy has been to encourage the use of French as a working language, but if that fails, he has said the government could resort to "other means."

Mr Robarts described as "very useful" the two-hour breakfast meeting initiated by the Quebec Chambre de Commerce and a committee of businessmen from London Ont.

"This gathering was not intended to reach decisions in any particular domain," he said. "It was an exchange of information." Mr. Robarts said Ontario is not competing with Quebec for new industries, but does try to show prospects the greater advantages of locating in Ontario.

Mr. Bourassa said the gathering's discussions could result in new investments, but he did not elaborate.

Robarts Resigns Post as Premier

Retirement Effective When Leader Picked

TORONTO (CP) — John Robarts, 53, today announced his resignation as Conservative premier of Ontario, one of the most powerful political positions in Canada and one he has held for nine years. The resignation is effective at a leadership convention to be called later.

Mr. Robarts told a morning news conference:

"It is my intention to remain as leader of the government of Ontario until a new leader is prepared to assume government leadership.

"I intend to retain my seat as member of the legislature for the riding of London North for the time being. However, I do not plan to contest the next provincial election.

"I wish to announce that I have asked Mr. Allan Eagleson, president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Ontario, to proceed with the arrangements necessary for the calling of a leadership convention at as early a date as can conveniently be done."

First announced candidate in the field is expected to be Mines Minister Allan Lawrence, 45, who scheduled a news conference for later in the day.

But the leading candidate in what is expected to be a field of at least seven candidates will be William Davis, 41, minister of education—the post from which Mr. Roberts launched his own leadership campaign to succeed Leslie Frost in 1961.

Mr. Davis is one of four younger members of the cabinet thought to have an edge in the leadership race. The others are Mines Minister Lawrence; Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough, 37, and Provincial Secretary Robert Welch, 42.

Also mentioned as potential leadership candidates are Health Minister Thomas Wells, 42; Energy Minister George Kerr, 46, and Bert Lawrence, 47, minister of financial and commercial affairs.

At stake is one of the most powerful political positions in Canada. Mr. Roberts has been considered perhaps the most influential of the provincial leaders. He was the fourth Conservative premier since the party started its 37-year reign.

He is head of the party which has been in power since 1943 in Canada's richest province, the province of Ontario packs a big wallop in dealing with Ottawa and the other provinces.

That position of influence has led observers to believe that Mr. Roberts could have any post he wished in the federal Progressive Conservative party, but exchange leadership with Robert Stanfield were to step down.

Mr Roberts told reporters:

"It has not been easy for me to arrive at this decision. I have spent many months considering all the implications which are involved.

"I recognize that these are not easy times in the political life of Ontario and of our country.

"However, after having served the people of Ontario for some 19 years, nearly half of them as prime minister of the province and leader of the Progressive Conservative party of Ontario, I have concluded that the time has come for me to pass the mandate to someone else in our party.

"To those who may wonder, as inevitably some people must, why I have chosen this particular time to step down, I can only say that my own personal political philosophy leads me to believe that in the very fast-moving times in which we live government policies and actions need to be continuously reviewed, revised and rethought."

Separate School Vote Rejects Present Board

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The Belleville separate school vote in Monday's election was a negative one — directed against the incumbent trustees of the 1969-70 board.

But ratepayers who went to the polls, and they comprised only 40 per cent of those eligible, seemed to cast their votes aimlessly — avoiding a clear-cut majority of pro-Allore trustees on the new board.

The suspension of separate school superintendent F. H. Allore last May 8 blew up into an election issue — accelerated in the last few days of the campaign by an "information meeting" called Dec. 2 by trustees.

"Chalk it up to the Allore situation," commented Zdenek Kvarda, the newcomer to board elections who ran second in the city behind Magr. James Sullivan.

Mr. Kvarda's pleasure over his election was tempered by his disappointment at "lack of continuity" among trustees.

"I didn't want to see a clean sweep," he added.

Mrs. Douglas Boyle, a spokesman for the Belleville ratepayers group seeking Mr. Allore's re-instatement, said she was very pleased to have a new slate of trustees from the city.

"I think this new board will work with Mr. Allore she said. "There is one step to go yet — to see that Mr. Allore is re-instated. I think this board might do it."

But the voters didn't cast a straight pro-Allore ballot.

They voted out all present Belleville incumbents, except Magr. Sullivan, and cast off with the others Robert Lacy, the only trustee who consistently supported and voted in favor of Mr. Allore.

Only one new candidate who could be assumed to belong to a pro-Allore faction was voted into office. He is Joseph Chapelle, who earlier in the fall was a spokesman for the Belleville ratepayers group formed to seek Mr. Allore's re-instatement.

Magr. Sullivan, although he abstained from voting in the caucus meeting that resulted in the superintendent's suspension, has since made and withdrawn a motion calling for re-instatement.

The remaining trustees, Mr. Kvarda, John Granville and Paul Fleming say they are not aligned with any group.

In the rest of the county the Allore situation flared up as an issue in two wards—Trenton and the Sidney north to Marmora area. Trenton ratepayers endorsed board policies by returning trustees Ben Krause and Austin Scott and defeating incumbent trustee William Menzies who said before the election he would not have supported the suspension if he had had infor-

Wages, Prices Review Urged

"No thanks! We're just looking!"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, says the U.S. government might have to use compulsory arbitration and a wage - price review board to battle inflation.

In the most far-reaching list of anti-inflation proposals by a government official in the Nixon administration, Burns suggested Monday night in Los Angeles that changes in minimum wage laws for teen-agers and more liberal oil import quotas.

U.S. Rail Strike Said Sure

WASHINGTON (AP) — A country-wide railway strike Thursday appeared inevitable after negotiations collapsed early today. A union leader said the walkout will be called even if Congress grants President Nixon's request for a 60-day delay.

"We must strike," said President C. L. Dennis of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, largest of four AFL-CIO unions representing nearly 200,000 workers in the wage dispute.

Dennis said his union is ready to risk jail terms, fines and public pressure to win its demands.

Dennis spoke after a late-night bargaining session called by the labor department failed to produce an agreement or a voluntary postponement.

Nixon, in asking Congress to order a postponement, said a strike would impose a hardship on the American people.

He said if Congress orders an extension of bargaining time and no settlement is reached by Dec. 22, he will make new recommendations to Congress.

Canadian Women Are Told What's Wrong with Their World

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on the status of women, in its long-awaited report, tells Canadian women they have come a long way, but still have a long way to go.

The report was tabled in the Commons Monday.

The one-volume report documents what Canadian women told the seven-member commission is wrong with their world —dead-end jobs, economic subservience, blatant discrimination in employment standards and a lack of freedom to control their destinies.

The commission, with the exception of one of its two male members, presents 167 recommendations and a follow-up plan that includes implementation committees, a human rights commission and a national status of women council.

In the Commons Prime Minister Trudeau would not say when the government will make its first statement on the report. He said the cabinet has had it only since Thursday and is studying it. Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway), the only woman House member, asked specifically about recommendations concerning day-care centres and abortion.

The report recommends abortion on demand for any woman pregnant 12 weeks or less or more than 12 weeks if competent continuation of the pregnancy would endanger her physical or mental health or produce a handicapped child.

It advocates sterilization for birth-control reasons, family life education for co-educational classes starting in kindergarten and availability of birth control information for all.

The commission favors restricting marriage to persons aged at least 18 years, but suggests relaxing divorce legislation so a husband and wife separated for one year may obtain a divorce on the basis of marriage breakdown. Legislation now requires a three-year separation.

The report is based on four principles: women should be free to choose whether or not to work outside the home; the care of children is a shared responsibility of the mother, father and society; special treatment related to maternity always will be necessary; in certain areas women for an interim period will need special treatment to overcome the adverse effects of discrimination.

Prof. Humphrey rejected the fourth principle and dissociated himself from the entire report. In a minority report he called the plan an insult to women who could succeed under their own steam.

Specifically he objected to recommendations that women be appointed to fill Senate vacancies until a more balanced membership is achieved and that the public service promote womenpower as an example to industry.

The report debunks the theory that behind the scenes women control the economy, with a crisp: "We found no support for such claims."

For Other Stories On Report See Pages 7, 8, 10 and 19

Main Recommendations

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the reports of the royal commission on the status of women tabled Monday in the Commons:

Abortion on demand for any women pregnant for 12 weeks or less.

A network of day-care centres.

Sterilization on demand for birth-control reasons.

Availability of birth-control information to all.

Restriction of marriage to persons aged at least 18 years.

Liberalization of divorce legislation to permit divorce after one year's separation.

A guaranteed annual income in the form of payments to families with dependent children.

The right of an employed woman to 18 weeks of maternity leave with some unemployment insurance benefits.

A taxable cash allowance of about $300 a year for each child under 16 years of age for the mother from the federal government.

"They're formed a Women's Liberation group, sire!"

Report Out-dated?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The woman who began the moves that led to a royal commission on the status of women said Monday the women's liberation movement "has way outstripped us."

Laura Sabia, a broadcaster and former St. Catharines, Ont., alderman who demanded the commission in 1965, said: "Three years have gone by, and I think the whole report is outdated, is too late."

A women's lib representative in Toronto seemed to agree:

"I didn't expect much from it and the money (an estimated $1.9 million) could have been spent much better," said Bonnie Kreps, a television producer and member of Toronto's New Feminists.

Muriel Duckworth, president of the Canadian Voice of Women, said in Halifax abortion procedures should be speeded up.

"If you have to wait 10 months for an abortion it's not very useful."

And Mrs. Sabia approved the commission's abortion stand.

"I don't think it should be in the Criminal Code at all, we're only catering to the Roman Catholics, and I'm one myself, so I can say so."

Area Municipal Heads To Discuss Jail Costs

Representatives of five municipalities in the Quinte district will meet with Attorney General A. A. Wishart in Toronto on Dec. 17 to discuss costs of transporting prisoners to and from the new regional jail at Napanee.

Transportation of prisoners to the new regional jail have been a cause of considerable concern in municipalities, the claim being that in some instances first year transportation costs could exceed as much as present day jail costs.

All municipalities in the area have protested to the attorney general.

In a letter to the town of Trenton, a copy of which has been forwarded to Belleville, Mr. Wishart notes that organized municipalities in the north have had to assume prisoner transportation costs often through distances have been extensive compared to those in Southern Ontario.

However, Mr. Wishart said transportation of prisoners to and from institutions is one that concerns every municipality and for this reason his department was giving the matter consideration.

Clerk Adds Industrial Waste Duty

City Clerk Adam Stalker has a new position at city hall today following passing of an industrial waste bylaw by council yesterday.

In addition to his regular duties Mr. Stalker will take on the position as municipal law enforcement officer with duties of enforcing the bylaw respecting dumping of industrial wastes.

City Solicitor John C. Millar said the bylaw was important in that it was necessary before offenders could be brought to court.

Complaints of dumping of industrial wastes into the river or bay will be channelled through Mr. Stalker who will investigate and consider, laying of charges.

The new city bylaw will need approval of the provincial pollution commission before it becomes effective.

Where Are Our Chimney Sweeps?

Why aren't there any chimney sweepers in the Belleville-Trenton area?

That is what a newcomer to the Bayside area who has been accustomed to European practices would like to know.

Mrs. R. Corcoran, whose husband is with the armed forces, says that in many countries abroad, also in parts of Quebec, having your chimney swept down regularly is both a municipal and insurance company requirement.

But, not to in Ontario.

City Fire Chief Leo Culhane says he knows of no municipality - where regular sweeping of chimneys is a requirement.

The use of oil and gas as heating fuels, rather than wood isn't coal, has largely done away with the necessity of sweeping chimneys, although Chief Culhane says he wonders there were a few chimney sweeps still around.

He notes that 30 or more years ago there were men in the area who offered chimney sweeping service.

But Mrs. Corcoran feels that regular sweeping of chimneys could have a benefit aside from being a fire prevention.

She feels that cleaner chimneys might result in more complete combustion of fuel and thus help to reduce air pollution.

Public Board Returned

Tiny Turnout in Ho-hum Vote

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Hastings County board of education has been returned unchanged for the next two-year term.

But in Belleville, which names five of the 14 elected board members last night's election aroused not so much on the candidates, as the voters—and their absence.

In what is believed the lightest local franchises response on city record, perhaps 10 per cent of the 15,668 eligible public school electorate in the county's major urban centre cold-shouldered the vote.

And most of those who cast ballots are believed from old - age groups — 40 years and over, city clerk and chief returning officer Adam Stalker reported last night.

There was no single clear-cut reason offered for the absence of most of the city's public school voters.

Everett Fairman, the trustee who headed the ballot for the second straight term admitted disappointment with the poor turnout which he termed difficult to understand.

Mayor Russell Scott said the ballot showed the electorate were "well satisfied" with the over - all education picture in the province.

By contrast, voting in the rural wards, where local elections were also run in many municipalities, showed reverse favorable trends. At least, votes netted by public school candidates seeking re-election showed higher turnouts over the 1969 ballots.

This is how the public school vote went across the county, with returned candidates in precedence by votes and their 1969 votes in brackets:

Belleville (five to be elected): Everett Fairman, 1,096 (2,546); Macdonald Smith, 907 (2,143); Miriam Graham, 912 (2,041); Gordon Garlen, 879 (1,877); Nelson McKibbon, 767 (1,675); Lawrence A. Kells, 611; Hec Reid, 583 (530).

Ward 1 (Maynooth, Bangor, Wicklow, McClure, Herschel, Monteagle, Carlow, Dungannon, Mayo — one to be elected): Emerson Robinson, 871 (acc.); Ryell Sayler,' 47.

Ward 3 (Marmora, Madoc, Deloro, Elsevir, Grimsthorpe, Rawdon, Marmora-Lake — one to elect): James Spry 121.393 (1,086); Gordon Bennett, 775.

Ward 4(Tweed, Hungerford, Huntingdon, Dungannon, Tyendinaga) — one to elect: Laurison Gunning 1198 (1-119); Thelma Pratt 1005 (977); S. C. Geneja 251 (250).

Ward 6 (Frankford, Stirling, — two to elect): Raymond Rowe, 1,456 (981); Donald Williams 1,439 (842); Frank Folwell, 1,309.

Earlier acclamations: Trenton, Mrs. Jean Hutchison, Ralph Weaver Ward 5 (Thurlow) — Milford Waller, Ward 3 (Bancroft, Faraday, Wollaston, Limerick, Cashel) — John Follis.

Losers in the Belleville vote were Lawrence Kells, recently retired after a career in education that culminated as a board superintendent, and Ronald Lee, an industrial safety instructor, who made his second unsuccessful bid for school trustee.

In one west city poll there were 171 eligible public school voters listed. In the east shore poll with 215 voters, 14 cast ballots. In the north end of Belleville one poll had 176 eligibles. No one voted.

In a central poll Mr. Fairman drew 39 votes — and headed the ballot.

Lone woman, a returning officer for 30 years in her west-end neighborhood, said she'd never seen such a small turnout.

"It said 400 voters on my survey sheet (of election material) — and I had 54 voters."

"It is hard to believe that there was such a small turnout," said Mr. Fairman whose 1,096 votes headed the polls but represented only little more than seven per cent of the eligible electorate, particularly when the school board deals with an $18-million budget. I just don't understand it."

In the two years since its inception under the county education act, the board has spent meeting after meeting unravelling "ticklish" questions in its formative period.

"You would think the people would be more interested in — one of the more important spending issues of the day."

Mayor Scott said the Belleville electoral response somewhat people were confused with modern educational trends.

"Confused is the word, rather than disinterested," said the mayor.

He said it was significant that younger people — representing growing families — didn't vote.

The polls showed the majority of the vote was cast by older citizens who would be interested in money issues.

But for many people, said the mayor, education has become too complicated to easily understand.

"I think the people are just confused and fed up and I think they've just washed their hands of it," said Mayor Scott.

Board Chairman James Clarke said he was "just amazed" at the turnout, particularly in view of the discussion that has centred and appeared concern for education in recent times.

"When you think that half of our tax money is spent on education, I can't see why people don't turn out."

The polling showed either the board was doing a good job or that it wasn't interested.

"I'd like to think it's the former, but I'm afraid it's the latter," said Mr. Clarke. "I just think they're just not interested — complete apathy."

The city hall council chambers where, by long convention by tradition, poll results are posted throughout the election-night count, reflected the general tone of the event.

Such occasions are shared by curious onlookers and serious candidates, invariably ending in broadside speeches.

Last night the chamber was barred of the public as the board candidates during the two hours it took to reach the final vote count.

Incumbents Returned, Liquor Is Approved

AMELIASBURG (Special)—A turnout at the polls of more than 40 per cent of possible voters returned incumbent Norman Yeo as deputy-reeve here for two years last night.

His opponent, outgoing councillor Lyle Vandervoort, was almost as popular with municipal electors.

When ballots were counted there was only a difference of 60 voters — Post, 589, Vandervoort 529.

For the first time in township history the electorate approved the sale of liquor in dining lounges and bars.

The vote was: Dining lounges 76 (yes), 30 (no) — a 65 per cent approval vote. Cocktail bars — 702 (yes), 429 (no) — 62 per cent approval. Ontario liquor laws require a consent of 60 per cent of the voters).

Voters showed their confidence in the incumbent members running for Prince Edward County board of education.

Returned were, Harmon Montgomery, 346; George Flower, 704; Jerald Anderson, 621.

Loser Seymour Hamilton received 279 votes.

Of the four candidates running for three council vacancies, Councillor Arnold Weatherall led with 770, followed by Bishop, councillor Roger Farmer, 750 and newcomer Donald Southorn, 719.

Jack Fraser, seeking election for the first time was unsuccessful with 267 votes.

There was a total eligible vote for council and school-board of 2,736.

Many Changes Seen In 40 Years with City

City public works operations have come a long way in the past 40 years.

Just ask William Dix, city construction safety inspector and trench inspector, who is retiring as works employee after four decades with the city.

"When I joined the city works department 40 years ago, public works owned only two trucks — a small stake pickup and a Reo platform truck for hauling road materials," said Mr. Dix.

At that time the city had no dump truck and the materials had to be shovelled by hand.

Mr. Dix started with the city as a machine operator and with time out for overseas service in the last war, served as works foreman for about 15 years before assuming his present position.

Mr. Dix started with the city under the then city engineer the late Charles Mott.

He also served under former works superintendent Clifford Matthews, former city engineer Malcolm Turnbull and under present city engineer Wilbur Purcell.

WILLIAM DIX

Officially Mr. Dix does not retire until just after the new year, but with holidays and leave benefits, his last day on the job will be Friday.

During World War II Mr. Dix served with the RCEME at workshop detachment. And so important is tank and armored vehicle repair to the modern army that repair units followed right up behind the front lines.

Mr. Dix was with the Canadians during the Sicilian invasion and was later wounded in Italy.

This morning in the city hall council chambers, works workers honored Mr. Dix with the presentation of a rocker-recliner chair.

Also retiring recently from the city works department was Ed Fraser, mechanic with 11 years service.

Lewis' Levels With Business

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, told businessmen Monday the NDP will "likely win power in Ontario" soon and "it will then be necessary . . . to deal with each other in a direct and no-nonsense fashion."

But there is no reason for business to fear a social democratic government, Mr. Lewis said in a speech to the Canadian Club.

He assured his audience that "I have distinct and healthy questions about nationalism as a tool on its own," even though there are times when "the state must take an initiative for the sake of a demonstrated public interest."

Mr. Lewis, rejecting proposals for the use of Canadian tax funds to buy back Canadian industry from American owners, said no NDP government is likely to squander "the scarce capital resources of this province to buy up a lot of old iron in the name of nationalization."

IN MEMORIAM

WANNAMAKER — In loving memory of "Ted" Wannamaker, who passed away December 8th, 1969.
Life wouldn't be so empty today,
Had you not been so dear.
For the love you gave was true,
If you could just be here,
To see the flowers on my tribute,
We've planted in your memory,
And grieve that death forever stilled,
Your understanding heart.
Sadly missed by daughter and sister-in-law Dorothy.

ATTLEWORTH — In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister, Mary E. Attlewerth who passed away Dec. 8, 1959.
Sweet memories are ours today,
We watched your fade away,
Our hearts were almost broken,
When you had to leave us,
But we'll meet you some morning,
Where partings are no more.
Sadly missed by mother, sister and brother Edwin.

Bureaucrat Becomes Politician

DESERONTO (Staff) — A veteran municipal civil servant of this town is back in local government — as an elected representative.

Joe Reynolds, who retired earlier this year after 12 years as town clerk, last night headed the polls in an election bid for council.

Mr. Reynolds gained 317 votes, followed by councillor Ted Vanderveer Delmer Wannamaker, with 169.

Losers were James McVicker, 137, Jack Mitchell, 122, and Russell Goodacre, 92.

For the town's public utilities commission Merton Cunningd, 304 votes, defeated Arthur Hunter, 134.

REAL ESTATE

ARE YOU WAITING FOR PRICES AND INTEREST TO GO DOWN?

DO SOMETHING ABOUT YOUR HOUSE

The increase in house prices over the last 10 years has ranged from 20 to over 100 percent, depending on the area — simple proof that your personal real estate is a reliable safeguard against inflation.

While these home owners enjoyed their property with its privacy and comfort and prestige, their investment steadily increased in value as the years went by.

What if they had rented instead?

Well, by calculation in collecting rent receipts, they could have sharpened up their high school mathematics by figuring the percentage of rent increases as each lease was renewed.

Naturally, as the landlord's property rose in price, the landlord raised the price of his rent to correspond.

There is a vital lesson in the last 10 years for families who are face with a decision whether to buy or rent an apartment until things settle down.

The same decision rule may day a think and price may level off for a time — until they are both almost certain to rise again together. Just about every economist forecasts that.

In future years, the house you get of, buying now will have a higher value as well as its bed if you had bought it, you would be in the landlord's position.

Which would you prefer?

Cottages Robbed

PICTON (Staff) — More than $300 worth of home furnishings were discovered missing from two Roblin Lake cottages last weekend.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said today that several pieces of furniture including a bed - chesterfield, lamps and a living room chair were removed from a cottage owned by Ronald Smith, Belleville. A portable television set also was reported missing from a cottage owned by Dr. E. L. Dixon, Belleville.

Police investigation is continuing.

Three men from the Picton, Crofton and Cobourg areas have been charged in connection with the theft of records and clothing valued at $150 taken from the RR 1, Consecon residence of Ernest Elmy. Police reported that most of the goods taken have been recovered.

Working Years Total 97

Partners at the euchre table were partners in retirement from International Hardware Company last night. Well-wishers and friends attended the yard party, with certificates, gifts and cheques presented.

Obituaries

ROBERT J. HOLLAND

The funeral of Robert J. Holland was held Monday morning from the O'Brien Funeral Residence to St. Joseph's Church for mass conducted by Rt. Rev. J. A. Carley, who also said prayers at the graveside in St. James Cemetery.

There was a large turnout for the funeral with many beautiful floral tributes.

Bearers were Frank Boyle, Thomas Murphy, Percy Callahan, Gerald Carlisle, Bruce Keegan and Robert Cretney.

EVELYN (KIT) BELLIS

Funeral service for Miss Evelyn (Kit) Bellis, 5 Centre Street, was held yesterday at the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

The service was conducted by Salvation Army Capt. T. Gurney and interment was in Elmwood Cemetery.

Bearers were Jerry Clement, Anthony Ritch, John Morris, Bruce Shaddick, Jack Mowery, Harry Cole.

BEN FEATHER

The funeral of Ben Feather was held yesterday from St. Thomas' Anglican Church.

Service was directed by Rev. Peter Tett and interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

Bearers were Raymond Bennett, William McGee, Charles Demorest, Harry Taylor, John Szczerba, Mel Bertrand.

Sunday a combined service was held in the Thompson Funeral Chapel by the Canadian Legion and the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association. It was directed by Bram Humphries as chaplain, assisted by Richard Burns and Tom Pardey.

BGH Continues to Pay For Garbage Collection

Belleville General Hospital will continue to pay the normal rate for garbage collection despite a request to city council that the charge be waived.

Monday council voted to take no action on the hospital request.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said that giving the hospital free garbage collection would establish a precedent and other institutions such as schools and churches could expect the same consideration.

"More is involved than just this one instance," he said.

Alderman Enos David said the garbage collection charge was a "logical" charge to the institution and was quite in order.

Alderman Gerald Joyce took the same view noting that the Belleville hospital was a regional institution and granting free garbage collection would not be fair to Belleville residents.

Invitation Extended

Belleville residents wishing appointment to various city boards or commissions have been asked to get in touch with city hall.

The invitation was extended by Mayor J. Russell Scott at Monday's council when he announced council would hold a caucus meeting next Monday to consider appointments to be ratified at the first meeting in the new year.

In extending the invitation for submission of names for next year's appointments, Mayor Scott expressed his appreciation to those whose terms of office would be up at the end of this year.

Kettles Out For Christmas

A familiar Christmas street sound will set the air tingling in Belleville today.

It's the jingling bells of the Salvation Army Christmas kettle fund.

The Army will set up its kettle on Front Street for the next two weekends, gathering funds for work that goes on long after Christmas is over. Social aid programs run at a peak at Christmastime and the Salvation Army is a member of the new Christmas Sharing Program involving other Belleville Community agencies.

But demands on the Army's relief resources are not defined by any one period, notes Capt. E. T. Gurney.

The entire winter sees a step-up in requests for aid.

"We get quite a few calls during the months," says Capt. Gurney. "People get in a bind where they need help quickly. We're in a position to do that."

In past years sidewalk kettle collections have brought in some $1,500 - $1,700 he estimates. Philanthropic subscriptions through the malls often match that amount.

Strong Members Alternative To Lack of Bodies on Board

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville will reluctantly accept the decision of Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough limiting the city to six members on the proposed 24-member Quinte Area Planning Board.

This was decided by council members yesterday as members turned down a recommendation by Ald. Jean Smith that the city continue its fight to secure more representation on the area planning board.

The city earlier objected to its representation on the proposed planning area board and Mr. McKeough indicated that he would approve of the city having eight members.

But other municipalities didn't go along with the proposal and the minister, in a late November letter, indicated that unless he received convincing argument to the contrary he would establish the area along constitutional arrangements dated last August.

Under those arrangements, Belleville with 33,000 population, would have six members on the board; Trenton with 14,000 would have three, and the other municipalities, Brighton, Murray, Stirling and the townships of Brighton, Murray, Sidney and Thurlow, two each.

Sidney as the designated area would have one additional member.

Ald. Smith noted yesterday that the city, with 45 per cent of the population of the entire area, would have but six members on the board while Mayor J. Russell Scott said the city in requesting additional representation, was asking only what was fair.

But Ald. Donald Soutter felt little could be gained through carrying objection any further and moved that the city accept the minister's ruling.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey said the decision had been made by the other municipalities and the only thing the city could do was to make certain it had strong representation on the area planning board.

She said the city was hampered by the same lack of representation on the Moira River Conservation Authority but that Belleville was now receiving co-operation from other members on the authority.

The alderman expected the same co-operation would be received by the city from other members on the area planning board provided "strong fighters for our rights" were appointed by Belleville.

The city may not have gained its wish for more representation on the planning area board, but it will have a bigger voice in the Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit.

Ald. Enos David said that at the city's request, the health unit board at its last meeting had voted unanimously to allow the city three members on the board instead of the current two.

Water Service Raises Annexation Question

Despite an effort by Ald. Arthur Keegan to make approval conditional on an agreement not to oppose annexation, city council yesterday voted to provide an Avonlough Road resident with city water — with no strings attached.

The request was from Stephen Wells from Sidney township, who asked permission to tap into a privately - owned watermain running north along his property to the former Kaiser farm.

Mr. Watts said he was completing a new house on the street and claimed drilling of a well was impossible.

Ald. Keegan moved that the request for water be granted conditional on Sidney township not opposing annexation in the area.

He claimed that if the Avonlough Road area was to be serviced it should be in the city.

But Aldermen Donald Soutter and Paul Russell didn't feel that approval of water service for a single township resident should be tied in any way as serious a matter as annexation.

Mayor Scott said that with the formation of the new area water board the city had no power to prevent it using one. It should be a water board decision, he claimed. But on the other hand, a board decision could put Mr. Watts' requested water service years away.

The alternative for the sake of humanity was for the city to allow the water connection.

The motion to approve the water service was carried by a strong majority but under notice of motion, alderman Keegan indicated he would still gain his point on annexation.

Late Permit Helps

Thanks to a belated permit for the construction of the new secondary treatment plant and primary stage addition to the city's sewage plant in Foster Ward, November was another good building month.

The month's building total was $2,313,900 — including $1,342,000 for the sewage plant addition.

Other construction permits for the month included 65 multiple family housing units and two single family residences.

The new sewage plant addition in the city's south end started early last spring is being built by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

The alderman introduced a notice of motion calling for annexation to the city of certain lands in Sidney and Thurlow township.

The motion asks that the area for annexation be determined by a planning committee to be appointed by the mayor.

Trenton Industry Courtesy Belleville

Co-operation between municipalities is a fine thing but one hardly expects this good will to extend as far as getting industry for a neighboring town.

But that is exactly what has happened between Belleville and Trenton.

At Monday's council meeting Ald. Gerald Joyce, as chairman of the city industrial committee, said the city industrial commissioner had been successful in getting a small plant to come to this area.

The firm is a carpet manufacturing plant which will employ about 15 persons and is locating in the Quinte area because Constellation Canada Company is located in Belleville.

But a suitable building was not immediately available in Belleville so arrangements were made for rental of accommodation at the former Trenton Dye Works premises.

ID Cards For Elderly

Belleville's senior citizens are to be issued identity cards to enable them to ride at a reduced rate on city buses.

Under the reduced rate, senior citizens 65 years and over will ride for 15 cents cash fare or eight tickets for $1.

To assure that the senior citizens take good care of their identity cards, a charge of 25 cents will be made for the cards.

Application must be made to city hall for the cards.

Noise Complaints Already

With the arrival of the first snow of the season, the snow-removal ban is in force and complaints of noise have already reached city council.

Monday several Trenton members said they had been telephoned by irate citizens complaining of snowmobiles being used on city sidewalks and also of noise lasting until past midnight.

But there soon could be restrictions to curb the enthusiasm of snowmobile owners.

The city parks board is considering a bylaw governing use of snowmobiles on city park property.

And Alderman Arthur Keegan, as chairman of the traffic committee, said the use of the machines on city streets would be on the agenda at the next traffic committee meeting.

DECEMBER BUS SERVICE

The East Hill Plaza bus and the West Hill-Hillcrest bus will operate on Wednesday afternoons, December 9, 16, 23, 30.

All bus service in the City will cease at 7:45 p.m. on Christmas Eve, December 24, 1970.

There will be no bus service on Christmas Day, Boxing Day (December 26) or New Year's Day.

There will be normal bus service on New Year's Eve.

The Transit Commission and its Employees wish to take this opportunity to wish their Patrons a Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

BELLEVILLE TRANSIT COMMISSION

Hastings Manor Getting Crowded

Belleville early next year will have to consider the need for more accommodation for city residents at the county home level.

This was indicated to council-yesterday by Mayor J. Russell Scott, who said that there was a long waiting list for accommodation of city residents at the Hastings Manor just west of Belleville.

Under the terms of the existing agreement with the county, the city has 74 beds at Hastings Manor but currently 91 city old people are in residence at the home.

To meet the growing need the mayor said plans should be commenced immediately for construction of a further addition at Hastings Manor, or even possibly for the city taking over the entire manor.

But Ald. Donald Soutter said Ontario Housing Corporation was now considering senior citizens' homes with provision of nursing and eating facilities.

He suggested this new development should be fully investigated before any decision was made regarding enlargement of county home facilities.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey took the same view.

She said the provincial department would not approve of any further additions to Hastings Manor and suggested the Ontario Housing Corporation development proposal be considered.

Cuban Interlude

From a human interest point of view, the Press conference with external affairs personnel and air crew who accompanied the FLQ kidnappers to Cuba was something of a damp squib.

Not that the media people did not do their best — they did (and one persistent Englishman in particular), but rather that the external affairs representatives who did most of the talking, and who were in a position to observe what went on aboard the aircraft and at Havana, were reserved in the extreme.

We can understand the desire to preserve the integrity of what essentially were private conversations and to say nothing that might in any way compromise individual rights, even those of people who so recently had deprived British trade commissioner James Cross of his freedom, but there was little effort to elaborate on the details of a trip which had all the elements of high drama.

Nor could we've been depend on "our man in Havana" in the person of this or that western newsman, for only the Cuban press were permitted to interview the FLQ party. There was mention that the Canadian officials and the plane's crew were received courteously, were given refreshments and cigars, and that the FLQ people were driven off toward Havana in a small bus — that sort of thing — but little else.

How does it feel, for example, to leave the coast of Florida and head off into the relative unknown? At what point did the plane come under radar surveillance of Cuba, and who contact with the Havana control tower? What instructions were given the pilot by Havana ground control? Did the Yukon make a wide sweep of the city before touchdown, as aircraft do over Belleville before landing at Trenton? What is the view of Havana like at night? And so on.

Those would be questions for the crew, but they were not asked, nor was any such information volunteered. No one even asked about the weather down there. Thus Cuba remains a land of mystery, a place which has changed traumatically under Communism, but a country which is off limits to most of us.

The Human Dilemma

Jon Hopkins, bearded host of the CBC's interesting program, This Land, is an outspoken man as befits a man of the outdoors, one who has roamed the north country from the Yukon to Newfoundland, worked as a forestry officer (in the Mackenzie district), conducted ecological research in Newfoundland, punched cows in the Kootenay Valley and spent time in Indian camps in northern Ontario.

The theme of his program is "The High Cost of Loneliness" and he is at his most outspoken in probing Canada's modern urban society — a study the program includes in addition to the country's more remote regions. The series delves into city life and its effect upon people. And Hopkins, as quoted by Helen MacNamara in TV Guide puts it this way: "It tells what happens to people in high-rise apartments and suburbs.

"Today we tend to isolate ourselves. Wherever we are. There has been a great rush to the suburban areas. You read signs 'come out and live.' And when you go out and look around there is not a bloody tree in sight. All you see are people looking out of picture windows at emptiness."

There is indeed a lot of emptiness in our modern society and it is to be found not just in the wide open spaces that still exist on the outskirts of many cities, but in the soul, in the spirit, in the isolationist culture people tend to establish for themselves whether it is in city high-rise or small rural community.

Another Boost

Word of yet another shopping centre being established in the Belleville area — this one west of the city — and featuring an enclosed shopping area with about 20 stores is indicative of the confidence commercial interests have in the city. There is no stopping Belleville or the Quinte area at large; its growth potential has been recognized for some time and this is yet another major boost to the development already taking place.

Tommy Douglas in Fade Out?

David Lewis Acting as If NDP Leadership Is His

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Is Tommy Douglas hanging the New Democratic Party leadership to David Lewis on a platter?

Some NDP members in the Commons are concerned about the lackluster performance Mr. Douglas has given during this parliamentary session and how deputy leader David Lewis is more than filling the gap.

Always a strong Commons man, Mr. Lewis has virtually assumed the House leadership of the party in recent weeks in the absence of any notable initiatives by Mr. Douglas.

The NDP leadership convention doesn't come until next April and if Mr. Douglas is paving the way for a graceful departure he is off to a very early start.

Mr. Douglas is still the leader and in the view of supporters should exercise control and direction of the party, particularly in the Commons, until the convention produces his successor.

But the normally tough and tenacious Tommy has been a pretty tame socialist of late while Mr. Lewis comes on like a tiger. The debate on substitute legislation for the War Measures Act has sent Mr. Lewis emerge as the star turn of the NDP.

Similarly in the daily question period it is Mr. Lewis who is in front and foremost and Mr. Douglas on many days is not his onetime loquacious self.

It may be that Mr. Douglas feels he should do a gradual fadeout on the parliamentary scene to prepare for his successor. But in the situation where Mr. Lewis is deputy leader and prominent front-bencher, the withdrawal scenario cannot help but give Mr. Lewis a big boost.

In fact he is running well ahead of any other declared or potential leadership candidates.

After all Mr. Lewis who is a very able politician and orator has the daily Commons national forum through which he can project his image to the NDP from coast to coast.

In the past few months his exposure on radio and television has increased greatly as after the Commons question period, he has often been the spokesman for the party, rather than Mr. Douglas.

Ed Broadbent, MP for Oshawa, who is a candidate for the leadership but seated incongruously in the Commons amid the middle echelons of the NDP he is just swamped by the Lewis presence.

Mr. Broadbent accepts this situation with good grace and prepares to campaign all the harder outside the Commons. But backers of Mr. Broadbent may wonder whether Mr. Lewis should have an advantage that appears to be aided by Mr. Douglas.

Mr. Douglas is a veteran politician who knows the game inside - out and it has to be assumed that he is aware of what is going on, that Mr. Lewis is getting an edge that he shouldn't enjoy.

The argument will be advanced of course that the prominence of Mr. Lewis is just coincidental, that his particular skills at this particular time in Parliament have brought him to the fore.

And Mr. Douglas will affirm his absolute neutrality in the leadership contest.

But some NDPrs are not at all happy about the situation which could make the selection of Mr. Lewis as new leader a mere formality.

"I don't care if you think I don't look like a man who has anything — I still want to buy something."

More on Our Costly Education System

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Parkinson's Law says — "Work expands to fill the time made available for its completion, and that the number of people in any work group tends to increase regardless of the amount of work to be done. Also executives tend to multiply their subordinates, who in turn make work for each other.

I think that our new County Boards of Education prove only too well that this is true. How many generals does it take to run an army? A director, superintendents, assistant superintendents, co-ordinators of everything under the sun, plus business managers, assistant business managers, and on and on it goes. Hastings County, which is far from a wealthy one is supporting a veritable pyramid of power, with at least 20 men in these categories making from $20,000 to $32,000 a year.

Small wonder that there was little interest in Candidates Night, the same weary group running the show, . . palling themselves on the back. No concrete suggestions for saving money, or that they would even try. Of course if really pressed, they will no doubt fall back on the old solution given by a 11 school boards—hold the line on teachers' salaries, (not administrators) and increase the teacher-pupil ratio. The sad cry is that teachers' salaries account for 68 per cent of the tax get. So what! This is like saying that General Motors should not expect a greater portion of their budget to be spent on raw materials.

However, I have two suggestions for the board: low about cutting off at least 50 per cent of the upper echelon in the administration. And if it is true, as they say that they are not really the board, why do we need them? If they are so superior why not give our students the benefit of their wisdom and expertise in the classroom. This would provide more teachers, without any additional expenditure, to alleviate some of the overcrowding in our classrooms. I for one am sure that education would continue, despite the loss of the brass. Secondly they could insist that the executives justify more realistically their decisions and programs, as is done in most well run business enterprises.

The proud boast that few boards have moved ahead as fast as Hastings County Board, is perhaps the crux of the whole problem. We have done in one or two years what should have taken four or five or 10 years to do. Experiments and programs that maybe we should have waited to see how well they are working out elsewhere, perhaps in wealthier communities. Our board however couldn't wait it seems to go from the old Ford to the new Cadillac.

To the question asked by Battered and Bewildered, "Is education any better?" No, it isn't, certainly not $18,000,000 a year better.

. . . E. KING.

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

As a mother of two, I would like to comment on the current educational scene and the so-called improvements in the standards of education we are led to believe are occurring.

In Hastings County we have been subjected to the subtle persuasion of our expensive administrative wizards that our School Board felt it so necessary to hire at inflated and outrageous salaries. Despite their propaganda I remain unconvinced that my children are any better educated today than they were 10 years ago. Your correspondent in a recent letter mentioned power cliques in relation to school boards. I don't know if this is the right term, but it seems if we don't wake up, in a few years we will see nothing but ex-school teachers on every school board, all hoping to get at our tax money for some foolish experimental project.

I think all former school teachers etc., should be barred from holding office on a school board for five years from the time they leave the teaching profession, so that their bias has a chance to cool off.

The Hastings County Board showed their disdain for restraint in the matter of wages, when they handed out totally unnecessary gifts to the already overpaid top men on the Administrative staff.

The number of PhDs, MAs and BAs littering the unemployed market today is testimony to the complete failure of our education system. I hope we get back soon to the days that used to be, where we had a teacher to pupil relationship, instead of the oversized system today where a teacher cannot teach unless he is backed up with a battery of TVs, tape recorders, visual aids, slide projectors and a conglomeration of other expensive equipment.

If we don't, I am afraid we are going to produce the most poorly educated generation of morons that ever sat behind a school desk.

Unconscious Search for The Spiritual Life by Youth?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In the Nov. 21 issue of The Intelligencer in an article titled "Church Activism is Receding in Favor of Ministry to Souls," the writer tells in essence that the clergy is greatly interested in returning to the spiritual life of the early church.

It was pointed out by Dr. F.S Fere of Wooster College in Ohio that "the church has just lived through a period of great interest of social ethics." "Now," he says "we give our students the benefit of their wisdom and expertise in the classroom. This would provide more teachers, without any additional expenditure, to alleviate some of the overcrowding in our classrooms. I for one am sure that education would continue, despite the loss of the brass. Secondly they could insist that the executives justify more realistically their has been the object of the mystics, reformers and revivalists throughout the ages and God gave His approval through signs and wonders.

In this modern day, however this all - important spiritual life has been largely missing, making the church ineffective in witnessing and losing ground to those who are not equipped spiritually and were not called to do this work. The lack of spiritual power in the church leaves outsiders unimpressed and indifferent to the message from the pulpit.

It was also stated that in Dallas recently 1,600 church leaders called for a "renewed emphasis on Scriptural revelation."

The Scripture tells us that it is essential in every church that the believers themselves are composed of persons who have each one met God in an individual experience, or as stated at that meeting "have a saving relationship with Christ."

Only such a Church is able to live a victorious spiritual life to do the necessary evangelistic work as commanded by Christ. Evangelism, however, is not a very popular with the masses. It is hard work as most ministers know, it is also a spiritual warfare against the unseen powers as described in Ephesians 6, 11-18). For these reasons this work has been avoided or neglected.

It should be pointed out that no individual needs to wait for any church organized evangelism to get into that new and enriched spiritual life. Quite independently of others, any person sincerely desiring it may have it. The study of the Bible with an open mind, especially the words of Jesus Christ in the New Testament will be very helpful.

Psychiatrist's View

Instant Communications, Media, Do-Gooders, Are The Ruination of Youth

Brockville Recorder and Times

Dr. Martin Korenberg, a Montreal psychiatrist, who has a new approach to the study and practice of psychiatry, blames a great many of society's current problems on youth with emotional problems who are given too much attention by the news media, so-called do - gooders and teachers.

In his book, "Eye of Child hood", Dr. Korenberg claims that violence and bomb throwing are emotional escape valves for frustrated young people because their pent-up feelings have been triggered by instant communication with an assist from educators and do-gooders. The reason they choose bombs is instant communication . . . a form of advertising.

He explains this by noting that young people use this means (throwing bombs) to relieve their feelings because it has been suggested to them. Educators think the universities are filled with people who don't know how to teach so the kids say "let's blow up the university". The reasonable approach would be to fire the poor teachers, not wreck the school. He believes young people rebel because they suffer from fright, anxiety, anxiety in early life. As they grow up, they are faced more and more with making decisions for themselves and they become frightened by the decisions they have to make on their own.

Dr. Korenberg feels that the easiest way to justify why we behave as we do, is to look for excuses and the easiest way to find an excuse is to blame the world and try to opt out.

But today's young people don't have any more anxieties than their parents or their grandparents had. The older people found it just as difficult to admit they were their own worst enemies. The difference today is the sorry fact that great attention is paid to young people by news media and so-called do-gooders who agree with and apologize for them. Now if we can only get the do-gooders and the news media, especially television to lay off, the world may be able to right itself again.

Laval University, the earliest French-language university in North America, was granted a royal charter 118 years ago today — in 1852. The parent body, Seminaire de Quebec, was founded in 1663 by Bishop Laval. Though being modernized and rebuilt on the Plains of Abraham, Laval's science faculty was founded in Montreal and the graduate school in 1938.

1963 - Eighty-two persons died in a fire in Bonfield 707 crash at Elkton, Md.

1962 - Tanganyika became a republic within the Commonwealth with no ties to the British Crown.

1949 - Chiang Kai-shek proclaimed Taipei, capital of Formosa, the capital of all mainland China.

1945 - The United States declared war on Bulgaria.

1941 - Japanese troops occupied the international settlement at Shanghai.

1939 - Adolf Hitler's book, Mein Kampf, was published.

1907 - Gustav V became king of Sweden.

1776 - The British captured Newport, R.I.

Fluoride Defeated

TRENTON (Staff) — For the second time in a decade, Trentonians have voted down fluoridated water.

In yesterday's referendum here, 1,351 votes were cast against fluoridation. A total of 838 favored it.

The issue has had some addament council supporters; particularly councillor Bob Patrick, a dentist, who did not qualify to run again because his business taxes were unpaid.

Fluoridation was on the ballot in 1962 and went down to similar defeat then.

PUC Vote Sees Upset

TRENTON (Staff) — One of the biggest upsets in the elections here came in the three - man contest for two seats on the town's Public Utilities Commission.

Going down to defeat was the present PUC chairman Cliff Baker, a cotton mill manager, who has served on the commission for 15 years.

"I am not unhappy about the result, I mean it," he said. Mr. Baker received 926 votes, more than 250 less than Charles Hilton, a retired contractor who sat on the commission for eight years.

Topping the polls in the PUC election was former lawyer J. D. MacDonald who claimed 1,283 votes. Mr. Hilton finished with 1,219.

Roberts Returned

BRIGHTON (Staff) — In the elections here last night reeve Norman Roberts was elected to another two year term, sweeping to victory against his rival the current deputy reeve, Lyle Foxwall.

Reeve Roberts had a three-to-one margin over Foxwall, receiving 687 votes to his 351.

The Public Utilities Commission fight here was one both incumbent commissioners returned to office.

Percy MacIntosh with 452 votes and Harold McColl with 369 will hold their seats. Defeated was Maurice Harrington with 338 votes.

Voters here said "no" when given the chance of adding fluoride to their water supply by yesterday's referendum here. Opposing votes numbered 363 votes in favor 267.

Poll-toppers

Councillor R. M. "Ted" Parker (right) surveys the results of the Trenton town council race with George Brown last night. Mr. Parker, an industrialist, topped the polls in the eight-man fight for six council seats. Pharmacist Brown ran a close second.

Chamber Has Problems

The future of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce is on a precarious ledge tonight and might need restructuring to save it.

The recent membership drive has proved to be less than successful and chamber president Frank Murray forecast black days ahead.

"If we don't get 100 members we won't be able to carry on," he said.

"Any organization can't carry on theoretically or practically, without members."

The financial budget released Thursday showed the chamber with a loss, as of Nov. 30 of $3,812. Membership receipts were almost $200 less than the same period last year.

With membership standing over 200, a list of 200 prospective contacts was compiled, with a goal of 100 in mind.

To date, J. C. Huston, manager of the chamber, has received only five confirmed memberships. Members of the board Thursday reported a few prospective members were confirmed, but only the five had officially joined.

"We have a very serious situation on our hands," said Mr. Murray.

Members agreed that many people who joined the chamber did so out of civic pride, but were of the opinion that they couldn't get much personally out of membership.

In a recent interview, O. F. "Bradley, past manager and secretary-treasurer of the chamber outlined the many community services provided.

These are:

—fully operative year-round tourist bureau

—Business and consumer protection bureau

—Belleville booster committee.

—Guidance teachers familiarization courses

—Community events registrar

—Trade commission tours

—Business information service

—Belleville winter carnival

Plans for the immediate future are to assist in a study to make recommendations regarding the formation of a convention bureau for Belleville.

A welcoming committee is to be formed to greet executives of new industries and business upon arrival to the city.

Speakers of special interest in professional, industrial and retail divisions of the chamber are to be invited to speak on various occasions.

At the fall dinner meeting held Oct. 1, Mr. Murray stated: "unfortunately the chamber has not received the support we feel it should receive."

Even with an "aggressive membership campaign" this statement holds up with the board of directors "all a little despondent" over the results.

Mr. Murray is assured that the directors will "really dig in" in an effort to reach some sort of quota for membership.

The chamber, a community-oriented organization, in times past, received grants from the city.

Mr. Houston explained that these grants were discontinued by the present administration. The city did provide funds this year for the printing of the Chamber's Belleville brochure, but this was not in the form of a grant, simply payment for a service.

Trenton Veterans All Returned

TRENTON (Staff) — All members of council seeking re-election were returned to office in yesterday's voting here.

Leading the polls in the eight - man contest for six seats was E. M. "Ted" Parker, a local silverware manufacturer, who received 1,530 votes.

Councillor Parker endorsed the post office development scheme during his campaign while others declined to comment on the issue.

"I decided to stand up and be counted and for me it appears to have panned out," he said.

As returns came in last night it appeared that pharmacist George Brown would top the roster. He was ahead at 8 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. but by 10:15 Mr. Parker had pulled ahead to close with a 28-vote edge.

Mr. Brown, who served on council in 1956-7, said he had predicted to friends he would come second, second to Parker.

He credits his success at the polls (1,494 votes) in part to the fact that he lives on the west side but has his business on the east. Furthermore, he says that through his business he meets the people.

Postal employee George Grewe who received the endorsation of the Quinte District Labor Council in his bid for re-election, placed third with 1,419 votes while LCBO worker Stan Ketcheson came fourth, being returned to council with 1,379 votes.

Councillor Fred Tripp, a wholesaler, took fifth place with 1,261 votes while merchant Pete Axis polled 1,031 votes to take the remaining council seat.

Early in the returns, a race developed for last place between Axis and insurance agent Samuel Potts. But the merchant pulled ahead closing with a 49-vote margin over Potts, who won 997 votes.

Low on the eight-man slate was a woman, a realtor and president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce. She received 978 votes.

Active and popular and a Canadian Forces wife, her defeat was counted as the biggest surprise of the council election here.

About 32 per cent of the voting populus took the opportunity of exercising their franchise in Trenton elections Monday, clerk-comptroller, O. W. Larry said today.

The turnout represents the worst response to a municipal election here in at least the past five years.

Despite slippery roads and a six-inch snowfall last year, more than 49 per cent made the effort. The percentage in 1968 was 35 and in 1967 it was 41.

Post Office Plan Wins Approval

TRENTON (Staff) — The post office development project was endorsed by voters here last night by a sizable margin.

Voting "yes" on the question of whether the town corporation should issue debentures to finance participation in the condominium scheme were 1,028 Trenton property owners. Only 772 were "thumbs down" on the issue.

Despite the fact that a scale model of the complex, designed to refurbish the town's downtown core, was on display in a shop window on Dundas Street, and councillors, particularly Ted Parker, made a lengthy speeches promoting it, public interest in the question was slight.

Many said they were fed up with the post office issue, subject of a previous referendum. Parker took the stand that doing nothing with the vacant building was no answer.

In only six of 22 polls, all on the east side, did the majority of voters go against the project.

In view of last night's popular vote, councillor Parker says the development will soon advance. "The next step is to advise the Ontario Municipal Board of the decision here (the referendum) and notify the developer" that the people have given the green light.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto stock market was fractionally lower in light mid-morning trading today as it entered a second consecutive losing session.

On index, industrials were down 28 to 171.49, golds 30 to 165.55, base metals .42 to 89.39 and western oils 1.11 to 191.29.

Losers outnumbered gains 178 to 78 with 172 issues unchanged.

Weakest sectors were banks, pipelines and steels.

Among declining issues, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas dropped ¾ to 36, Bow Valley ¾ to 21¼, Royal Bank ¾ to 22¾, Bank of Montreal ¾ to 21¾, Rio Algom ½ to 21¼, Enagin Oil 1) cents to 12.50 and Western Decalta five cents to $6.30.

Council Endorses Riverside Takeover

The Belleville Parks Board will have another 30 acres of riverside park land when present negotiations for property on the west side of Moira River between Highway 401 and College Street are completed.

Options on two properties between the Bell Trans highway and the Ontario Hydro high tension line have been obtained and with the receipt of the necessary grant approvals purchase is expected to be completed before the end of the year.

Purchase of the two properties is being made through the Moira River Conservation Authority at a total cost, including legal and other fees, of $120,000. The city's share will be 37 per cent or $27,000.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey as one of the city's representatives on the Moira authority, asked that a letter be forwarded from council expressing appreciation to the authority for its part in the flood plain green belt property purchase.

The city's share of the purchase price will be paid out of parks board funds earmarked for property acquisition.

Robert Macaulay Was King-maker as Robarts Bested Roberts

TORONTO (CP) — The heat under the glaring lights was stifling, nerves on edge, tempers frayed. Voting for the party leadership had been close throughout the long day and evening.

If there were any "smoke-filled back rooms" where major decisions were made they were not in dingy Varsity Arena Oct. 25, 1961.

Perhaps they were in downtown hotel rooms and elsewhere in Toronto when more important in the Ontario Progressive Conservative party watched and weighed events from afar. Certainly decisions were made for there had been a perceptible shift in trends.

John Robarts, the tall, impassive, seemingly confident man from London had been second on the first ballot. He had led narrowly at first but by increasing margins, the next four.

His advance was unspectacular. It was inexorable.

The fifth ballot had just been taken. John Robarts was in the lead: the favorite in pre-convention betting, and in the early going. Attorney-General Robert Macaulay, a power in the cabinet and in the party, No. 2 among pre-convention choices, was third. Now he was out, automatically.

It was said of Robert Macaulay that he wanted the leadership so badly he could taste it. Controlling himself with a visible effort but gracious in defeat, he turned in his strategists beside him and said:

"Go tell our people to vote for Roberts. We don't want Roberts."

That won it for John Parmenter Robarts. The vote on the sixth and final ballot was 976 to 633.

A political unknown had become leader of Ontario Tories and within two weeks would be prime minister of Canada's richest and most populous province.

Many of those who voted for him that night—and in provincial elections later—could not correctly pronounce his name: Rob-bar-ts. Nine years later he still was premier of Ontario, perpetuating Progressive Conservative leadership that has continued unbroken for 27 years.

Leslie Frost, who in 13 years of firm control of the party and the government had earned the sobriquet "Old Man Ontario," seemed irreplaceable when he announced his retirement.

It was said at the time that Provincial Treasurer James N. Allan—one of six who fell before the smooth, Rhodes scholar that October night—might head a caretaker government while a young leader was being groomed. Some defeatists even envisaged a period in opposition during the rebuilding job.

John Robarts had represented a London riding for 10 years. He had been on the fringes of the cabinet hierarchy as minister without portfolio then as minister of education for three years. He did solid but unspectacular work in that post. But premier!

Only John Robarts thought he might be and he kept his own counsel.

Two weeks of soul-searching and he made a decision: Go for it.

Then was displayed a facet of John Robarts' character that since has shown only in flashes —showmanship.

Any aspirant for party leadership, must show himself and spend in the doing. If John Robarts spent $40,000 it was small in relationship to what others spent. He spoke seldom and when he did, it was stodgy, uninspiring. Jeers—but he'd got-it-over-with performances.

The Toronto Star's jeers rise for that. Mr. Frost—over "leslie"—was the Star, the gladhander who knew all the politics of local wards, the kindly Old Man Ontario. This new man—he says himself now that he's a "management man"—was different. A groundswell developed in the rank-and-file delegates. 1,709 of them, who voted in Varsity Arena.

At one point during the day Robarts lifted a hand to quell a demonstration by his supporters. They turned and left the arena.

Other candidates had been chided by the chairman for breaking the rule of no daytime demonstrations.

The maneuvre, from entrance to gesture of dismissal, had been planned the previous night.

As one reporter said:

"That was the first time I realized Roberts might be less wooden and more powerful than he looked."

He has been giving a low-key performance since. As head of the government he has directed the cabinet like a chairman of a board of directors. Ministers were permitted to run their departments on their own—but were dropped quickly when the chairman felt they had failed.

In the legislature, Premier Robarts preferred compromise. He would back away from a prickly issue rather than beat down the opposition with his top-heavy majority.

In 1964, when the Ontario Police Commission called for strong measures to combat criminals, Attorney-General Fred Cass introduced a bill that would have given the commission power to imprison persons who refused to testify before it in secret. There were immediate charges of Ontario becoming a "police state."

The premier withdrew the bill and dropped his attorney-general.

Later, he also accepted the federal Canada Pension Plan despite initial misgivings. The move may have saved the provincial scheme from jeopardy.

His administration's heavy volume of legislation included a 1966 medical care insurance plan on a voluntary basis, unlike the federal plan. It came into care with doctors' services at the insured schedules. It became compulsory in 1969 and part of the national plan.

Premier Robarts displayed no personal idiosyncracies of the type that captivates voters. He produced few headline-type quotations and at public functions he plodded through his texts without decoration. The project was that of a no-nonsense business-like administrator. Ontario's voters liked the image.

In 1968, in one of his rare newspaper interviews, he said the thing he likes most as head of a government is "never let it be believed that you aren't in control of the situation."

He went on:

"One has just never to become too aware of how much power one has. It is easier to say 'do it' to people, instead of using what I choose to call the rational approach—sitting down and discussing it."

But, when a decision was made, it was his.

"I accept the responsibility of making up my own mind, and the blame."

In the same interview he revealed a facet of his character that the public seldom sees—he thoroughly enjoyed his job like he had fun doing it. He said he'd put on a dinner jacket "at the drop of a hat."

"I have a ball. I'll bet I have been in more discotheques than most men my age. And I make it around the bars . . . but not to the topless ones so much. I'm afraid I don't find the women attractive."

He had what he termed the perfect city life. He lived in a midtown hotel—a five-minute walk to his Queen's Park office before a recurrence of an old football injury to his knee curtailed that activity—and went home to London at weekends.

His wife Norah, daughter Robin, 18, and son Timothy, 13, would have seen "very little of me if they were here, and this way I don't have to worry if I'm late for dinner."

Robarts

"The electorate of the province has provided us with a great and rich reservoir of talented and able members. Our party is strong and healthy, enjoying the support and participation of many men and women of capacity for elected office.

"I have every confidence that the men and women who make up the great Progressive Conservative party of Ontario will choose wisely and well.

The premier went on to say:

"I have never believed that any one man or one group had a monopoly of ideas and I firmly believe it is necessary to provide opportunity for new approaches to be made available.

"I have complete confidence that the Progressive Conservative party can continue to be truly progressive and can once again, as it has in the past, present to the people of this great province a new government, able and talented, in which our people can have confidence."

But Mr. Robarts has indicated strongly in private talks that he seeks nothing more than a return to private life in London, perhaps to a law practice. He has said repeatedly that he believes eight to 10 years is long enough for any government leader to remain in office.

Mr. Robarts' departure from the premiership leaves only Newfoundland's Joey Smallwood, with 21 years as Liberal premier, and W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, with 18 years, as the old guard of provincial premiers.

Ernest Manning, who was leader of the Social Credit party and premier of Alberta for 25 years, bowed out in 1968 to be replaced by Harry Strom. Louis Robichaud, Liberal premier New Brunswick for 10 years, lost an election to the Tories' Richard Hatfield earlier this year.

No other premier now in office has held his position for longer than four years.

During his nine years in office, Mr. Robarts brought the quiet, confident air of a chairman of the board to the provincial premiership.

Amiable but no extrovert, he was a major change from glad-handing Leslie Frost, who had run the province's affairs so long and so firmly that he was known as Old Man Ontario.

In the Robarts administration, both the cabinet and the legislature had more elbow room. The premier preferred compromise —or even backing away from a prickly issue—to beating down the opposition.

He displayed no personal idiosyncrasies and produced few headline-type quotations, preferring instead the image of a business-like administrator with no particular fondness for the political head-spat.

Mr. Robarts was born at Banff, Alta., Jan. 11, 1917, the son of a bank manager who took the family to Winnipeg and Galt before moving to London.

Mr. Robarts graduated from the University of Western Ontario at London in 1938 and went directly into the navy in 1940 as a cordovy seaman. He ended the war as a lieutenant after seeing service in the Atlantic, Pacific and Mediterranean.

After getting a law degree from Toronto's Osgoode Hall in 1946, he practised in Hamilton for a year and then joined a firm in London where he took his first political position as an alderman in 1951. In the same year he was elected to the legislature.

Candidates Follow Tradition

The election for this term is now over in Thurlow township with incumbents returned unanimously.

Reeve Horace Casey and Deputy - reeve Gordon Farquhar returned to office by acclamation two weeks ago when the township held its nomination meeting. Hastings County School Board representative Milford Walker also was acclaimed at that meeting.

Incumbents Fletcher Reid, Garnet Denyes and Donald McKeown succeeded in returning to office while two-time loser Jerry Masterson, seeking again his first term on council, fell to defeat.

Voting was light in this year's election as it was two years ago. As a matter of fact this year's voting was even lighter than in 1968.

But a interest in voting seemed to decline for this year's edition of municipal politics, the grassroots essence and tradition in Thurlow was not shaken in the least.

For nomination night and election day and evening in Thurlow has not wavered in tradition and in its grassroots simplicity and honesty.

The same was the case at the township's municipal offices and hall in Canifton as it has been in past years. Interested voters and spectators crowding into the small offices to hear personally the polling results while the other half of the building was closed to them as it served as one of the township's 11 polling stations.

Then, when the results of the voting were learned and confirmed, the hand-shaking, the smiles and disappointments manifested themselves in a tension release.

The fact that everyone knew everyone else was evident and this personalized the election emotion that pervaded the offices.

Then it was off to the new open municipal hall where spectators seated themselves and waited for successful and unsuccessful candidates to speak.

All of them, the reeve, the deputy - reeve, councillors, school board representative, and defeated council candidates sat around the committee table where many councillors and officials have sat throughout the municipality's history.

Calling the meeting to order, Reeve Horace Casey introduced the men at the table and they each spoke to their audience in turn, professing good cheer, gratitude and the promise of hard work to come.

Following the words of the speakers, the meeting was adjourned and the crowd in the hall turned their attention to refreshments, coffee and cookies supplied by acclaimed school board representative Mr. Walker.

Successful candidates wandered throughout the crowd with cigars and chocolates, gifts for the electorate who supported them.

But the tradition started nomination night when incumbent council members stood up to speak for the work they had done in the past, to brave the onslaught of hecklers and to answer to the criticism of concerned voters.

Most certainly politics in Thurlow is grassroots, is tradition, is personal and often predictable — but always important even as participating voters drop in numbers.

Post-election Assessment

Thurlow Township candidates for council discuss the political scene in Thurlow after election last night that saw the four of them — Fletcher Reid, Jerry Masterson, Garnet Denyes and Donald McKeown — competing for three council seats. Mr. Reid, Mr. Denyes and Mr. McKeown were successful.

Status Quo in Thurlow

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Thurlow Township will have the same council for another term — two more years, the result of a four - man race for the three council seats in that township.

Yesterday's election saw voting in 11 polls return Fletcher Reid, Garnet Denyes and Donald McKeown to their incumbent seats around Thurlow's council table.

Jerry Masterson, the fourth candidate, failed to get elected for the second time in a row.

Statistics of this year's election as well as the identities of the candidates were identical to Thurlow's municipal election two years ago.

It was the second time in a row that these particular four men ran a race for council seats.

In 1968, councillor Fletcher Reid, then an incumbent, led the polls for re-election with 639 votes. This year he again achieved the most votes with 994 being tallied.

Second place two years ago was captured by incumbent Garnet Denyes who then tallied 622 votes. This year he trailed Mr. Reid by 39 votes with 574.

Donald McKeown, then only a veteran of council activity for eight months, was re-elected with 614 votes. This year he was again third with 512 votes.

Mr. Masterson was defeated in 1968 with 461 votes. This year he lost the election with 431 votes.

Voting trends saw expected results placed into the Thurlow township offices in Canifton. All candidates won in their home polls.

For example, Mr. Reid did well in his home poll on the second concession of the township, Mr. Denyes was well supported in the Plainfield area, Mr. McKeown swept the voting in the two Foxboro polls, Mr. Masterson was strong in the Corbyville poll.

Two weeks before the election, Reeve Horace Casey was returned to office by acclamation as was deputy-reeve Gordon Forsythe and Hastings County Board of Education representative Milford Walker.

For Mr. Reid it was his second election and third win, the second time seating him in office through acclamation.

"I'm glad I ran," he told The Intelligencer, "to finish the job already started — things like Holiday Inn water and sewer."

Mr. Denyes won his second election yesterday and described it as a hard fight because the main municipal offices of reeve and deputy-reeve were not being contested.

Mr. McKeown pledged to do the best he could for the taxpayers in the municipality as he prepares to head into council for another two years.

Mr. Masterson took his defeat with a smile and a commendation to the other successful candidates that the fight for council had been a fair one.

"I'm beginning to feel like a born loser," he quipped to the 30-odd spectators in the township hall. "But I've never given up before." He didn't know if he would run for the office again.

Abortion on Demand for Early Pregnancy Suggested by Commission

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada should permit abortion on demand for any woman pregnant 12 weeks or less, says the majority report of the royal commission on the status of women.

The report, released Monday by the Canadians, also recommends that an abortion be permitted at the request of a physician pregnant for more than 12 weeks if continuation of the pregnancy would endanger the physical or mental health.

This also would apply "if there is a substantial risk that if the child were born, it would be greatly handicapped, either mentally or physically."

The recommendation and arguments in favor of relaxed abortion laws are not supported by commissioners Doris Ogilvie, a Fredericton juvenile court judge, and Jacques Henripin, a University of Montreal demographer.

A third commissioner, John Humphrey, a law professor at McGill University, dissociates himself from the majority report generally, although he does not specifically mention disagreeing with its abortion provisions.

Elsie Gregory MacGill, another of the seven commissioners and a Toronto aeronautical engineer, says, however, that she supports the majority recommendations but does not think they go far enough.

"I forsee with fear that unless the prohibitions and penalties provided in the Criminal Code are repealed promptly, they will linger on a decade or more to harass and punish women."

The Criminal Code was amended last year to permit abortion where a hospital committee of doctors decides a continued pregnancy would endanger the mother's health. Prime Minister Trudeau has also promised a debate in the Commons this session on abortion.

The four commissioners supporting the recommendation—chairman Anne Francis, Lola Lange, Jeanne Lapoint and Elsie MacGill—say in their report that as long as the present abortion law exists thousands of women will break it.

"Breaking the law forces them to resort to methods that seriously endanger their physical and emotional health," the report says.

"The present law also discriminates against the poor, who do not have the means to get an abortion, for example, by going outside the country."

They say formal procedures for obtaining an abortion under present law may make it even more difficult for some women to obtain a therapeutic abortion than in the past.

Approval of a hospital committee for an abortion was not easily obtained and involved delay.

The commissioners say the number of illegal abortions cannot be accurately known, although estimates range from 20,000 to 300,000 a year. If the estimate of 100,000 was correct, it would mean that one pregnancy in five was being illegally aborted.

In a separate statement, Prof. Henripin says that unless "we admit the scarcely tenable view that there is no such thing as a human being before birth, we are forced to compare the advantages of such a brutal solution as abortion with the value of the being to be destroyed."

The present law is acceptable, although "an insert of tact" should be made in hospitals and by doctors to set up the machinery which the law provides for its application and which is still sadly lacking."

Judge Ogilvie agrees in her statement that the abortion problem is deplorable.

"But in an age of growing recognition of the value and dignity of every individual, further approval of abortion seems regressive rather than progressive. The time is coming when society will no longer tolerate abortion just as it no longer tolerates infanticide."

Penal Reform for Female Offenders

OTTAWA (CP) — The status of women says imprisonment should be used only to segregate dangerous criminals and suggests the prison for women at Kingston, Ont., be closed.

In its report tabled in the Commons Monday, the commission says imprisonment of the casual offender should be resorted to "only if other dispositions are not appropriate."

It says this is particularly relevant to women who are generally casual or harmless offenders and rarely dangerous or professional criminals.

The commission says a main concern is that, however small the female jail population, adequate treatment programs and services should be organized for women.

Most planning seemed geared to male prisoners and adapted to women, although the small number of women in jail provided an opportunity to use new correctional methods.

"We can, in any case, see no reason why women, who are generally casual or harmless offenders, should be incarcerated in the maximum security prison at Kingston'at a time when the trend of penal reform is toward small, open institutions," the commission says.

The Kingston prison, which houses most women convicted across Canada for offences with sentences of two years or more, should be closed.

The prison now houses about 70 women. It is a massive stone building with high walls, the only federal penitentiary solely for women.

Day Care Centres Required

OTTAWA (CP) — A network of day-care centres should be established to serve all who need them, not just the 'working' mother, says the majority report of the royal commission on the status of women.

"The need for wider community assistance in the care and education of even very young children emerges from our findings as an essential factor in improving the position of Canadian women.

"The time is past when society can refuse to provide community child services in the hope of withholding mothers from leaving their children and, going to work," the report says. Women and high employment might also urgently need day-care services because of illness or overwork at home.

Existing facilities served only a small fraction of mothers and it was estimated that eventually about 450,000 Canadian children under six years of age would need day-care services at an annual estimated cost of $500 million.

Annual cost for each child would be slightly less than $1,200 and parents' contributions would defray much of the cost.

"In most instances, especially if a program of increased child allowance is introduced, parents should pay for their use of the day-care program . . . because of a belief ensure that clients are drawn from all levels of society, and would lift day-care out of the context of poverty."

A sliding scale of fees should be related to family needs."

The report says that since private initiative cannot deal with such a large problem, provincial governments must take the lead in planning and administration and should pay not less than 80 per cent of the provincial-municipal contribution to costs not met by fees.

The report suggests that the federal government immediately take steps leading to a national day-care act under which it would pay half the operating costs and, during an initial seven-year period, 70 per cent of capital costs.

The commissioners recommend establishment in each province and territory of a child-care board to establish and supervise centres and other programs, as well as a federal health department unit for consultation on such services.

They suggest the National Housing Act be broadened to allow loans for construction, purchase and renovation of buildings for day-care centres and to permit space for them in housing developments and university buildings.

The two men on the commission, while granting the importance of day-care service, differ in their views about its provision.

Dr. Jacques Henripin, a University of Montreal demographer, said the government has a clear duty to see that such services exist. But it should not use public funds "to subsidize families which prefer to send their children to day-care centres, rather than looking after them themselves or hiring a housemaker."

John Humphrey, a law professor at McGill University, says he does not think the federal government should assume a greater cost than it now does under the Canada Assistance Plan for day-care centres.

New Kinds of Social Discrimination

OTTAWA (CP) — John Humphrey, one of two men on the seven-member royal commission on the status of women, dissociates himself from the commission's report which he says will introduce new kinds of social discrimination.

He also says the report is unfair because some housewives are portrayed as social parasites.

Mr. Humphrey, a law professor at McGill University, Montreal, and a former director of human rights at the United Nations, makes his comments in a minority report.

Mr. Humphrey replaced Donald Gordon, a political science professor at the University of Waterloo, on the commission three years ago. Prof. Gordon resigned for what were described as personal reasons six months after the commission was set up.

More than a year ago, an observer close to the commission suggested that delays in the commission's work were being caused by difficulties in winning approval of some recommendations by the more conservative commissioners, particularly the men.

Chairman Anne Francis said then, however, that she thought the commissioners were reaching unanimous agreement on their recommendations and she did not expect a minority report.

Prof. Humphrey said that while he agreed with most of the commission's 167 recommendations, some weaken the document by reducing its credibility.

He could not support those recommendations he said would lead to new types of discrimination between men and women and between different groups of women.

"The report is unfair to the married woman at home, who, unless she is looking after young children, is made to appear a social leech.

"I am not saying that women's place is in the home.' In my view her place is where ever she wants to be. . . . But I cannot support any attempts to 'force' her out of the home and into the labor market."

He could not accept the commission's proposal that income tax laws be amended to reduce exemptions now provided married persons.

The commissioner also objected to "the implication" that a wife's contribution to the family and society should be measured in wages paid were she a hired servant. "Marriage should be treated as a partnership."

Since he could not agree that women had the psychological characteristics of a minority or should be treated like one, he opposed all quota systems for women whether in the Senate, the public service, political parties, industry or education.

"Such systems are discriminatory and can operate against the real interests of women."

The report's weakest recommendation was that two qualified women from each province be summoned to the Senate as seats become vacant until a more equitable membership is achieved, he said. This would establish a quota for women senators. an insult to Canadian women who are capable of standing on their own feet.

The report does not always consider broad social priorities, Prof. Humphrey says. He would not, for instance, say that day-care centres were more important than increased financial aid to old people or rehabilitating slums.

Prof. Humphrey also says he cannot accept recommendations that family allowances be greatly increased, since this would encourage larger families when population is a major world problem.

A slate of officers was elected at the December meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women's Guild held in the church hall Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. R. Jones the president opening the meeting and extending a welcome to all.

Miss Frieda Matthews led in devotions based on the Christmas theme in which she stressed the importance of not letting petty things interfere with the real meaning of Christmas.

Mrs. R. Kempster gave the secretary's report and read items of correspondence. The treasurers report was given by Mrs. R. Michaud who also gave a report on the annual bazaar which was most gratifying. Co - convener Mrs. T. Burnett expressed thanks to all for the assistance given by the members to her and convener Mrs. H. McKay. Mrs. J. Robertson the convener of the antique, show and sale reported that a piano had been purchased.

A number of other annual reports were given by: flower convener, Mrs. A. McCreary; kitchen convener, Mrs. F. Brooks; card convener, Mrs. B. Sine and one from Mrs. G. Bennett of the Friendship Group.

Ann Landers

Nothing to Gain By Policing 'Hubby'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every trade has its problems — especially since women are becoming so brassy and aggressive. I have read letters in your column from physicians' wives who were edgy because women patients have a tendency to fall for their doctors. But wouldn't you think a veterinarian's wife would be safe? (After all, dogs and cats don't make passes.) Well, that's what I thought until I married a vet.

You'd be surprised how many healthy dogs my husband sees every week. A few days ago I was working in the supply room when a woman brought in a toy poodle. I glanced up just in time to see her unbosom and reveal a Playboy centerfold. My husband told her at once that the dog was in perfect health and he quickly ushered her to the door.

I trust him completely, but I can't help but wonder what his reaction would have been if I hadn't been present. Most a women work with her husband these days to protect her marriage against predators? I'd like to stay home next year and start a family. Do I dare? — THE EVE.

DEAR EVE: The husband who wants to slip his collar will find a way. Keeping an eye on him will simply make him more ingenious. If you work with your husband because you believe it will keep him faithful, you can quit now. The best protection against female predators is the work done at home. Policing him at the shop is an exercise in futility.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter has a pretty good job. Ella's takehome pay is $71 a week. Her meals are prepared and served to her like in a restaurant. She has her laundry done by hand and there's plenty of it. If I use too much starch in her blouses she lets me know.

Ella does not give me a dime toward household expenses. She doesn't even buy her own shampoo or toothpaste. My husband earns a modest salary. A few dollars a week from Ella would come very handy but she seems to think there is something grubby about parents who would ask a child to pay room and board. If you agree with her I will not mention it again. What is her opinion? — SHORT OF FUNDS IN HOUSTON.

DEAR SHORT: There's something grubby about a girl who earns a salary, lives at home and doesn't offer financial help to parents who need it. It's not her fault, however — it's yours. The day Ella lined up her first job you should have discussed this subject with her. According to my slide rule Ella should be giving you about $25 a week plus 4 large thank-yes. She could get room and board, laundry and maid service anywhere for twice the amount.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just learned something I would like to share with your readers. It is my way of saying thank you for the many things. I have learned from reading your column.

I grew up hating my older sister. No matter what I wanted, my mother offered it to Beverly first. If she wanted it she got it. It was always the same story — whether it was the best piece of cake or the seat by the window in the car. I despised my sister without realizing that she was not to blame.

I hope every parent whose children fight constantly will take note. Sibling rivalry is natural. Naked hatred is not. Too often a parent unwittingly creates the monster. Tell them, Ann. — WISER NOW.

DEAR WISER: And now if you can forgive your mother for her ignorance you will have opened another door to understanding and peace of mind.

A Crowd Really Not Needed for Christmas

By DORIS CLARK

Christmas is coming; let's celebrate!

This doesn't just mean trotting out your best linen and dishes and silver for the gathering of the clan — and to impress rich Aunt Hattie.

Perhaps you can won't be gathering, where you are. Then how about impressing you?

Some of our Canadian homes are going to be pretty quiet on Christmas Day, with maybe just one or two people hitching to the bells, heading for church, remembering the story of the Christ-child. No little ones with new toys will be providing Christmas-morning entertainment.

But Christmas is an affair of the heart and doesn't need a crowd. Remember about the Israelite who serves all her Christmas cards to open on Christmas morning? Now that her husband is gone and her own physical state deteriorating, she still does it. And she sits at her pretty Christmas bows and bells, drapes her coffee table in a gay red cloth and sets out saucers not ready to serve tea and Christmas cake.

Result: The neighborhood drops in. No one would let Christmas Day go by without bringing greetings to Norma.

Dear Doris: I read "Disgusted's" letter. It is not a hurling hope but more like despair that makes a woman write those things. I know.

When a marriage has become nothing but hurt and hate and filthy names you hope against hope that your husband will change. Then you start fighting back. Then comes hate. Then one fine day you realize that you don't even cry any more. — You despair, and all hope and trust are gone.

I am 100 per cent for women's liberation — liberation from being a slave to "His Majesty" — and the irony of it all is that if he treated her like a queen, he would be king without demanding it.

I am not signing my name because if husband ever found out I'd written I'd get another beating! — Jessie

Dear Jessie: I'm sorry. Despair like yours comes only out of heartbreak. Writing to me merely gets something off your chest — in the wrong direction.

If you can no longer find the gumption to demand a better deal from him, seek guidance and moral courage from a social worker before you go completely berserk.

Dear Doris: So happy I read your column the other day. I too have figure and clothing problems.

Would appreciate receiving the address of the English firm selling clothes to fit our "problem figures".

Another thank-you to Grandma! And to you for printing this in your column. — Another Grandma

Dear A. G.: It's fantastic. All this firm wants is big measurement. I've passed along the English address to dozens of aging Canadians with not-quite-perfect figures.

Let's have reports from some of you, once you've been fitted.

Talk it over with Doris, This Canadian social worker can shed new light on your problem.

Salmon Pate for Holiday Hostess

By MARY MOORE

Is it not logical to spend an entire first old age pension plus change on a celebration party?

One of our friends, Marjorie Rose, did just that. She will always be young at heart and her friends love her merry, generous ways.

Many of her friends contributed to the festivities for 14 people. Lil Barker roasted a 20 - lb. turkey and made a Salmon Pate, recipe for which she willingly gave me.

I know that our holiday hostess will welcome this for eager party guests went back for two and three and four more helpings.

SALMON PATE
(Makes 28-oz. of pate)

NOTE: Reduce quantities by half for a small party.

One 1-lb. can red salmon (see below)
One 8-oz. pkge white cream cheese (room temperature)
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 tsps. horseradish (thick part)
1 tsp. grated raw onion
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
¼ tsp. Angostura Bitters or hot pepper sauce
6 tbsps. chopped pecans or walnuts
2 tbsps. chopped parsley (or bottled flakes)

Drain the liquid from the salmon (and drink it if you like!). Also pick out bones and scraps of any skin and dark fat so that the rich red of the salmon flesh is not blurred. Put salmon into beater bowl (or blender) with the cream cheese, lemon juice, horseradish, onion, salt and sauces and beat (or blend) until perfectly smooth. Turn out into small round bowl, cover with Saran and chill until firm. Mix and sprinkle nuts and parsley on a large sheet of heavy wax paper. Tip firm salmon pate out onto them and roll it in the nut-parsley mixture to coat. Shape into a ball. Flatten top. Place on fancy serving plate and chill again. At party time surround with a border of fancy crackers and pass with a cheese knife.

Hostesses: Please clip this for use at Christmas parties for it is popular and different.

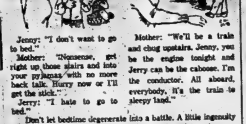
GAMMA MU CHAPTER

On Tuesday, December 1, the Christmas meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter was held at the home of Mrs. C. Rowbotham.

The business portion of the meeting was highlighted by renewed discussion of the possibility of joining Quinte Arts Council. The decision not to join made at the last meeting, was rescinded and it was decided to pay the $10 membership fee, and to send Mrs. G. Bailey as representative to board meetings. The business meeting was concluded by Mrs. J. Sherry reading a Christmas poem written by local poetess Laura Simpson.

Mrs. C. Rowbotham introduced Mrs. V. Zubacs who presented a brief program on drugs.



Mrs. Zubacs was thanked by Mrs. P. Anderson.

Following the program, wine was served by the social committee and gifts were exchanged between members and their secret sisters. A Christmas cookie and candy sale was held and $38 was raised for the chapter.

The evening was brought to a conclusion when the hostess and co-hostess served coffee and hot mince tarts a la mode.

Points for Parents

Jenny: "I don't want to go to bed."

Mother: "Nonsense, get right up there this minute and into your pyjamas with no more back talk. Hurry now or I'll get the stick."

Jenny: "I hate to go to bed."

Mother: "We'll be a train and chug upstairs. Jenny, you be the engine tonight and Jerry can be the caboose. I'm the conductor. All aboard, everybody. It's the train to sleepy land."

Don't let bedtime degenerate into a battle. A little ingenuity can help the day end on a merry, happy note.

Commission Just A Step in Creating Equal Opportunities for Women

OTTAWA (CP) — While the royal commission on the status of women was holding its public hearings in 1968, some persons thought it was designed to siphon off energies by giving women a chance to air their gripes in public and then go home happy.

Not so, says the commission's report. The commission was just a step in creating the climate for equal opportunity.

The commission has proposed three new bodies: Implementation committees, a human rights commission for every province and the federal government, and a national status of women council. The council's task would plan how to put into effect the 167 recommendations.

Meanwhile, a human rights commission, independent of government, would have wide powers designed to protect all Canadians, not just women. It would need special divisions for at least seven to 10 years to [illegible] with discrimination against women.

[illegible]otia, New Brunswick and British Columbia have human rights commissions operating in relation to their labor departments. But the report describes this set-up as inadequate since governments themselves may sometimes be the offenders.

And because social customs relegating women to an inferior position may live on even when anti-discrimination laws are scrupulously observed, the commission feels there is a need for a status of women council as a permanent body.

The council should operate under an independent, appointed board but report annually to Parliament. It would undertake research on matters relevant to women, propose legislation and policy, consult provincial women's bureaus and voluntary organizations and form a link with the UN.

Airlines Should Drop 'Bunny Club' Philosophy

OTTAWA (CP)-Airlines should drop the "bunny club" philosophy they apply to stewardesses and eliminate sex discrimination in conditions of employment for air crews, says the royal commission on the status of women.

Its report, tabled in the Commons Monday, says the commission is concerned about "inequitable" terms of employment that restrict stewardesses' tenure to 10 years with no equivalent deadlines for stewards and pursers.

"Everyone who uses the airlines knows that the stewardesses are young and attractive," it said.

It quotes from a brief presented in Vancouver by the Canadian Air Line Flight Attendants' Association that said when youth and glamor have premium over experience and maturity, it is "exploitation of sex, in its worst form."

Guaranteed Annual Income

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on the status of women recommended Monday a guaranteed annual income for men and women who are heads of one-parent families.

"We recognize in principle the benefits of a guaranteed annual income for all Canadians," the commission says.

"As a first step the income should be granted where the need is greatest, that is to single parents and especially to sole-support mothers who as a group represent a major category among the nation's poor."

The commission says a frequent objection to the proposal is that it would encourage husbands to desert as their families could receive the guaranteed annual income.

In answer, the commission endorsed a proposal by the Ontario law reform commission that family courts take over the job of collecting and assessing payments from the deserter.

The report said that 39 per cent of one-parent families are headed by women. More than a third could be described as poor.

"Too often elderly women, single or widowed, are left behind in our society. Thousands are living lives of loneliness and deprivation. While not starving, they are undernourished. . . ."

The guaranteed income supplement to the old age security benefits should be increased until the old person's annual income rises above the poverty level and should be adjusted to the cost-of-living index.

The commission said it was surprised to find that about 258,000 women living alone or in households where they are not related to the family have an average income below $1,749. One in five was between 14 and 24.

While many were students who could expect to have a higher income eventually, many were part of the working poor or the transient unemployed and not qualified to earn adequate salaries.

Of particular concern are the young girls who move from rural areas to urban centres. The report recommends a network of hostels with counselling on training and job opportunities.

Free Training Plans Urged

OTTAWA (CP)-Girls should be admitted to Canada's military colleges, says the royal commission on the status of women.

About 450 men but no women are admitted every year to Canada's three military colleges at which free tuition and living expenses are provided in return for four years service in the armed forces after graduation.

The report, tabled in the Commons Monday, also says that the federal government could provide similar funds for men and women for university training in return for a commitment to work in a developing area such as Canada's North after graduation.

In a chapter on women and education, the commission says Canadian girls are being subtly influenced by textbooks portraying women as passive creatures with limited choices in life. The commission calls this "sex typing" and says it is found in the educational system from kindergarten on.

The report says provincial education departments should try to stop using textbooks that underplay or ignore women's creative and intellectual powers.

As an example of a career that should be open to women, the commission recommends that the Canadian satellite telecommunications system hire women professionally.

The report calls for a research program to find out why fewer girls than boys participate in sports programs and suggests that when this is known remedial action should be taken under the Fitness and Amateur Sport Act.

In relation to Indian and Eskimo women's education, the commission recommends that governments:

—Open management training programs in operation of co-operatives and small businesses to native women.

—Encourage them to sit on school advisory boards.

—Train them as teachers and teachers' aides.

—Make available courses to provide literacy in English or French.

—Include individual women and couples in educational trips to southern Canada.

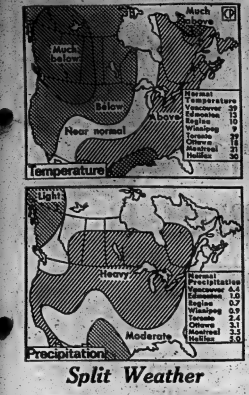
—Train public officials in culture, history and language of native people they are serving.

—Provide courses at teachers' colleges in native culture and languages.

Get through Christmas on it.

CHARGEX

One of the things that we designed the Chargex Card for is taking care of emergencies. Things that crop up when you're not expecting them.



Christmas just happens to be an emergency that crops up even though you are expecting it.

And it's one time of the year when your Chargex Card can really help out. Mostly by helping you pick up some of the little things. Like a scarf for aunt Betty. A tie for uncle Chuck. Or for some of the odds and ends that you always forget until the last minute.

And by using the Chargex budget system, you can take care of everything with convenient installments over the next few months.

This way, you'll not only get through Christmas, you can even enjoy it.

Chargex. Count on it.

Split Weather

Eastern Canada will have above-normal temperature readings, while the rest of the country receives below-normal readings for December according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau. Precipitation will be heavy throughout Ontario and portions of the Prairies, with moderate readings expected elsewhere. (CP-Newsmap)

Manitoba NDP Victory Came Too Soon, Claim

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's New Democratic Party government is not really a government at all, but an opposition to the province's capitalist power structure, Cy Gonick, MLA for Crescentwood, said Monday.

Mr. Gonick told about 250 students at the University of Manitoba, where he was sharing the platform with James Lazer, of Kingston, Waffle candidate for the national leadership of the NDP, that Premier Ed Schreyer, MLA for Crescentwood, said er's government is in trouble "because it is isolated in the legislature."

Allore Case Factor in Separate School Vote

mation then that he has since obtained.

In the large ward comprising separate school supporters from Sidney north to Marmora and Lake townships, the brother of the suspended superintendent, Ernest F. Allore, ran second to incumbent trustee Mrs. Lillian O'Connor.

The light vote and endorsement by municipal politicians seemed to work against the two public school board candidates who are not incumbent trustees.

L. A. Kells, retired superintendent with the Hastings county board of education who was publically supported by Mayor J. Russell Scott, trailed in sixth place in the seven-man race for five seats on the county board.

Ron Lee, who had Ald. Art Keegan campaigning for him, finished last.

Paul Fleming, who placed fourth in the separate school board election for five Belleville seats, also was endorsed by Ald. Keegan.

But Mr. Fleming gave three reasons for his election and the defeat of all but one incumbent member of the present board.

"The public is dissatisfied with the Allore situation coming up such a short time before the election," he said with reference to the Dec. 3 public meeting of the board.

"This vote was a strong bid by the anti-board group and it was cast with the general idea of voting for harmony and peace and change."

Everett Fairman, a retired public school principal led the polls for the second time in the county board elections. His support appeared to come from all parts of the city, with a heavy vote being cast for him in the district around H. J. Clarke School where he was principal at the time of his retirement.

The next two candidates, Macdonald Smith and Mrs. Miriam Graham, also appeared to gather city-wide support. James Clarke, incumbent chairman of the board, made his heaviest gains in the western section of the city, around Sir Mackenzie Bowell School, in Parkdale, and in the eastern suburbs of the city.

Nolan McKibbon also drew support from the west and north of the city. Defeated candidates L. A. Kells drew few votes outside the centre of the city, but gained support around Albert College Manor and along Dundas St. West.

The Park Dale and Sir Mackenzie Bowell School districts also gave heavy endorsement to Mr. Chapelle and Mr. Granville.

But, over-all, the vote reflected a city-wide attitude against the present board.

"This proves that board business is not a private affair," said defeated separate school board candidate Gerard Brennan as he watched the returns go up on the board at city hall. "The people are up to date on what is going on and they want to have a say in it."

The vote was also a test of strength between the suspended superintendent and the trustees.

Incumbent trustee Paul Mercier, who wasn't in the running this year, turned up at the almost-deserted city hall council chambers to express his disgust at the apathy of electors.

In Belleville, 48 per cent of the 2,800 separate school supporters turned out to vote, but only 28 per cent of the 13,000 public school supporters cast ballots.

The voters didn't turn out in Belleville — but neither did the candidates. Not one public school candidate bothered to go to City Hall for the return last night. The number of people in council chambers never reached a total of ten at any one time during the evening.

The voter's record was similar. In one Hillcrest area not one of 174 eligible voters cast a ballot. In one poll, Everett Fairman topped all candidates — with two votes.

Feeling among veteran political observers was that candidates can't blame voters for lack of interest when they themselves "didn't put anything into it."

In centres where municipal elections were held simultaneously with school board elections, the turnout was higher. But the results were the same — the incumbents returned to office.

Incumbent board chairman James Clarke said this morning that either "the public is apathetic or it approved our record."

Deputy returning officers who brought their ballot boxes to city hall last night said they were shocked at the poor turnout at the polls.

One begged that the figures not be published because she was "ashamed of Belleville."

Another suggested that anyone who failed in vote should be disbarred from casting a ballot at the next two elections.

City clerk Adam Stalker, who acted as a returning officer in the Belleville school board elections, said young people didn't turn out at the polls. Most voters were in the over-30 age group, with the second largest percentage in the 40 to 50 year-old group.

"And it's not the people who are doing the complaining who are coming out to vote," noted one deputy returning officer at a suburban polling subdivision with over 400 on its voters' lists.

Single New Face on Sidney Council

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

One new face for Sidney township council emerged last night with slightly more than one third of the total voting population reaching the polls.

Incumbent Reeve Jack Bush again defeated his opponent Ernest Kells with a total of 871 votes, a majority of 121 votes. Previous defeat of Mr. Kells in 1968 was reached by a slim margin of 50 votes.

The new face on council is Hadley Richardson, whose 711 vote standing was third of four contenders.

Majority votes went to incumbent Reg. McCarty, 930 votes, and 772 to incumbent Glen Meyers.

Frank Meyers was fourth with a total of 595 votes, losing his bid for council.

Advance polls gave an accurate prediction of the outcome of this position, even to the order of finish.

The 12 wards in Sidney township are divided to all points of the compass, and this proved to be a dividing point for votes, especially for the position of reeve.

Up until 9:30 last night, Reeve Bush was trailing by slightly more than 100 votes. But the arrival of results from the north - central and north ridings, "my best ridings," the reeve claimed, pulled the incumbent ahead by a narrow margin supplemented by a boost in the 12th with an 86 vote lead.

The tide slowly began to turn with results from the 8th riding, that of the town hall, situated right in the centre.

From there a steady increase led Mr. Bush over the top.

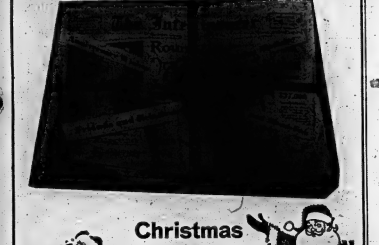
"Everybody was telling me I'd walk away with it (the election)."

"No way," I said it's been pretty tense."

The reeve was asked if he had doubts as to the result. "I thought I'd make it but I knew it would be close."

In an address to more than 200 residents, Mr. Bush thanked his supporters and helpers and expressed pleasure that "I can carry on with the work of the area service board and the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board."

As ex-reeve of Sidney Township himself, Mr. Kells threw a lighter note to the events of the evening.



"I can go home and sleep now . . . I don't have any worries."

In a more serious vein, he requested residential support for the council and advised residents to bring their problems before council.

"If you have problems come to them (the council) . . . don't talk around behind them."

Of the 4,838 eligible voters in the township, 1,765 turned up a the polls, a fact that was disappointing to township officials.

Jim Easton got a Commerce Bankplan loan and separated the boys from the boys.

Jim had four rambunctious boys and only one room for them to sleep in. Now, he needed to turn the TV room into another bedroom.

His first move was to the Commerce. Where he asked for a Bankplan loan.

We sat down with Jim and found out how much furniture, rugs, and re-decorating the room would cost. Then we set up a monthly repayment plan that his budget could afford.

This kind of planned personal service is why we call it a Bankplan loan.

Whether you need money to make room for an expanding family or to plan for the education of a teenage daughter or son, we'd like to help with a carefully worked out Bankplan loan.

Two Upsets in Hastings' Reeveship Races

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A pair of upset victories for reeveships featured election contests yesterday in two Hastings county municipalities.

And in several other municipalities incumbent reeves stayed off campaigns by former council heads in strong comeback bids.

In Ringgerford township incumbent William McCrea went down to defeat at the hands of former reeve R. Chesson Graham who had a 61 vote margin over his opponent.

And in the village of Bancroft, former deputy reeve Mrs. Audrey Scramith beat out incumbent Earl Hawley in an upset vote.

And in Dungannon township Reeve Calvin White retained the comeback bid of former reeve Tracey Adams.

The election in both Wellington and Dungannon were hotly contested and save a possible record turnout of voters with close to 80 per cent of the eligible voters going to the polls.

Although there was acclamation for all council seats in only a relatively few municipalities, there seemed to be general satisfaction with incumbent council heads as no less than 29 reeve or deputy reeves were elected without contest.

In two municipalities — the town of Deseronto and the combined townships of Tudor and Cashel — reeves are in the middle of two or three year terms so no election for council head was necessary.

In Deseronto Reeve George Lyons and in Tudor and Cashel, Reeve Ross Sprackett still have another year to serve on their terms.

But in other municipalities many of the reeves received acclamation while there were elections for councils.

Townships returning council heads by acclamation were as follows:

Thurlow — Reeve Horace Casey and Deputy Reeve Borden Forsythe; Rawdon — Reeve Ray Sherit and Deputy Reeve Murray Reigh; Huntingdon — Reeve Russel Sills and Deputy Reeve George Wood; Tyendinaga — Reeve Carman Gilmore and Deputy Reeve Leonard Walsh; Madoc township — Reeve Cecil Weeks; Elzevir and Grimsthorpe — Reeve Kenneth Smith; Limerick — Reeve Morton Hamm; Mayo—Reeve Ray Hannah; Montegle — Reeve S. J. Carr; Herschel — Reeve Kenneth Fisk; McClure, Wicklow and Bangor — Reeve Delmont Card.

Villages to return reeves by acclamation were Stirling — Robert Anderson; Madoc — Thomas Burnside; Marmora — John Reynolds; Tweed — Barbara Allen; Frankford — William Rose; and Bancroft — Jack B. Brown.

Detailed results are as follows:

Bancroft

Former deputy reeve Mrs. Audrey Scramith won the comeback victory at the polls here yesterday defeating incumbent Earl Hawley in an upset victory. Mrs. Scramith, who passed up a nomination to run for local board, polled 280 votes to Mr. Hawley's 238.

Reeve Jack Brown was acclaimed by acclamation.

Elected to village council were Mrs. Rae Cantwell, 463, John Hattin 442, and Russell Hawley, 296.

William Coffey with 308 votes and Thomas O'Malley with 240 were defeated.

Carlow

Incumbent reeve Mack Douglas was returned for another term as council head in Carlow township yesterday in an election which saw close to 80 per cent of the residents voters going to the polls.

Mr. Douglas defeated newcomer George Lackey by an almost three to one margin — 134 to 49 votes.

There was an extremely close contest for the four council seats with Kenneth Wilson heading the polls with 122 votes. Other successful candidates were Gordon Mayhew, 111, Clevelan Caverly 109 and newcomer Dean Foster with 102. Present councillor Basil Wilson was defeated with 99 votes.

Deloro

Incumbent Reeve Charles Gordanier won re-election by a wide margin yesterday defeating Cletus Green by 72 votes to 71.

The municipal election was highlighted by an almost 100 per cent turnout and also by the fact that the deciding vote was cast by township clerk Mrs. Bernice Young to break the tie for the last place on council.

After a two year absence, Donald Lynch returned to the head the polls for council with 81 votes. Others elected to council were Alphons Clement 65, Ray Brown 58 and Leonard Bicknell.

Mr. Bicknell and Eric Mc Laney were tied with 57 votes on the day's balloting and it was when neither candidate wished for a recount, the clerk-treasurer cast the deciding ballot in favor of Mr. Bicknell.

Other defeated candidates were Clayton Cole, 28 and Costan Parscuik, 16.

Dungannon

Incumbent reeve Calvin White turned back a comeback effort by former reeve R. Tracey Adams in yesterday's municipal election which saw no less than 11 candidates contest council seats.

Mr. White received 132 votes to Mr. Adams 122. Approximately 80 per cent of the eligible voters cast their ballots.

Elected to council were Laird Eagan, 164, Gordon Card, 144, Oscar Sprague, 139, Edward Wood, 84, Eugene Shaw 67 and John McLean 63.

Elzevir and Grimsthorpe

Elzevir and Grimsthorpe township council has one new member as a result of yesterday's municipal election in which only council seats were up for election.

Reeve Kenneth Smith received acclamation for another term.

Elected to council were Kenneth Cassidy, 184, Joe Kirker, 170, Carl Gordon (new) 158, and Ed Alexander, 147, Charles Rawlins, newcomer, was the election field was defeated with 134 votes.

Frankford

Frankford village council has one new member for the next term as a result of Monday's municipal election which saw three incumbents and one newcomer elected.

Incumbents winning re-election were Marvin Dafoe, Kenneth Lawrence and Mrs. Muriel Rabel. The newcomer elected was Barry Wickett.

Incumbent councillor Carman Mickel was defeated. There was a turnout of about 70 per cent of the voters.

William F. Rose received acclamation for another term as reeve, while George Montgomery and H. Willmot Rose were acclaimed as public utility commissioners.

Hungerford

Former Reeve Clarence Graham scored an upset victory here yesterday turning back incumbent reeve William McCrea in his bid for re-election. Mr. Graham polled a total of 550 votes as against Mr. McCrea's 489.

Stanton Cassidy received acclamation as deputy reeve.

The new council were Gary Hunt with 458, Vincent Lynch, 474 and Ray Phillips 461.

Defeated candidates were Marcellus LaBarge, 408, Fred Preston 368, and Anthony Van Alpen, 101.

Madoc Village

A recount for the fourth position on village council will be necessary in this village as result of Monday's election which saw two new members elected.

Newcomer Kelvin Kincaid headed the polls with 201 votes. Incumbent Mel Caverly polled 282 and newcomer Clayton Smith received 252.

Tied for fourth place were newcomer Robert Kirkwood and incumbent Bruce White both with 250.

Defeated were Harry Rose 185 and newcomer Arold Ross with 183.

Clerk Treasurer Miss Olive Ashe said that a recount to decide the fourth place on council would be conducted Thursday by County Judge J. C. Anderson. The election saw a good turnout with 578 voters of an eligible 779 casting the ballots.

Marmora & Lake

Incumbent John Wilbur, warden of Hastings county for 1970, won re-election as reeve of Marmora and Lake township yesterday, narrowly defeating newcomer Graham Bell for the office. Reeve Wilbur received 335 votes with Mr. Bell receiving 313.

Elected for council in a hotly contested election were Scotty Cooke, 357, Gordon Brown 323, Fred Clemens 308 and Bob Drummond, 231.

Defeated were candidates F. Bird, 304, Clemens, 181, Davies 181, Mrs. M. Maloney 156, Wilson, 103 and William Johnson, 38.

McClure, Wicklow and Bangor

With reeve Delmont Card returned by acclamation for another term of office, only council members were up for election Monday in Hastings townships. The three townships send one reeve to county council.

Elected in yesterday's election were Brenton Hall, Buckley, 159; Watson 157 and Fertile 141. Defeated were William 126 and Donaldson with 98.

Stirling

Maurice Montgomery headed the polls for village council here yesterday, receiving a total of 435 votes or more than a 70-vote margin over his nearest competitor.

Other councillors for the next term are Edward Kinsman, 363, Fred Brandy 321, and Douglas Beasley 297.

Maurice Faulkner with 290 and Arthur MacConnell with 282 were the defeated candidates.

Robert Anderson was acclaimed as reeve, taking the position left vacant by Donald Rodgers who in turn received acclamation for public utilities. The other acclaimed PUC member is Robert Hatton.

Tweed

With no election for reeve or public utilities, only a comparatively small turnout of voters was seen yesterday to elect councillors for the new term.

Reeve Barbara Allen received acclamation for reeve as did Cathie Cassidy and James Halpenny for public utilities commission.

New councillors are Charles W. Cassidy, 379, J. H. Thompson 362, Donald Champagne 354 and Elias Wright, 342.

Defeated candidates were Donald Hodgins 311 and Walter Harkness 256.

Tyendinaga

Former Hastings county warden Charles Gang was the made a successful comeback to council a few years ago headed the polls for council in Tyendinaga township yesterday.

Councillor Long polled a total of 498 votes, while newcomer Kenneth Joby of Shannonville received 327 and incumbent George Hatherwick 318.

Defeated candidates were Ray Hunt, 308, Ray Callaghan 279 and William Cooney, 182.

Clerk-treasurer William Walsh reported a turnout of about 50 per cent of the voters in a contest which saw elections only for council and school board.

Wollaston

Reeve Albert Vader was returned to office for another term here yesterday defeating councillor Howard Gunter in a relatively close fight. Mr. Vader received 139 votes to Mr. Gunter's 119.

Three of this year's councillors were also returned to office in a close fight which saw newcomer Russell Moore lead the polls with 184 votes.

Other winners were Frank Graham, 177, Aubrey Aggett, 171 and Clarence Bainbridge, with 162.

Buddy French was defeated with 160 votes.

Wollaston township clerk Howard Whitemore said it was the biggest voting turnout in his experience.

Belleville Board Faces Are All New But One

The face of Belleville's representation on the Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board changed last night.

Only one incumbent trustee — Msgr. James Sullivan—was returned for another two-year term, and topped the polls with 559 votes.

The remaining four members elected to the board, although one, Paul Fleming, served on previous Belleville separate school boards and was a separate school representative on the first Hastings county board of education. He ran fourth with 362 votes.

Another three - elected trustees Zdenek Kvarda, who ran second with 469 votes, John Granville, third with 447 votes and Joseph Chapelle fifth with 379 votes.

Biggest upset was the defeat of board chairman E. J. Buckley, who ran sixth with 303 votes. Separate school trustee, he was finishing his tenth term as a chairman of separate school boards.

The remaining incumbent trustees whose term of office expires Dec. 31, 1970, were all defeated. They are Mrs. Jean Wilson, eighth with 237 votes, Robert Lucy, ninth with 202 votes, and Paul Wall tenth, with 124 votes.

Two other newcomers to school board elections, Gerard Brennan and James Wyatt, also were defeated. Mr. Brennan came seventh, polling 338 votes and Mr. Wiseman was eleventh in the running with 123 votes.

Paul Mercier, one of six Belleville trustees on the first Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board declined to run this year for health reasons. Belleville's 6 trustee position on the board was cut this year from six to five trustees.

Voting was light — the lightest in the memory of veteran deputy returning officers in the city. Msgr. Sullivan, who polled the most votes, averaged just under eight votes for each of the 70 Belleville polls. There are 3,600 separate school supporters eligible to vote in the city.

New trustees bring a varied background to their new job.

Mr. Kvarda is a supervisor with Ericsson Sec Products and a graduate of Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto. He resigned as chairman of Belleville and Suburban Planning Board to run for election.

Mr. Granville-is a newcomer to the city as well as to school board politics. He came here two years ago as administrator at the federal government's Research Institute and is now a teacher of history at Prince Edward Collegiate in Picton.

Mr. Chapelle has been with the CNR for 19 years.

Piasecki Holdings Are Sold

PICTON (Staff) — A Canadian director of Piasecki Aircraft, Richard Bird announced yesterday that the Philadelphia - based helicopter company has sold its holdings at the former Camp Picton.

Mr. Bird stated that negotiations for the transfer of 600 acres of property, once a part of the military base phased out more than a year ago, will be completed this week. He declined to name the purchaser and said that the purchase price has not yet been agreed upon. The spokesman for Frank H. Piasecki added that six hangars, an airfield and associated workshops and buildings are included in the sale.

The land formerly owned by Piasecki Aircraft adjoins the property and buildings recently purchased by the provincial government for development as a mental health site for the mentally retarded. It was announced last week by Donald E. Earland, head of the Mental Retardation Branch of the Mental Health Division, Ontario Dept. of Health that patients will arrive at the newly converted hospital early next month.

Piasecki Aircraft bought its Prince Edward County holdings from the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation approximately 18 months ago.

Congratulations

Two new trustees on the Hastings - Prince Edward separate school board turned up at city hall last night to meet the people — and found council chamber deserted. So Zdenek Kvarda and Paul Fleming shook hands with each other.

A total of four candidates — all for the separate school board — showed up during the evening.

Many New Faces on Prince Edward County Councils, Boards

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Municipal elections in Prince Edward County yesterday underphasized a keen towards new of Picton for the last nine years and a former county warden, was defeated in his bid for re-election by Albert Pitoh, a newcomer to this community.

A real estate agent now retired from the Royal Canadian Air Force following 30 years of service, Mr. Pitoh, 61, was mayor of Middleton Park near Trenton for two years. He defeated Mr. Hepburn in yesterday's election with a majority of 139 votes.

Picton electors also marked ballots in a liquor plebescite yesterday and provided the 60 per cent majority vote necessary to make the town "wet."

Complete election results are as follows. Albert Pitoh was successful in his bid for years and a former county warden, was defeated in his bid for re-election by Albert Pitoh, a newcomer to this community.

A real estate agent now retired from the Royal Canadian Air Force following 30 years of service, Mr. Pitoh, 61, was mayor of Middleton Park near Trenton for two years. He defeated Mr. Hepburn in yesterday's election with a majority of 139 votes.

Picton electors also marked ballots in a liquor plebescite yesterday and provided the 60 per cent majority vote necessary to make the town "wet."

Complete election results are as follows. Albert Pitoh was successful in his bid for Picton's reeveship defeating incumbent Bernard Hepburn by 939 votes to 792.

James Bird, a town councillor for 12 years and chairman of the fire committee, soundly defeated opponent Archie Rogers in a race for the office of deputy-reeve scoring 1,079 votes to his rival's 635.

Six council seats were filled by contenders Harry Abram, William Lane, Harold McLoughlin, Bessie Ward, Corey Walraven and Ross Cronkwright. Defeated in a bid for election was newcomer J. L. Kinney.

William Lane led the polls for councillor with 1,161 votes followed by Harold McLoughlin with 966. Mr. Kinney trailed with 619 votes. Councillors Walraven and Cronkwright both sought municipal office for the first time in yesterday's election.

Picton representatives to the Prince Edward County board of education by acclamation were Mrs. Ruth Hart and Lloyd Seeley.

Separate school trustees by acclamation was Jerry Bond.

Public Utilities Commissioners by acclamation were Jack Ward and Gordon Nourse.

In a liquor plebiscite held in conjunction with the election, 680 voters (60.27 per cent) favored serving liquor in a licensed liquor lounge while 425 opposed it. Liquor served in dining lounges was approved by 782 voters (70.71 per cent) while 233 voted "no."

In South Marysburg, township reeve Allan Bailey lost his seat in the election to opponent Clifford Walker. The incumbent reeve scored 102 votes while Mr. Walker earned 137. Councillors by acclamation are Joseph McAllen, Lewis Brubacek, Bernard Keough and Sidney Drury. School trustee by acclamation is Agnes Pierson.

A contest for the reeveship with incumbent Gerald Cronkwright the victor with 638 votes to opponent Fred Stafford's score of 390. Mr. Stafford formerly was deputy reeve of Hallowell and is succeeded by Keith MacDonald, deputy reeve by acclamation. Councillors by acclamation are William Rutherford, David Taylor and Fred Welsh. A special vote for school trustees saw incumbents Edward Rutter and Douglas Caley returned to office beating contenders E. D. Turkington, Micheline Mallory and William West. Mr. Rutter earned 554 votes and Mr. Caley 548 while Mrs. Mallory trailed with 304.

In Wellington, councillors K. Barnett, William Greer, Cecil Insley and Robert Boyce were returned to office. Mr. Boyce led the polls with 387 votes while contender H. Hiles trailed with 142. No close race for two PUC members saw candidate Rose Bovay defeated by one vote. Opponent Hilton Hagerman tied to a win with 176 votes to Mr. Bovay's 175. Frank Brimacombe earned 221 votes in his unsuccessful bid for a seat on the PUC.

Two plebescites were conducted in connection with the election, one concerning fire protection and the other extending Sunday hours. Ballots in favor of township fire protection and 220 against it. A wine extension was approved by 453 persons while 117 voted against it.

A narrow margin of three votes declared Hutton Martin Athol's representative to the county board of education. He defeated opponent Mrs. Malcolm Dulmage who garnered 211 votes.

A contest for Athol's reeveship saw incumbent Keith Brummell re-elected with 274 votes to Fred Dan Nielsen's 155. Councillors by acclamation are Harry Evans, Leland Shoemaker, Vernon Armstrong, and Keith Perry.

In Hillier the race for deputy-reeve was won by Lewis Wight with 318 votes. He downed opponent Ralph Marshall who had 177 votes. Councillors elected were Bruce Ferguson with 300 votes, Donald Sexton with 208, and Robin Adair with 166.

In Sidney Mitchell and North Marysburg, reeves, councillors and school trustees were returned by acclamation.

Ali Proves Stamina

Bonavena Walks Into Last-round Haymakers

NEW YORK (CP) — Mohammad Ali proved several things when he scored a 15th-round technical knockout over Oscar Bonavena in Madison Square Garden Monday night.

He proved he could come back after being in dire straits; he proved he had the stamina, after his 3½-year absence from the ring, to go the distance, and he proved to the dismay of his partisan supporters that his face could be marked. But did he prove he is ready for Joe Frazier, the recognized world heavyweight champion?

Bonavena said he will bet all his money on Ali and Frazier had better watch out: Ali said he can't wait, and Frazier said: "I'll be ready for him so he had better put on his dancing shoes."

So, if all goes well, the scene is set for the most lucrative boxing extravaganza in history — a $10 million-plus promotion. The Garden, and a few other promoters, have their fingers crossed that they may be the successful bidder.

Paduano Gets Own Medicine

NEW YORK (CP) — Donato Paduano, Canadian welterweight champion from Montreal, was given some of his own medicine Monday night and went down to his first defeat in 23 fights, losing a unanimous 10-round decision to lightweight champion Ken Buchanan of Scotland in a non-title fight at Madison Square Garden.

"I've never met anyone as fast as him," Paduano said after the fight.

Some of Paduano's 23 victims said the same thing after meeting the 21-year-old Italian-Canadian.

Paduano won his first 22 fights as a professional with his lightning hands and constant attack on his way to the Canadian championship and a No. 3 position in the world welterweight rankings.

Buchanan showed even more speed than Paduano Monday night and also eluded the fast Montrealer with lightning footwork and amazing bobbing and weaving on his way to a lopsided decision in the one-sided battle to the fight between Muhammad Ali, former world heavyweight champion, and Oscar Bonavena of Argentina.

Referee Zack Clayton scored the fight eight rounds for Buchanan, one round for Paduano and three even. Judge Joe Eppy had it 6-3-1 and judge Jack Gleason scored it 8-2.

The Canadian Press had it 7-3 for Buchanan.

A dejected Paduano, interviewed after the fight, made no claim to victory but said the margin was not as large as the judges scored it.

Paduano now has a 22-1 won-lost record. Buchanan, who won the lightweight title in an upset split decision over Ismael Laguna in San Juan, Puerto Rico, Sept. 26, has a 38-1 record.

Buchanan, a slim boxer dressed in tartan trunks, backed away from Paduano during most of the fight but outgunned the young Canadian with lightning left jabs and straight rights. On a couple of occasions when Paduano pressed Buchanan against the ropes, the crafty Scot put on a display of bobbing and weaving that had Paduano missing almost every punch.

Paduano's best rounds were the fourth—when he seemed to be catching up to Buchanan—and the 10th when he launched an all-out drive to knock out the lightweight champion and failed. On the CP card he also won the third.

Circuit Fans Squint

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The groans emanating from Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto Monday night lacked the enthusiasm promoter Frank Tunney's professional wrestlers put into their work on the Sunday night cards.

But more than 7,000 boxing fans made their point after squatting through 15 rounds of shadow shadows on the giant screens that were supposed to transport a heavyweight boxing match from Madison Square Garden in New York.

Few, if any, could distinguish the rapid lefts and left-right combinations executed by Muhammad Ali in the 15th and final round as he pummelled Argentina's Oscar Bonavena into submission.

Even before the main event started, Bell Telephone spokesman disclaimed any responsibility for the Gardens breakdown which was traced to three transistors that blew just before the semi-final event between Scotland's world champion lightweight, Ken Buchanan, and Canadian welterweight champion Donato Paduano of Montreal was to be shown.

Two of the tubes were replaced before the main event, after the Scotsman had disposed of Paduano with a 10-round unanimous decision, but one for the power circuit remained out and technicians were forced to rig a circuit around it.

Although there were about 20 colored TV sets throughout the Gardens monitoring the fight in the halls, most of the crowd that paid a record $8.50 a seat for an event of this nature stuck to their seats and squinted.

Many lined up later outside to get their money refunded but were told there were no complaints would have to be registered today.

Browns Back In Contention

HOUSTON (AP) — Coach Blanton Collier says his Cleveland Browns have been lacking "little something" up to now.

He referred to their 31-10 victory over Houston Oilers Monday night which boosted the Browns back into a tie for the lead in the American Football Conference's Coastal Division.

A standing-room-only Astrodome crowd of 50,582 at the game saw the Oilers mathematically eliminated from the Central Division title chase. The Oilers now are 3-8-1 for the year and 1½ games behind Cleveland and Cincinnati Bengals, who are tied for the top at 4-4. Each club has two games remaining.

The Browns spotted the Oilers a 3-0 first-quarter lead and then came back to take a 21-3 lead before Houston managed to score its only touchdown with less than two minutes remaining.

Cleveland used the timely passing of Bill Nelsen and the slashing runs of Leroy Kelly to wear down the Oilers. The Browns also employed a stubborn defence when they needed it.

Nelsen completed 15 of 27 passes for 161 yards and one touchdown. His touchdown was a one-yarder to Gary Collins.

Kelly, one of the National Football League's all-time rushing greats, carried 20 times for 108 yards and scored on a one-yard sweep around right end. Bo Scott, former Canadian Football League player with Ottawa Rough Riders, added the other Cleveland touchdown on a two-yard run.

Houston's points came on a 63-yard field goal by Roy Gerela, a Powell, B.C. native, and a nine-yard pass from substitute quarterback Jerry Rhome to Jim Beirne.

"Three weeks rest, three weeks training, six weeks and I'll be ready for Frazier."

That, unofficially, was Ali's timetable for his long-awaited fight against Frazier for the world heavyweight title.

Ali was slightly marked under the right eye after the fight, the first time he had been marked during his career. He now is 21-0 Bonavena, who suffered his first knockout in his career, is 17-7-1. Ali weighed 212 and Bonavena 204.

"I did have trouble in the late rounds," Ali said. "I was tired, but it was my skill, timing and stamina that pulled me through.

"I needed the work. It was the type of fight to see if I could go the distance, to see if I could take a punch and give one."

He chided reporters, many of whom had wondered in print if Ali still had the punch to handle Frazier.

At Monticello, N.Y., Frazier said Ali was "right on target" with the left hook that started him on the way to his knockout over Bonavena in the 12th round.

Frazier watched the fight in New York's Madison Square Garden on a closed-circuit television screen at Monticello Raceway.

"That was a good round for Clay," Frazier said. "But until the 15th I had given Oscar every round. I thought Clay fought dirty, pushing Oscar around and everything like that."

The fight started out as a Pre-Six Special with Bonavena landing a left hook below the belt and Ali throwing Bonavena to the canvas. Bonavena repeated his first infraction and referee Mark Conn ordered the round taken away from him.

Clay connected with a couple of one-two combinations in the second round, but Bonavena kept bulling his way in and was connecting with wild left hooks near the end of the round.

The third round had the Macquis of Queensberry turning in his grave.

Ali heaved Bonavena through the ropes twice and taunted him throughout the round. The Argentine kept up his bull-like charges and was doing his own little dirty work on the clinches. But Ali was piling up the points despite the infractions on both sides.

Then, starting in the fourth, the Argentine started making the range. Bonavena nailed Ali with a wild left hook and after a little rough-house in the middle had Ali hanging on at the bell.

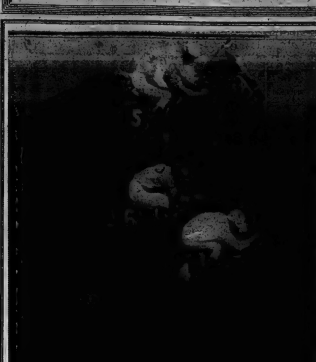
The trend continued until the ninth—the round that Ali predicted he would knock out Bonavena—and then the packed house in the Garden was treated to the wildest three minutes of boxing seen in many a day.

The crowd was on its feet when the round started, expecting Ali to come through as he had so many times before.

All staggered Bonavena with a savage left hook and looked as though the Argentine was on his way down. But when Ali appeared to move in to the finisher, he was nailed with a Bonavena right hand that had him in trouble.

The two battlers exchanged blows for a two-minute period with both being staggered several times and the packed house going wild. The final punch of the round was a solid left hook by Bonavena that caught Ali coming in.

Ali managed to stay away from Bonavena for the next four rounds, outboxing him along the way. And then came the unexpected finish.



Bonavena came charging out for the final round. Then out of nowhere, Ali exploded a left hook on the Argentine's jaw and he dropped like a fallen tree. He took the mandatory eight count and a left-right Ali combination laid him flat on his back again. Ali knocked him down again to automatically end the fight under the three-knockdown rule, but as Bonavena's corner was throwing the towel in, signalling defeat.

Ali's second fight in six weeks and his first in New York since he defended his heavyweight title as Cassius Clay, March 23, 1967, drew a crowd of 19,417, which paid a gross of $615,491.

With all of the receipts, counting closed-circuit television, Ali's 43% per cent could come to about $750,000, and Bonavena's chare upwards of $400,000 on his 22½ per cent.

Under New York rules, there was a mandatory eight-count for knockdowns, three knockdowns in a round terminated the bout, and eight-ounce gloves were used.

Nothing New

This triple dead heat for second place between Better Be Fast (2), Susan's Page (5), and Lara's Theme (6) at Greenwood Race Track last Thursday was originally thought to be the first in Canadian thoroughbred horse racing. Subsequent research, however, has revealed there was a triple dead heat Sept. 21, 1940 at Victoria's old Willows Park track. And that one was for first place!

Six Weeks For Frazier?

NEW YORK (AP) — "Three weeks rest, three weeks training, six weeks and I'll be ready for Frazier."

That, unofficially, was Muhammad Ali's timetable for his long-awaited fight against Joe Frazier for the world heavyweight title.

Ali was thinking ahead as he lay on the table in his dressing room, stretched out and being questioned by reporters after his stunning 15th-round knockout over Oscar Bonavena Monday night at Madison Square Garden.

"Frazier is not nearly as strong as Bonavena. He's easy to hit. He keeps coming in with his head out and you can hit him with jabs. You don't have to move as much for Frazier."

Bonavena, the Argentine heavyweight champion who had never been knocked out until Ali dropped him three times in the 15th, was a good comparison because he had twice given Frazier all he could handle before losing two decisions.

He, too, felt Ali would have an easier time with Frazier than with himself.

"This is the champion," he said minutes earlier when the two met the press in a show of friendship that ignored the name-calling of the pre-fight publicity buildup. "This man is much bombre, mucho hombre," he added in halting English.

All showed something Monday night he had never been called on to show before—stamina.

"I've heard all that talk about tiring early," he said, referring to his 3½-year layoff from the ring while he fought first being drafted into the military and now is fighting his conviction of draft evasion.

"I did have trouble in the late rounds. I was tired, but it was my skill, timing and stamina that pulled me through. I needed the work. It was the type of fight to see if I could go the distance, to see if I could take a punch and give one."

He had to prove it all against Bonavena, a gallant, 6-foot-1 underdog who Ali called "the best fighter I ever faced."

Bonavena, swinging from the heels many times after bull-like rushes, pursued Ali relentlessly. The fight turned into a rousing skirmish that had the crowd roaring.

"Look at the great shape the new Corollas are in."

We've changed our famous line of Toyota Corollas. They're bigger inside, a little longer and wider outside and a lot prettier all over. In fact we've changed everything except the high level of quality that's a part of every Toyota we build.

The Corollas are available in three models. A sleek, low slung Coupe, a two door sedan for the economy minded, and a roomy wagon for sport minded families. The engine is the rugged, well tried 73 horsepower overhead-valve four coupled to a four speed all synchromesh transmission or an optional automatic (coupe and 2 door only). We've also added front disc brakes for even safer, more controlled stops and of course, all the safety and luxury equipment at no extra cost. Fully reclining bucket seats, rear window defogger, collapsible steering column, heavy duty heater, upper level Fresh-flow ventilation with fan-boost, just to mention a few. Add Toyota's world-wide reputation for craftsmanship, a service organization second to none and owning a Corolla gives you a lot of beautiful sense. The Toyota Corolla Coupe, two door sedan and wagon. See them at your Toyota dealer (there are over 1000 in North America). Put yourself in great shape for just $1990. (2 door sedan).

City Wrestler Gets No Help From Canada

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The Russians are at it again.

Not content with getting outwheat and World Hockey Championships the Reds are now after our junior wrestling champions — for 14 days anyway.

However some rapid liaison by our Canadian government may have saved Shannonville's Harold Brant from the "scourge" of a Russian winter.

What actually happened is that the Soviet Government offered to cover all expenses for the 19 Canadian wrestling champions in a two week tour of Russia, where they could gain valuable international experience.

The only catch was that the guests had to provide their own transportation to and from Moscow.

The wrestlers received no support from Canada's government, despite the fact that a significant share of our Commonwealth Games medals were won in that sport.

Frederick Fairbairn, Canada's representative on the World Wrestling Federation, had won the tickets from Air Canada, with which he planned to send the junior wrestlers to Moscow. However one of the prized passbooks were utilized by Canadian EXECUTIVES, at a Montreal meeting in Calgary, with the result that two competitors had to be dropped from the trip.

The team decided to go without the two represents a tives in the most highly contested weight divisions, 191-pounds and heavyweight.

Harold Brant appeared to be missing a trip that he had planned on making since winning his Canadian title last June in Edmonton.

"It's criminal that the Russian government can foot the bill for putting our team for two weeks and Canada's won't even help with the transportation," fumed Moira physical education instructor Gord Smith, who is currently trying to procure funds for Brant, a Grade 13 Moira student.

"Another thing I can't see is why they wouldn't pay 50 per cent of everyone's fare, if they only have eight tickets, rather than dropping two wrestlers completely," he reasoned.

Moira wrestling coach Jim Hughes pointed out another aspect of the decision. "Many people think of wrestling as an individual sport," he explained, "but actually it isn't. It's how the team fares that matters. Sending only eight out of 19 wrestlers is like sending a four - man basketball team or 18 out of 13 football players.

"Air fare isn't the only expense facing Brant. Competitors must purchase a sweatsuit, wrestling gear, a navy blue blazer and grey flannels from their own funds, and are advised to have $25 dollars on hand in case of an emergency.

"We're approaching a number of groups that we hope will help us raise the necessary funds," notes Smith, while Harold can raise some of the money himself - we'll still need about $700." Return air fare to Moscow runs around $3M.

Among the groups approached for help are the Department of Indian Affairs, the Hastings County Council, the Bay of Quinte COSSA association and Belleville city council. A collection among the Moira Secondary staff members has already raised $70 towards the project.

Meanwhile Brant has been working over the summer and the high school football season ended in anticipation of making the trip.

"Harold's speed is his big asset," claims the coach, "he's strong, but not that strong. For a heavyweight, though, he's fast enough to execute moves that most of the others can't. Another factor in his favor is that he's not a prima donna. He's out to practice every night working just as hard as everyone else."

'Your Move'

Canadian junior heavyweight wrestling champion Harold Brant works out with Moira wrestling coach Jim Hughes in preparation for a planned trip to Moscow Dec. 21. Since only eight tickets were available for the ten Canadian champions, Brant is now faced with the task of raising the money to enable him to make the two week trip. The Moira Secondary School student won the Canadian title last June in Edmonton.

Will Mo-Hawks Hold Trump?

Belleville Mo-Hawks would normally be holding their weekly practice session tonight at the Memorial Arena. But there is nothing further from Kingston Acres' minds than a friendly scrimmage.

The Aces, who last weekend supplanted their hosts in fourth spot in Senior A standings, "will be out to widen their one-point gap when they visit the Mo-Hawks tonight at 8:45.

After a dismal start, including losing their first two games with the Mo-Hawks, the Aces caught fire, thanks to a few lineup additions — like defenceman Tom Thurby — and unexpected returns — like speedy centre Bob Clayton.

Meanwhile, the Mo-Hawks are in a four-of-five loss slump and are suffering from what coach Dave Jones diagnosed as early as training camp: a shortage of firepower.

The Mo-Hawks have scored only 61 times in their 17 games, a lower output than last-place Woodstock.

Newcomer Doug Senior, who will again renew acquaintances with his former Kingston teammates tonight, is the most prolific Mo-Hawk scorer with 11 goals playing between rugged wingers Ralph Plane and Les Culligan.

A big factor in keeping the Mo-Hawks at least close to opposition has been the play of goaltender Steve Rear, who will have to be sharp tonight if the locals expect another two points out of the surging Aces.

Imperials High

The Blake Kerr Imperials came up with a resounding 13-2 win over the Picton midget last night.

Brian Cousins and Paul Ackerman led the way with three goals apiece, while Andy Ricketts added a pair for the Imperials.

Single goals went to Mark Coates, John Masterson, Peter Sorbie, Rob Foster and Russ Herrington.

Kinsmen by 1

Rick Barbeau and Peter Crawford lead the Belleville Kinsmen to a 3-2 OMHA win over Picton last night.

Barbeau notched a goal and two assists, while Crawford contributed one of each to the winning cause. Bruce Sutherland added the other goal for the Kinsmen.

Big Collegians Spoil Record

By PETER SCOTT

While BCI midgets and juniors were fast breaking away from their Bay of Quinte basketball opposition, Picton dribbled the senior Collegians to an 81-47 loss, last night.

The BCI victories added to their undefeated string last night by upending the Picton midget squad 18-6.

The winners received strong performances from Fred Cass with 16 points, Mark Gallupe with 14 and Barry Vanneriem ringing up 18.

Picton showed signs of coming back in the third quarter after being down 36 at the half and within eight points of the league leaders.

In the junior game the Collegians worked up a big lead in the first quarter and never looked back, utilizing a tight man-to-man press throughout the game.

The home team had hoped only eight points in the first half.

High scorers for the winners were Peter LeBaron dropping in seven, Keith Watson set up many BCI plays all night and managed to find time to score 11 points, while Al Gallupe and Peter Scott each scored nine.

Dave Gilmor and Peter Ledderman scored 11 and seven points respectively for the losers.

The senior game was an altogether different story as Picton handed BCI their first loss of the season by trouncing them 81-47.

Rob Woodley played a strong game for the losers by hitting for 26 points, while John Wilson hooped 6 before his mishap, and Terry Clarke scored 7.

On the Picton squad Doug Dermody scored 25 points, and Al Bond aced 21. Picton seniors are currently leading in their division.

In other Bay of Quinte high school action last night the Trojan town all three games from Albert College.

The midget Trojans bombed their opponents 77-19. Mike Meagher played a great game for the winners racking up 13 points, while his teammates Barry Marta and Roland Walton each scored 11.

In the junior contest Moira defeated Albert by 55-36. Bill Kerr scored 13 points, while Ken LaPalm hooped 10, John Bowen and Bill Henry each scored nine points for the winners.

For the losers it was Bill Sylvester with eight and Dave Mutang finding six points.

This leaves the junior Trojans undefeated along with BCI.

For the losers it was Kolsters with 17, Johnson with 12 and Wilkinson scoring 14 points.

For the senior Trojans it was their first win of the season.

Cabbies Stingy in Second

Central Taxi used a tight defence to record a 5-1 Quinte Hockey League win over DCA Transfer, while Belvedere remained undefeated with a 6-2 blitz of Stinson Construction, Monday night.

Doug Bolts scored with five minutes remaining to give Central their win over DCA and tighten their hold on second place in the four-team league.

Kevin Allen had given Central an early lead before Paul Goodfellow's tally tied the score for the visitors.

DCA Transfer drew two of the game's three penalties.

Gerry Jones and Jack Francis counted two goals apiece to lead the Hotchmen to their second consecutive win.

Francis added three assists to give him five scoring points for the night, while Larry Mackenzie, Jim Francis and Elmer Cain added the other goals for the winners.

Merchants Upset

Marysville came up with a 3-2 upset of the Merchants last night to highlight the Gas House League action.

Jerry Lucas counted two goals a minute apart to get the winners off to a 2-0 lead and Harold Pascoe increased the lead to 3-0 with six minutes remaining in the game.

Perry Soule and Charlie Smith counted finally for the Merchants but they were unable to get the equalizer.

In the other game played, Brad Smith came up with a shutout as the Mustangs blanked Mulroneys 3-0.

Don Irvine, Fred McAdam and Don Holoway scored for the winners.

Government Now Lies in Hands of Men

OTTAWA (CP) — Since Agnes MacphaiI was elected first woman member of Canada's Parliament in 1921, only 17 other women have been elected to the Commons.

"No country can make a claim to having equal status for its women as long as its government lies entirely in the hands of men," says the report of the royal commission on the status of women tabled in the Commons Monday.

"A special effort must be made to seek out and encourage competent women in Canadian society to accept appointments to the judiciary, the Senate, governmental bodies and agencies, to accept nominations as political candidates and when elected to accept major cabinet posts and other positions of responsibility."

The report says that not only are Canadian women missing out on the privileges of life in public office but also they are not sharing its responsibilities.

While the commission generally opposes special status for women, it says that in public life an interim period is needed to correct the imbalance of participation by women.

It recommends that two qualified women from each province be appointed to the Senate as seats become available until a more equitable membership is achieved. There now are five women, 86 men and 11 vacancies in the 102-seat chamber.

It says that a $4,000 property qualification, a condition for eligibility for appointment to the Senate, should be dropped, not just because women are not as likely to be able to raise that money but because the condition is undemocratic.

In a minority report in which Commissioner John Humphrey dissociates himself from the entire report, he calls for quota systems for the Senate, the public service or any other body "an insult to Canadian women who are, in my opinion, quite capable of standing on their own feet. . . . I would not be alarmed if all the members of the Senate were women, provided they got there on their own steam."

Since 1917, the report said, only one per cent of those elected to federal and provincial governments have been women.

Only Ellen Fairclough in 1957 and Jean LaMarsh in 1963 have been appointed to the federal cabinet. Only 16 women have ever been in the Senate. At the provincial level, now, of 12 women members, five are cabinet ministers.

In 1969 there were 14 women judges or magistrates in Canada of a total 882. Only one had been named to a superior court.

Meanwhile, all the government committees and advisory level "have half of the population contributes almost nothing to economic and social policy-making."

Women were discouraged from running for office at the constituency level.

"Women who have been successful at the polls confirm that winning the nomination is a more formidable hurdle than winning the election."

Financing a campaign was more difficult for women because most were financially dependent or had less access to the economic mainstream.

The report says women's branches of political parties should be amalgamated with the main parties.

"The impression gained from interviews with men and women active in politics is that the women's associations divert energy into the mechanics of running the party that could be more effectively used at other levels."

The commission said it was speaking of the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties because the New Democratic Party had a better record in this respect.

As an example of women escaping responsibility, the report mentions Jury duty. In Quebec and Newfoundland women are not eligible to sit on juries. In the provinces they may be excused on the ground that they are women. Only in Nova Scotia, British Columbia, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories are they equally eligible.

Civil Service Should Be Model

OTTAWA (CP) — The public service, Canada's largest employer of women, has a special responsibility to make itself a model of equal employment practices, says the royal commission on the status of women.

The federal government should demonstrate that Canada's commitment to working women can be put into practice and show other employers how to do this," says the commission's report tabled in the Commons Monday.

The commission, headed by Anne Francis of Ottawa, wants a special increase in the number of women hired for traditionally male jobs until sex-typing of jobs is wiped out.

The report says women seem to have been treated more fairly in public service than in the private sector but still do not have equal opportunity for advancement. There are 81,000 women employed by the federal government, counting those in the armed forces.

It says adverse attitudes to women's advancement are so widespread that only deliberate policies can correct the long-standing imbalance of men and women at senior levels. It recommends that for the next 10 years every educational course in the career assignment program include at least one women in every 10 persons.

It says that potential rather than experience should be the basis for promotion and asks that programs be introduced to ensure that secretaries are considered for executive positions.

The report, in 160 pages devoted to women in the Canadian economy, recommends that the public service offer 18 weeks of maternity leave with unemployment insurance pay and with the employer providing full medical benefits during the leave.

Commissioner John Humphrey dissented himself from the entire report because he felt it was an insult to women to set up special quota systems to enable them to catch up with men. He said in a minority report his abstention "will only too likely be attributed to male prejudice."

Helping Themselves

Two workers at Maison du Chanteur sort through cast-off articles, including an old radio, in a renovated store in Montreal's St. Henri district. The centre, started by a group of unemployed men, collects clothing and goods which can be repaired and sold. Unusable clothing, paper and cardboard are sold to scrap dealers.

White Paper Tops Agenda

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial finance ministers today will have what may be their next-to-last chance to react to Finance Minister Edgar Benson's white paper proposals for Income Tax Act revision.

The white paper is at the top of the agenda today the finance ministers' annual two-day review of the economic situation and outlook for the future.

Mr. Benson now is preparing his tax law revision proposals for legislation to be presented to the Commons next spring, probably with a budget.

He said Monday he will not comment on specific counter-proposals, such as those made by Ontario's treasurer, Charles MacNaughton, because he is so close to making his final decision.

But he expects the finance ministers to continue the series of meetings every three months or so that began last winter. This means they probably will meet once again before the proposals become a parliamentary bill.

Provincial reaction to the white paper generally was that Ottawa's plans would put additional tax burdens on the economy and discourage development. Mr. Benson has denied this and has permitted to introduce new tax rates which would ensure that Ottawa will not take more in taxes than existing taxes do, all other conditions being the same.

Mr. MacNaughton complained again Monday that Ottawa is doing insufficient to encourage economic growth, this time in relation to the immediate problem of dealing with unemployment this winter and next year.

He called for drastic measures to move Canada within the next 12 months back to full employment. His objective is to get unemployment down to three per cent of the labor force, on a seasonally-adjusted annual basis.

Ottawa's goal is four per cent. Unemployment in October was 6.6 per cent, and the annual rate for 1970 now appears sure to be more than six per cent.

Federal officials won't say what they hope the 1971 figure will be, but it seems unlikely that they can expect much better than five per cent.

A fresh unemployment report, for November, is expected to be released Thursday. October's 6.6 per cent seasonally-adjusted rate was down from September's 6.9, and Mr. Benson said last week he believes this means the country is over the hump.

He reported Monday night that the provincial ministers were generally optimistic about the immediate outlook for the economy—but they would like to see things happen more quickly.

While none of the other provinces named statements to reporters, it appeared Mr. MacNaughton took the gloomiest view. As long as Canada continues below its growth potential, he said, the provinces and the municipalities will find it harder to meet their expenses without more taxes or heavier borrowing.

Mr. Benson told reporters the government could spend more, but only at the cost of additional borrowing which might force interest rates up, contribute to more inflation, and cause another outflow of foreign investment which would drive the Canadian dollar even higher in international money markets.

Thus would make Canadian goods harder to sell abroad, and in competition with cheaper foreign goods at home.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among those case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief was occurred in cases of long standing, and - most important of all, results were so thorough that no recurrence was examined over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered as ointment and suppository form called Preparation H..

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H. Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Unthinking People Are Often Cruel

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Readers say, "You must get thousands and thousands of letters from people who want help and advice." I do. And from reading them I'm uniquely aware of what bothers so many people.

At, or near, the top of the list is the plea from anxious persons that they be understood. All they want is simple compassion and understanding. Here, for example, is such a letter from one emotionally ill:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I would like to comment on the reaction of so many people toward a breakdown or any kind of mental or emotional problem. I have been there myself. When I was in the hospital, often the subject of returning to "society" was raised.

It was pathetic to observe the fear, anxiety, and apprehension that arose when people brought themselves to thinking about going back home. Even those who said they didn't care what people said or did to them, really were frightened more than the others who hoped the family and friends wouldn't just turn their backs on them and run.

I remember commenting myself that, if people were cruel in words or deeds that we should feel compassion for them, because they lacked human understanding and were missing much of what life is all about.

I can plainly see that these are really unhappy people. They are all wrapped up in their own little world. I truly feel sorry for them.

While I was in the hospital I met some of the most genuine people I have ever known. They all had different problems, of course, but their personalities were such that you couldn't help but love them — warm, understanding, kind, genuine, and sincere human beings.

I am afraid these sensitive people are the very ones that break under the cruel acts and words administered by unthinking individuals in our society. I feel I could help people understand how much their words bite and their actions destroy other human beings. Thank you for listening. — Mrs. G.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My son is a high school student and has stuttered for years. He does well in school but becomes embarrassed. He gets frustrated and depressed when the words just won't come out. What is the answer? — Mrs. N.

Comment: This isn't in the nature of "I told you so" — but it's rather late to combat stuttering when a child reaches high school. It should begin much earlier in life. Meanwhile, often much can be done even at this stage. I suggest that you ask for help from a recognized speech therapist.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 25 and have stuttered all my life. When I first went to school I stuttered so badly I could not say over one word in class. You can imagine how the kids teased me.

As I got older I joined my mother, who used to sing while making breakfast. I noticed that as I sang I did not stutter. The cause of stuttering is trying to talk too fast, without enough breath, and not saying your words in a sing - a - long manner.

My brothers also sang a lot and soon they also had corrected their stuttered by at least 85 per cent. Only when they get angry and messed up their breathing did they stutter.

My son stuttered a lot in the beginning but he got over it when he sang a lot. (Just a harmless suggestion for stutterers when other remedies don't seem to work.)

Comment: Some top-notch vocalists confess that they used to stutter when they were children. I'm in favor of any harmless remedy unless it causes procrastination in getting professional help.

Sydney J. Harris Says

'Progress' Kills Service

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I happened to be home a little later than usual yesterday morning, when a big truck pulled up in front of the house with the six new dining room chairs we have been waiting for since mid-September.

The driver rang the bell, and when I answered the door, he said, "I'll unload these six cartons on the curb for you. The rest is up to you."

"You mean I've got to carry those six heavy boxes all the way up into the house by myself?" I asked. He shrugged. "That's up to you; I just drive the truck — I'm not a mover."

"What if I hadn't happened to be home, as I'm usually not at this time?" I asked. "You don't expect my wife, or any woman, to be able to handle those, do you?"

"I don't expect anything," he shrugged again. "I'm a union driver, and all the union rules compel me to do is deliver the load to your address — how you get it into your house is none of my business."

"Well, what would a housewife do, then?" I pursued the matter. "She'd probably tell us to come back the next day," he said. "But what if the husband is away at work all day and can't be there?" "Then she ought to hire a mover," he said.

The cartage bill was $34. Hiring a mover just to lug six heavy boxes from the curb into the house would probably cost the same amount, or more and this is what the cartage companies call "delivery service."

How does one justly apportion the blame for this absurd situation? It was, in all fairness, hard to blame the truck driver, even though his attitude left much to be desired. He was all alone on the truck, and had a schedule to meet. Besides, a truck driver is not a moving man.

But what is the customer to do, who orders something in good faith and then finds it dumped on the curb when nobody but a frail wife is at home? The cartage trucks won't deliver at night, when the husband returns. You can not keep the truck coming all day after day.

"Why doesn't the company hire a second man to help with the moving?" I asked the driver. "Then your cartage charges would go up a lot," he said. "Look, I just drive this stuff around and collect my pay."

And the cartage company collects its fee. And the public, as usual, is the royal shafting. In this age of magnificent technology and bland assurances of "service," the housewife is forced to drag around heavy cartons in a way that would have been unthinkable in her grandmother's time when "delivery" meant into the house, not to the curb. If this is progress, only the surgeons who specialize in hernia operations would think so.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 9

Your birthday today: Revision adjustment characterize your coming years; some of it in response to unusual opportunity coming from outside. Earnings tend to increase as you switch from one specialty to a higher one. You must include some salvage, transformation of useless to useful. Today's natives have sustained curiosity, like to be involved in bold, audacious deeds or the telling of them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Begin where you are now, proceed with your own ideas (never mind the illusion of yesterday). You find somehow you're picking up more than your share of the expenses.

TAURUS (Apr. 22— May 20): Think what you're doing and mechanical things. Pick up the threads of routine, expecting no particular recognition. Plan for a solitary evening of study.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Today includes at least one minor incident with a friendly surprise. Take a look around, see where you are, then catch up on neglected details, correspondence.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You now are sensitive to even helpful suggestions. Your sense of setback is subjective rather than reality. Give more time to younger people, family.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): A misunderstanding arises in your appointments and some expected delivery does not show. Don't take out your tensions on others, particularly your loved ones.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You should be able to see tangible results from your career efforts now. If not, consider what is happening and what you can do about it. Help is available.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Thoughtless friends create confusion by doing something you don't expect. Complacency about finances isn't sensible today. Check out your home and working space.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Some things will be attributed to you whether you have anything to do with them or not.so you may as well decide what you want done and how; then proceed and demand that others do likewise.

SAGITTARIUS Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): There's good news today, although something about your home studies your efforts to set it straight. Don't push your associates toward any specific decision. Give them time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Everybody tries to influence you, to stir an emotion which pushes you toward their ideas. Much of this is healthy and normal; choose your response.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Serious bids need further preparation even though they seem complete. Frosting over money you can't collect is premature. Romantic interests involve lengthy conversations.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Rash decisions or impulsive actions are the easiest to make and likely to bring quick regrets. Discipline yourself to do the sensible thing first.

Filibuster Against Old Age Pension Bill

e adjournment.
ly will decide at scheduling sessions
ssion the govern-
ge pension bill.
said Monday
ides for a flat $80
ent to all 1.7 mil-
nsioners begin-about the present
nnual cost-of-liv-

If the bill does not pass before Jan. 1, the current cost-of-living increase would apply and all pensioners would get a minimum $81.17.

If the NDP temporarily holds up the bill, the government would be forced to make $81.17 monthly payments in January and then reduce them to $80 when the legislation is finally approved.

However, there is a severe drawback for the NDP, party spokesmen say.

The bill also provides for increases beginning April 1 for the one million needy old pensioners who draw the monthly supplement, now $31.83 but due to go up to $55.

The government may argue that holding up the bill now might mean putting off the increases in the supplement until after April. This would work a hardship on needy pensioners.

Consequently, there is some doubt that the NDP will try a filibuster on the old age pension bill.

However, the party is also thinking of holding up the Canadian National Railways capital financing bill until the government agrees to instruct the CNR to carry out the recommendation of a Commons committee to increase pensions for retired railway employees.

The government wants to get this bill through before Dec. 18, as well as the old age pension and regional economic incentives legislation. Prime Minister Trudeau may take part in debate on the incentives bill.

The government is already so short of time it is splitting the budget debate: Two days now and four days in January.

tion Says Regional Aid Program Absurd

crease the size of incentive grants to industries settling in designated areas of slow growth.

Conservative finance critic Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West) noted that 95 per cent of the population of Quebec will live in designated areas.

Mr. Saltzman went further to suggest that "virtually all of Canada has been designated."

Not only Quebec like the entire Atlantic region, all Manitoba and large parts of Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia have been included.

Walter Carter (PC—St. John's West) said including Montreal in the program would destroy its value in the Atlantic provinces by equalizing the incentive to locate industries in them.

Mr. Saltzman also criticized the government plan to increase incentive grants to a maximum of 35 per cent of capital costs from 25 per cent, with an additional $7,000 for each new job created. Grants in the new region, taking in Montreal and the three southeastern Ontario counties of Prescott, Stormont and Glengarry, would be of up to 10 per cent of capital costs.

Mr. Saltzman said the country would be better off to foster regional development through cash grants of the long-awaited and publicity-owned Canada development corporation.

The government's plans, detailed Friday by Regional Expansion Minister Jean Marchand, call for grants of $130 million in the next few years and are intended to create 630 million worth of new and expanded manufacturing and processing industries employing 30,000 workers.

Opposition MPs also criticized the government for what they called a failure to reduce personal income taxes.

Mr. Lambert said the government should have removed the three-per-cent surcharge on income taxes. This would have been far more stimulating for the economy than will be the decision to permit firms to deduct 115 per cent of their capital investment from their tax reckoning.

Mr. Lambert offered an amendment to the government motion to accept the budget that would add that the House "deplores the abysmal failure of the government" to reduce unemployment and poverty by stimulating the economy.

Mr. Saltzman added an amendment urging that personal income tax exemptions be raised to $2,000 for a single person and $4,000 for a couple.

Charles Arthur Gauthier (Crediliste — Roberval) protested that too much government expenditure goes for administration, not enough to help the needy. He added that more aid should be directed to Quebec farmers who have received less than those elsewhere in the country.

Liberal Allan Sulatycky (Rocky Mountain) felt confident the budget would "strike with pinpoint accuracy at areas of high unemployment problems."

Hubert Badanai (L—Fort William) said opposition criticism did not make sense and that no practicable alternatives had been offered.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) returned to his favorite proposals for stimulation of the economy: pressure on banks to lower interest rates, tax rebates to firms improving their productivity and rejection of a white paper on taxation proposal to increase the corporation tax on revenues of less than $25,000 to 50 per cent from 21 per cent.

Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar) urged the government to support employment in agriculture and provide jobs for those forced off the land.

Maurice Foster (L—Algoma) called the budget a selective document that put resources where the need was greatest—to fight unemployment, increase investment around Montreal and aid the shipbuilding and footwear industries.

Clifford Downey (PC—Battle River) called for more public works funds.

Davis Starts Fast In Race for Leader

Cross Relates Ordeal Details

LONDON (CP) — James (Jasper) Cross told today he spent "the most terrible night of my life" on the day Pierre Laporte was killed while in the hands of Quebec separatist kidnappers.

"When I heard my own death announced on TV at the same time I was afraid my wife would be listening," the British envoy said at a news conference.

Cross met a battery of reporters in Lancaster House for his first extensive news conference since his release last Thursday. Cross entered th room escorted by his wife Barbara, who was reunited with him on his return to Britain from Canada Saturday.

The British trade commissioner in Montreal, giving details of his experiences following his kidnapping by the Front de Liberation du Quebec, said that on the morning of Oct. 5 he was dressing when there was a ring at the front door of his home.

A man came upstairs, pointed a pistol at him and made him lie down on the floor.

A second man came into the house with a sub-machine-gun and "told my wife to hold the dog or else it would be shot."

By this time a third man had appeared downstairs in the Cross home with a sub-machine-gun.

Cross said he was taken to a car where a fourth man was at the wheel and was thrown into the car underneath a rug.

He said a gas mask was put over his face and later he was made to wear a lighter mask while spending 60 days in one room

After his arrival at the apartment where he was detained, he said: "I spent the next few days lying on a mattress but was allowed to go to the bathroom."

He said he was handcuffed at the start but after the first two weeks the handcuffs were removed and "I spent much of the time reading."

Cross said that after the death of Laporte, Quebec's labor minister, he asked his captors what they were going to do with him.

"They said they just intended to taunt the police," he said.

Cross was released last week. Cross said that at about 10 p.m. Wednesday night the kidnappers put handcuffs on him.

"I asked what was wrong," he said.

At about 2 a.m., he was removed from the mattress where he had been lying and handcuffed to a doorknob for about five hours.

"Finally," he said, "we all climbed into a car. I was in the middle.

"We backed out into the street and into the sunlight for the first time in 69 days.

"It was a most terrifying ride through the streets of Montreal.

"One of the doors was loose, the car was wired with dynamite and I was afraid we'd all blow up."

Cross went on to say that he had been traded to Cuban officials at St. Helen's Island in the St. Lawrence in return for amnesty for his kidnappers, who were later flown to Cuba.

He said he saw nothing more of them.

Cross said that as far as he knew the kidnap-group consisted of four men and two women.

"I can't say the names of all of them," he said.

Cross said he wanted to issue thanks to the governments of Canada and Quebec, "who in a sense broke the law for me."

He praised those who had for accepting the abductors, and "finally above all the police who found out where I was and brought me out alive."

At one point in the news conference he showed a trace of anger, suggesting that the press had not fully understood that the communiques which he had issued in confinement were not his own thinking but that of his captors.

He said the FLQ allowed him to use his own words in writing to his wife—though they changed some words—but he was told what to write in his communiques.

While he emphasized that his relations with his captors were amiable, he said one woman, Mrs. Cosette-Trudel, gave him trouble.

At times, she stopped him from sharing. At other times she complained that he was turning his head too much.

Mr. Cross still wearing a mask over his head with slits so that he could see in front of him, Mrs. Cosette-Trudel seemed nervous.

Occasionally, the kidnappers who usually were always behind him would speak from that position and he would experience a terrible moment of elation to turn around.

Mrs. Cosette-Trudel would immediately say Cross was turning around too far.

Photos taken of him by the FLQ were "staged" and Cross

Move Made To Delay Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives commerce committee approved today a bill to delay a United States-wide railway strike threatened for 12:01 a.m. EST Thursday until March 1. The vote was 18 to 14.

But Chairman Harley O. Staggers (Dem., W.Va.) said after the closed-door session that he was not satisfied that the legislation would prevent the strike.

And Representative Brock Adams (Dem. Wash) told reporters: "I think we have voted for a strike. You're just giving it to management. They aren't going to bargain."

The bill contained no wage raise proposal.

Staggers said the proposal, which represented a longer delay than the 45 days requested by President Nixon, presumably will be brought up in the House later today.

Staggers said the committee rejected an amendment he sponsored to include a portion of the pay increase already granted as part of the package. His attempt, which will be made again when the bill reaches the House floor, was rejected 16 to 14.

Meanwhile, C. L. Dennis, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, hinted that the walkout could be postponed if Congress included an immediate 13.5-per-cent wage increase for 500,000 rail workers as part of legislation forcing a strike delay.

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, appealing for special legislation to head off the strike, told the Senate labor committee that Nixon "has no more tools to avert" a walkout.

Gomme, Others Voice Support

TORONTO (CP) — Before the television lights had cooled in the room where Premier John Robarts announced his retirement Tuesday, some legislature members declared their support for Education Minister William Davis as his successor.

Neither Mr. Davis, 41, nor any other formally announced Tuesday they would run for leadership of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party but rumors swirled around Queen's Park.

Speculation centred on Allan Lawrence, 45, minister of mines and northern affairs; Bert Lawrence, 47, minister of financial and commercial affairs; Provincial Secretary Robert Welch, 47; Darcy McKeough, 37, minister of municipal affairs; Leonard Reilly, former chief party whip; Health Minister Thomas Wells, 40; George Kerr, minister of energy and resources; Alan Eagleson, 37, Ontario PC Association president; and Rene Brunelle, 50, minister of lands and forests.

Mr. Lawrence had called a news conference for immediately after Mr. Robarts' statement about 11:30 a.m. As he sat in a nearby room, he was advised by a party aide that he looked too anxious and the news conference was cancelled.

Mr. Davis, in his Queen's Park office an hour later, said he would have no announcement for several days.

Highways Minister George Gomme said in an interview he could not think of anyone he oversees he would support Mr. Robarts. But of the possible successor he would support Mr. Davis.

Bachelorette Arthur Meen, Toronto York East; Lorne Henderson, Lambton; Ron McNeil, Elgin; and William Hodgson, York North, said they were "Davis men."

Mr. Davis, a lawyer, represents Peel North.

Mr. Welch, a St. Catharines lawyer, has represented Lincoln riding since 1963. He has not had much public exposure in his portfolio except with announcements about easing provincial liquor laws. But he is known as one of the party's most able orators.

He said he will make a statement about his intentions but not for at least a week.

Bert Lawrence was elected in the riding of Russell in 1963 and sworn in as minister without portfolio in August, 1969. He has held his present post since last February but is regarded as an able minister and one of the most intelligent in the cabinet, He lives in Ottawa.

He told some Conservatives he will definitely run but he is not expected to announce his candidacy for some time.

Mr. McKeough, 37, said he had no comment on his intentions.

Set Convention Date Tomorrow

TORONTO (CP) — John Parmenter Robarts, who often hvd said that 10 years in office is enough for a premier, took his own advice Tuesday and resigned as Conservative premier of Ontario.

He had been premier for nine years and a member of the legislature for 18.

"The time has come for me to pass the mandate," he said at a news conference.

"To those who may wonder . . . why I have chosen this particular time to step down, I can only say . . . that in the very fast-moving times in which we live, the environment, needs and actions need to be continuously reviewed, revised and rethought."

Alan Eagleson, president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Ontario, told the news conference party leaders will meet Thursday to choose dates for a leadership convention, to start Feb. 8, Feb. 24 or March 15.

Basque Nationalists Riot at Trial

BURGOS, Spain (Reuter) — Basque nationalists on trial here, today rioted and tried to attack members of the seven-man military court.

They screamed and shouted Basque nationalist slogans. Police threw themselves on top of two men who tried to rush the benches of the military judges. One officer drew his sword.

The prisoners burst into singing a Basque marching song from the 1936-39 civil war when the Basques fought Gen. Franco's nationalists.

The court was cleared and the hearing continued behind closed doors.

A Basque priest admitted Tuesday night that he is a member of the nationalist revolutionary organization ETA and sometimes carried a pistol to defend himself against the police.

Rev. Duan Echave, 37, declared himself an ETA politiant when questioned at the court martial of 16 alleged Basque guerrillas, six of whom face possible death sentences for alleged part in the murder of a police inspector.

Father Echave confirmed his written statement that he was tortured and insulted at Bilbao police headquarters when arrested last year.

He said he was still a parish priest and had not been defrocked or suspended by Roman Catholic Church authorities.

He faces a total of 70 years' imprisonment for alleged terrorism, subversion, and possessing firearms and explosives.

The priest admitted being an ETA militant, but said he did not hold office in the organization. He denied taking part in an ETA meeting which decided to put explosive charges in various parts of north Spain.

He confirmed a written statement made to an investigating judge in which he said he was tortured and insulted by police in Bilbao, beaten on the face and body, thrown to the ground, and asked embarrassing questions.

Father Echave began to tell the court about the beatings but the presiding judge, Lt.-Col. Manuel Ordovas, cut him off.

A group of extremist Basque nationalists last week kidnapped Eugen Beihl, the West German honorary consul in San Sebastian, and are apparently holding him hostage for the prisoners facing possible death sentences.

County Council Session Starts

Hastings county council convened this morning for a two - day session which will mark the last regular meeting for 1970.

Committee reports recapping county business for the year will be presented while a number of resolutions from outside municipalities will be up for consideration.

Also, representatives from the Hastings county museum will make a presentation to the county body asking for financial support in the purchase of the Faulkner house, proposed as a new museum headquarters. During the session councillors will be given a tour of the Bridge Street residence.

This week's county council session will be the last to be presided over by Warden John Wilkes, 84, as result of Monday's election, the Marmora and Lake reeve will be back at county council next year as head of that municipality.

However, it will be the last session for six county reeves — four of whom have retired from municipal life and two others who were defeated in Monday's election.

Retiring from council are Stirling Reeve Donald Rogers who has gailed a seat on the public utilities board and his village; Marmora village Reeve William Shannon who is to become clerk of his municipality, and Reeve Burton Merton of Rawdon and Deputy Reeve Kenneth Hilliard of Huntingdon.

The two other councillors who will not be back are Hungerford Reeve William McCrea and Bancroft Deputy-Reeve Earl Hawley, both of whom lost out to ex-reeves in Monday's election.

Injuries Minor In Accident

TRENTON (Staff) — Mrs. Retha McGimpsey, 67, of Rit 5 Colborne is being treated in Trenton Memorial Hospital today for minor injuries received in a two-car accident near Trenton Tuesday.

She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, William, 61, when it collided with another automobile driven by Colin Clayton, 21, of Trenton.

The accident occurred at 2.40 p.m. on the Highway 2 near McMaster Sideroad. Damage to the McGimpsey vehicle totalled $1,500. The other car was damaged slightly.

Brighton detachment of the OPP are investigating the mishap.

DOUBLE USE

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan Water Resources Commission reports that of the four rivers that flow both in the province and in the United States, Canadian use ranges from 36.2 to 45 per cent and the U.S. uses 54 to 63.8 per cent.

Resolution Is Ruled Illegal

TRENTON (Staff) — Town council has learned that a resolution passed Nov. 30 authorizing the signing of a subdividers agreement between the municipality and Dufferin Developments (Trenton) Ltd., is illegal.

Mayor Duncan McDonald said in a special meeting of council called last night to deal with the matter, that he had asked clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry about the resolution the morning after it passed.

The legal opinion of solicitor William Weston was sought and his letter, received yesterday, concluded that councillors did not have the power "to pass any act involving . . . any contract or obligation" so fear the time of a civic election (Dec. 7) in Trenton.

"The resolution is not adequate," Mr. Weston said, after researching the matter.

"Pass a bylaw now and get it over with. If it is not good enough, we can pass it again," councillor Neil Robertson suggested.

No action was taken last night. It is estimated the subdividers agreement will be held up for a month because of the information revealed by solicitor Weston.

TREVOR ANTHONY

Adjudicator Is Named

Welsh-born Trevor Anthony will be one of the adjudicators at the Rotary Music Festival in February. He replaces David Johnston who is unable to be present.

Born in Carmarthenshire, Mr. Anthony won the bass competition at the National Eisteddfod of Wales at the age of 21. Then a scholarship to the Royal Academy of Music, of which he is a fellow. He was also appointed lay vicar of Westminster Abbey.

Mr. Anthony, who served in the Royal Navy during World War II, had a song association with Sir Thomas Beecham, singing opera and oratorios with him all over the world and at all the big Festivals. He was also closely associated with Benjamin Britten. He has sung with all the leading conductors and orchestras, and appeared on concert platform in Europe and America.

He has judged a number of Festivals and been the chief vocal adjudicator at the Welsh National Eisteddfod.

U.S. Nearness Damaging

OWRC Chairman at Rotary

Pressure from People Main Resource Problem

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

D. John Collins, chairman of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, Monday associated much of the "environmental worries" of Canada to "close proximity" with the U.S.

He advised members of the Belleville Rotary Club to prepare for the inevitable influx of American pollution in the Quinte area.

"In this area this is not yet an issue . . . but without planning, it can occur," he said.

He called upon Canadians to face a new relationship with American neighbors if this country is "to survive."

"As a Canadian looks across Lakes Erie or Ontario, he feels concerned and troubled about social and population pressures from the south, and the discharge of massive wastes into our common waterways."

He did not disclaim Canada's role in the pollution of this country's own environment.

"We have contributed our per capita share to the fouling of our environment, but in the last 10 years, in particular, we have taken steps to redress some of the errors and we have learned that adequate treatment and recycling of wastes, is achievable.

"Because the rate of growth in the U.S. has far outstripped the growth in Canada on all lakes except Lake Ontario, and because waste treatment has not had the priority that it deserves in the U.S., we are extremely alarmed about the future."

But Mr. Collins was by no means attacking the U.S.

"Far from it an equitable arrangement between the two governments seems to be the ultimate goal.

"As good neighbors, however, through that marvelous agency the International Joint Commission, which acts under the treaty, we have established working teams composed of U.S. and Canadian officials and scientists. These men working with high commitment have studied and reported on pollution problems in the Great Lakes.

He explained that "these reports, published and available to citizens of both countries, indicate the steps which must be taken, initially at least, to reverse some of the eutrophication problems . . . particularly in regard to Lake Erie."

The major danger perceived by the U.S. is that of population.

Mr. Collins explained that the States have six per cent of the world's population, using 50 per cent of the globe's total energy and non-renewable resources.

He explained that at the growth rate of Canada's American neighbors, in only 30 years, the U.S. will demand 100 per cent of "the present known sources of the world's energy and resources."

"The OWRC chairman assured the gathered Rotarians that science is making advancements in new techniques to replace some of the demands.

But the "rate of consumption of natural resources and converting these natural into consumer goods cannot continue without a major upset to our environment."

He indicated a major difference in feeling toward government between Canada's southerly neighbors.

Canadians are willing to accept planning contro's and certain growth restrictions (on subdivisions) as a basis for orderly development.

"The American citizen setting within his preconditioned concept of liberty resists government planning and government controls, and this sometimes creates an attitude of 'devil - catch - the - hindmost' in regard to development."

He continued, asserting that this attitude "makes it very difficult for administrators to seek legislative support for strong administrative and planning controls, which are essential to orderly development and to minimize damage to the environment."

Mr. Collins explained that the services rendered by the subcommittee of the federal governments of both countries on water quality in the great lakes could bring about the enforcement of a set of standards of water quality.

"The willingness of the U.S. to consider these problems indicates a healthy attitude to the policy of enforcement and assimilation."

As this problem causes increasing public awareness, the position of industry heads the list of reform resource boards are attempting to bring under direction.

An astounding figure of $117 billion has been spent by industry in the last dozen years, following closely programs set by municipalities. Older plants present the greatest problem, their size and location in many cases not relevant to pollution controls.

Some of these companies have shut down operations to locate in more open areas. As indication of one plant considering such a move was Procter and Gamble, a well-known manufacturer of soaps. This move, however, was tabled by company management.

Mr. Collins cautioned industries in their bid for upgrading of waste treatment and evolution of compensation for economic reasons, overlooking possible substandard waste treatment.

"If allowed to get out of balance this could lead to restricted growth and add to unemployment."

And he had a word for those who would halt U.S. investment. "The shrill critics of U.S. investment may unwittingly deprive Canadian citizens of employment in business, industry and services, by encouraging capital to develop instead south of the border . . . still requiring our natural resources, our energy and our water for waste assimilation."

He urged the gathered club members, representatives from all over the Quinte area, to plan for the future, "for our children".

"Planning for our growth will enable the obsolete characteristics of dying cities like New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles."

"We shall be doing our work properly if our children and their children after them can say . . . Ontario is their any place you'd rather be? And answer a resounding . . . It's the best!"

H. J. McFarland Says Farewell

By MARGARET BAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Harvey J. McFarland said goodbye to his councillors and recalled the highlights of his 30-year term as mayor of Picton during the final town council meeting of 1970 held last night.

He left the newly elected council with the remark, "Don't can't stop; you have to keep plugging right and day and put your right foot forward at all times. I wish you all luck — there are so many things for the interests of this town and county that can be done if everyone pulls together."

The mayor reviewed the past two decades in Picton and referred to happy associations with police commissioners Jesse Mason and Judge Wilfred S. Lane. He also mentioned his respect for former commissioners, the late Lance Bethune and the late Gordon Walmsley. "No one realizes until he sits on this commission how important it is," said the mayor.

He recalled productive years of work with public utilities commissioners past and present among them Bert Tully, Harry Blakely, Jack Ward and Vernon Porter.

Mayor McFarland spoke of the newly converted hospital for retarded children at the site of the former Camp Picton described it as "close to my heart." He traced the project from its beginnings when he paid a local photographer $700 to provide pictures of the camp's facilities. He took these to Toronto, displayed them to Dr. Matthew Dymond, then minister of health and reported that the government official was "very impressed."

Negotiations eventually led to government purchase of the property for development as a hospital site.

Mayor McFarland expressed thanks to both the provincial and federal governments for their roles in bringing the hospital to Prince Edward and added, "It will be a great boost for Prince Edward industry and the local stores." He predicted that from 200 to 300 persons will reside at the hospital site this year and, hopefully, by 1972 there will be from 600 to 1,000. "I am very proud to sit here as your mayor and know this was accomplished in my term of office and to the best of my ability."

He reminisced council of his pride in the construction of the Quinte Skyway bridge, completed just 18 years before they were going to build that bridge before each election. "Now your mayor I can be proud to know it's there in the interests of county residents today and residents of the future."

Mayor McFarland considered the daylight hospital at the intersection of Main and Bridge streets an achievement in the town as well as clearly marked streets and well numbered houses.

The mayor closed his goodbye with an observation directed to newly elect Margaret Ackerman. He described the huge piles of correspondence covering his desk and emphasized the need to acknowledge letters from the John Public as well as government officials. The mayor observed that many of the letters are written by young students and are meaningful to him because they represent confidence in him.

Brief tributes to Mayor McFarland were offered by town clerk Andrew Jarvis and veteran councillor Harold McLaughlin. Said Mr. McLaughlin, "I don't think we'll ever be without His Worship. I hope he will always be close to Picton as a good citizen."

said they were bad pictures.

Asked whether he thought the kidnappers were part of an international linkup, Cross said he didn't have any such evidence.

However, he was told that the kidnappers were in touch with the cell holding Laporte and his own cell seemed to be overjoyed when Laporte was kidnapped.

But Cross was astonished when the announcement came through TV that Laporte had been murdered. This was Oct. 17.

Cross was then asked whether he ever thought about trying to escape.

Cross said that escaping was always on his mind but when he added up all the odds he figured was best to be middle-of-the-road.

He said he did not plan to return to his job in Montreal but would take up a post with the British department of trade in London after a long holiday.

He said also he plans to spend Christmas in Bern, Switzerland, with British Ambassador Eric Midgley, whose Mrs. Cross had been a guest during the latter part of the Montreal crisis.

A persistent question was whether Cross believed the Canadian government was right in rejecting the demands of the FLQ.

He said he had wrestled with this question repeatedly and had come to the conclusion there was no clear course which the government could have followed.

He said the dilemma remains with him even to this day—as to be a question of this kind is really tackled.

To another questioner, he said he hopes to return to Montreal one day but not at this moment.

Auditing Need Is Emphasized

M. J. Stotesbury, chartered accountant, addressed the Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial Accountants Monday.

The importance of the auditor's job in being certain of the system in use and testing it was stressed with emphasis on good accounting principles.

The subject of internal - external auditing was indicated as a step used to test the system in order that books reflect the actual organizational activities.

Taxation and the White Paper will be the discussion at the next meeting of the SIA, in an address to be given Jan. 18 by W. Wilkinson, CA.

RAILROAD WORM

The beetle larva, phrixothrix, found in the grasslands from Costa Rica to Argentina, is called the railroad worm because of the spots of light on its body that look like the windows of a train.

The Sounds of Christmas

The seasonal sounds of Christmas take on an added influence in Belleville-area stores as the local tradition is the street-carol music program offered by Salvation Army Players, now doing the rounds for yet another Christmas.

Appointment Stirs Council Row

PICTON (Staff) — Mayor H. J. McFarland last night levelled bitter comments at a motion forwarded by mayor elect Margaret Ackerman — and carried by council — concerning the appointment of Prince Edward industrial commissioner William Duggan.

Mrs. Ackerman suggested town council should ask its clerk to send a letter to county council requesting that the Ontario Industrial and Development Branch receive notification of Mr. Duggan's appointment. Her proposal followed a discovery that Toronto officials are still using old lists of local contacts which do not carry the new industrial commissioner's name.

Mayor McFarland replied: "You haven't brought any thing new to us and as far as we are concerned the industrial commissioner was hired by county council." He claimed that Picton pays 20.8 per cent of Mr. Duggan's salary but was given no voice in his appointment. He observed that it was done without being brought to the attention of finance committee chairman Donald Thompson.

Mayor McFarland continued: "I understand you are related to reeve Hepburn and to Mr. Bird so surely between the three of you, you can get some kind of letter through. It has nothing to do with my council and I don't want my councillors blamed. The town was never consulted; it's not fair for us to sit still in the blind."

Mrs. Ackerman stressed that she presented the motion in the absence of Reeve Bernard Hepburn and Deputy-Reeve Donald Thompson.

Councillor William Lane interjected at this point that he understood that Deputy-Reeve Thompson was chairman of the county council committee responsible for hiring Mr. Duggan. Mayor McFarland agreed that this was correct before Mr. Lane added that he also thought Mr. Thompson was hunting at the time of the industrial commissioner's appointment. Mayor McFarland quickly replied, "Yes, and the reeve (Bernard Hepburn) was on his yacht."

"I do hope Mrs. Ackerman," said the mayor, "that you have a bit more to report in the next two years than you have just reported." He addressed her relative, councillor James Bird and observed that since he is now deputy - reeve - elect perhaps he will "take action" on Mrs. Ackerman's motion. Reeve Hepburn, defeated for re-election Monday did not attend last night's final meeting of council for 1970.

Harvey's Just Fine, Thank You

PICTON (Staff) —Mayor Harvey J. McFarland last night strongly discounted rumors that ill health forced his decision not to seek re-election in Picton this year.

In a brief opening address to town council the mayor remarked, "It was reported that I was on my last legs and unable to look after the town's affairs. I want you to take a good look at me; what you are looking at is Harvey McFarland and I am still your mayor."

He referred to stories of poor health a second time when newly elected deputy-reeve James Bird was unable to chair council's committee of the whole because of laryngitis. "Instead of my health going," reflected the mayor, "it's Mr. Bird's instead."

Shortly before the meeting's close, Mayor McFarland stated again, "They criticized my health." He removed his top coat and touched his ties several times to demonstrate his fitness, wagering that his councillors could not follow suit. In a more serious tone he stressed, "The press can report the mayor's health is good and they won't have to lie about it."

Bulb Bandits Face Charges

Exasperation is driving members of the Belleville City Police Department to cracking on crime patrols to combat Christmas light thefts and vandalism.

"We're getting three and four calls a night," Deputy Chief Harold Reid said.

The police department suspects children and young teenagers as the main offenders in these cases and that the bulbs are merely broken after they are taken.

Deputy Reid said that possibly the thieves and vandals do not realize that they are committing a serious case of theft.

"People caught will be prosecuted," he said.

The theft and destruction of Christmas light bulbs has become an annual problem for police and citizens in this area.

Hepburn Knew End Was Near

PICTON (Staff) — Picton reeve Bernard Hepburn, 61, carried an early premonition of defeat in Monday's election despite confidence of support in his campaign during the past 15 years.

A newcomer to Picton, real estate agent Albert Piroth successfully challenged Mr. Hepburn, beating him by a comfortable margin of 158 votes.

Soon after election returns established Mr. Piroth's popularity at the polls, the incumbent reeve predicted that he would lose the race for office.

With Reeve Hepburn's defeat, council loses a man who earned an impressive record of service recently emphasized by his election as president of the Association of Counties and Regions for Ontario. This position will not necessarily be influenced by Mr. Hepburn's defeat in his bid for re-election. He has stated that he plans to allow fellow executive members of ACRO to vote on his status in the organization now.

Mr. Hepburn served nine years as Reeve of Picton, three years as deputy reeve and three years as councillor. In 1963 he was warden of Prince Edward County, during his years in office Mr. Hepburn served on almost all committees of town and county councils.

This month he completes a two-year term as chairman of the public works committee for town council and as chairman of the county's finance and personnel committee.

The ambitious and enthusiastic reeve has maintained a keen watch on behalf of ward regional government and has urged preparation for it. He has steadily promoted a stronger county administration designed to preserve Prince Edward's identity under a regional system.

Mr. Hepburn and his wife, Doreen, operate Hallowell House, a new Prince Edward County nursing home located on Scoharie Road. A native of Picton, Mr. Hepburn is active actively involved with the Picton Rotary Club, the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce and several other organizations.

tions. For six generations members of his Chatham family have held public office.

Mr. McKeough's chances depend on support he can get in southwestern Ontario where indications are that powerful provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton and Revenue Minister John White are backing Mr. Davis. If Mr. McKeough cannot get support here, the word from Mr. Davis would be Allan Lawrence.

Mr. Lawrence is a party maverick who has criticized the government for failing to support young people and immigrants.

He was first elected to Toronto-St. George in 1958 and almost quit the party during a controversial police bill fight in 1964.

Mr. Reilly, member for Toronto-Eglinton since 1962, said he will be a candidate but may not declare it officially until mid-December or mid-January.

Mr. Kerr of Burlington has been in the public eye since 1959 for combatting pollution.

Mr. Wells has received pressure from Scarborough-Ellesmere Reilly, member for Toronto-Lakeshore from 1963 until he was defeated in 1967. He is widely known as a lawyer who represents sports stars.

Anti - Pollution Meeting Tonight

A meeting of the Belleville Anti - Pollution Committee will be held at Sir MacKenzie Bowell public school tonight at 8.30 p.m.

An action plan, drafted by the committee's executive will be presented the general membership, which also will hear an address from an Ontario Water Resources Commission official.

Election Debacle

In a pre-election editorial last week we noted that there was no overt interest, let alone enthusiasm for the processes of democracy as manifested by the municipal elections.

But we never envisaged such a lamentable display of apathy as was evidenced by Monday's vote. In Belleville a mere 40 per cent of the 2,600 separate school supporters turned out, and this despite the long drawn out controversy over the Allore issue.

In the balloting for school trustees it was much worse. Only 10 per cent of the 15,000 public school supporters voted.

Granted the weather was not of the best, but it was not sufficiently rigorous to prevent people from getting out to vote. Real hard issues may have been lacking too, but this is still not reason enough for such a deplorable lack of interest.

No one could say they were not informed of election activities. This newspaper gave full coverage to candidates and issues, particularly in the sphere of education. Yet the majority of people stayed away. It was a bad day for democracy, and one we hope will not set a trend. In Australia, it may be mentioned in passing, voting is compulsory.

Vacate Island

As in many parts of the world the United States has a base on Easter Island, a remote pile 15 miles long and seven miles wide in the South Pacific. Now the Americans are planning to leave this island which in recent years has been a mecca not only for scientists but for archaeologists interested in the mysterious stone sculptures which dot its volcanic slopes and coastline.

Although the Americans put down an air strip which initially handled cargo and subsequently brought commercial planes — and tourists, and although they also provided the islanders with free electricity and jobs for 38 islanders, the fact is the island is Chilean territory, has belonged to Chile in fact for 83 years.

The U.S. says it is dismantling its scientific research station for economic reasons, but it seems to go deeper than that. Ideological reasons are believed at the core of Washington's decision, and we do not have to go far for an explanation. Chile recently elected a Marxist government under President Salvador Allende, and Fernando Silva, outgoing governor of Easter Island, is reported to say that a U.S. official told him Washington did not want to have military arrangements with such a regime.

Yet there is a precedent for this kind of link — the U.S. naval base of Guantanamo in Cuba. In any event, the Americans are leaving and Easter Island's excursion into the 20th century will surely be slowed as a result.

Mercury Content

Sweden, which does not permit fluoridation of water supplies as a means of countering tooth decay, allows on the other hand an acceptable level of mercury content in fish of one part per million.

This is higher than in Canada where the permissible level is only 0.5 parts per million and which tourist operators would like to see raised to the Swedish level.

It may be the tourist people will get their way. Delegates to a Thunder Bay convention last week were told that most of the lakes in question were free from mercury pollution from industrial wastes. What existed was part of the natural environment.

Ontario minister of tourism and information James Auld, who was present at the convention, agreed, and noted he would be meeting with Federal fisheries minister Jack Davis. The trouble was that the United States, Canada's largest market for fish, had set its level at 0.5 p.m.

Would the U.S. be willing to permit the slightly higher level? That obviously is the question. We see no reason why they should not. It is unlikely the Swedes would tolerate such a level if it were not within a safe level occurring naturally in the environment.

Government Backs Down on Auditor-General Issue

(the Globe and Mail)

The case of the bill to limit the powers of the Auditor-General, rather neatly displays both the strengths and weaknesses of the parliamentary system — when there are some reasonable men on two sides of the House and the public is alert.

The Government did not like the unflattering light which Auditor General Maxwell Henderson's reports shone on some of its activities. Naturally not; what government ever has? But the Government went beyond pique and prepared to translate its temper into legislation that would pretty effectively have muzzled the Auditor-General. That would be unconscionable in any government, but particularly so in this one, which rides high enough to be able to endure some criticism with composure.

But the opposition parties put their weaknesses on display, too. The bill which they attacked so ferociously when it came before the House was based on the unanimous report of the House Public Accounts Committee, a committee chaired by Conservative A. D. Hales and drawing 10 of its 30 members from the three opposition parties. No minority reports were presented. All three opposition parties appear to have been asleep at the switch. (Mr. Hales, in fact, was away from the switch on a trip abroad.)

This property exposed them to the wit of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau who, after the bill was withdrawn with the unanimous consent of the House, observed, "As a result of this episode, Mr. Speaker, I certainly will advise my ministers that if there are any unanimous recommendations from standing committees over which the Opposition has control, we should not automatically give implementation or credence to those recommendations."

When the opposition parties protested that they did not have control of the committee, because the chairman couldn't vote, the Prime Minister blandly announced that perhaps in future the chairman should be drawn from the Government party, a remark which further "shocked" the opposition.

For such occasions the House should get a special largely labelled "Joke!"

Still after being in their worst behavior, both opposition and Government went on to behave very well.

The opposition parties rallied from their committees fish to present a truly strong and reasoned opposition to the bill. House Conservative Leader G. W. Baldwin promised to battle it to the point where the Government would be forced to impose closure to get it passed, and both Conservatives and New Democrats threw impediments in its way.

It was finally dismissed at when New Democrat Stanley Knowles moved "That this House given consent to the President of the Treasury Board to withdraw from the order paper . . . an act respecting the Auditor General of Canada"; and the House, to the Speaker's unspeakable amazement, gave unanimous consent.

The opposition parties are due to be commended for having their duty strongly and well, and opposing a bill that would seriously have altered the right of Parliament and people to know what the Government is about.

The Government did its duty, by recognizing that the bill was a mistake and going along with the motion to withdraw it. It was the Prime Minister who gave the lead in his party by declaring "carried" by the unanimous.

Quite a few other Canadians did their duty, too. They picked up their pens and wrote their members of Parliament and told them, in no uncertain terms that they did not like this bill at all. No more rise on houses on payrolls, no more taxes of guided Preservertives! What did the politicians think they were doing?

And so, bouquets all round.

Almost all round, that is. There remains one person on whose behavior it is impossible to reflect with pleasure — President G. M. Drury. From the beginning Mr. Drury was the most political and unpleasant in his attacks on Mr. Henderson. It was his bill that would have restricted the Auditor-General and he did not have the grace to be in the House to see it withdrawn.

Merchants Being Polled on Monday Closing

The Belleville Downtown Association is polling members on the possibility of remaining open all day Wednesday and on Thursday and Friday nights, and compensating sales staff by closing all day Monday.

Noting that "so many merchants have learned that long er store hours do not necessarily mean increased weekly sales," Association President R. G. Porter says that a few merchants are interested in the above schedule.

However, there is at least one dissenter and a copy of his letter follows this introductory text.

Mr. Porter points out that if enough businesses are in favor of this change in store hours several things can be accomplished:

1. Salespeople would enjoy not only a five day week but would have two days off together, like most working people.

2. Because the normal work week would be decreased from 50 to 45½ hours, stores would be better staffed at all times which would improve service to customers.

3. In some cases salary expense would be slightly reduced because fewer part time sales clerks would be required.

4. Wednesday could be promoted to be a good business day whereas it is presently considered to be only partly so.

The association president concludes by asking members who are in favor of giving the proposed store hours a try for the period Jan. 4 to Feb. 27, 1971, to sign accordingly.

Meanwhile, A. R. C. Hitchon (Into the Record Man, Belleville branch) writes:

I am a Belleville merchant. As such my main duty is not to trade as much money as is possible with a minimum of effort; it is to provide a public service for which I am remunerated by that public. In other words, I am a servant of the public and I am not in a position to dictate to the public what their buying habits shall be.

Since the law does not stipulate that I must close on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday and Friday evenings, I have the association president concludes by asking members who are in favor of giving the proposed store hours a try for the period Jan. 4 to Feb. 27, 1971, to sign accordingly.

I am a Belleville merchant. As such my main duty is not to trade as much money as is possible with a minimum of effort; it is to provide a public service for which I am remunerated by that public. In other words, I am a servant of the public and I am not in a position to dictate to the public what their buying habits shall be.

Since the law does not stipulate that I must close on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday Dec. 3, if the merchants of Belleville continue to shirk their association president concludes by asking members who are in favor of giving the proposed store hours a try for the period Jan. 4 to Feb. 27, 1971, to sign accordingly.

Meanwhile, A. R. C. Hitchon (Into the Record Man, Belleville branch) writes:

I am a Belleville merchant. As such my main duty is not to trade as much money as is possible with a minimum of effort; it is to provide a public service for which I am remunerated by that public. In other words, I am a servant of the public and I am not in a position to dictate to the public what their buying habits shall be.

Since the law does not stipulate that I must close on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday Dec. 3, if the merchants of Belleville continue to shirk their responsibilities to the public buying public has apparently lic. and bids their compromise been agreeable to this course of action and I shall continue to do so.

It seems unrealistic for the Association to curtail working hours and potential employment by arbitrarily restricting shopping hours. It would seem more logical to extend the hours to serve the public and employ more people at a time when employment is scarce.

Any merchant who wishes to close on Monday, or any day for that matter, is free to do so. I shall not. I accepted the responsibility of a servant of the public and never intend to compromise that position. These are my reactions to your letter of Dec. 3. If

Snarling Snowmobiles Source of Complaints

PICTON (Staff) — Complaints from town residents concerning noise created by the night operation of snowmobiles have prompted town council to seek assistance from the Picton police commission.

Councillor Beatrice Ward reported several weekend telephone calls protesting the noise of the machines on Queen and Centre Streets. She observed that about eight machines were operating in the area when the complaints were made.

She added that the Picton Snowmobile Association came to council last winter when members learned of the presentation of a bylaw prohibiting snowmobiles on town streets.

The Association members persuaded council to reconsider its stand and forwarded a set of rules governing their group. These regulations guaranteed a considerate code of behavior from all participating snowmobilers. Council relented and the bylaw was not presented.

Councillor McLoughlin said last night that he received about 20 calls last weekend, when several snowmobilers disturbed the entire neighborhood until 3 or 3 a.m.

He expressed concern for public safety and predicted "someone will get killed".

Councillor Harry Abram, a member of the Snowmobilers Association said he would seek co-operation from fellow members in curbing the noise problem.

Council instructed town clerk Andrew Jarvis to seek assistance from the Picton Police Commission.

Constable Harry Sisty of the Picton Police Department today reported several weekend complaints involving snowmobiles. He explained that most residents seek to object principally to night riding which continues until 2 or 3 a.m. disturbing sleep. He observed that about five municipalities within a 100-mile radius of Picton have instituted bylaws against night riding. He also noted complaints that snowmobilers were failing to observe stop signs.

Belleville City Council heard similar complaints at its Monday meeting.

Reporters Barred From Meeting

TRENTON (Staff) — Officials of the Ontario Water Resources Commission barred reporters from the Belleville - Trenton Water Area Advisory Board Meeting here yesterday.

One of the projects upon which the new board will decide is whether to build a pipeline to bring water from Lake Ontario to service Belleville, Trenton and neighboring townships.

Although the results of the closed meeting here are not known, one source reports that it was concerned in part with administrative organization of the new board itself.

On the agenda was a discussion of means for integrating the water and sewage systems of the participating municipalities — Belleville, Trenton, the townships of Sidney, Thurlow and Murray and Prince Edward County.

Additionally, "timing schedules" were to be established yesterday for the stages in the integrated services program, one agenda item being "areas to be served in the initial 20 - year period".

Regulations Tightened

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows that the federal and provincial governments are tightening regulations governing the use of snowmobiles. However, despite the tighter regulations, manufacturers predict a record sales season.

Snow Vehicles and Operators Face Additional Restrictions

By KLAUS JONAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

As the popularity of snowmobiles continues its rapid rise this season, the net of regulations governing the machines is tightening.

Alarmed by the deaths of 93 persons in snowmobile accidents last year and the somber prediction by the Canada Safety Council that about 100 will be killed this winter, the federal department of transport recently published a set of proposed regulations that would control everything from the candle-power of the lights of the machines to the carting edge of their skis.

The regulations are designed for incorporation in the Motor Vehicle Safety Act, expected to be proclaimed early in December.

Provincial governments, too, have moved in their areas of jurisdiction in make snowmobiling a their-fetal pastime.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that all provinces other than Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia have special regulations at the ready this year to keep the ubiquitous snowtrackers in check.

In Ontario you can be fined $100 for driving your machine on railway tracks. In Alberta you may be jailed for 30 days for going hunting with it.

The Newfoundland government passed enabling legislation at the last session of Joe legislature but regulations are not yet complete.

Resources Minister W. R. Callahan said the government is not anxious to restrict snowmobiles unnecessarily, particularly in the northern part of the province and in Labrador where they have replaced dog teams.

But he said he would like to see forthcoming regulations cover registration, age and restricted areas.

Hunting from snowmobiles is forbidden in Newfoundland under already-existing law.

Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia both forbid the use of snowmobiles on highways but have no legislation forbidding hunting with them.

An official of the wildlife division of the Nova Scotia lands and forests department said, snowmobiles are not widely used for hunting in his province, and there is hardly any game on Prince Edward Island.

Legislation governing the use of snowmobiles in New Brunswick was passed last April and is expected to be proclaimed soon.

Under it, registration of publicly-used machines is compulsory; teen-agers under 16 are restricted from crossing highways; and snowmobiles may not operate within 25 feet of the travelled portion of highways except for the purpose of crossing.

Using snowmobiles to chase game is prohibited by the province's Game Act.

Quebec, the province with the greatest number of snowmobile deaths last year—60 of the 93—prohibits operation on or crossing of highways without a regular driving permit. The province levies a $5 registration fee.

A spokesman for the transport department said the province has special police squads on snowmobiles to patrol the main areas where snowmobiling is practised.

Irwin Haskett, minister of transport for Ontario, said he is confident that laws enacted during the last two years will reduce last year's death toll of 34.

The laws require the licensing of persons using snowmobiles along highways; registration of all machines, irrespective of where they are used, and mandatory reporting of all accidents involving injuries or damage over $200. The laws also give municipalities wide powers to control use of snowmobiles off the road.

The Snow Vehicles Act passed at the last session of the Manitoba legislature makes it unlawful to operate snowmobiles without registration and licence plates in the province, except north of the 53rd parallel.

All persons operating snowmobiles must hold driving licences and persons under 18 must have written consent of their parents.

Operation is not allowed on public roads or in ditches alongside highways, and machines must be equipped with mufflers.

No legislation outlawing hunting by snowmobiles has been passed in Manitoba to date but Transport Minister Jos Borowski recently indicated which way his feelings are running.

"Any man," he said, "who will chase an animal down with a machine or a plane to clobber it ought to be clobbered himself."

In Saskatchewan, snowmobiles must be registered and cannot be operated within city limits or on the travelled portion of a provincial highway. Regulations enacted this year say the vehicles cannot be used to pursue or disturb wild animals or birds.

The Alberta Vehicles Act requires that the machines be registered and that operators must be at least 14 years old to cross highways.

The act bans snow vehicles from any portion of a highway parking lane or sidewalk, including ditches along the road.

Passengers must dismount before the machine is driven across a highway.

Use of snowmobiles for hunting is prohibited in almost all of the foothills and mountain regions of western Alberta from midnight until noon during the hunting season. It is also illegal to shoot at game within 50 yards of the machine

C E Haglund, information officer for the department of lands and forests, said the law was passed because snowmobiles were driving game into inaccessable areas, making it difficult for other hunters.

The British Columbia government charges a licence and a registration fee. Operators must obtain a police permit to drive snowmobiles on highways or unimproved roads. It used on highways, the machines must meet standards of other motor vehicles.

Despite a request by the British Columbia Wildlife Federation, legislation limiting the use of snowmobiles for hunting has not been passed.

The federation said the machines have been used to run down animals, and unless that stops, public sympathy may swing in favor of banning hunting altogether.

But despite tighter regulations across the country, snowmobile manufacturers are expecting a record sales season. Last year about 200,000 of the machines were operating in the country. This year, they say, this figure will be close to one million.

Trudeau Tells Maritimers to Link Up Their Economy to U.S. Market Needs

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau urged Maritimers Tuesday to gear their economy to future demands of the United States market, citing a study that predicted the U.S. will become a net importer of goods worth $5 billion a year by 1980.

He told about 700 service club members from the Saint John area: "Our goal should be factories prepared to manufacture goods of the future, in ways that protect the environment for the future."

He cited a study by the Brookings Institution, the U.S. research organization, that predicted the U.S. will switch from a major exporter to an importer.

Many of those goods would come from the Maritimes—next door to the affluent east-coast markets of the U.S.

But he warned against the noise, waste and cost that industrialization could entail.

If guards against environmental pollution mean restricted or more expensive products, he said, "Canadians are prepared to pay a little more to preserve the environment that is so essential to our sanity."

The prime minister was optimistic that U.S. markets would remain open to Canadian goods "through retention by the United States of its post-war liberal trade policies."

"The groups in the U.S. now most actively pressing for protectionist policies—and I'm speaking mainly of the labor unions in the goods producing industries—still represent an increasingly small number of Americans."

Border Watch Set Up for FLQ

OTTAWA (CP) — A border watch against the possible return of four FLQ kidnappers—a watch which they have to go on for decades—has been instituted by the immigration department, officials said Tuesday.

All border points and ports of entry have been instructed to be on the lookout, now and years from now, for the four men flown to safe haven in Cuba in exchange for the unharmed James Cross.

The four are Jacques Lanctot, Marc Carbonneau, Jacques Cossette-Trudel and Pierre Seguin. Lanctot was accompanied to Cuba by his wife and child, Cossette-Trudel by his wife.

One official said the Front de Liberation du Quebec terrorists are expected sooner or later to make an attempt to get back into Canada, possibly through Algeria and France.

Easier still would be an attempt to cross from the United States.

Authorities said the kidnappers are Canadian citizens and cannot be barred entry to Canada automatically as aliens or criminal undesirables.

They said that if they are spotted by immigration officers the latter would find some excuse to detain them until police could arrive.

Justice department officials have said the kidnappers and their relatives in Cuba will not be exiled—that is, stripped of their citizenship.

But they would be charged and prosecuted for serious offences, including kidnapping, if they ever tried to get back into Canada.

As matters now stand, the kidnappers would presumably find it difficult to get into any other country besides Cuba, with the possible exception of Algeria.

But they are at least entitled to apply for Canadian passports.

An external affairs department spokesman said a passport is not the automatic right of every Canadian citizen.

But he declined to say specifically that the four kidnappers would be denied passports if they simply applied for them and sent along the $10 fee for each.

The seven are not statistics because they are Canadian citizens, but at the moment they cannot travel from country to country easily or at all without any proper papers.

The official said there are hundreds of irresponsibles in the case which is setting one Canadian precedent after another.

He posed these possibilities:

The kidnappers might change their appearances and get back into Canada simply as tourists.

They might go to France where they could melt into the population, acquire new identities through forged papers and come home without major difficulty.

They might acquire legitimate Canadian passports and return home years from now when immigration officers had long ceased to be fully alert to such a possibility.

California Lettuce Said Safe

TORONTO (CP) — The regional director of the federal food and drug directorate says California lettuce sold in Toronto presents no health threat although it may be treated with DDT.

Bruce Jones said Tuesday inspectors keep a close watch on all leafy vegetables imported from the United States. He said the amount of DDT permitted in lettuce is one part per million, down from seven parts a year ago.

He was commenting on statements by Danny Maldonado, a spokesman for the Toronto committee of the United Farm Workers, a union which is trying to negotiate a contract on behalf of California vegetable workers. Mr. Maldonado said union-grown lettuce is not treated with DDT and therefore poses no health threat.

Federal Security Body Urged

HAMILTON (CP) — A federal securities commission should be established whether the provinces want it or not, the joint Senate-Commons committee on the constitution was told Tuesday night.

George Jackson, a Hamilton investment specialist, told the 21-member federal committee that Canadian investment capital must be "kept national in its flexibility, and any tendency to foster regional or provincial capital should be discouraged."

Submitting one of six briefs during a four-hour sitting, Mr. Jackson urged an exclusive federal securities power "with or without provincial agreement." It was the first time the committee has heard such a proposal since it began a series of cross-Canada meetings to obtain ideas for constitutional reform.

The committee, which has already held hearings in three provinces and the Yukon, sits tonight in London, then moves to Windsor Thursday to wind up a four-city tour of southwestern Ontario which began Monday in Toronto.

Mr. Jackson said a national authority is needed because the multiplicity of provincial securities laws leaves investors with no better protection than that of a "crap-shooter."

"The direct employment of private investment capital in Canadian negotiable securities cannot continue to be left to 10 provincial governments and 10 provincial pieces of legislation . . . nor to the self-regulating bodies whose primary and fundamental objective is to their own best interests."

All interprovincial securities business would come under the national commission.

E. B. Osler, Liberal member for Winnipeg South Centre, said Mr. Jackson's brief hit the issue "dead-on". Mr. Osler said a national body would deal with a situation such as Canadian Pacific Railway, which is required to provide more information to the U.S. Securities Commission to be listed in New York than it gives its own Canadian shareholders.

Douglas Fisher, Liberal member for New Westminster, said Mr. Jackson was suggesting, in effect, that a federal power take over the incorporation of all provincially-incorporated companies.

"I'm concerned with how the securities are put together, how they are underwritten and how they are marketed," Mr. Jackson replied.

He said the list of situations where public investors have been "led to financial slaughter, just in the past decade, is formidable."

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are going south for the first time this winter and wonder if you can give us some hints on what we should take in the way of clothing, etc.

ANSWER: Though on the surface it may seem more convenient to take a lot of clothes, resist that impulse! Seasoned travelers agree that the more trips they take, the less they pack.

About a week's worth of clothing is a good maximum. With coin-operated laundry and "dry-cleaning" establishments plentiful throughout the country, and with a travel iron tucked in the corner of your suitcase, it is easy to keep clean on longer journeys.

Carefully selected and coordinated, a little can seem like twice as much. Stick to one or two basic colors—then the same accessories will do for several outfits. Separates are very good too. Fashion magazines offer many travel wardrobe hints and you can take cues from friends who may have sojourned previously in the area you intend to visit. The final decision, of course, depend on your own closet.

The main thing is to dress comfortably, yet, appropriately for the place you are going. In general, what is proper for a given occasion at home is just as suitable elsewhere. For dining at the large hotels and fashionable resorts, men are usually required to wear a coat and tie; women feel most comfortable in a simple dinner or cocktail dress. Dress may be as informal as you wish at most small lake or seaside resorts.

It goes without saying that shorts on the street of a cosmopolitan city are as out of place as a sequined gown on a canoe trip. The many non-wrinkle, drip-dry fabrics available today in men's women's and children's apparel make the proverbial Ugly Tourist an unnecessary phenomenon.

Garments that are too cumbersome to fold neatly into a suitcase or those that wrinkle easily may be covered with plastic and laid flat atop the luggage in the trunk. Hanging clothing in the back seat is not only uncomfortable for the children or pets who may be sitting there, but it creates a blind spot for the driver. A roomy handbag or basket will keep possessions together and reduce the jumble that accumulates on car seats.

A word about packing for children, especially the very young: make space for one or two of their favorite toys and garments. A bit of home can help soothe those restless hours unaccustomed surroundings. This goes for pets too; many dogs travel better if they have their own water dish or part of their usual bedding.

A last-minute check for camera and film, driver's license, car registration and insurance card, credit cards and travellers' checks and you're ready to go — unchartered.

MY SISTER'S KEEPER — by L. P. Hartley.

Basil Hancock's complaint, as his doctor diagnosed it, was an acute case of sisteritis. What happened to his sister mattered more than what happened to himself. How Basil survived and at cost, is a story which Mr. Hartley tells with delightfully facetiouate irony.

THE CHILD FROM THE SEA — by Elizabeth Goudge.

This new historical novel by Elizabeth Goudge tells the story of Lucy Walter, born at Roch Castle in Wales, first love of Charles II and mother of the Duke of Monmouth. It tells of Lucy's girlhood and her adventures as a young woman secretly married to Charles II in the years of his exile, ending with his restoration to the throne.

BOWERS OF INNOCENCE — by Geoffrey Cottrell.

Daniel Atherton is an elderly widower who has retired to an English seaside resort. There he becomes involved with the happy - go - lucky Ford family and with the widowed Nina Muirhead. Conflict develops and the Fords decide to fight with disastrous results for Nina.

CARAVAN TO VACCARES — by Alistair MacLean.

The advent of a new novel by Alistair MacLean is eagerly welcomed by the reader of "thrillers". This time his setting is a gypsy festival in Provence. Englishman Neil Bowman discovers that the gypsies are hiding something and before long he is on the run for his life. He is accompanied by dark - haired Cadie through a series of narrow escapes to a climax when the secret is revealed.

FIFTH BUSINESS — by Robertson Davies.

It is several years since Robertson Davies, formerly editor of the Peterborough Examiner and now Master of Massey College, has published a novel. In "Fifth Business", his main character is Dunstan Ramsay, a schoolmaster on the point of retirement. He tells the story of his life and people and events which influenced his development. From youth in a small Ontario town, through the war years when he was wounded and won the Victoria Cross, through later years of scholarship and teaching, he traces his relationship with a "saint" and a "devil".

ALL THE BEST PEOPLE — by Sloan Wilson.

This novel is the story of two families, the Campbells and the Staffers, particularly Dora and Caroline Starling in 1929 with a leisurely and dignified way of life, through the thirties and the second world war, yet watch these people develop and grow older while they struggle to adjust to new ways.

THE LONG RECONNAISSANCE — by John Murphy.

Set against the background of the Cuban Missile Crisis, this is a work of suspense, fast-moving action and humor. John Murphy is the pseudonym of a jump infantry officer who has served in Vietnam. He is able to write with an insider's knowledge of the great military establishment which surrounds the fictional Major Dundee.

Candles Require A Little Loving Care

TORONTO (CP) — Show candles a little loving care and they'll repay you by burning at their best.

If you use them to add their special glow to the holiday season, Inge Lang suggests you light them at least long enough to char the wick as soon as you put them in their holders. Then they will relight more easily if you want to use them when guests come. Besides, they will look as if you do really burn them and not just leave them as decorations.

Miss Lang, owner of Ye Olde Candle Shoppe, recommends that you keep wicks clipped. Take off that bit of ash that forms at the end. If it or bits of match fall into the wax they will make candles burn unevenly and drip.

Candles are just as prone to drip as they once were, but they will do it if you burn them in a draft that blows the flame.

They may also do it if they collect a pool of wax around the wick, so Miss Lang says you should pour wax off periodically. She says it may be helpful especially in the case of chunky candles that otherwise may bury their wicks in a well of wax.

If you burn candles for long periods, rather than for half an hour at a time, she says they are more likely to burn evenly without dripping.

Never let any kind of candle burn unattended, of course. Someone should always be there when candles are burning."

Miss Lang says there are a number of accessories that can help you make the best use of your candles. For one, she firmly recommends the use of a snuffer.

"You really should use a snuffer. If you blow a candle out you can blow wax all over the tablecloth or wall.

"If wax does drip on the table, the best thing you can do is try to clean it up as soon as possible. Let the drip harden just a little, then scrape it up."

You can catch the drip before it splashes on the table with a little gadget called a bobeche. Made of glass or crystal or plastic, it fits around the base of a candle to catch dripping wax on its way down.

Miss Lang says the traditional bayberry leads sales of scented candles around the holiday season.

"There is a legend that if you burn a bayberry down to the socket you will have good luck and fortune in the next year."

She says favorite scents vary with the season. In the fall the bayberry, spice and potpourri are the best sellers, and floral scents in the spring.

She says nothing can be done about a scented candle losing its scent.

"The quality of a scented candle governs whether the scent will last. Get the best one you can."

The Sounds of Christmas

Mrs. Margaret Sherry, president of the Gamma Mu Chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, presents a hearing aid to Denis Duquesne aged 9 at the Ontario School for the Deaf while Mrs. S. Bailey, service chairman, looks on. Members of the chapter raised funds for this Christmas gift (a double bonus) for Denis through various projects including bake sales.

City Christmas Sharing Program One of Volunteer Bureau Projects

Part of the joy of Christmas comes from giving, not only to one's family and friends but to also to the less fortunate in one's community. The residents of Belleville realize this! It is more blessed to give than to receive, so one of the projects of the Central Volunteer Bureau is the Christmas Sharing Program under the chairmanship of Mrs. Mark Haslett.

Families who deserve the benifits of this program are referred to Mrs. Haslett and her committee by various agencies, churches and schools and no family put in a direct application. Cash donations from the public are received by the committee and this year, the fourth since the program was first organized, only gifts of money will be distributed to these families except to those who are not in a position to handle money and would therefore find it more beneficial to receive vouchers for baskets of food. The committee felt that a gift of cash would enable each family to spend it according to their choice and celebrate Christmas exactly as they wish to do. In previous they were given gifts in kind.

Another innovation this year is the format that the gifts will be distributed by those who are working for the program. Until last year they were given to the families by the donors themselves.

Mrs. Haslett's committee consists of representatives of the Ontario Department of Social and Family Services, of the Family and Children's Services of Hastings County, the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit, the City of Belleville Welfare Dept. and The Intelligencer.

Individuals in the committee are Monsignor J. P. Sullivan, Ben Corke, Paul Stephenson (Fire Fighters' Association), Mrs. Freeman Burrows, I. Cooperman, Captain E. Gurney (Salvation Army), Mrs. Hazel Brooks and Mrs. J. A. Stott.

In previous years, the various organizations had their own sharing projects and though they all co-operated with one another this is the first time the Christmas Sharing Program committee is acting as a central co-ordinating agency. As part of the program, the Fire Fighters' Association is collecting new and used toys, mitts, hockey sticks, candy and fruit and will distribute them to the children of these families. The other organizations are pooling their funds set aside for Christmas projects.

But in spite of the work of these organizations the main stay of the program is the general public. "Without their generous contributions" says Mrs. Haslett "We would never be able to help so many families every year." About 400 families are helped each year.

Donations may be sent to the Christmas Sharing Program, 224, John Street. Donors will be given tax exemptions. The project is not part of the United Community Services and the money is maintained in a separate account.

Free Tickets to Ballet - Encourage Tots' Interest

TORONTO CP — Free tickets for school children to ballet, the theatre and other events are building future audiences for such occasions, say the Inner City Angels.

"Our kids dig ballet," Marianne Heller said in an interview. "It can talk about ballet to the 11-and-12-year-olds coming to the performances now because they've been to other performances and they are beginning to understand ballet.

"Even the babies are getting hooked on ballet. Their attention span has grown. When they walk into a theatre now they know how to become part of an audience."

The Angels are opening the glitter world of the arts to children who might never get a chance to see it otherwise. The organization has been greeted enthusiastically by theatre people.

There are also a few hypocrites, said Mrs. Heller, who founded the Angels 18 months ago together with Douglas Bolmer, former principal at Duke of York school.

Parents are attending concerts. One father of six turned up for a play with his six children and found himself inside a theatre for the first time in 13 years.

Parents are bringing their own and the neighbors' children to the O'Keefe Centre, Massey Hall, the Royal Alexandra or other thatres.

Sixteen schools are involved and as many funds become available more inner-city schools will be added to the list.

Between Sept. 1 and Oct. 15 this year the Angels distributed 2,350 free tickets worth $3,350 to programs that included ballet, drama, poetry, folk singing, theatre, puppetry and painting.

Mrs. Roger (Jane) Levoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Robinson of Stanley Crescent, Brockville, a recent graduate of the Brockville Psychiatric Hospital, was successful in passing her Registered Nursing examinations and is now on the staff of the Civic Hospital, Pembroke, Ontario.

WEDDING

ATKINSON — MULLINS

Campbellford United Church was the scene of the recent wedding when Katherine Mullins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mullins of Belleville was united in marriage to John David Atkinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Atkinson of Campbellford. Rev. L. Woods officiated at the ceremony and music was rendered by Mr. Mills who also accompanied the soloist Bruce Warr of Westwood.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother Alec Mullins of Smiths Falls, wore a full length gown of white organza over satin with jewelled headpiece caught to a floor-length veil. She carried a bouquet of white and red carnations.

Mrs. Peggy Duck as matron of honor wore a floor-length gown in gold velvet trimmed with brown and white daisies. Bridesmaids Linda Pearsall and Rubina Stevens were, respectively, attired, but in roses green velvet with similar daisy trim.

Jeremy Duck attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Barry Mullins and George Schmidt.

A reception was held at the Legion Hall in Campbellford, where the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a cream crimplene dress with brown accessories and a corsage of salmon shade carnations. Assisting, the bridegroom's mother wore a rose taffeta dress with brown figured overlay, brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Leaving on the wedding trip for points east, the bride wore a navy suit with grey top coat, and red accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson will reside in Campbellford.

SOCIALS

Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. John D. Atkinson (nee Katherine Mullins) was honored at two miscellaneous showers. One at the home of Mrs. Thelma Atkinson, aunt of the bridegroom with Mrs. Peggy Duck as co-hostess; also by fellow workers at Smiths Falls.

Women's Group Differs On Controversial Speaker

MONTREAL (CP) —When Jean Pauley's name came up during a meeting discussing a possible speakers for a local women's club, about half the members automatically welcomed the suggestion.

The dissenting half threatened to boycott the meeting if she was invited to speak.

The controversial Miss Pauley, when told of the incident, merely laughed and said: "That's interesting."

She's resilient in conflicting points of view after 2½ years as host of Cross-Country, a social-issues program on radio station CJAD on alternate Saturday mornings.

She is "flooded" with letters, 75 per cent of which are favorable, she doesn't do as with with telephone calls, probably because, as she theorizes, "anger drives people to the phone."

On the encounter, people knowledgeable in a certain field, such as law, welfare, housing or colleagues, are invited to talk and answer questions from listeners on the air.

Jean Pauley Comments, a series of brief opinion segments which are taped in Montreal and broadcast daily over some 20 stations across Canada, is of more response. Often listeners will request transcripts of a certain segment, if they happened to agree with what she said, or otherwise prefer to let her in on a relevant perspael or family experience.

"I Upload Comment," Jean recalled, "was about the way people, especially parents, have to accept the responsibility for people around them, but neglect what I think is the first step — to let her in on a relevant perspael or family experience.

"One woman blasted me to kingdom come for that segment, and I was greatly heartsick to her husband and children was a joy and that I would be incredibly selfish, and so on. ..."

"Then a man called and said he had listened to me while driving and that he agreed with me completely. He even said that I was a theorist to show his wife."

Most of the letters are eventually answered. "Because there is so little real sharing in our life."

"Everything is on such a superficial level that if they didn't hear from me, it would be just too typical."

Jean thinks offending some people is probably inevitable in her line of work. "although all I want to do is stimulate them into thinking."

Group Protests Use of Wine

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan branch of the Canadian Temperance Temperance Union is planning a letter of protest regarding the use of wine by Graduate Kerr on his television show, The Gallopin' Gourmet.

A news release from the WCTU executive said it takes the position that the Executive chef's use of wines and his explanations of their use are contrary to provincial law, which forbids the advertising of liquor in Saskatchewan.

TASTY DESSERT

Serve peach halves and fill the centres with grated pineapple and cream cheese. Garnish with a mint sprig and serve with cream cheese dressing.

Club Activities

PARENTS WITHOUT PARTNERS

Four prospective members were welcomed at the recent meeting of Parents Without Partners held at Queen Alexandra School in Belleville.

The Chapter received many compliments on the float representing the "old woman in the shoe" which had been and will be in Santa Claus parades in Belleville. Members discussed and voted on services and the money is maintained in a separate account.

Members decided too that the Bells-Trent chapter No. 623 would put in a bid to host the regional council meeting in Belleville some time early next year.

The chapter has received approvals from different members of parliament and Provincial Head-watchers on the brief of proposals pertaining to the white paper. There will be more press releases on the brief which has been endorsed by all the chapters in Canada.

A report of the last EROC meeting was given to enable members to know what was happening in the colincil. It was announced that a member of the chapter will appear on the Ted Snyder show on CJBQ, Trenton some time next week.

An official from outside the chapter will do the honors of drawing the five winning tickets on turkeys on December 14. Tickets are now on sale for any member. The next meeting will be held on December 21 in Hall A of the United Church, Trenton at 8 p.m. All single parents are welcome.

A social time and coffee were enjoyed by all.

Stage Wedding

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Candy Devine, Australian - born cabaret singer, and her were married on the stage of Dublin's Gaiety Theatre between performances of the variety show Gales of Laughter. Miss Devine is star of the show.

District Women's Institute Meetings

RIVER VALLEY WI

The third card party sponsored by the River Valley WI was recently held at the centre. The citizenship and education group were in charge arrangements and provided the refreshments. The prizes were won by Mrs. Kenneth Green, Mrs. S. McIntosh, Ernest Carr and Trevor Grills.

The River Valley WI sponsored their last card party for this year at the centre on Friday evening with 12 tables in play. The historical research group was in charge of the arrangements and furnished the refreshments. The Floyd Parlor, Mrs. John Morgan, Claude Tucker and John Kane.

Members of the River Valley WI catered for the lower Trent valley fish and game club hunters' banquet with 227 in attendance. After the banquet various trophies were presented followed by a dance.

REDNERSVILLE WI

REDNERSVILLE — Mrs. Dorothy MacDonald was the guest speaker for the November meeting of the Rednersville WI held at the home of Mrs. R. Redner. Mrs. MacDonald covered three subjects, cancer, drugs and mental health. She distributed pamphlets on these subjects. Mrs. H. Bonter thanked her and she was presented with a gift. She was introduced by Mrs. R. Brickman, convener for health.

Mrs. E. Oederdonk and Mrs. W. Pulver reported on the first day of the area convention and Mrs. C. Vanclief and Mrs. H. Grimm reported on the second day.

Mrs. R. Brickman gave a reading and carol sang "Adverse". The hostess and her committee served lunch.

The December meeting was held in the Madoc Township Hall with the president Mrs. Floyd Blackburn in charge.

Following the opening procedures the convener of the agricultural program Mrs. Cecil Boyle opened this portion with a lively sing-song. After which she read a poem. The motto "An Institute is like a ship — everyone should take a turn at the wheel," was given by Mrs. Cecil Blackburn. This was followed with an interesting discussion. The program concluded with the reading of a paper by the convener.

A contest was conducted and a social half hour enjoyed.

SYLSTONE WI

The Sylstone WI held their Christmas meeting in the WI hall on Wednesday, December 2 with an attendance of over 30.

The hall was decorated by the hostesses Mrs. E. Lindsay Anderson and Mrs. Hewitt Arnold. Bouquets of red and white poinsettia and other seasonable flower arrangements graced the piano which was also festooned with a holly garland. The windows and side tables were also decorated with holly. A small illuminated Christmas tree gave a holiday setting to a large table and gift packages were piled under it.

Mrs. Lindsay Anderson was in charge of the program and also conducted the business period during which plans were discussed for catering for the community sale at Hazel's on December 14. Mrs. Margaret Osborne, Mrs. Jack Watson, Mrs. E. Anderson and Mrs. Gerald Barnum were put on the committee to arrange the menu.

Mrs. Donald Kerr displayed hand made flowers made mostly from everyday materials such as newsprint, egg cartons, scraps of material and felt and touched up with spray paint, pen markings and so on.

Melville Gibson of Campbellford, a retired senior citizen accepted several pieces of woodwork and shell work which he does as a hobby. These articles were shown and described by Mrs. Ernest Irwin.

Mrs. Austin Dunk, Mrs. John Spencer and Mrs. Donald Stewart sang a few songs, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Paul McKeown, Mrs. Ernest Rowe gave a reading. The Rev. Ernest Rowe gave a few pieces on the violin with Mrs. Paul McKeown accompanying her on the piano.

Mrs. Ellis Jones conducted musical contest. "Happy birthday," was sung for Mrs. Charles Stewart who was celebrating her birthday. Gifts were exchanged by almost everyone present.

Refreshments including sandwiches, fruit bread, cookies, pickles, cheese and coffee were served by the hostesses and their assistants.

Director Invited

MONTREAL (CP) — Dimitri Eipides, director of Montreal's Underground Film Centre, has been invited to participate in the 1976 International Jury of the San Sebastien Film Festival in Spain, Minifestival 11, a program of Canadian films touring Europe since September, is to be presented at San Sebastion also.

Ann Landers

Couple Urged to Seek Family Service Help

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband says I am crazy. After twelve years with him it is entirely possible that he is right. We haven't had a conversation in years. All we do is fight. He says he could have the house cleaner and the kids better behaved than I do. According to him, I am the world's lousiest cook. (He has gone from 170 pounds to 186 on my lousy cooking.) He thinks I should look the same as I did when I was 17. I used to be a size 10 and now I'm a 12. He reminds me about it daily.

Last year for my birthday he presented me with a hand-written set of rules which I am supposed to follow: I can't watch TV during the day, I can't telephone my folks long-distance. I am not supposed to ask him to stop at the grocery store to pick up anything. He is so lazy you wouldn't believe it. While he is lying on the sofa watching TV, he yells for one of the kids to come and change the channel.

ANN LANDERS

I don't know why I am writing to you. You're only an advice columnist, not a magician. My marriage is a hopeless mess, but if you can think of something to help me, please let me know. — BEAT.

DEAR BEAT: Try to remember why you married the guy — it was only twelve years ago. You must have believed it would work. Instead of accepting the fact that your marriage is hopeless, why not try to do something about it? You both need counseling, but a man who won't even change TV channels is not likely to go for help. So go yourself — you might learn something useful. I recommend Family Service.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell people, as only you can, to stay home when they have rotten, miserable colds, hacking coughs, etc. A friend of mine just left and I'm so mad I could scream. The idiot came over here with the flu. She dragged herself out of a sickbed because she didn't want to spoil the bridge game.

This lamebrain sneezed and coughed and blew her nose for three solid hours. She also insisted on helping me serve the coffee and cake and she breathed on everything. I had pneumonia last year and I'm highly susceptible to respiratory infection. I'll probably be as sick as a dog within 24 hours.

I am mad at myself for not telling her to go home. Yet, how could I, without hurting her feelings? What would Ann Landers have done? — PENICILLIN PAULINE.

DEAR PEN: Ann Landers would have said, "You are a dear to have dragged yourself over here, but you belong in bed. I insist that you go straight home and take care of yourself." I would have then handed Typhoid Mary her coat and seen her to the door.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a very competent, reliable, trustworthy cleaning lady who has worked for me for several years. Bonnie has a bit of a booze problem which I have known about for a long time. It has never interfered with her work and it still doesn't. But lately she must be drinking more than usual because she has been pouring water into the vodka and gin bottles so I won't know how much she has guzzled. We had a few people in last night and everyone said the martinis were 99 per cent water. I knew at once that Bonnie had been at it again.

Please give me some useful advice — none of your Pollyanna stuff. She's a hush, and I am not going to dry her up. Thanks. — BUFFALOED.

DEAR BUFF: Leave enough for a good belt and lock up the rest.

Unique Birthday Cake

A nine-inch square cake is turned into a gala December birthday cake by a little cutting and coloring magic. Mary Moore gives you step by step procedure for a cake to surprise your December birthday people.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Christmas Tree Birthday Cake

By MARY MOORE

Special Note: This is a handy and directions for assembling it are detailed. Use a 9" square cake or make Spice Cake (as I did) which I will give you tomorrow.

DECEMBER BIRTHDAY CAKE (Christmas Tree)

9" square cake (this or see Spice Cake tomorrow)

ICING:
2 tbsps. butter
4 cups unsifted icing sugar
3 tbsps. milk
½ tsp. almond extract
1 cup flaked coconut
½ tsp. green food coloring
2 tbsps. warm water

Tiny colored gumdrops

Bake and cool cake.

Now comes the cutting and assembling which is very worthwhile. (Cut out paper pattern first, to make sure you can follow each step.)

Cut the cake in half crosswise. On one half, mark the centre of the long uncut side. Then cut diagonally from mark to each corner to form one large and two small triangles. Cut one of the small triangles in half to form two small triangles — these smaller triangles will be the tree trunk. Place the remaining small triangle on a large tray (I used 12" silver tray) as the top branch of tree. Centre the point of the large triangle along the bottom edge of the small triangle to form the next branch.

From the remaining half of the cake, cut two 2" triangles from corners on cut side. Place the large piece of cake that remains to form bottom branch of tree; arrange the 2" triangles to form points at outer edges of bottom branch. Place the smaller tree trunk triangles together to form a rectangular trunk at bottom of tree.

Carefully, patiently frost top and sides with icing made by beating together butter, sugar, milk and almond extract. Divide food coloring with water; add coconut and toss with a fork until coconut is evenly tinted. Dry on double paper towels. Sprinkle tinted coconut over the cake except along upper portion of each branch where snow would accumulate. Decorate with gum drops as desired. Place candles on branch tips to simulate colored lights.

Successful Living

Symptoms of Drug Abuse

By DORIS CLARK

Symptoms of drug use and abuse in our young boys and girls include:

1. Sudden changes in behavior. A declining interest in hobbies or sports. Skipping classes. A rapid drop in school grades.

2. A lack of interest in appearance or grooming; particularly if the child previously has been very clothes-conscious and tidy.

3. A sudden increase in appetite — particularly for sweets. Or a sudden loss of appetite, or loss of weight.

4. Unexplained periods of isolation, during which the bedroom or bathroom for a considerable length of time.

5. Absence from home for long periods of time, when you do not know his whereabouts. Sudden requests to stay overnight with friends.

6. Perpetual desperation for money, for no apparent reason, or the sudden disappearance of his personal possessions, such as record-players, cameras and jewelry. — from "Is Your Child On Drugs?"

This book, by three Canadians, can be a tremendous help to any parent who has the slightest inking that his or her children are experimenting with drugs. Details on inquiry.

Dear Doris: On TV I have watched children play on shows. I am 13, and would like to know how I could be on TV. — Anxious to Know

Dear Anxious: You've been watching those programs from the States with youngsters in shows feature children as I'd say your best bet is to get practice now for TV appearances later.

How good is your reading? Performers read a good deal of what they are saying off large cards which they can see but the viewers cannot. You have to be a good fast accurate reader to manage it.

Anything you can do to improve your reading, your enunciation, your grammar, your ability to memorize, will help get you ready for fun on TV.

And, of course, never miss a chance to get in on any amateur plays that your school or church or community centre is putting on.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I know you're going to smoke, so you might as well do it at home. I don't approve, but I guess there's nothing I can do about it. Anyhow, I don't want you to be deceiving me."

Mother: "I feel so strongly about the dangers of smoking that I will not permit you to smoke in my presence or anywhere I can stop you. I know, and so do you, how harmful it is."

If you are opposed to your teen-ager's smoking, refuse to compromise on the subject. State your choice and stick to it as long as you are supporting him or he lives under your roof.

Couple Mark 25th Wedding Anniversary

MIDTO — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holden were given a surprise 25th wedding anniversary reception on Friday when relatives came home from Peterborough on Saturday morning. Their beautifully decorated home was filled with their relatives and neighbors. Guests included A. C. Holden who was the groomsman at their wedding. Miss Jane Gay who was the bridesmaid and Mrs. E. Golden who was the soloist. Community singing was enjoyed by all with Mrs. Ken Lang providing the violin accompaniment.

Mr. and Mrs. Holden unwrapped the many gifts they had been given including an electric clock from their neighbors. Refreshments including an anniversary and wedding cake were served by their daughter Marlene, Mrs. Joe Forestell and Mrs. George Sine. Several pictures were taken during the evening.

University Women Enjoy Yule Party

Members of the Canadian Federation of University Women of Belleville and District held their annual Christmas party at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. Mrs. Ola Jones and Mrs. J. E. Kuntze convened the smorgasbord. The tables were covered with red and white cloths and decorated with Santa centrepieces. A tree, gaily decorated with lights held the room a further Christmas atmosphere.

The president Miss Muriel Gibson, welcomed the members and guests. Grace was said by Mrs. R. W. Cass, and a toast to the Queen was proposed by Miss Nell Merry.

Mrs. C. H. Patrick, convener of the membership committee, introduced new members. Carols were led by Mrs. J. Boyd and accompanied on the piano by Mrs. R. W. Cass.

The finale of the evening was a reading of the "Littlest Angel" by Mrs. Ola Jones.

R. Michener to Open Art Exhibit

TORONTO — His Excellency, the Right Honorable Roland Michener, CC, CD, Governor General of Canada, will open the Hazel-Plamondon exhibition at the Art Gallery of Ontario at the members' preview on Friday, December 11, at 8 p.m.

The occasion will be the first official visit of His Excellency and Mrs. Michener to the Art Gallery of Ontario; as such His Excellency will carry out the traditional custom performed by every successive Governor General since Lord Lansdowne in 1887, of drinking a toast to the Sovereign from the footless wine glasses, known as the Governor Simcoe glasses, in the gallery's collection.

The exhibition by late Quebec painters, Theophile Hamel and Antoine Plamondon, organized for the National Gallery of Canada by that gallery's chief curator, Dr. R. H. Hubbard, contains over 80 paintings by these two renowned 19th century French Canadian artists. Religious subjects and many portraits of members of the merchant families in Quebec City, and leaders of church and state of the period are included; among these are a portrait of St. Catherine and the charcoal The Pigeon Shot by Antoine Plamondon, from the collection of the Art Gallery of Ontario. The latter is of especial interest because it is one of the rare paintings in which passenger pigeons, now extinct, are recorded.

Antoine Plamondon (1804-1895), the elder of the two artists, at first painted in the best traditions of French Canada; but after his return from studies in Paris from 1836 until 1838, his style, which he applied in painting a series of portraits of Quebec merchants and politicians, became more classically precise.

Theophile Hamel (1817-1870), early days had a style as sincere and informal as that of his master; but his work, too, changed after return from a period of study in England, France and Italy and in the 1840s and showed a greater warmth of color. Several of a series of portraits accomplished upon his return to Quebec after 1848 are included in the exhibition.

The Hazel-Plamondon exhibition is on view at the Art Gallery of Ontario until January 16, 1971; it goes on view at the National Gallery of Canada, Ottawa, the organizing gallery, from January 22 until February 21, 1971.

Millions of Britons Facing Bleak Days Due Power Cuts

LONDON (CP) — Millions of Britons faced another bleak day of power cuts as the electrical workers' slowdown continued for the third day today with wage negotiations suspended. No relief was in sight.

Prime Minister Edward Heath's cabinet was reported considering nationwide rationing of electricity, a move made in Northern Ireland Monday night.

The power cuts hit earlier and harder today in some sections of the United Kingdom. At the peak of the morning rush to work, power was cut by an average 21 per cent, in Wales cuts soared to as high as 40 per cent.

An electricity board official said: "The situation can only get worse."

Tens of thousands were late to work again today when traffic lights and rail signal lights were turned off. Freezing fog on dark London streets made for treacherous driving conditions.

Office workers in some London skyscrapers took one look at the "not working" signs on the elevators and went back home.

Currency trading on the normally busy foreign exchange market in London was halted because of the power cuts in banks and brokers offices.

Almost one-third of Britain's homes, factories and hospitals were without power during peak hours Tuesday, when the electricity supply was down by 31 per cent. It was the worst blackout since the 1947 fuel crisis.

John Davies, trade and industry secretary, sat up a round-the-clock operational room to keep industry and the public informed. He urged the unions to return to production to normal and negotiate.

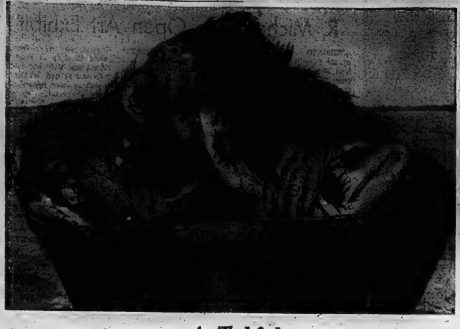
But the unions representing 125,000 electrical workers showed no inclination to end their work-to-rule slowdown, in which the workers refused to work overtime and observed every regulation in the book. No negotiating sessions were scheduled, and each side stood fast, with the Electricity Council offering a £2 (£5) increase in weekly wages that average £24 (£60) and the unions demanding £5 10s (£14.50).

Stories of hardship poured in from all over the country to the central electricity generating board headquarters in London, which was blacked out itself for a while. Many people complained that stores, theatres and motion picture houses were in operation while thousands of residences remained without lights and heat in 30- and 40-degree weather.

Not even Buckingham Palace was spared. The Queen took tea by candlelight Monday and was without central heating for three hours, but electricity was restored 10 minutes before Heath arrived for his daily report to the monarch.

Parliament and Scotland Yard were in darkness. London Zoo bought kerosene and butane gas-heaters to warm its animals. Dentists' drills ground to a halt, and non-emergency surgery was postponed.

Hospitals have proved particularly vulnerable to power cuts. The army will install nearly 100 extra generators today to supply power for ward lights, x-rays, and heart-lung machines.



In Norfolk, an ice cream truck came to the rescue of a baby whose piped breathing channel installed after a pneumonia attack, failed during a power cut.

The driver of the passing truck plugged the electric pump on the child's machine to the generator on his freezer, enabling the cheering baby to breathe freely again.

A merchant in Edinburgh sold fourpence candles for the equivalent of $1.80.

Dr. Caroline Deys, a family planning expert, predicted an increase in births next September. "There can be little doubt that the power cuts mean people are going to make love from sheer boredom," she said. "Nine months from now they're going to have babies they don't want."

Reconstructionist Leader Now 92

VANCOUVER (CP) — H. H. Stevens, who spent 30 years in the House of Commons and served as a cabinet minister in two Conservative governments, celebrated his 92nd birthday Tuesday with his customary 6½-mile stroll around Stanley Park.

"He won't sit down," said his daughter, Marjory Lovick, who, along with another daughter, Mrs. Clifton Coolidge, followed him at a discreet distance by car.

"He doesn't like to talk while he's walking either. It takes his breath away."

Accompanied by his German shepherd, Custer, Mr. Stevens completed the walk in two hours and 25 minutes, with two tea breaks.

He said the highlight of his long political career was the inquiry he sparked into price spreads and mass buying which began in February, 1934 and concluded a year later.

Business methods of department and chain stores and key industries came under fire and the inquiry resulted in his resignation from the R. B. Bennett cabinet.

Africans' Acquittal Upheld

BLOEMFONTEIN (Reuter) — The South African Appeal Court upheld today a decision by a Supreme Court judge acquitting 19 Africans charged with terrorism.

The Africans had been found not guilty at their trial in September of charges under the Terrorism Act. The charges included plotting the violent overthrow of the government.

The Appeal Court had been asked to consider a question of law to test the correctness of Supreme Court Judge Gerrit Viljoen's decision to acquit the Africans.

The unanimous verdict by the five Appeal Court judges is the latest episode in a long legal battle by the Africans against charges of subversion and terrorism.

The 19 Africans, including Winnie Mandela, wife of jailed nationalist leader Nelson Mandela, twice stood trial. They were first acquitted in February on charges under the Suppression of Communism Act but they were rearrested and jailed the moment they had been released.

This action by the government brought loud protests both inside and outside South Africa.

When the Africans stood trial again, it was on new charges—this time under the Terrorism Act.

Their counsel, Sidney Kentridge, noted defender of African nationalists here and in Rhodesia, successfully submitted they already had been acquitted on most of the allegations at their previous trial.

Mental Health Body Opposes Federal Young Offenders Act

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government's proposed Young Offenders Act would regard children as "pint-sized criminals," says the Canadian Mental Health Association in calling for the act's defeat or drastic amendment.

In a statement and in letters and pamphlets to members of the Senate and House of Commons, the association said the bill is "a criminal code for children which is distasteful in its terminology, legalistic in its approach and punitive in its effect."

The act, which received its first reading in the Commons Nov. 16, would raise the maximum age of juvenile offenders to 17 from 16 and raise the minimum age to 19 from seven.

Each young offender would be charged with a specific offence and not the present general offence of juvenile delinquency.

In its letters Monday, the association criticized the proposal that juveniles committing an act punishable by death or life imprisonment could be committed to a training school until age 21, when sentence would be passed.

"This is totally inhuman and intolerable," the association said. "It completely ignores the fact that a child may have changed drastically before he is 21."
